80 PER CENT SLATED FOR COLLEGES

$37 Million L.B.-Area Construction on Ballot

Nearly $37 million in state construction in the Long Beach area awaits passage of Proposition 3 on the June 5 ballot.

The statistic was reported by John W. Hancock, vice chairman of the Long Beach State College Local Advisory Board who announced that the board has voted unanimously to endorse the $270 million bond issue.

Eighty per cent of the funds would go for college and university construction in 1963 and 1964.

Among construction at LBSC which would be financed largely by the state bonds, Hancock said, are projects costing more than $4 million.

They include a student health center and additional physical education facilities, plus classroom equipment for a building under construction.

In southeastern Los Angeles County, the proposed outlay also includes $7,400,000 for the new South Bay State College; $367,000 for Metropolitan State Hospital in Norwalk, and $156,000 for the Southern California Reception Center and Clinic, also in Norwalk.

Proposed construction in Orange County during the two years totals almost $25 million.

The University of California's new Irvine campus is scheduled for projects totaling $11,808,000; Orange County State College, $11,495,000; Fairview State Hospital, Costa Mesa, $1,359,000, and the Ranger Unit at Orange, $119,000.

Of Proposition 3's $270 million, $20 million has been earmarked for junior colleges to help finance $87 million in construction planned for 1963-64.

In its resolution endorsing the measure, the LBSC advisory board said rapid growth requires the immediate expansion of higher education facilities, state hospitals and correctional institutions.

The needs are too great to be met out of available funds, the resolution said, and "failure to meet the immediate needs will result in inadequate mental hospitals and correctional facilities and denial of higher education opportunities to young Californians."

Venezuela Halts Revolt Led by Reds

Uprising Caused Bitterest Fight Ever in Nation

CARUPANO, Venezuela (UPI)—President Romulo Betancourt's armor and plane-backed forces Saturday night crushed a two-day-old Communist-led revolt and captured its key leaders including navy Capt. Jesus Teodoro Molina Villegas.

Fifteen hundred soldiers equipped with recoilless guns, howitzers and machineguns stormed into this city of 15,000 after six hours of some of the bitterest fighting in Venezuelan history.

* * * *

THE REBELS, comprising 450 marines and nearly 100 Communist and leftwing extremists, fought from balconies, rooftops and windows before they were overwhelmed.

A few pockets of resistance held out late Saturday night, but the back of the revolt was broken.

At 8 p.m. (7:30 p.m. EDT) government American-built Sabrejets strafed a rebel garrison forcing the bulk of the insurgents out into the hills surrounding the airport at the entrance to the city.

Spotter planes directed government artillery with deadly accuracy.

* * * *

BETANCOURT'S soldiers tore half their sleeves from their uniforms to differentiate themselves from the uniformed rebels. In the early hours of the fighting government soldiers accidentally shot each other.

The government troops softened up the rebel positions with six hours of artillery fire before the soldiers started moving on the city.

The Sabrejets strafed an airliner at the air field to prevent the rebels from escaping by air. Three warships cut off flight by sea.

In Caracas, the capital, Betancourt's interior ministry made the formal announcement that the rebellion had been crushed.

World of Light

NEW SIGHT LIKE TOY TO BLIND TEACHER

By ARTHUR EVERETT

NEW YORK (AP)—Most persons can imagine the stark terror that confronts a man who suddenly goes blind. But what of a man who voyages the other way, from the world of blindness into the world of light?

"It's sort of like a new toy, something you must get used to—I'm still more familiar with my old world," said Leonard Ecker, a Bay City, Mich., school teacher who now enjoys a very small measure of sight after nearly a lifetime of blindness.

However, in contrasting his condition with that of a person moving in the opposite direction between the two worlds, Ecker pointed out that "mine is full of nothing but hope."

Leonard, 34, sat in his 17th floor room in the Hotel Manhattan Saturday and talked about the two days since he emerged from the New York Eye & Ear Infirmary, after a corneal transplant on his one remaining eye.

* * * *

HIS WIFE, ROSEMARY, also 34, sent here by the Bay City Times for a reunion with him, listened intently as he probed the depths of his mind for reaction to the new world in which he finds himself.

"In a sense—it sounds odd to say this — I'm less capable in getting around," Ecker said. "I'm getting a world of new stimuli in this eye. The doctors warned me it would be confusing.

"I'm not as sure of myself in getting around as I was before. I'm much more concerned about bumping into things, for example, and setting things back. I don't want to undo the doctors' wonderful work.

"The doctors took pains to see that I did not over-anticipate. It was explained to me very carefully what I would be able to see, that it would be very slow, that there would be good days and bad days.

"I haven't at any time been worried over the fact that I can't see now what I will be able to see later. I'm very much impressed with what I could see of the Great White Way, the lights of Broadway. Although I may have missed 99 per cent of them, I still saw an awful lot of them."

ECKER TEACHES English at Bay City Central High School and students there contributed $500 to help defray his expenses here. He was operated on April 7 when a cornea was transplanted to his right eye. The left eye is artificial.

A dark-haired, trim man of medium size, Ecker had been blind in both eyes since an illness robbed him of his sight at the age of 14 months. Today, he can see very little but doctors are hopeful that with continued treatment he may regain 10 per cent of normal vision in the right eye.

GOV. DANIEL THIRD

Connally Leading Texas Demo Race

JOHN CONNALLY
Former Navy Secretary

EDWIN A. WALKER
6th in Field of 6

DALLAS (UPI)—John Connally, a former Navy secretary in the Kennedy administration who repudiated the New Frontier after he resigned, took a substantial lead in late night returns from Saturday's Democratic primary election for governor of Texas.

Connally, 45, of Fort Worth, is a moderate conservative. Don Yarborough, 36, of Houston, the only ardent advocate of the New Frontier among six Democratic candidates, was running second.

Connally came home to Texas to campaign against much of Kennedy's program, despite his close ties with Vice President Lyndon Johnson.

The incumbent Democratic governor, Price Daniel, was running third. Daniel sought an unprecedented fourth term.

Former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, a member of the John Birch Society, ran sixth in the field of six Democratic candidates.

IN THE REPUBLICAN gubernatorial primary, Jack Cox, 39, an oilman, led Roy Whittenburg, 49, a Borger, Tex., newspaper publisher. The total vote in the Republican primary was very small. However, many conservatives who may support the GOP in November voted Saturday in the Democratic primary.

Returns indicated a runoff June 2 between the first and second Democratic candidates for the nomination with the winner virtually certain to be elected governor next November.

Returns to the Texas Election Bureau from 122 of the state's 254 counties, including 12 complete, in the Democratic gubernatorial primary, gave:

Connally, 74,042; Yarborough, 45,736; Daniel, 42,561; Atty. Gen. Will Wilson, 28,892; former highway commissioner Marshall Formby, 24,325, and Walker, 20,103.

Returns from the same counties in the Republican gubernatorial primary gave:

Cox, 15,760 votes, and Whittenburg, 2,537.

Defense Plan OKd by NATO

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—The Western Allies Saturday approved a U.S. plan to share atomic secrets. Then, to bolster defenses, the United States assigned five missile-carrying Polaris submarines to the Atlantic Alliance and promised more when they go into service.

The nuclear-armed submarines remain under American command, but as of today, they are under technical control of NATO.

* * * *

THIS MEANS they would fall under actual NATO control if war broke out.

The word on the Polaris submarines was given the 15-nation alliance by U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara during a session here of the annual spring policy review by NATO defence and foreign ministers.

The Polaris offer bolstered American appeals for the Western Allies to beef up their conventional ground forces, which the United States considers an essential part of any deterrent force.

The alliance earlier approved a far-reaching U.S. plan to furnish tactical and strategic nuclear information to the NATO powers hitherto stamped "top secret."

* * * *

IN ACCEPTING the U.S. plan, NATO also agreed to formalize guide lines on the possible use of tactical atomic weapons in war.

In Washington, State Department officials said that the United States offer of additional information to the Allies on such things as the deployment and target objectives of nuclear missiles does not require new authority from Congress.

U.S. Eyes Brokerage Practices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first public investigation of the stock brokerage business since 1934 will begin here Monday.

The inquiry is expected to produce testimony about dubious sales tactics, lax supervision of brokerage employes in branch offices and the hiring of stock salesmen with questionable backgrounds.

Witnesses also will tell of steps being taken by the industry to avoid trouble attributable to salesmen and their practices.

* * * *

OFFICIALS of the Securities and Exchange Commission, which will conduct the probe, have given no hint of the specific situations to be scrutinized. Neither will they indicate whether they expect any major scandals to develop in the two weeks of public hearings.

It was known, however, that commission investigators have armed themselves with evidence of a number of unsavory situations involving major firms. These could figure prominently in the inquiry.

The hearings will launch the public phase of a $750,000 SEC study of the entire securities industry.

Physicist Slays Wife, Tots, Self

By JAMES HYNES

Bodies of an Anaheim physicist, his wife and three children were found in their home late Saturday. Police said it was murder-suicide.

Dead were James E. Chambers, 33, of 631 Adria St., his wife Violet, 32, their two daughters, Cynthia Lynn, 5, and Maria Ann, 6, and their son, James, 1½.

County Coroner Dr. Raymond Brandt said Chambers shot the children and his wife in their heads while they slept sometime late Thursday. Then he lay down on the bed beside his dead wife and fired the shot that killed himself.

IDEAS IN SOUTHLAND MAG.

Time to Spruce Up Your Home?

Spring is in the air, and this means many things to many people.

But to most it means that the time has arrived to fix up the premises—paint and paper, build a sidewalk or patio, add a fireplace, put up awnings, set out more plants or trees, or even add that long-dreamed-of extra bathroom, family room or even a swimming pool.

Today, Southland magazine presents its annual Spring Home Improvement Issue which is loaded with ideas on what others are doing to make the home more attractive, more livable and more valuable. If you are thinking about making your home a better place in which to live, don't overlook today's Southland.

A choice attraction at the Los Altos YMCA Men's Carnival Saturday was the old car above. For a fee carnival-goers could pound on the car with sledgehammers. More than 40 game booths, mechanical rides and chuck wagon food were featured at the event. But, as you can see, old car was center of attraction for youths to vent feelings.

L.A.C. Says:
Running for Cover

We remember a story during the early days of the great 1930's depression when merchants were canceling orders and factories were closing. One merchant wired: "Cancel my order at once—reply." The company replied: "Sorry, you will have to wait your turn." We were reminded of the story by the rush of Democratic candidates now repudiating the California Democratic Council (CDC) endorsements for the coming election.

Almost daily we hear of a hopeful Democrat saying he does not seek, or want the CDC endorsement. Some of these candidates have never taken part in CDC activities and have disagreed with its policies of abolition of the loyalty oath and of the Un-American Activities Committee—and its general attitude of softness to Communist-dominated countries. But some of the candidates now repudiating the CDC have been strong supporters during the past two years when these policies have been a dominant part of the CDC program—adopted in February 1960.

Now they are running for cover because they have found these are not popular stands for an American to take. But where have they been during these years—and why have they waited until just before election day—only a month away—to stand up and be counted? Whatever their answer, it is reassuring to find some of them repudiating the left-wing CDC which has been so dominant a part of the Democratic Party in the state during the past four years.

There is no such repudiation by Gov. Brown or State Sen. Richard Richards. They are stuck with the CDC policy. They took part in formulating it. Brown is an honorary chairman of the organization and Richard Richards has been one of the main speakers and organizers of the CDC. It is too late for them to withdraw from programs they have so ardently supported.

The Brown-Richards, and generally the Brown administration, have attempted to cloud the issue by attempting to paint every conservative—be he Republican or Democrat—as a "Bircher." They loudly condemn all conservatives as "radical right-wingers." They have seen a whole Democratic Club in Long Beach change its registration because its members would not follow the CDC policies—so this group was also labeled as radical. But the left-wing CDC policies have not been referred to by the Democratic leaders of the state.

Some candidates have repudiated the CDC a little late. They have found it advisable to take such a stand in their efforts to be nominated by Democrats in the June 5 primary election. They remember how the California delegates in the 1960 presidential convention widely split over the CDC domination—and how the million-vote Democratc majority promised by Brown for Mr. Kennedy turned into a victory for the Republican candidate—who carried the state.

One little-publicized part of the CDC program shows its trend toward socialism and its contempt for the free enterprise system. It reads: "We specifically encourage the formation of more consumer cooperatives, and we call on Democrats in California to use the ones that exist." In other words, they would establish tax-free cooperative stores and factories to compete with tax-paying free enterprise establishments. This is one reason why many enterprises take a long look at such a philosophy before investing in the state.

These are some of the reasons for the repudiation of CDC support by candidates seeking nomination in the coming primary election. Gov. Brown and Richard Richards have only nominal competition for the Democratic nomination. But in the finals they will be faced with their past part in forming CDC policies. It will be interesting to see if—and how—they, too, will run for cover.—L.A.C.

Pravda Celebrates Anniversary

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda Saturday celebrated its 50th anniversary as the No. 1 press organ of world communism with medals, meeting and a strictly censored account of its history.

Premier Khrushchev led the cheers for Pravda at a special rally in the Kremlin Congress Hall attended by top Communist Party ofifcials, Pravda Editor Pavel Satyukov and others associated with the paper.

BUT THE two men chiely responsible for making Pravda the force it is today were not even mentioned.

STRICTLY IGNORED were now disgraced and disregarded V. M. Molotov, Pravda's first and most famous editor, and Generalissimo Stalin, who turned it into the final arbiter in print of the Communist world.

The paper, its editor and some of its workers were awarded the Order of Lenin at the ceremony by President Leonid Brezhnev. The anniversary was the chief news in all the Soviet press. There was virtually no other news on the radio or TV.

Star's Mate Has Left Leg Amputated

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The left leg of Robert Morgan, husband of actress Yvonne DeCarlo, Saturday was amputated as a result of injuries suffered while making a film.

Morgan, a movie stuntman, underwent surgery Saturday afternoon at Good Samaritan Hospital.

Hospital authorities said the leg was amputated above the knee and that his condition was "satisfactory and normal recovery was expected."

MORGAN WAS injured while making a film near Superior, Ariz., a couple of weeks ago.

Friday night Miss DeCarlo fled from Harris Restaurant in Anaheim, Calif., in tears where she was appearing in a night club act. The actress left by plane for Phoenix when she learned her husband faced a possible leg amputation.

Miss DeCarlo's appearance was her first on the night club circuit.

SURVIVED NAZIS

Three Refugees Killed at Railroad Crossing

TORONTO (UPI) — A young Jewish couple who lived through the war years in Nazi concentration camps and a visiting Israeli aunt who scrimped for years for the trip here died Saturday when a slow freight hit their car at a railroad crossing.

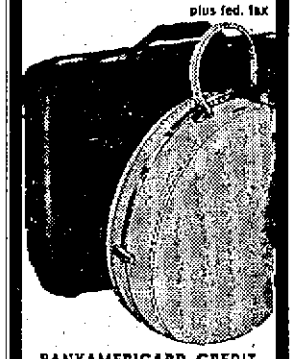

Police said the three victims were en route home after visiting other relatives when Joseph Winebaum, 33, apparently failed to notice warning signals and drove directly into the path of the Canadian National Railways freight.

In addition to Winebaum, his wife, Guilda, 31, and Winebaum's aunt, Rachael Bursztain, 46, of Tel Aviv were killed. All died at the scene.

Police said that the crash demolished the car and hurled bodies 100 feet along the track.

The happy, prosperous Winebaums were driving Mrs. Bursztain back to her sister's home after visiting other relatives when the crash occurred.

Mrs. Rena Zucker said the death of her nephew and sister, Winebaum and Mrs. Bursztain, left her the only surviving member of a family which once numbered 150 before the outbreak of World War II.

32nd Democratic Council Won't Endorse Hopefuls

Decision Hit by Congress Seat Seeker

The Long Beach area 32nd Congressional District Democratic Council voted "no endorsement" at its endorsing convention Saturday, but without prejudice to either of the Democratic congressional candidates, Joseph J. Johovich and W. Bud deCannis. The vote was 60-34.

The decision, however, represented a personal setback to Johovich, who had sought the endorsement while deCannis said he did not want it.

Johovich told the convention he "regretted" their action because he felt it eliminated the CDC (California Democratic Council) as a force to be reckoned with in any election. He admonished that the CDC should take more action and attack such endorsement problems with more, rather than less, conviction.

DeCannis explained he did not seek CDC support because it is too late in the primary campaign to confuse the issue and because he views the job of congressional representation as applying to all grassroots workers, not some 600 in the CDC.

DeCannis also blasted the incumbent GOP Congressman Craig Hosmer's "big brother buffers" which keep him one place removed from his constituents.

The convention action paralleled that of the 39th Assembly District council's no-endorsement decision of last month. In that case Dr. Kenneth W. Applegate sought support while Bert B. Bond repudiated it.

In a final piece of business, the 32nd Council Saturday voted to concur in the 44th Assembly District's endorsement of Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick's candidacy. He is unopposed in the Democratic primary.

Health Chief Rips Doctors on Boycott

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Secretary of Welfare Abraham Ribicoff charged a group of New Jersey doctors Sunday night with resorting to "blackmail" to defeat a proposed federal medical care plan for the aged.

More than 200 New Jersey doctors have signed a declaration that they would refuse to treat patients under terms of the King-Anderson bill, which would use Social Security funds to meet medical expenses of the aged.

* * * *

"IN TRYING to blackmail the Congress and the American people by refusing to treat older people," Ribicoff said at a state convention by Young Democrats here, "they are violating the Hippocratic Oath which they took before they began the practice of medicine."

New Jersey Gov. Richard J. Hughes also accused the signers earlier in the day of violating their professional oath. He said he hoped their "threat" would fail.

Ribicoff, whose department bears principal responsibility for shepherding the administration's medical care proposals through congress, said the bill in no way covers medical payments to private physicians.

* * * *

"IT SHOULD be absolutely no concern to a physician where a patient gets the money with which to pay his hospital costs," he said, "whether from his private funds, from premiums on an insurance policy, or from payments he would have paid into the Social Security trust fund, as provided by the King-Anderson Bill.

"Any doctor who refuses to treat a patient in violation of his Hippocratic Oath isn't fit to practice medicine."

Doctors responsible for the New Jersey declaration denied that they were violating their professional ethics.

SIMIAN SYMPOSIUM

This Audience Formal; They All Wore 'Tails'

By SHERM WILLIAMS

"These people," the man at the speaker's stand in the Wilton Hotel said somberly, "need to have someone around to talk to them.

"They need someone to talk to." He paused for effect and looked around the Empire Room at his audience.

Less than half the audience was paying attention.

Of the other half, a few of "these people" were rolling on the floor. One was trying to swing from an expensive drape. Another was quietly turning somersaults, an endless, tiring succession of silent nip-overs.

The California Conference of the Simian Society of America was in full swing.

Of "these people" in the room, one was a gibbon ape. Several were spider monkeys. Some were wooly monkeys. A few were just plain commonplace people. The kind without tails.

"These people," intoned the speaker, "have enough problems without having to be alone." One of "his people" bared her teeth at a reporter. Another let out a shrill howl.

"What happens to monkeys," the speaker implored, "when the people are not home?"

Two spider monkeys in the corner giggled.

A Gibbon ape, erect on his hind legs paced back and forth. His hair swept over his collar like that of an 1890 Shakesperian actor.

"Gibbon apes aren't very smart," confided Ray Beck of Bakersfield. He introduced the gibbon, "Bobette Back." The gibbon wasn't a boy after all. Bobette was garbed in a paisley suit, hardly the thing for a real redblooded boy ape to effect.

"Isn't Junior Buehler cute?" someone asked.

Junior is a wooly monkey named official greeter for the conference. He lives with Patricia Buehler of Berkeley. She spelled her name politely, but said "Must important, this is junior."

"My grandchildren think he is wonderful. I am the only grandmother they know who has anything like junior.

The one-day convention which attracted a tight knit group of simian owners from Northern California, was for the purpose of helping form a Southern California chapter of Simian Association.

While the people soberly talked monkey business the simians amused themselves as best they could.

One woman tenderly bounced her hairy charge on one knee.

Another took her simian into the corridor and, with it clinging to her like a baby being burped, walked back and forth.

On a table was a display of the kinds of foods monkeys and apes like to eat. It wasn't the kind of stuff that a dog or cat can be persuaded is good. It consisted of cans of choice yams, water chestnuts, sliced papaya, hearts of palm, kadota figs and strawberries. Fresh frozen melon balls also were displayed.

What causes you to keep monkeys, George Ohlayer of San Francisco, a typical Simian Association member was asked.

"It is a challenge to one's ability to understand these guys," he said. "It is a great experience to learn how to get along with them."

His monkey yawned.

At the podium, the speaker said, "Simians need companionship."

A voice from the rear called, "I don't think you should ever buy just one monkey."

"No," the speaker agreed "If you have a Rhesus monkey, the only thing that can get through to him is another Rhesus."

The gibbon curled his lip.

Democrats Face Voting for Montoya or Montoya

SANTA FE, N. M. (AP)—Democrats voting in New Mexico's primary election Tuesday are going to have to do some brushing up on the alphabet the night before.

Seeking re-nomination for United States representative, position 1, is U. S. Rep. Joseph M. Montoya. He has drawn as one of his two primary opponents an Albuquerque salesman by the name of Joseph E. Montoya.

To add to the confusion, Joseph E. Montoya drew the top position on the ballot, the spot many voters check off when they are in doubt.

State law requires that in the case of a similarity of names, the occupation and county of residence of the candidates be listed on the ballot.

The New Mexico attorney general ruled Congressman Montoya should be listed as: "Joseph M. Montoya, U. S. representative, Sandoval County." His opponent, the attorney general said, should be listed as: "Joseph E. Montoya, salesman, Bernalillo County."

JOSEPH E. MONTOYA

JOSEPH M. MONTOYA

Joseph E. Montoya's attorney appealed to the New Mexico Supreme Court to force the secretary of state to list Congressman Montoya as "Jose Manuel Montoya, attorney, Santa Fe County."

Attorney Dale Dilts argued that Rep. Montoya's true name was Jose Manuel Montoya and offered an old voter's registration certificate as evidence.

Reuther Urges Car Price Cut

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—Labor leader Walter P. Reuther said Saturday the profits of General Motors and Ford are so "exorbitant" they should immediately cut prices on new cars in line with President Kennedy's economic stabilization formula.

Reuther said the two giant automakers could slash new car prices by $225 to $275 and still earn as much as the average U. S. manufacturing corporation.

* * * *

THE UAW president said that "enormous" profits of GM and Ford in 1961 and greater-than-average gains in productivity in the industry call for price reductions under guideposts issued by Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers.

He said in a report prepared for the UAW's 18th convention that failure to lower car prices also would lead to increased unemployment among UAW members and spur inflation.

* * * *

"THE POWER of these corporations to maintain prices even in the face of declines in demand has been a prime factor in the increase in the general price level in recent years," he said.

AWARD WINNER

Novelist Jessamyn West (right), chats with Mrs. Richard Nixon at California Press Women's convention at the Pacific Club Saturday night just before Mrs. Nixon, whose husband is Miss West's cousin, presented Miss West with the Golden Flame award during the banquet which capped Saturday's events.

Lawyer Speaks to News Women

Sound health of a government is as important to a nation as the health of an individual, attorney Loyd Wright told the California Press Women (CPW) Saturday night at their state convention banquet at the Pacific Coast Club.

Wright, a candidate for Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate urged members of the organization "to alert the public when a government shows signs of over-indulgence and extravagances.

* * * *

"WOMEN OF the press have the power to feed the public ideas that will nourish a sound government," Wright said.

More than 100 persons attended the three day convention for women representatives from newspapers, radio and television.

During the banquet, Miss Jessamyn West, author-journalist from Napa, was awarded the eighth annual Golden Flame award for her book, "Friendly Persuasion." The award was made by Mrs. Richard Nixon.

Other guests included Lt Gov. and Mrs. Glenn M. Anderson.

Anderson delivered the opening address. Disk jockey Bob Crane was master of ceremonies.

* * * *

THE NEWLY elected CPW president, Ruth Gomes, of the Hanford Sentinel will be installed today during the concluding meeting, a Sunday brunch.

Mildred Flanary of The Independent, Press-Telegram and Carrie Lou Sutherland, of the Anaheim Bulletin were co-chairmen of the event.

Miss West is the wife of Dr. H. M. McPherson, superintendent of Napa Valley city schools. She is a first cousin of former Vice President Nixon and holds a doctor's degree. She has taught at Notre Dame, Mills College, Napa College, Stanford, Pomona College and Redlands University.

The bodies were discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Rivers, neighbors, who checked the house after noticing newspapers and milk-bottles acumulating by the door.

DR. BRANDT said Chambers used a .22 caliber automatic pistol. There were no signs of struggle.

In the little girls' room, toys and coloring books were scattered on the floor where they had been left after play.

The baby was alone in crib in another bedroom.

El Cajon Child Chokes on Peanut

EL CAJON (UPI)—Melvin Shaw, 2, choked to death Saturday when a peanut he was eating lodged in his windpipe.

Melvin's father George Shaw administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation when the child turned blue and collapsed in their trailer home, but he was pronounced dead on arrival at a valley hospital.

poses remain the same."

Wilson said in Austin that the returns were "disappointing." Cox claimed a decisive victory in the Republican primary.

The list of candidates was one of the largest in Texas history. Voters nominated, in addition to governor, candidates for all other major state offices, 23 congressional seats and hundreds of county offices.

They also indicated — though not by overwhelming majorities — in non-binding referendums that they do not want legal betting on horse races in Texas, but would like to see the $1.75 poll tax abolished as a prerequisite to voting.

Joe Pool of Dallas lead a biterly fought race for congressman-at-large, with Wouddow Wilson Bean, a former El Paso county judge, running second.

BEAN ADMITTED in the last days of his campaign that he has not filed a Federal income tax report in the last 10 years. Many of his campaign supporters deserted him.

Walker, 52, campaigned almost entirely on the issue of communism.

He charged that the President intends to turn over the U.S. armed forces to the United Nations. He said if that happened and he were governor, he would personally take over all armed forces and military materiel in Texas.

Two Pickups Hit Headon; Six Killed

GALLUP, N. M. (UPI)—A pickup truck whipped around a slow-moving truck, sped down a hill in the wrong lane and crashed squarely into another pickup truck Saturday. Six persons, including a baby, were killed and two persons were badly injured.

Four of the dead were from Fort Defiance Ariz. One was from Window Rock, Ariz., and the other was from Gallup.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Mich. Governor to Battle Romney

DETROIT (UPI)—The battle lines were drawn Saturday night for what promises to be Michigan's bitterest gubernatorial battle in recent history when Democratic Gov. John B. Swainson announced for re-election and declared war on Michigan's GOP—headed by former automaker George Romney.

A record Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner crowd which brought out 3,500 Democratic party faithfuls was on hand to praise Swainson's first term in office, cheer his decision to seek re-election and predict a smashing victory at the polls in November.

The governor, a 36-year-old war veteran who lost both legs in a mine explosion in World War II, said, "On the basis of my record . . . and on the program and platform of the Democratic party . . . I intend to run for re-election as governor in 1962."

WILLIAM C. BATTLE
Served in War with JFK

New Ambassador

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy plans to appoint a wartime comrade, William C. Battle, 41, Charlottesville, Va., lawyer, as new U.S. ambassador to Australia, informed sources reported Saturday.

Battle, who directed the Kennedy-for-president campaign in Virginia in 1960, served with Kennedy in the Navy during World War II. Battle commanded a PT boat in the Pacific in the same squadron as Kennedy. The Australian ambassador post has been vacant since the resignation last fall of William J. Sebald, an Eisenhower administration appointee.

Quake Damages Fontana Store

PASADENA (UPI)—Two separate earthquakes rumbled through Southern California Saturday causing isolated damage in nearby Fontana.

The temblors were recorded about one hour apart by seismologists at the California Institute of Technology. The first quake at 6:10 a.m., was "small," according to seismologists, but caused isolated damage in Fontana where the ceiling of a furniture store collapsed.

The second temblor, at 7:17 a.m., also felt in San Diego, El Centro and Palm Springs areas, was described as "moderate." Seismologists said it recorded a magnitude of 3.4 on seismographs compared with the first quake which registered 2 on the Richter scale.

400 SAO Suspects Captured

ALGIERS (UPI)—French authorities announced Saturday security forces had arrested 400 Secret Army Organization (SAO) suspects in a massive search of a single quarter of Algiers.

The suspects were arrested in the Champ de Manoeuvre quarter during the 48 hours the area was sealed off by barbed wire barricades and subjected to house-to-house searches. The drive was part of French commander-in-chief Gen Michel Fourquet's plan to crush the European terrorist organization in a systematic hunt for terrorists and their weapons.

Salinger Leaves for Europe

NEW YORK (AP)—Pierre Salinger, President Kennedy's press secretary, left by plane Saturday night on a two-week European trip, including a five- or six-day stay in Russia at the personal invitation of Premier Khrushchev's son-in-law.

Mahoney to Get Ghana Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Mahoney, a Phoenix, Ariz., attorney, will be appointed U.S. ambassador to Ghana, a government official said Saturday night. The present ambassador, Francis H. Russell, has been hospitalized in Washington for about a month and there have been reports that he did not plan to return to Ghana.

95 Slain in Katanga

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—The Central Congo government said Saturday night its troops have clashed with Katangese gendarmes in northern Katanga. The statement came several hours after the Congolese perss agency reported heavy fighting had taken place in two villages Wednesday and Katangese troops had slain 95 civilian prisoners.

Space Closes In on Russ Orbiter

SEATTLE (UPI)—Gherman Titov, Soviet hero who has soloed in space, was caught in a crush of earthbound humanity Saturday at the Seattle World's Fair.

This was the biggest day of attendance at the fair since its opening two weeks ago and more than 50,000 persons were on the 74-acre grounds.

* * * *

MORE THAN 10,000 of them were Campfire Girls from every state in the union.

Titov arrived here Saturday from Washington, D.C. after a stopover in Chicago where he said, "It would be splendid if the United States and Russia could go to the moon together."

The smiling, curly-haired cosmonaut was followed by large crowds everywhere. At one point he stopped abruptly, and in the best style of an American political candidate, tweeked the cheeks of a pretty one-year-old girl in a stroller.

* * * *

THE INFANT, Elizabeth Ulrich, took the attention wide-eyed and bewildered, and her mother, Mrs. Alvin Ulrich of Seattle, was flabbergasted.

"My goodness, that was the Russian astronaut," the red-haired, freckle-faced mother exclaimed as Titov resumed his brisk tour of the fair.

Midway in the afternoon Titov had a news conference in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration building on the fairgrounds where an array of American rocketry and missiles is on display.

At the same time, a group of more than 600 "peace walkers" paraded outside the grounds with signs proclaiming "end nuclear testing. No more tests. Peace is the only soldier. World's fairs not world wars."

* * * *

KENNETH Kirkpatrick, Seattle, peace education secretary for the American Friends Service Committee, sponsor of the walk, said the fact that the demonstration took place while Titov was at the fair was "pure coincidence."

"We had planned this walk for opening day (April 21) but decided to hold it two weeks later," Kirkpatrick said. "And that decision was made before we knew Titov would be here today. But we hope he sees our signs because we would like him to know that we do have peace organizations in this country."

LAUNCHING THIS WEEK

Satellite Put Under Wraps

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—The flashing light geodetic satellite declassified last week after a bitter security tussle, apparently was back under wraps Saturday.

The Air Force summoned reporters to a conference where project officials were to brief them on the satellite, nicknamed Anna, which is scheduled for launching from the Cape this week.

But 15 minutes after the news briefing was to start, only reporters had shown up. Then an Air Force spokesman appeared to announce that the Defense Department had decided to call off the pre-launch briefing. No explanation was given.

* * * *

SATELLITE LAUNCHINGS at the Pacific Missile Range have been classified in recent months, but this is the first time one has been cloaked at Cape Canaveral. The type of booster rocket was not even announced, although it is generally known that a two-stage Thor-Able-Star has been assigned the task.

Only information available is a technical fact sheet released April 27 in Washington at the meeting of the International Committee of Space Reseach. Very few details about the satellite or mission were released.

It is known the satellite carries a high-intensity light which will flash at various intervals in an experiment to obtain more accurate maps of the world. By giving scientists a known point in space to be photographed against a background of stars, the flashing beacon will permit better measurements of the earth's surface.

* * * *

THE READING of the ANNA (for Army, Navy, NASA and Air Force) paper at the international space meeting was a victory for scientists who pleaded their case before congress for declassification of the project.

Scientists like Dr. James Van Allen of the University of Iowa and Dr. Fred Whipple of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory contended that to effectively map the world with a geodetic satellite a great number of countries must be permitted to make observations. They said results should be made available to the worldwide scientific community.

Certain Defense Department officials argued the satellite has military implications and in 1960 succeeded in classifying it. NASA withdrew from the program at this time.

* * * *

THE DEFENSE officials said worldwide dissemination of data from ANNA would permit Russia to aim its missiles more accurately at United States targets. It also would help U.S. military planners more effectively pinpoint targets in Russia.

The scientists argued that the precise location and distance to targets in America already is well known with sufficient accuracy. They pointed out the true value of ANNA would be in determining accurately the shape of the earth and the position of islands and other remote areas of the globe.

Under this persuasion, Defense Secretary McNamara declassified ANNA last month.

West Berlin Honors Clay

BERLIN (UPI) — Retired Gen. Lucius D. Clay, hero of the Berlin blockade, Saturday was made an honorary West Berlin citizen, the first foreigner and the ninth man to receive the honor.

Clay, in a short speech to the West Berlin city council, repeated President Kennedy's pledge of American "determination to keep our troops here until there is a single city and a reunified Germany."

Bonelli Fete Slated

County Supervisor Frank G. Bonelli will be honored Monday night at a meeting of Elks Lodge 888, 4101 E. Willow St. Bonelli, scheduled to speak at 7:30 p.m., will be presented with a plaque in recognition of service to Long Beach.

BIG CLEANUP

Tallest Building Gets Bath

NEW YORK (AP)—A crew of 30 men Monday will tackle the biggest spring cleaning job ever undertaken.

They are going to scrub the Empire State Building. They don't expect to finish for six months.

It will be the first face cleaning for the 102-story landmark, the world's tallest building, since it was completed in 1931.

They have to wash and waterproof (3,000 gallons of coating) a half-million square feet of limestone, scrub and paint (250 gallons) the metal frames of 6,500 windows — the panes are washed twice a month —and polish the 8-inch-wide ornamental strips of stainless steel which stretch the height of the 1,472-foot-tall building.

The workmen will start at the 86th floor on the north and west sides and work down to the sixth-floor setback. Then they'll switch to the south and east sides.

Big Sand Pile Traps Little Boy

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Eight-year-old Rickie Paul Dowell found what every child dreams about — a sand pile 30 feet high.

But the mound of sand was a death trap for Rickie. His body was recovered from beneath the sand Saturday after a nightlong search.

* * * *

THEME FOR the series is "Looking Versus Seeing: An Approach to Contemporary Art."

Appearing on successive Tuesday nights will be:

May 15 — Frances Roberts Nugent, educational curator of the Los Angeles County Museum who will discuss "Contemporary Sculpture."

The junior high school is located at Monrovia Avenue and Appian Way, Long Beach.

Blind Man Leaves for Meeting

In only two years since he was blinded by an accident, Ed Meier, of 2932 Silverwood Drive, Los Alamitos, has learned to read Braille and get around by himself so well that now he's headed for a convention.

He left early this morning for Yosemite National Park for a three-day chemical company convention starting Monday.

Meier, 33, represents six nationally-circulated trade magazines. The chemical company staging the convention publishes one of them. Meier also serves the speakers' bureau for the Braille Institute.

Meier will head for San Francisco after the convention to make several business calls before returning home May 15. His "chauffeur" and companion on the trip will be Verle Bisbee, a railroad employe.

Prisoners Set to Be 'Stars' on Police TV

NEW YORK (AP) — A new type of television program is being started by the New York City police department, beginning Wednesday, and is said to be the first of its kind.

The daily lineup of suspected criminals at police headquarters in Manhattan will be televised to other key police stations in each of the city's five boroughs.

Such lineups are held to see if detectives recognize suspects wanted in crimes other than the particular cases in which they have been detained.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said televising of the lineups would permit at least 10 times as many detectives to view suspects as now are able to do so.

3 County Worker Health Plans Urged

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

A committee headed by Dr. Orville W. Cole of Long Beach has recommended three hospital-medical plans for Los Angeles County employes and has proposed the county contribute $5 per month toward the premium of each participant.

The three plans are (1) a world-wide indemnity insurance plan, (2) a non-profit service plan to be underwritten by either Blue Shield or Blue Cross or both, and (3) an independent or comprehensive group practice (closed panel) medical plan.

Dr. Cole's committee was appointed by the board of supervisors to review recommendations of a 15-member committee, which was made up of county employes, employe organization officers and county department heads.

Dr. Cole's committee recommendations, which will go before the supervisors Tuesday, made no mention of overall cost. Earlier estimates on the 15-member committee plan, however, were $2.2 million per year.

The Cole committee said federal government and California state government insurance programs allow the three types of plans which it is recommending.

"At present," the report said, "about 35 per cent of Los Angeles County employes who carry such insurance are covered by indemnity plans, 35 per cent by service plans, and 30 per cent by closed-panel plans."

Dr. Cole said Los Angeles City recently decided to contribute $5 per employe and a study of other California counties and cities indicates that a $5 contribution by Los Angeles County would be in "reasonable conformity."

TOKYO (AP)—The climbing craze has given Japan a new national record—160 killed and 277 injured—in mountain mishaps in 1961, a record which police say probably will be bettered this year.

Japanese National Police reported Saturday the 1961 death toll was an increase of 62 per cent over the previous year.

Climbing is a popular and sometimes frantic recreation in this mountain-studded nation. Weekend crowds are so big there are lineups on some slopes.

The service for Karen Sue Avey, 16, will be at 3 p.m. at Walters and McCormick Mortuary, Fullerton, with burial in Loma Vista. She also was a student at Fullerton High School. Both died when the Prowse car slammed into a station wagon driven by Rudolph Vastlik, 37, of Yorba Linda. He is in Anaheim Memorial Hospital, where physicians said his condition is "fairly good."

The crash occurred shortly before midnight at the Anaheim Road-Blue Gum Street intersection. Police said Prowse apparently failed to make a boulevard stop. They said they will ask an inquest into the crash.

This would bring a net saving of about $2.5 million next year, Hahn said.

The 2,043 employes recommended in the record-shattering preliminary budget of $624,221,008 would require about $10.4 million in salaries and retirement benefits next year, Hahn said.

Mundt Says Someone 'Lying' in Estes Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., Saturday said "somebody is obviously lying" among Agriculture Department employes involved in the investigation of Billie Sol Estes, indicted Texas financier.

Mundt is ranking Republican on the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee which is studying the tangled Estes case. Mundt scored agriculture Department officials for calling a news conference Friday on the Estes affair.

Calling this "a sort of kangaroo court atmosphere," Mundt said is a statement:

"All that is apparent from the reports of Friday's bizarre confrontations arranged for the press by the Department of Agriculture leadership is that somebody is obviously lying.

"What we need and what should be produced is a careful investigation of all the factors and all the personnel involved. Witnesses must be brought before an appropriate tribunal of Congress and asked direct questions producing testimony under oath where the rules of perjury apply."

Estes, 37-year-old Pecos Democrat, is under state and federal fraud indictments charging he raised millions by obtaining mortgages on nonexistent fertilizer tanks. He also has stored millions of bushels of grain for the government and was a major cotton raiser.

Mundt said Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate investigations group, "now has at least 10 trained investigators and government Accounting Office accountants working on this case at the Texas end of the line and in Washington.

"Depositions are being taken. More (investigators) will be assigned to it as needed."

At the Agriculture Department's news conference Friday, N. Battle Hales, an employe recently transferred to a new job, said agriculture stabilization and conservation officials gave Estes "the equivalent of favoritism" on some matters. This was denied by Horace Godfrey, the administrator of the agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and by other officials.

ISLAND TALES SPINNER

Michener in Congress Race

PIPERSVILLE, Pa. (UPI) — A woman telephoned Bucks County Democratic headquarters in nearby Doylestown the other day with the breathless announcement that an "imposter" had just rung her doorbell claiming he was James A. Michener.

She sounded more disappointed than surprised, as if she had expected a bearded bard with a kimono. Instead, she and scores of other Bucks and Lehigh County residents are being gradually exposed to a mild-mannered, scholarly man who hopes to win a seat in Congress next November and spared no effort looking for votes.

Michener, the 55-year-old prolific spinner of island tales, announced early this year he would run for Congress as a Democrat in Pennsylvania's sprawling, heavily Republican 8th district. Since then, he has been up and down the district knocking on doors, shaking hands and appearing at ladies aid meetings, coffee klatches and luncheons.

During a recent two-hour interview, Michener's quiet, hilltop house here, its walls lined with abstract paintings, seemed a modern art gallery suddenly converted into a campaign headquarters.

The phone rang with regularity. A pile of campaign papers was stacked on a table in the living room. And Michener talked enthusiastically about the race ahead.

"I'm starting at a dreadful disadvantage, you know," he said as he thumbed through a fat appointment book filled with dates for appearances before organizations which never could have afforded his lecture fee.

"I'm actually 26,000 votes behind to start with and I can't catch up soon enough. But I'm not overawed. There are some compensating factors in my favor."

Michener is running unopposed in the May 15 primary as the unity choice of a heretofore badly divided Democratic Party in the two counties. In November, he will face three-term incumbent Republican Rep. S. Curtin of Morrisville, who won by a 26,424 landslide in 1960.

Michener is now dividing his time between the campaign and a succession of trips to New York to work on the libretto for a new musical, "Tahiti," scheduled to open on Broadway next season. He also is working on a novel about Mexico, "Festival," but won't get it finished by the scheduled fall publication date.

He has nothing planned except politics after that. He admits his writing "will suffer" if he is elected, but added: "There's no reason a man cannot serve in many capacities."

1 of Each 14 Women Divorced or Parted

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—About one in every 14 American women either was divorced or separated from her husband at the time of the 1960 census, a federal satistician reported Saturday.

The best record for togetherness was on the farm and the suburbs ranked next.

An analysis of 1960 marital data was made public here by Dr. Paul C. Glick, chief of the social statistics branch of the Census Bureau, in a paper prepared for the annual meeting of the Population Association of America.

Among all women who either were or had been married in 1960, 43 per 1,000 were divorced and 31 per 1,000 were separated. The total marriage disruption ratio for women thus was 74 per 1,000.

For white women, the disruption ratio was 60 per 1,000 and for nonwhites 204.

The ratio for white women ranged from the 50's per 1,000 in the North and South to 84 in the West. For nonwhite women the range was from 158 in the West to 241 in the Northwest.

The highest disruption ratio for white women — 91 per 1,000 — was registered in large cities. The low was 31 per 1,000 on farms. The corresponding ratios for nonwhite women were 240 and 105.

YMCA BUILDS FOR YOUTH

Typical of the 12,000 young people who take part in YMCA activities here, Cheryl Bronn and Bruce Barrett, both 16, remind one and all that the Long Beach YMCA's "Buildings for Youth" fund drive will be held May 10-29. Campaign goal is $1.196 million. Funds will be used for a community YMCA center in Los Altos, a gymnasium for the Lakewood Y and to complete the renovation and expansion of the North Long Beach and Downtown YMCA branches.

2,000 Young Anglers Will Vie for Prizes

L-P-T Los Angeles Bureau

More than 2,000 young anglers, 15 years of age and under, are expected to take part in the annual fishing derby next Saturday at 7 a.m. at Legg Fishing Lake in the Whittier Narrows Recreation Area.

Awards will be presented, starting at 11:30 a.m., to the boy or girl catching the largest trout, catfish, bass and bluegill.

* * * *

THE ANNUAL derby is co-sponsored by the Monterey Park Optimist Club and the Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation.

Legg Fishing Lake is now divided into the upper, or north lake, for trout, and the lower, or south lake, for warm-water fish.

Each youngster must bring his own fishing gear. He may use any type of pole and his choice of bait.

Adults may fish at the lake during the contest, but will not be eligible for prizes. All anglers 16 years of age or older must have state fishing licenses and must use artificial lures.

* * * *

AT PRESENT, Legg Lake is operating on a winter schedule and is open only on Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays. Starting May 30, it will begin its summer schedule of daily fishing from an hour before sunrise to an hour after sunset. This continues through Sept. 15.

Further information may be obtained from Jack Bell, Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation, 155 W. Washington Blvd., Los Angeles 15.

Set Chess Program on May 19

L-P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Chess players from all over Los Angeles County are invited to participate in a program of competition and demonstrations Saturday, May 19, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. in South San Gabriel.

The occasion is the annual "Paul Morphy Day," honoring the American chess champion and unofficial world champion of 1857-59.

It will be held in the Garvey Memorial Recreation Center gymnasium, 7933 E. Emerson Place, South San Gabriel.

Volton Kovacs, Hungarian international chessmaster and second-place winner in the recent U.S. Chess Open, will play five simultaneous games, blindfolded.

HARRY BOROCHOW, international chessmaster, and Irvine Rivise, Steiner Chess Club champion, will play tandem against spectators. Each player will make alternate moves.

Other lectures on chess, a North-South match involving teams competing for the California championship, a rapid transit tournament, and the annual Yank-Rebel match, open to all who attend, will be other program highlights.

The program is cosponsored by the Southern California Chess League and the Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation.

Mrs. JFK to Christen Atomic Sub

GROTON, Conn. (UPI) — The Navy will open a new frontier when Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy christens the nuclear-powered Polaris submarine Lafayette here Tuesday.

The Lafayette is the biggest submarine ever to be built. She is the first of a new class of subs, with the capability of firing rockets from 2,500 to 3,000 miles while concealed under the surface.

Two earlier types of Polaris submarines, of the George Washington and Ethan Allen class, have a missile range of 1,200 to 1,800 miles.

* * * *

THE NEW dimension to the undersea fleet will be added when Mrs. Kennedy intones the traditional "I christen thee USS Lafayette," and bastes a bottle of domestic champagne against the prow as the 425-foot 7,000-ton ship starts gliding down the ways into the Thames River.

The ceremony will take place at the yards of the Electric Boat division of General Dynamics Corp., where eight years ago the wife of another President of the United States, Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, sponsored the world's first nuclear submarine, Nautilus.

ELIZABETH

Queen Carries Crown Jewels in Handbag

LONDON (UPI) — The crown jewels, Britain's greatest treasure, sometimes get a rather cavalier treatment from Queen Elizabeth herself.

Sir Charles Wheeler, a leading sculptor and president of the Royal Academy, said the queen came to his London studio six times recently to sit for a bust.

Each time, he said, she brought her priceless diamond tiara in her handbag. And each time, she came alone, except for her chauffeur.

Sir Charles completed three bronze busts of the queen during the six sittings.

Intensive Freeway Research Plan Pressed

By BEN PHLEGAR

DETROIT (AP) — When I drive to work Monday morning I'll appear on television 14 times.

From a master control panel a man watching my progress will tell me by means of lighted signs whether the freeway lane in which I'm traveling is clear ahead, or blocked.

At two points I'll be counted by automatic equipment so sensitive it will know whether I'm driving a car or a truck, will record my speed, note the lane I'm in and furnish future observers with the total number of cars which used that lane in the past hour and their average speed. It will also note the average space between my car, the one ahead of me and the one behind.

All of this is a part of the most intensive research program ever devised for travel on urban freeways. The aim — to move more cars more efficiently over existing freeways, and to provide statistical reference materials for designers of future highways.

—Associated Press Wirephoto

HIGHWAY CANDID CAMERA
Traffic control engineer monitors television screens reflecting freeway traffic conditions in the Detroit area in a $400,000 research project jointly undertaken by the U.S., State of Michigan, Wayne County and Detroit highway officials.

Officially this is the John C. Lodge Freeway Traffic Surveillance and Control Research Project, a $400,000 joint venture of the Michigan State Highway Department, Wayne County Road Commission, Detroit's Department of Streets and Traffic and the United States Bureau of Public Roads. The federal government is putting up 75 per cent of the money.

The project covers 3.2 miles of the Lodge Freeway in midtown Detroit, main auto commuting route for the thousands who live in the northwestern section of the city and its northern suburbs.

In a normal weekday 150,000 cars cover the stretch, counting both directions. This is more than the total number of cars in such states as Delaware, Nevada, Vermont or Wyoming.

The result: Traffic jams, accidents, more jams, dented fenders, short tempers, frayed nerves.

Frank DeRose Jr. of the Michigan highway department, who is serving as project engineer, says "We don't like those jams and slow-downs any more than you do. You're taking up valuable space."

Valuable is an understatement since portions of the Detroit freeway system cost $16.5 million per mile to build. That breaks down to $3,125 for each foot of six-lane highway or $520.83 for each foot of a single lane. Since a standard car occupies at least 17½ feet, that space is equal to $9,114.52.

Such fantastic costs are a major reason why the highway department, and traffic engineers the nation over, are vitally interested in any control system which offers hope of moving more cars over existing roadways.

Fourteen closed-circuit television cameras, mounted on overhead bridges 800 to 1,800 feet apart, scan the 3.2-mile section. Each is equipped with a standard and telephoto lens which can be changed at the touch of a button from the master control center. Each camera also can be swung from left to right so that 96 per cent of the entire stretch is "on camera."

Each camera covers all six lanes and is faced north, a mounting necessitated by the desire to avoid direct sunlight on the lens.

At the control center, midway along the route, a visitor accustomed to raucous commercials on his home TV screen is immediately impressed by the sight of 14 21-inch screens totally quiet. The only steady sound in the room is the click-click of the automatic traffic counters.

Pictures are sharp and license tags can be read clearly, but DeRose says no effort will be made to use the screens for traffic enforcement. "In fact," he said, "in the rush hours we'd rather the police stayed out of there.

The control desk is connected directly by telephone to the Police Department, however, so that accidents or stalled vehicles can be reported.

DeRose says experience shows a trained observer can scan the screens for three hours, then must be relieved. "It's amazing how his efficiency drops if he tries four hours," he said. "And the job is easier when the freeway is busy. Action makes it interesting."

If the observer spots an accident or developing congestion, he informs the supervisor. He, in turn, pushes a button which lights red "X" signs over the lane involved, warning drivers in that lane to merge into adjacent lanes as soon as possible.

The supervisor also decides whether to reduce the over-all speed. The normal limit is 55 miles per hour. He can flash either 40 or 25 m.p.h.

If other lanes begin to jam he can close them and in extreme emergencies can close the entire freeway and direct traffic, by means of flashing arrows, to the nearest exits.

One of the research projects to be undertaken in connection with the system will be to determine whether the automatic sensing equipment, which counts the cars and density of traffic, could be used to anticipate tie-ups.

State Official Warns Against Changing Children's Milk Diet

By BEN ZINSER

A state health official has warned against changing children's dietary patterns because of fear of radioactive fallout from the current testing of nuclear weapons.

Dr. Harold M. Erickson, Berkeley, deputy state health director, said that a child's health could be seriously affected by such a move.

He disclosed that unqualified persons in California have been urging, through letters and leaflets, the curtailment of milk consumption during the eight days following the detonation of every nuclear device in the current Pacific test series.

"Decisions of this kind should be made only by qualified physicians and public health authorities," Dr. Erickson said.

* * * *

HE SAID these individuals apparently are concerned about the concentration of radioactive iodine in milk. The principle route of entry into the body by this radioactive element in fallout is through fresh foods, particularly milk.

In the past the quantities of radioiodine found in milk in California during nuclear testing have been far below those which would indicate countermeasures, he said.

Dr. Erickson said the State Health Department will keep the public fully informed and will continue to sample food, water, milk and air for radioactivity.

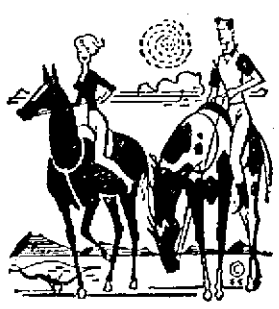

There is no reason to believe the current test series will require countermeasures, he said.

Tunnel May Link Port, Terminal Island

TWO POSSIBLE SOLUTIONS to the Terminal Island pontoon bridge traffic situation are shown in this artist's drawing. One envisages a high-level bridge similar to one now being built across the main channel in Los Angeles Harbor. A more likely answer is construction of a 3,450-foot underground tube costing $15 million.

IF YOU'RE pondering a trip to Tijuana, proceed with caution.

That's the warning word from the best sources that way. Conditions in the border town have deterioriated seriously since the abandonment of a recent reform program. Crime and sin are rampant, law enforcement is lax, and peculiar, and it's no place for a stranger to be wandering around aimlessly at night.

Visitors seeking the seamy side are finding it in abundance down there, some disastrously. A recent murder victim was a U.S. citizen, with lots of cash in his pocket, who got into a taxicab and asked where he could get dope.

There are still many tourist attractions down there, such as jai lai, the races, the shops, and, if you like them, the bull fights. But those who plan to go would be wise to check with tourist bureaus and to know exactly what they are doing.

An informant who knows the whole situation extremely well tells this dept. that the best way to induce a clean-up of the border town is to give it the economic squeeze through reduced visitation from this side of the border. If a reform is necessary to keep the U.S. dollars rolling in, it will come.

READ these words: "Promoting Juvenile Decency." Did you, at least momentarily, think you had read: "Promoting Juvenile Delinquency"?

Misreading the motto of the Boys' Clubs of Long Beach, Inc.—"Promoting Juvenile Decency"—has occurred with phenomenal frequency here since the motto began appearing in public print.

Just this week, some one sent me a wrapper from a chocolate bar being sold by the Boys Clubbers to finance camping trips. The motto was on it and the sender appended a note indicating he had misread it. A telephone call confirmed that he had. He could hardly believe it when I told him how the motto actually read on the very paper he had sent me.

Some years ago I received a report from a reliable observer that the "delinquency" motto had appeared on the marquee of a theater building used by the clubs. I used his erroneous report and found it necessary to make amends. He, like many other, had simply read it wrong.

Why is that? The only explanation seems to be that people have become accustomed to connecting the two words—juvenile and delinquency—to the point that they see them even when they aren't there.

The implication in this analysis is disturbing. If many people tend to make the words juvenile and delinquent synonomous, it's no wonder that the vast majority of decent youngsters are getting highly resentful. But if they do, relate the words, why? It's something to kick around a little.

BILL PHILLIPS, who writes in the Banning Record, takes umbrage at a little note in this dept. the other day reporting that a sign on the Banning railroad depot reads: "Hello, Goodbye." He wants to know what the sign on the Long Beach rail depot says and then laughs uproariously because he thinks we have no station. He makes a lot out of that, sure he has me cornered.

But Bro. Phillips doesn't know everything. We do have a rail depot—at least one. It's on E. Anaheim St., where the P.E. line crosses that street. It has the typical extended window, platform, outdoor waiting area, etc.

Now this station long since has been more or less out of business, but I imagine it's about as active, passenger-wise, as the Banning station.

Sections of Tube Would Be Precast

A construction technique tried less than a dozen times in history probably will be used to build the proposed $15 million tunnel connecting Terminal Island and Long Beach Harbor.

The method, first applied in 1928, is to precast concrete tunnel sections on the surface and drop them into place in a trench dug out of the channel floor.

This approach eliminates the use of "sandhogs"—tunnel workers who dig in pressure chambers or behind facing plates, a hazardous if adventurous operation which has cost many lives and injuries over the years.

ENGINEERING ESTIMATES are that the Terminal Island tube would be 3,450-feet long and would be placed near the present pontoon bridge, probably two connected tubes, each four or six lanes wide.

The concrete culverts would be covered with a five-foot layer of rock and would contain a ventilation system, a necessary appendage to vehicular tunnels because of exhaust gases.

The project cannot be started before mid-1964, when subsidence in the area is expected to be completely halted.

ALTHOUGH A HIGH-LEVEL suspension bridge and a lift-type bridge also have been proposed as replacements for the pontoon bridge, both city and harbor engineering experts favor a tunnel.

A tunnel, they point out, would probably cost less and would not require as much land area as the bridge.

A high-rise bridge would need a 175-foot clearance above the channel and would need approaches from Gate 5 of the Navy Base and from the middle of the Ocean Avenue Bridge.

A TUBE USING THE precast method is being built under the Oakland Inner Harbor between Oakland and Alameda. It is scheduled to be completed this fall.

The underwater portion of this 2-lane tube is 2,400 feet and consists of 12 separate reinforced concrete segments, each 200 feet long with an outside diameter of 17-feet. The tube shell is 30 inches thick and each segment has a submerged displacement of 7,200 tons.

The underwater portion of the Terminal Island tube would be approximately one-fourth as long, perhaps requiring three of the monster concrete segments.

BELLS OF MRS. MAERKI

Unique Collection Is Hobby Feature

Mrs. Charles Maerki, of 399 Gold Star Homes, has bells that jingle, jangle, tinkle — 225 of them — and they'll be on display at the annual Recreation Department Hobby Show in Municipal Auditorium, noon to 10 p.m. Thursday through Sunday.

"My bells tell me a great deal about the strange customs of other lands," she said.

* * * *

"BELLS in foreign countries tell folk the time of day, call them to dinner, school, church, fires, weddings, funerals, Christenings. There are bells on boats, buses, trains; bells on cows, sheep and elephants.

"In Assam, in preparation for a holy day feast, a 'holy oxen' bell is fastened to an ear of the animal. There are beggars' bells and even a widow's bell," she said. "I have one and it has a truly mournful sound."

* * * *

MRS. MAERKI'S bells come in a variety of material — brass, clay and glass and she now is collecting ceramic bells. They also come in various shapes —people, birds and animals.

Her hobby is one her entire family enjoys.

"First thing the youngsters say when they come for a visit is, 'Got any new bells, Grandma?' "

SHE WON'T GET LARYNGITIS

Marlene Practices Silent Art of Pantomime

MARLENE . . . Pantomime Artist

By ROBERT WILCOX

Marlene's lips have launched a thousand phases but she'll never be troubled by laryngitis.

The attractive 18-year-old practices the ancient, silent art of pantomime.

Her lip movements synchronized with the recorded voice of a famous songstress. Marlene's gestures, grimaces and glances have entertained thousands of servicemen at the Long Beach USO where she started appearing at 14.

* * * *

MISS SILVERSTEIN also earns pin money by professional appearances before club groups and at private parties.

Her material is borrowed but there's one thing the 5-foot-2 City College freshman wants to make clear.

"I don't like being somebody else," she says. "That's me up there. I sell the song."

HER ROUTINES vary from Mary Martin to Lena Horne to Julie Wilson. They also range from sedate to saucy.

While she "sings," her mischievious face runs the gamut from surprise to scorn to satisfaction. Her audiences — particularly her favorites, the servicemen—love it.

Although the lyric soprano is taking vocal lessons, strangely Marlene thinks singing is for the birds.

* * * *

"PEOPLE have told me there's no future in pantomime," she says. "But I have no confidence when I'm singing. That's when I'm REALLY someone else."

Marlene, who lives at 3338 Gondar Ave. and who started synchronizing her lips to "Pink Shampoo" when she was 12, has now turned full force to acting.

She's a drama major at college, already has appeared in three productions and hopes for a Broadway career. She plays a leading role in the LBCC drama, "The Glass Menagerie," to be presented May 18 and 19.

* * * *

BUT THE brown-haired coed's first love remains her pantomimes which she has perfected to an extent that she is often asked: "Was that really a record?"

It takes her only about three hours before a mirror to learn a new song. Then she warms up for about 15 minutes before a performance.

Only once has she heard from one of her "ghosts." A cousin mentioned Marlene's mimicry of Julie Wilson to Miss Wilson in New York. Julie, some of whose numbers are not for children, appeared startled. "Isn't she a little young?" the singer asked.

New Ordinance to Reduce Building Permit Red Tape

By GEORGE WEEKS

Time-consuming red tape in getting the city's permission to construct a building will be sharply reduced this week.

A new ordinance streamlining the regulations for issuance of permits will become effective Friday. It was adopted a month ago after years of preparation by the City Building Department.

One result will be the elimination of sub-permits on new construction for roofing, plastering, masonry, tile and refrigeration.

* * * *

LONG BEACH in recent years has been the only city in the United States requiring masonry, tile and roofing subpermits, according to City Superintendent of Building Edward M. O'Connor.

At the same time building permit fees will be revised to conform generally with the Uniform Building Code accepted in the industry. Finance officials predict a 24 per cent increase in over-all revenues.

The minimum building permit fee, now $2, will be advanced to $3.

However, in some instances the total cost to the builder will be less. As an example, the permit and checking fees for a typical $15,000 dwelling will cost $72. Under the old system, with the sub-permit fees added, the cost has been $74.50.

* * * *

ON THE OTHER hand, some of the smaller permits for improvements such as additions will cost more. The new charge for a typical $2,000 addition will be $13.50, against $12 at present. Processing of the smaller permits has been the principal cause of the department's annual operating deficit.

Despite the elimination of sub-permits, there will be no slackening of the city's current inspection procedures, O'Connor said. The main saving to the department will come from simplification of paper work.

Under the new regulations, permits will no longer be required for 14 items. The list of exemptions includes most structures placed on public streets, alleys and sidewalks; buildings owned by governmental agencies; work done by city employes on city-owned or leased buildings; waterfront and marine structures seaward of bulkhead lines within the Alamitos Bay Marina area.

* * * *

OTHER EXEMPTIONS include small masonry planter boxes; fences less than three feet in height; unroofed walks, driveways and slabs; pools not over two feet deep where there is no electrical or plumbing installation, and numerous items of painting, ceramic tile, roofing and plaster patching.

All permits will expire at the end of 90 days if construction work is not started. They also will expire if work is suspended or abandoned for 90 days.

Active permits may be transferred for a $2 fee. The same rule applies to renewal of expired permits.

O'Connor said summaries of the new regulations will be distributed to 500 contractors, engineers and architects.

City Marks National Police Week May 14

Long Beach Police will hold open house in the Public Safety Building, 400 W. Broadway, May 14 through May 18 as they observe National Police Week recently proclaimed by President John F. Kennedy.

Police Chief William J. Mooney said tours of the building would be conducted twice daily Monday through Friday. The tours will begin in the lobby at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Chief Mooney said displays in the lobby would be open around the clock.

The displays will include pictures of the police department in action, a display from the motorcycle division, a large display of police badges from this country and foreign countries and a display of various types of guns used in police work.

U.S. Missile Force, Maturing, Aid Says

This is the year of the big payoff in the intercontinental ballistic missile defense of America, according to a top Air Force general.

"Before the year is ended, we will have put six operational Titan I ballistic missile squadrons in the hands of the Strategic Air Command," Maj. Gen. Thomas P. Gerrity said in a recent speech.

Gerrity, commander of the Air Force Systems Command's Ballistic Systems Division, pointed out that Atlas missiles are already operational in six completed squadrons, to be followed this year by six more.

* * * *

ALSO THIS year, the first solid propellant Minuteman ICBMs are scheduled to go into their underground sentry boxes now being built in Montana, he said.

"We are actually very lose to attaining our programmeed force of 129 operational Atlas launchers in 13 squadrons, 114 Titan launchers in 12 squadrons and 800 Minutemen missiles in 16 squadrons," Gerrity said.

"We have attained a deployed and combat-ready force which represents a whole new dimension of defense," the Air Force spokesman said.

"These are weapons equipped to deter or to strike back today, not tomorrow," he said. "They constitute an in-being military reality which cannot be denied or discounted. Ballistic missiles spell deterrence with a capital "D"—here and now."

* * * *

SPEED with which the nation has become armed with these weapons represents a tremendous feat, Gerrity said.

For example, he cited the construction trades, accustomed to doing work on a massive scale, for blending that capability with a never-before-required talent for precision, such as that required in meeting tolerances of thousandths of an inch in making missile silos 16 stories high.

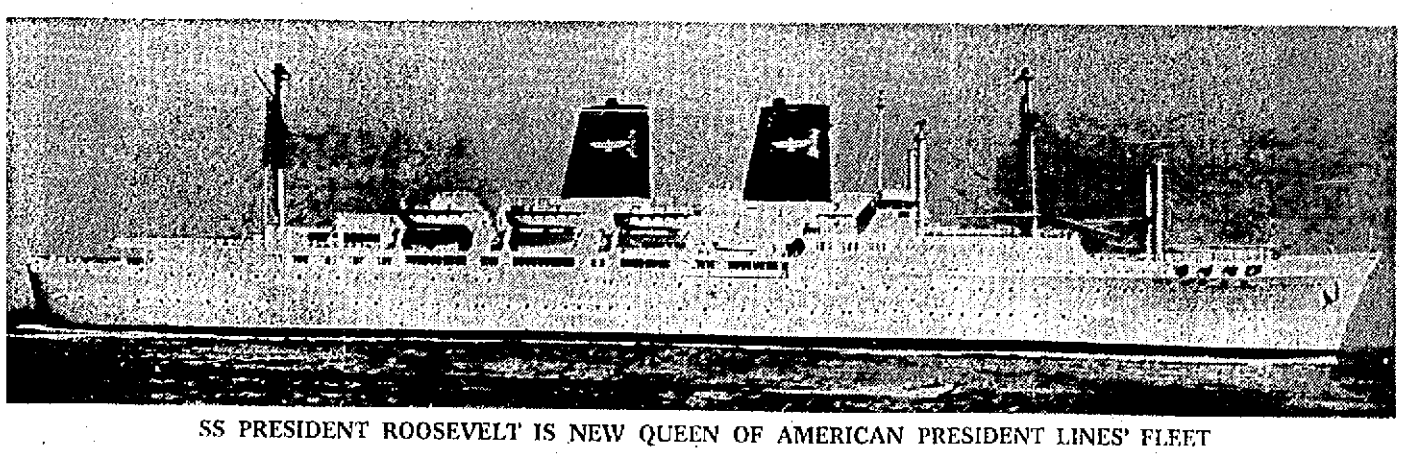

* * * *

ALL ORIGINAL specifications established in 1954 for the Atlas ICBM were surpassed by the missile when it became operational in 1959, the general said.

These requirements called for the Atlas to have 10 times the gross weight of the German V-2 and 33 times its range. Accuracy had to be increased 20 times and warhead yield by one million times.

NEW QUEEN OF APL FLEET

$10 Million Remodeling Job on Liner President Roosevelt

SS PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IS NEW QUEEN OF AMERICAN PRESIDENT LINES' FLEET

By LOU JOBST
Marine Editor

A familiar maritime figure returns to Los Angeles Friday with a new face, a $10 million uplift.

She is the 21,000-ton ocean liner SS President Roosevelt, new queen of American President Lines transpacific fleet.

Although folks won't recognize her in her new dress she is the former SS Leilani, a gal who fell on hard luck and bad times as a Hawaiian cruise ship.

DURING that unhappy interlude she had been the troopship, LaGuardia, and her previous owners, after a hasty and incomplete refurbish job, sailed her from the East Coast to Los Angeles in a combination maiden voyage and shakedown cruise.

Before she reached Panama passengers were leaving her in droves, complaining the crew was surly, accomodations were poor and that some had suffered food poisoning.

As the Leilani she re-

--And Then There Were 7

WITH THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS of Cubans pouring out of their native land into the United States to escape the tyranny and starvation of the Castro regime, the Communists naturally must do what they can to recoup their propaganda losses. Recently, therefore, they printed a story in the Cuban Communist organ, Bohemia, telling about eight Americans who poured out of this country into Cuba.

In a brief introduction to thumb-nail sketches of the Americans in question, the article said:

". . . They have lived 'inside the monster,' which is not their country but the monstrous socio-economical system built in it by the spirit of greed in the dominent class, and they don't want to continue to live in it. Their merit is exceptional, and they have decided to break nation ties in order to disprove the imperialist propaganda. They have turned their backs to the printed falsification of Yankee imperialism, to the reactionary inquest of the CIA and the FBI. . . ."

CURIOUS TO KNOW more about these "exceptional" Americans, we dropped a letter to Mr. J. Edgar Hoover requesting any information he might have. He was most obliging.

One of the persons featured in the Bohemia article is a Gloria Ann Gerhardt. She is quoted as saying: "I have come to Cuba because I consider that the government of Fidel Castro is an example of honesty and a defender of the people."

According to the FBI, Gloria Ann Gerhardt resided at Apartment 5H, 1700 York Ave., New York, N. Y., from approximately April, 1960, until April, 1961. It was determined that due to the undesirable conduct, on the part of Gloria Ann Gerhardt, in that she was frequently visited by numerous male visitors and held loud, boisterous parties, the management of the building requested her to vacate the premises. Upon leaving this residence, she then moved to another building in New York City where she earned the reputation of a person with very loose morals who entertained men of all races indiscreetly at all hours of the day and night. Prior to leaving this residence, she was frequently observed wearing "Hands Off Cuba" and "Fair Play for Cuba" buttons on her coat. It remains a mystery where she found time for political activity in addition to her other pursuits.

THEN THERE IS Robert F. Williams, formerly of Monroe, N. C., who told the editors of Bohemia that he went to Cuba to escape "intense persecution from American authorities who insisted on blocking his brave struggle for the rights of the Negro population of the United States."

According to the FBI, the "Charlotte Observor" carried a news item on June 9, 1959, reporting that this defender of Negro rights was under suspension by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's board of directors. Williams, who had been president of the Union County North Carolina branch of the organization, earned his suspension because of an attitude of violence and belligerence.

The following statement was released on Sept. 8, 1961:

"Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy today announced the nationwide distribution by the FBI of a quarter million wanted notices on Robert Franklin Williams, aged 36, a highly dangerous alleged kidnaper.

"FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover stated that Williams, who has been diagnosed as a schizophrenic, has loudly advocated and threatened violence and has allegedly possessed a large quanity of firearms, is charged with kidnaping a Marshville, North Carolina, man and wife on August 27, 1961. . . .

"Anyone having information concerning Williams' whereabouts should immediately contact the nearest FBI office."

BUT PERHAPS the most interesting case is that of Robert Bruce Taber, formerly of New York and Ohio, whom Bohemia describes as a journalist and a popular defender and participant of the Cuban revolution.

The FBI adds some other information: Taber was received at the Ohio State Reformatory, Mansfield, Ohio, on Sept. 27, 1939. He was sent there from Hancock County, Ohio, on charges of robbery, kidnaping and operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent. On Nov. 22, 1949, Taber was paroled.

Taber came prominently into the news in 1961 when Dr. Charles A. Santos-Buch identified him at a hearing of the U. S. Senate Internal Security Subcommittee as a co-organizer of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee. Santos-Buch also testified that he and Taber obtained $3,500 from the Cuban government to pay for the committee's advertisements.

Here is the climax of the story. Taber, who fled 15 months ago to Cuba to take "political asylum" after the subcommittee had sought to subpoena him, this month slipped quietly back to the United States. Bohemia, please note: The number is now seven.

U.S. Grain May Be Reaching Red China by Way of Paris

WASHINGTON—Whether Red China, indirectly, the United States has been sending U. S. wheat to through a French firm, is now being investigated in the Agriculture Department.

Also under investigation is whether surplus government grain may have gone indirectly to Red China under Public Law 480.

PEARSON

The company being scrutinized is Louis Dreyfus of New York, which is owned in turn by Louis Dreyfus Co. of France. The Dreyfus Company in Paris is the largest shipper of wheat to Red China, while the Dreyfus Company of New York is the third largest shipper of U. S. surplus grain under Public Law 480.

What both Congress and Secretary of Agriculture Freeman want to know is whether U. S. surplus grain (1) has gone through devious channels to Red China; or (2) has relieved the grain shortage in such a way as to permit other countries to sell to Red China.

Freeman is interested because the shipments to Dreyfus of New York were made not by him but by his predecessor, Ezra Taft Benson, who between 1954 and 1961, OK'd shipments of $391,000,000 worth of surplus grain to Dreyfus of New York.

Shipments under PL 480 are supposed to be handled on a charity, nonprofit basis. Church organizations, CARE, and government groups handle the surplus. However, the books of Dreyfus of New York, being a private organization, are not open to inspection. This column queried eight Agriculture Department officials to ask the amount of Dreyfus profits, but got no answer.

Meanwhile, Dreyfus of Paris has been combing the grain bins of the world outside the United States, to relieve the acute grain shortage in Red China. Canada, Australia, France have all exhusted their supplies. The only source left is the United States.

Congressman L. H. Fountain of North Carolina, digging into the possibility of indirect U. S. grain shipments to Red China, called in Raymond Ioanes, of the Foreign Agriculture Service, and Rulon Gibb, a top official of agriculture's Commodity Credit Corp.

"The United States government does not encourage other countries to trade with China," Ioanes told the congressman. "We discourage them to the extent we can. But I think we recognize that they (Dreyfus) make their own foreign policy."

"But since the owners of Louis Dreyfus in Paris are probably not U. S. citizens," reminded James Naughton, committee counsel, "I guess there is no reason we could expect them to shape their policies out of loyalty to the United States."

* * * *

IOANES — "The Paris company?"

Naughton — "Yes, which controls the United States company."

Ioanes—"I think I have given you the best answer I can. We would take action if the American firm was involved in any way."

Naughton — "It is controlled by the same people who control the Paris firm. They own it. . . . What procedures do you have to insure that only U. S. firms are permitted to participate in export transactions under Title I of Public Law 480? What is your definition of a U. S. firm?"

Gibb—"It is taken from regulations."

The investigators still haven't found the answer on whether Red China is getting U. S. grain indirectly.

BOB HOUSER

Mrs. Becker Heads DRIVE, Teamsters' Political Group

JAMES R. HOFFA, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said in Los Angeles Wednesday that the nation's press will never give him a clean bill of health so long as he persists in his militant fight for the rights of his workers.

HOUSER

In an interview, I asked Hoffa if in view of his repeated references to a hostile press, hostile editorials and hostile cartoons, he felt that the "truth' as he saw it would come to light and he would be vindicated.

"If I quit this fight I would be vindicated overnight," he said. "In fact, some newspapers have already taken a different position. When steel was forced to roll back its $6 price hike, some of them remembered my repeated warnings about police state methods and began saying in their editorials that Hoffa was right."

Occasion for Hoffa's talk was the launching of the Southern California Teamsters Joint Council 42 DRIVE Committee for political action. DRIVE stands for Democratic Republican, Independent Voters Education.

A Long Beach woman, Mrs. Henry J. (Adrienne) Becker, 528 W. 10th St., has been named president of DRIVE's auxiliary for the Joint Council, made up of some 120,000 members, third largest in the nation.

HOFFA SAID unfriendly congressmen have resulted in the labor movement—despite greater numbers—losing election after election. Labor people have become afraid of investigations, afraid of the TV camera, "laborers are losing their confidence in their leaders and politicians are having a field day. The National Association of Manufacturers held a recent private, confidential meeting to discuss how to sell to the American people an anti-monopoly law on unions."

DRIVE and DRIVE alone is the answer, Hoffa said. An indication of those congressmen thought to be unfriendly to labor in California was given in a mimeographed sheet passed to some 1,000 dinner guests in the Ambassador Hotel. Graded on seven roll call votes in the first session of the 87th Congress, all 14 Republican congressmen voted "wrong" on most of them. Ten voted "wrong" on all of them.

MRS. BECKER'S job requires that she coordinate Teamster wives in a program to register voters—Democrats, Republicans and Independents—and get them to vote. This program is well along and council headquarters has file cards on many thousands of its members, showing party affiliation and whether they are registered to vote.

Screening committees will review candidates and make their findings available to the membership. DRIVE notes that its sole basis for judging candidates is: "Which will best serve the interests of his community and his nation and have the welfare of the working man and woman always in mind."

DRIVE HQ in Washington is prepared to supply screening committees with detailed information on voting records of legislators and analyses of candidates who have no records.

The L. A. meeting was the 15th in a nationwide series of dinners honoring Jo Hoffa, Jimmy's wife. Mrs. Hoffa presented the DRIVE council charter to Mrs. Becker. Mrs. Becker made a presentation of a unique, battery-driven Aztec clock to Mrs. Hoffa.

Guest speaker was State Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee since 1947.

Mayor Sam Yorty's special assistant, Joe Quinn, welcomed the Teamsters, noting "a lot of similarities between Hoffa and Yorty —who makes more headlines? who is more controversial? yet, who does a better job?"

Value Freedom? 'Take Action Now'

EDITOR:

A movement is currently forming in the United States to abolish the House Committee on Un-American Activities (H.U.A.C.)

The attack is being spearheaded by "front organizations" with the Communist party behind the scenes pulling the strings. Active in the movement is an oldtimer, Alger Hiss, recently released from prison. His participation is understandable because it was H.U.A.C. that exposed him.

* * * *

SINCE THE House committee stands as a formidable obstacle to the advance of communism in America, the assault upon it will be vigorous. The first move will be to get the committee's appropriation cut. Thus — limited and weakened—it will be a set up for complete liquidation later on. A corollary to this will be an attempt to dismantle the FBI. Impossible, you say? Well, it happened in Germany. When the investigating committees of the Reichstag were dismantled, Hitler immediately rose to power.

The Communists are applying this method now for they know that with the watch dogs of the people gone, infiltration and subversion can proceed unimpeded.

* * * *

THE COMMUNIST party, U.S.A. has requested its members — and countless friends and dupes—to flood Congress with letters demanding the abolition of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

If you value your freedom, take action now. Let us swamp Congress with letters — not only insisting that the committee be sustained, but that its powers be increased.

If this bastion of our liberty falls--we've all had it.

Let Those Who Have Ears Hear!

EDITOR:

There has been much discussion lately in the political news and letters to the Editor. Please let me add my little bit.

Several persons have pointed out in these letters that there has been considerable infiltration by the Communists and other left wingers to such an extent as to enable them to extract many pro-Communist, peace-at-any-price, better-red-than-dead, etc., resolutions from the Democratic clubs in California, in general, and in Northern California in particular. To these voices I wish to add mine, with a few quotes from an HCUA hearing in May, 1960, on the Northern California District of the Communist Party, from the testimony of Karl Prussion, former Communist for 26 years.

"The Communist Party at that time fell upon a great political opportunity, and they began to infiltrate the California Democratic Clubs in that area . . . There is indication that there has been similar infiltration throughout the State of California."

"I recall back in 1956, at the Fresno Convention of the California Democratic Council, there were approximately five Communists from the area who went to the Fresno Convention."

This is testimony that cannot be lightly brushed aside. Those who have ears, let them hear!

Let's Be Grateful for Doctors

EDITOR:

In response to a recently published letter from Robert Griffiths, M.D., I would like to add a further consideration. Personally I am a little tired of reading nothing except criticism of the American Medical Association, criticism often based upon misunderstanding. We should all bear in mind the thought that "as a chain is only as strong as its weakest link" so any organization is as strong as its weakest member. Of course in a group you have many opinions and it is only natural that some one will be displeased by any eventual decision. We should be very grateful for the services our doctors perform.

BILL SUMNER

Reaction in Washington to Linus Pauling: What Crust!

WASHINGTON—It took Dr. Linus Pauling of Caltech to give peace picketing here a shot in the arm, but more than likely the cure will not be permanent.

Picketing the White House has, in other words, fallen on evil days. There is no snap to it. It becomes less of a curiosity. It is plain dull. People simply aren't paying any attention.

BILL SUMNER

Probably it is because there are so many tourists in town waiting in line for things, but 10 or 50 or even 100 or so extra bodies strolling the sidewalks don't seem to create the impression they did during the past winter.

There were the real pickets. Neither rain nor snow nor sleet kept them from their appointed rounds. And, in fact, they seemed less solemn. Cheeks were rosy. Breath came in steam and steps were lighter.

But last week when Dr. Pauling hit the bricks the weather was steamy and the pickets were sodden. Wretched, I would say, if dedicated. And when he picked up a sign and began marching with a group of mothers organized to protest nuclear testing the pace picked up. There was, at least, publicity.

His appearance in the picket line was considered a bit unusual here. There have been pickets who have invaded either the White House or Bobby Kennedy's office to sit and demand recognition for one reason or another. But Dr. Pauling was invited for dinner with the President, along with other Nobel winners and his conduct, depending on your turn of mind, was considered either quaint or reprehensible. But unusual in either case. And the Daily News led off an editorial on the subject with this sentence:

"What crust!"

That, alas, was the preponderant reaction here, although the society reporters of the Post and the Star made quite a social lion of the man.

One account had him the first man on the dance floor, guiding Mrs. Pauling through a hot Latin number. The other had him leading it off, but with another partner and dancing to a waltz.

But back to the point.

Some weeks back Pauling sent a telegram to the President urging him not to resume testing. Mr. Kennedy would go down in history as our most immoral President if he did. It was a short message, but the point was clear about Dr. Pauling's feelings about the President if the order was given.

The order to test was, of course, forthcoming. We are blasting away. To protest this Dr. Pauling picketed. Then, somehow, he managed to enjoy the President's hospitality.

* * * *

HUGELY, AND with exuberance, if, again, we can believe the society reporters. They were unanimous on this point. But what are we of the masses to decide about Dr. Pauling's various stands?

First, we heard, down almost to the last decimal, how many children are to die aborted, how many are to be malformed, how many are to be otherwise retarded because of these tests. And Dr. Pauling says we don't need them in any case because we are far ahead of the Russians. How does he know?

One must, on one hand, question this scientist's scientific method. One then must ask how he can possibly accept the shake of, to him, a bloody hand.

Johnny Gillette Tire Co.'s Retreads Called Safest and Most Economical

Engaged in some form of the automobile business since a mere youth, Johnny Gillette learned at an early age that good tires are as important as a good motor in the car—perhaps even more important as a safety factor.

For that reason Johnny today heads one of the largest tire firms in the Southland and has the most modern retreading plant in the area.

The Johnny Gillette Tire Co., 3910 Cherry Ave., only recently modernized the recapping plant, at a cost of $60,000 for new moulds, but now offers a product, Hi-Speed Retreads which are fully waranted, the finest industry guarantee.

Proven greater safety and economy at high speeds at no extra cost are assured patrons by Gillette who is a stickler for the code of ethical practices adopted by leading tire dealers and retreaders.

Safe and Economical

"Our new Hi-Speed is unquestionably the safest and most economical retread ever produced, says Johnny. "The simple secret is in the world's newest, most advanced equipment and best of all, it costs the patrons no more.

"The Hi-Speed retreads are dual contoured and grip the road uniformly all across the width of the tread face, promoting longer, more uniform wear and greater traction. Under the old conventional retreads a flexing action takes place because of the heavy shoulders. The tires wear too fast and traction at high speeds is reduced."

All Johnny Gillette Hi-Speed retreads are approved by The Retreading Institute and bear the TRI seal certifying the tire is a sound casing with superior craftsmanship, top materials and quality production having gone into the retreading.

JOHNNY GILLETTE
Knows Value of Safe Tires

Great Care Exercised

A visit to the Gillette facilities will enlighten motorists on the care Gillette employes use in servicing, checking and mounting tires.

Retreading is just a portion of the business, but is growing into a big business in its own.

In new tires the company handles U.S. Royals, Gillettes and Michelin lines. The latter are for trucks and sports cars. There is one ply of steel, instead of cord in those casings.

Gillette, soon after opening his new facilities, became one of the first tire firms to put in brakes and wheel service and later added mufflers and tail pipes. These departments have grown rapidly with the firm.

From Humble Start

When the firm opened nine years ago it started in a small shed which was a mere office, while the buildings were being erected.

"You have heard of Pepper Tree mechanics?" asked Johnny. "Well, we were Eucalyptus Tree tire dealers for the boys took the cars to one of their homes and serviced them.

"That first month, though, we did $18,000 in business."

Last year the firm did over $1,500,000 and already is off for another record year in 1962. There were five employes when the company opened. Today there are 43. There are two retail locations, one in Garden Grove and one in El Segundo, besides the main plant.

Of the original five employes, four are still on the job. Two of them are now part owners, Duane Hanzlicek, the office manager, and Don Rystrom, the shop superintendant.

Miss Fairlene Martin received her diploma on Friday night over seven years ago and reported for work the next morning and is the bookkeeper today.

Johnny Works Floor

Many of the other employes have been with Gillette since soon after the plant opened. Johnny will be found on the floor conferring with customers most of the time. Even when business requires him to be in his office he sits in full view of all patrons and will leave a conference to rush out and greet an old customer returning for tires or service.

While we appreciate, greatly, the continual growth of new business," says Johnny, "there is great satisfaction in seeing customers come back year after year."

Gillette is past president of the Tire Dealers and Retreaders Association of Southern California; member of the National Tire Dealers and Retreaders since he entered the business; a district director of the national association.

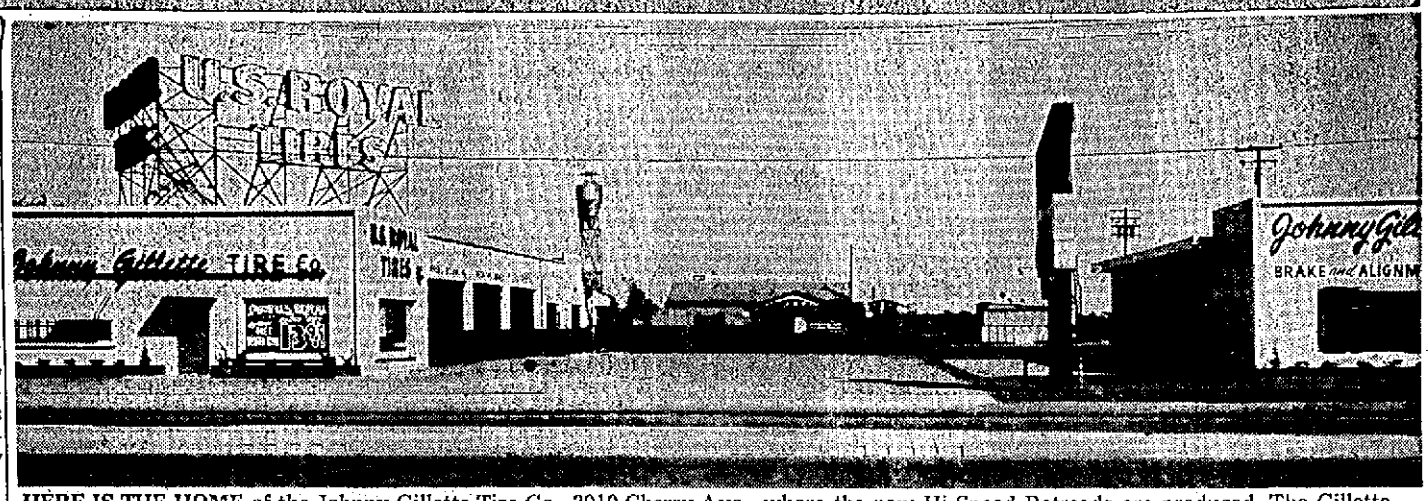

Inspection Important

"The biggest problem in tire retreading today is the unscrupulous dealer who will retread any carcass.

"The key to providing retreads that will give the wear and service is in the inspection. The carcass must be good if any good retread is produced."

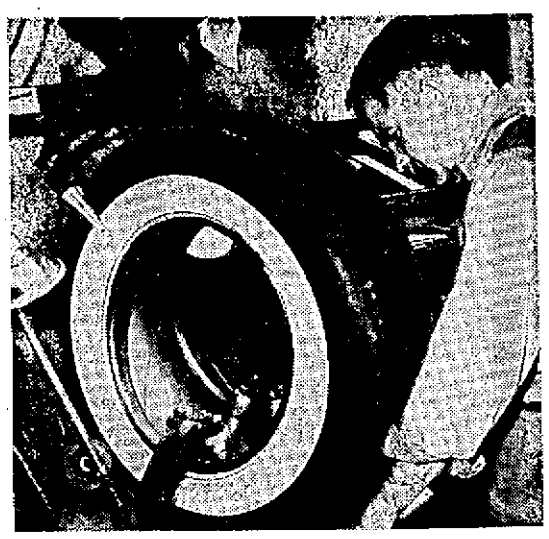

How safe does Johnny Gillette think his retreads are?

"Well," he replied, "I have retreads on my daughter's car. That should answer the question.

HERE IS THE HOME of the Johnny Gillette Tire Co., 3910 Cherry Ave., where the new Hi-Speed Retreads are produced. The Gillette Co. is one of the largest tire firms in Southern California offering the finest in both new and recapped tires and other services such as wheel balancing, mufflers and exhaust pipes. Gillette says that while "price is important, quality plus price is unbeatable."

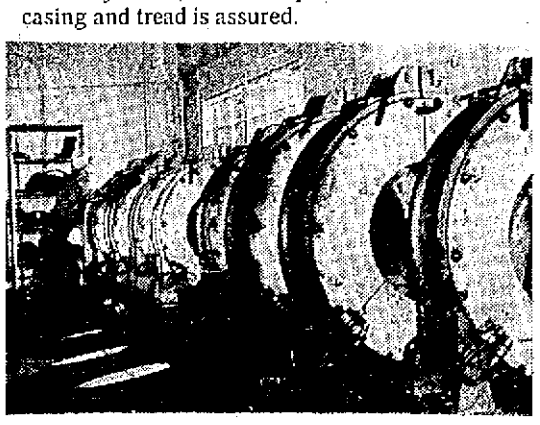

Quality Control in Recaps

ONLY PERFECT casings are used for recapping at Johnny Gillette's. First step in recapping is a careful inspection for any weakness.

TREAD IS applied hydraulically and centered perfectly on the inflated tire. Each tire is automatically centered after a perfect bond between casing and tread is assured.

CURING CALLS for steam at 60 pounds per square inch developing 302 degrees. Then pressure is applied at 135 pounds per square inch. When thoroughly cured and taken from the mold the tire goes through another detailed inspection to pass perfection.

NEW AND old type o recaps are illustrated here. At the left is the contour retread offered by Johnny Gillette showing how the tire grips the paving under high speed. At the right is the old type where only the edges held the paving.

FIRST OFFICE of the Johnny Gillette Tire Co. was this tin shed, used while construction of the main buildings was under way.

HERESY UTTERED

Actors Most Important People in Theater, Lederer Believes

By GEORGE ERES

The internationally famous actor who started his career in the theater by uttering these immortal lines—"Sir, the horses are saddled," — uttered some heresy at Long Beach State College Saturday.

Francis Lederer, now a Hollywood director, told the SRO luncheon audience at the Council of Living Theater's Drama Day he was ready to be shot for his belief that actors are the most important people in the theater.

* * * *

"WRITERS have more and more to say about a play; they make all sorts of demands. Directors tend to treat actors as though they were puppets they take out of a trunk and put back after a performance.

"Actors are more important than either writers or directors," he said. "I believe that the theater could get along without either writers and directors — but not without actors."

Lederer said he spoke the lines "sir, the horses are ready" for many years.

"After that, for many years, I said, 'sir, the car is ready.'" There is no fast way to "stardom." just constant practice, he said.

* * * *

LEDERER was the principal speaker at COLT's all-day panel and workshop session on theater in Long Beach.

Lederer took a few pot shots at theaters which stress success rather than the fundamental aim of theater—"to inform people about themselves."

"There is too much stress on 'entertainment' in theater," he said, urging that people in the theater never forget the goal should be the elevation of standards by presenting material which reflected the basic motivations of people.

Dr. W. David Sievers, of LBSC, president of COLT, was presented with the COLT award for being the person who contributed most to little theater in Long Beach during the year.

* * * *

KEYNOTE speaker at the morning session was Pat Brown, field director for the Ford Foundation Theater Communications Group, who urged use of professionals in little theaters to help raise standards.

Her viewpoint was contested by Director Larry Johns of Community Playhouse who held that the community little theaters should remain amateur.

Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, president of LBSC, welcomed the audience.

Panelists discussing the theater in Long Beach included Duane George, city recreation department; William Melchior, Long Beach Unified School District; William Boyd, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce; Robert C. Wylder, Indepedent, Press-Telegram critic; Patterson Greene, Los Angeles critic, and Tillie Weil, representing the playgoer.

COLT member organizations sponsoring the event were Community Playhouse, Magnolia Theater, Civic Light Opera, whose manager Harvey Waggoner discussed problems of staging musical comedy, Children's Theater, Jewish Community Center, City College's Liberal Arts and Business & Technology divisions, State College's Drama department and the Independent, Press-Telegram.

Father of Six Sent to Prison

SANTA ANA — The father of six children was sentenced Friday to state prison on conviction of possession of heroin and marijuana.

Superior Court Judge Kenneth Morrison ordered Manuel Silva Orosco, 39, of 6251 Van Buren St., Atwwood, to 1 to 10 years in state prison.

Officers claimed during Orosco's trial they found 42 caps of heroin and a pound of marijuana in his possession when he was arrested Oct. 21, 1961.

APL bought her from the Maritime Administration for $3.8 million in July, 1960 and took her to Seattle for a complete reconstruction, a project that took 2,000 men, $10 million and a year to complete.

The present ship bears no resemblance, outside or in, to her predecessors.

The Roosevelt is probably as luxurious as any liner in the U.S.-Orient trade.

NEW TYPE stabilizers and a stabilizing tank system were installed to eliminate any roll, the latest radar navigational equipment was put aboard along with twin-screw propulsion and five 500 kw turbine driven generators.

Her eight-deck high innards were torn out, everything from table cloths to towel racks was replaced. One-hundred and eighty-six staterooms were built and individually decorated as were five lounges, a glass-enclosed sun deck, movie theatre, dining rooms, playroom-nursery, lido and game decks.

ONE OF the most extensive wine cellars, 125 different labels, was put aboard.

The 622-foot ship has accomodations for 450 passengers. She will leave Los Angeles at 4 p.m. Saturday for Honolulu, Japan, Hong Kong, Manila for return via Japan and the Hawaiian Islands.

She will be docked at Berth 154 in Wilmington while in Los Angeles Harbor.

Not a cream, not a lotion, not an ordinary "moisturizer"—but a whole new approach to skin beauty!

New 'Golden Promise' by Sears gives your tired, let-down face a quick 'lift'!

Amazing protein discovery gives your face a fresh, younger look . . . a glow that lasts for hours!

Proved safe and effective in controlled clinical studies!

NEW YORK, N. Y. (Special). At last, a safe way has been found to remove dried out surface skin and activate the skin's own moisture glands. It is a remarkable discovery called Golden Promise. In just twenty minutes, it gives tired skin a fresh, younger look—a glow that lasts for hours; brings striking beauty benefits with just a few treatments by helping dry skin tap in on the body's natural moisture supply.

Clinical studies bring dramatic results!

In controlled clinical studies, the Golden Promise formula was proved safe and remarkably effective. The supervising physician reported dramatic results in case after case. Rough, dry skin looked smooth and moist. Dull, sallow color changed to a radiant glow. Even circles under eyes were less evident.

Akin to the protein of your skin!

Golden Promise is not an ordinary "moisturizer." It is a natural vegetable protein—akin to the protein of your skin. When applied, it tightens gently—exerting osmotic pressure to pull moisture into skin cells and speed up local circulation. When rinsed away, dried out surface skin is gently lifted off—uncovering the smoother, firmer, younger looking skin beneath.

Deep-cleans—activates moisture!

Smooth Golden Promise on your face and throat—tonight! Feel it tingle! Feel it tighten! In twenty minutes, rinse! See how smooth and radiant your skin can look! Clear, too. Because Golden Promise deep-cleans as it activates skin moisture. Even loosens stubborn blackheads.

Use Golden Promise before important dates to look your radiant best! Use it once a week and see an amazing change take place! Ask our Beauty Consultant for Golden Promise Facial Masque today! Or order it by coupon now! You must be thrilled—or money back.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Some Coldness Remains Between JFK, Business

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy tried this week to thaw the freeze between his administration and business but the coldness remains.

He addressed the U. S. Chamber of Commerce in his first appearance before a business group since he forced the steel industry to reverse itself on a price increase.

And, during the week, a recommendation was made that would give the President greater powers to head off strikes. He also received a recommendation of a 10.2 cents an hour wage raise for 450,000 railroad workers.

* * * *

KENNEDY TOLD the U. S. Chamber that the government doesn't want to determine individual prices for individual products. But he spoke of the need for business to follow "responsible" pricing policies. He didn't go into details on how this should be done.

"To restore profits to an adequate level, to maintain an adequate level of employment, we must restore the economy to full activity," Kennedy said. "Our primary challenge is not how to divide the pie but how to enlarge it.

The reaction from the business man audience was far from spectacular.

Richard Wagner, retiring president of the chamber, followed with an address in which he said that business leadership must make certain that "both business and labor will remain free to make their decisions without government intervention."

* * * *

HE SAID THE steel price battle led many people "to believe that inflationary pressures in this country are created by business and its so-called greedy desire for profit."

"Nothing could be further from the truth," he declared, contending that profits are inadequate because "too much is siphoned off" for government spending and excessive wages.

President Kennedy's committee on labor-management policy recommended that the government be given more power to deal with industrial conflicts which threaten the nation's health or safety.

Under the proposal, the President, without going to court for an injunction, could declare a national emergency and order resumption of work for 80 days.

The proposal for a wage increase for nonoperating railroad employes was submitted to the President by an emergency board.

* * * *

THE 11 UNIONS involved had asked for a 35 cents an hour boost. Their members now average about $2.48 an hour. The railroads had demanded a 20 per cent cut for some categories and no increases for the others.

The board said its recommendation for pay hikes is within range of guidelines suggested by the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

The recommendation is not binding on either side.

The automobile industry produced evidence this week that it was riding higher than any other industry.

Combined first quarter profit of the five automakers totaled $509.25 million, compared with $238 million a year earlier. Only Studebaker was in the red with a $2.6 million loss.

* * * *

FORD, THE LAST company to report, earned $127.7 million, up 67 per cent from the 1961 first quarter, on a record $1,999,700,000 in sales.

Automobile production eased off to an estimated 147,000 passenger cars this week after hitting the year's top level of 153,614 last week.

Carmakers scheduled production of about 660,000 vehicles this month, the highest for the month since 1955, when 724,000 were built, and far above the 542,300 turned out in May 1961.

The value line investment survey, in its semi-annual appraisal of the industry, predicted 6.5 million domestic cars will be sold this year, second only to 1955.

Steel production faltered again, falling last week below 2 million tons for the first time in eight months. This meant that that industry's operating rate was down to 65 per cent from 71 per cent the week before and 80.3 per cent at the end of March.

* * * *

IT WAS ESTIMATED that before orders pick up, big users would have to work off 4 to 5 million tons stockpiled as a hedge against a strike.

Consumers' inclination to buy more goods was evident in the March rise of outstanding instalment credit by $269 million over the $236 million increase in February. This was the biggest jump since last November.

Total business sales attained a record high in March, the Commerce Department reported. Combined sales of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers totaled $65.3 billion, a gain of 1 per cent over February.

NEW ORDERS received by manufacturers in March declined to $32.8 billion from $33.1 billion in February, a drop of 1 per cent.

Briefly around the business scene: the American scheduled airline industry lost $36.8 million in 1961 although its revenues exceeded $3 billion for the first time . . . Goodyear Tire Rubber Co. plans to spend $100 million this year for new plant, expansion and modernization . . . seventy-two companies increased dividends in March, compared with 49 a year earlier . . . the New York Stock Exchange will mark its 170th birthday May 17 . . . heavy construction contracts in the first four months of this year totaled $7.1 billion, a gain of 6 per cent over the like period of 1961.

Electricians Return Some to 8-Hour Day

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Electrical Union which last January won a basic 5-hour workday has agreed to let some of its members work eight hours a day at straight pay, the Wall Street Journal has reported.

The special group of workers will also receive a far lower hourly rate than other members of Local 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL-CIO), the Journal said.

They will work on modernization of wiring, chiefly on rent-controlled buildings where owners hesitate to spend much money on such work because of the limited rent increases they can expect.

Urges Bolivia Seek Promised Rudd Aid

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Juan Lechin, Bolivia's leftist vice president has urged the government to send a mission to Moscow to ascertain if Russia can fulfill aid promises it has made to Bolivia.

Lechin, a Troskyite sympathizer, said this inpoverished mountain nation is grateful for U. S. aid which has helped keep the country going but said Bolivia should accept credits from any nation willing to offer them.

CANDIDATE OFF DATE

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—If Iowa educators do what Republican Gov. Norman Erbe urges them to do, he's going to miss a lot of votes in the June primary election.

A political advertisement placed by the Erbe for Governor Committee in the May issue of Midland School's, official publication of the Iowa State Education Association, urges readers to "vote June 5."

The primary election is on Monday, June 4.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Hindenburg Disaster Marked the End of an Era

By SID MOODY

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP)—In the darkening twilight, the dirigible loomed above the pine barrens like a vast cloud.

It ghosted toward the strange tower majestically, serenely. The witnesses of its doom were close at hand. They would write its epitaph.

Louis Lochner, who flew on the Hindenburg on its maiden Atlantic crossing, said travel on a dirigible was like being held aloft by the angels. But on May 6, 1937, 25 years ago, the angels lost their grip and the Hindenburg crashed in flames, a pyre for 36 persons and a romantic era of flight.

The disaster stunned a world not yet accustomed to the sight of a torn airliner crompled in the streets of a great city, an oily seat cushion bobbing on an ocean swell.

* * * *

AMONG the 36 persons who died on the Hindenburg were 13 paying passengers, the first to be killed on a commercial dirigible. They were also the last, a milestone and a tombstone.

The dirigibles had made astonishing trips of endurance—crossing the North Pole, flying around the world on only four stops, soaring aloft with five planes tucked inside.

Proponents felt—those yet alive still feel—the accidents were an inevitable consequence in an infant technology. Safety was improving all the time.

The horror of the Hindenburg pictures seared the public memory with an indelible vision of dirigibles.

* * * *

THIRTY-SIX passengers had boarded the Hindenburg at Frankfurt on May 3, 1937. It was the first of 18 trips planned that year for the Hindenburg by her owners, the Zeppelin Transport Co.

For their $400 fare, the travelers were getting not only a luxurious two or three days aloft but a unique experience. Meals were cooked on board by a continental chef from a larder of lobsters, fowl and roasts. The wine list covered a page. There was a lounge and a bar and 70 staterooms.

On B deck there was a shower replenished by water distilled from the air. Charles E. Rosendahl, commander of the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N.J., where the Hindenburg landed, remembered the spray was "more like a seltzer bottle than the shower at the 'Y,'" but it was a sumptuous advance in air travel.

ALTHOUGH hydrogen enabled the Hindenburg to lift 16½ more tons, the Germans would have preferred to use helium gas. Helium was a rare gas in that it didn't burn, rarer still in that it was found in commercially feasible amounts in but one country in the world, the United States.

The Hindenburg took off routinely with Capt. Max Pruss, a veteran of airships, in command. Capt. Ernst Lehmann, who had commanded the Hindenburg the year before, was along as an adviser. He hadn't wanted to come. His son had died a few days before. But he thought he might have a chance to go to Washington and talk to authorities about helium.

There has never been anything to match travel on an airship. The four diesel engines were so far aft the passengers could scarcely hear them. There was hardly any motion as the huge ship, a sixth of a mile long, floated over the ocean. In fair weather, the big windows were left open.

THE HINDENBURG was due at Lakehurst the morning of the 6th, but because headwinds made her arrival uncertain, Rosendahl radioed Pruss to come in that evening rather than keep customs officials and the landing crew waiting all day.

There was a faint drizzle when the Hindenburg finally approached the field about 7 p.m. Waiting were 92 sailors and civilians of the 138-member ground crew.

Near the tower, the ship's crewmen threw down the mooring lines. Lt. Raymond Tyler, chief mooring officer, remembered dust rising from the coils as they hit the wet earth.

No one is sure who saw it first.

Perhaps it was two crewmen inside the ship who heard a whump and looked up to see a bright flash in No. 4 gas cell near the tail. A woman thought the flash she saw was the setting sun finally breaking through clouds.

"WHAT IS IT?" said Pruss in the control gondola. He thought a landing line had snapped.

As soon as he saw the flames Rosendahl knew. "It spelled the doom of the ship."

The unforgettable photographs tell the story better than words.

Thirteen passengers died. So did 22 of the 61-man crew and one of the ground crewmen.

Pruss escaped, then ran back to help his crewmates and was badly burned. Lehmann, seared over much of his body, staggered away mumbling "I don't understand, I don't understand."

When he first heard the news Hugo Eckener, the great German dirigible pioneer, said, "It must be sabotage." So did Lehmann the day he died. Rosendahl, now a retired vice admiral, still thinks so. A. A. Hoehling has just written a book called "Who Destroyed the Hindenburg?" that uses circumstantial evidence to point to a crewman who may have planted a fire device under Communist prodding.

* * * *

THE U.S. Commerce Department, after lengthy hearings, said most probably it was static electricity built up in the airship from the thunderstorms. Its landing ropes, dry at first (remember the dust when they hit) became moist in the drizzle and capable of conducting the latent charge in the airship.

In any case it happened and, as Eckener told Lochner when Lochner was the AP correspondent in Berlin, "It is over."

Of the few left who think it needn't be, Rosendahl stands out. He lives in Toms River, N.J., not far from the base, amongst souvenirs of an age in which he played a leading role. A blob of molten metal from the Hindenburg is in a bookcase.

JOURNEY'S END

With her mooring lines already down for a landing, the giant dirigible Hindenberg bursts into flames at Lakehurst, N.J., May 6, 1937. Three days earlier it had left Germany on its first luxury trip of the season. The liner's Nazi symbol is visible through the flames.

Skips Union Meets for Church; Fined

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mrs. Mary Ellen Benson, who skipped Sunday morning union meetings to attend church services, has agreed to pay a $5 fine assessed by the union.

Mrs. Benson agreed to pay the fine and court costs of $5.40 after a pre-trial conference. The suit was brought by Local 356 of the United Papermakers and Paperworkers Union, which said its by-laws provided that any member missing three out of five meetings must be fined.

"Miracle Glasses" Erase Years from Appearance

Most people postpone the adoption of two-range glasses (bifocals) as long as possible because they know that the conspicuous lens-segment divisions make them look older than their years. Bifocals have become the trademark of the over-forty, and many consider them to be a disadvantage in business and social life. According to Dr. J. M. Soss, optometrist in Long Beach for 32 years, excellent two-range vision may be enjoyed with glasses that are free from unsightly dividing lines. These modern bifocals — Blended Lenses — assure better vision, too, because the eyes do not jump or see double when shifted from one lens power to another. Dr. Soss suggests that bifocal wearers drop in at his ground floor offices at 37 Pine Avenue and see how amazingly their appearance will be improved by Blended Lenses. There is no obligation, of course. Not expensive; easy terms. Open Friday evenings and all day Saturdays. Phones HE 5-6219; HE 6-6739. Offices in Torrance and Wilmington.

Period of Slight Thaw Seen in Cold War

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Every so often in the cold war—whether by accident or design — there is a period of slight thaw. Such was last week.

In Viet Nam, the Communists released two American soldiers—Sgts. Francis Quinn of Niagara Falls, N.Y. and George E. Groom, of St. Joseph, Mo.—whom they had captured more than three weeks ago.

Halfway across the world, Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov visited New York and Washington, talked with President Kennedy, and expressed hope that one day Russians and Americans would travel in the same space ship.

The White House announced that Press Secretary Pierre Salinger would visit Moscow this month to discuss information programs. Such a trip had been planned before, but was called off because Soviet-American tensions were too great.

* * * *

TAKEN SINGLY, none of these small incidents meant much. They took on significance only when thrown up against the larger picture of East-West relations and the Soviet-American search for some kind of a tension-easing agreement in Berlin.

President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan agreed in Washington talks last weekend that this search should go on. In a final communique, the two men also expressed willingness to meet with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev "whenever there is an indication that such meetings would serve the interests of peace and understanding."

They agreed not to seek such a summit conference for the time being because there is little prospect it would produce useful results since despite such incidents as the freeing of the sergeants in Viet Nam and Titov's trip, the cold war still is going on.

* * * *

FOREIGN ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met in Athens, Greece, to discuss ways to strengthen the alliance. They were told by Secretary of State Dean Rusk that "it is true that there may be the appearance of some slight improvement in the international scene—and even this much is welcome. But it is a long way from the appearance to the reality, and the reality is not even in sight."

Even as Quinn and Groom were set loose in Viet Nam, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced he would make a personal inspection trip to the embattled country to see what U.S. aid is doing to help stop the Communist guerrilla offensive.

And as Titov roamed through New York and Washington—and got lost in the Baltimore suburbs enroute to a steel plant—he spoke familiar Soviet propaganda lines. Instead of space he concentrated on the need to disarm.

The United States, meanwhile, pursued its nuclear testing in the Pacific by firing off its biggest shot of the current series. U. S. officials also said they had evidence the Soviets were about to resume atmospheric blasts.

Personalities were in the news. At Edwards Air Force Base in California, test pilot Joe Walker made a record flight in the X15, climbing 48 miles into space. In Washington, Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr Jr. resigned to become president of the University of Indiana. In Hollywood, Jayne Mansfield said she would file for divorce from her husband, Mickey Hargitay, then changed her mind and announced a reconciliation.

* * * *

DURING THE Senate civil rights debate, Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said Chief Justice Earl Warren "decides for the Communists" whenever there is a clear-cut decision between them and the Supreme Court. Other senators defended Warren, calling Eastland's remarks "vicious." In Little Rock, Ark., Gov. Orval E. Faubus said he would seek a fifth two-year term, rescinding an earlier statement that he would not run for reelection.

President Kennedy was active last week. Tuesday, he appeared before the Chamber of Commerce annual meeting here to defend his administration against charges it is "anti-business." He said he hoped the recent steel price crisis marked a turning point in the relations of government and business, and said he did not want to take on the "added burden" of having to set prices.

Wednesday he met with leaders of the American Medical Association to discuss his controversial program of medical care to the aged under Social Security, which the AMA opposes. The meeting failed to resolve differences, and Kennedy said he intended to continue to try to get the bill passed.

Friday the President flew to New Orleans for a major speech in support of his legislative program to reduce trade barriers so the United States can compete effectively with the European Common Market. This country, he said, must "trade or fade."

Vicious Circles Troubling India

NEW DELHI (AP) — A new lineup in India's cabinet is wrestling with the same old economic problems of shortages in power, transport and foreign exchange.

The shortages are hindering Indian industrialization. They make more distant the day when the 447 million persons of India can rise much above the present average annual income of $70 each.

The economy is caught in two vicious circles that connect on the key element of power.

The shortage of power, primarily electricity, hampers production of coal. The output of high grade coal is particularly affected. The shortage of good coal restricts the railways that carry almost all of India's heavy freight. Inability of the railways to deliver enough coal restricts production of power, most of which is coal-generated electricity.

There are other factors in this first vicious circle. One is the lack of adequate railway capacity. There has been a running feud between the coal producers, who blame the railways for failing to carry away what the mines raise, and the railways that say they are moving all the coal expected of them.

* * * *

THE SECOND vicious circle begins with the power shortage's effect on industries. They cannot get enough electricity. Many industries have to run at half-throttle. This under-utilitization of capacity raises costs per unit.

Higher unit costs price Indian products out of world markets. This cuts foreign exchange earnings. The shortage of foreign exchange hinders importation of the heavy equipment needed to produce more power and generally modernize industry, completing the circle.

* * * *

EXTRA complications in this second vicious circle include the high price levels in India's domestic market. The market is protected by import restrictions designed to save foreign exchange. The government also limits the number of producers of any given product, raising demand.

Domestic producers would rather cater to this high-price demand that compete abroad, where their prices would be out of line. The domestic market does not force rationalization on producers that would make it possible for them to sell in foreign markets.

Where Are the Exits?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Aviation Administrator Najeeb E. Halaby said he has asked the airlines to include the location and operation of emergency exits in their "welcome aboard" announcements.

Dental Care For O.A.S. Pensioners

Complete information about dental care benefits available to pensioners in this county is available at the Dr. Cowen Dental Offices.

These is no obligation for this service, and personal visits to the office can be made at any time, without advance appointment.

Dr. Cowen points out that the current expanded O.A.S. dental care program provides for 2 different procedures, depending on the type of dental work needed.

"We can provide immediate service, on the very first visit, for those who need X-ray dental examination, or repair or adjustment of their old dental plates," Dr. Cowen points out. "The O.A.S. Identification Card must be presented."

"If new dental plates are needed, the O.A.S. rules require that an authorization be obtained from the Department of Social Welfare, and our staff is at the service of the pensioner for assistance in filling out the application and taking care of the details."

General health is often directly related to the condition of the dental plates, Dr. Cowen added. Plates that are loose, or have teeth missing, can be a handicap to the balanced chewing power that permits the wearer to obtain the healthful nutrition value from the food he eats.

TORRANCE'S MISS Armed Forces Day, Bobbet King, invites members of armed forces to join with city in staging parade May 19. From left: Chief Boatswain Mate H. J. Piech, U.S. Navy; S.Sgt. Lester Rickman, Marine Corps; M.Sgt. James V. Catena, Army; and M.Sgt. James Le Fevre, Air Force. The noncommissioned officers are on recruiting duty for the Torrance area.

Torrance Armed Forces Day to Feature Air Force's Titan

An Air Force Titan intercontinental ballistic missile will be displayed at the Torrance Civic Center as part of the city's Armed Forces Day exhibits Saturday, May 19, according to Fred Rathert, general chairman of the annual observance.

Among other weapons from the nation's arsenal to be on display, Rathert said, will be the Navy's submarine-launched Polaris missile and several versions of the Army's Nike surface-to-air missile.

An early tally of entries for the Armed Forces Day parade, scheduled for 10:30 a.m., indicates this year's procession will be bigger and better than the 1961 event, Rathert said.

Japanese Invasion of Kiska a Strange Adventure

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles recalling people and places, campaigns and catastrophies of World War II. Subsequent articles will appear at intervals of approximately two weeks.)

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

The strange Alaskan adventure of the Japanese ended May 30, 1943, when overwhelming American forces stormed ashore on bleak Kiska Island — only to find that the Japanese had taken the hint and fled.

For what purpose the Japanese had ever occupied the island in the first place, back in June of 1942, nobody — not even the Japanese high command — seemed to know.

Officially, the original purpose was announced as a "diversion" to prevent the Americans from making a full defense of Midway, which was attacked that month. The "diversion" resulted in a strange little war of its own, separated by thousands of miles from the strategic centers of the conflict.

* * * *

WHILE Japanese planes were bombing Dutch Harbor June 3, 1942, a "task force" of about 3,000 Japanese soldiers, marines and labor gang members was quietly set ashore on the islands of Attu, Agattu and Kiska.

From the northwest tip of Alaska a large group of small islands descends in a curving arc toward the shore of Siberia.

A little group at the westward end is called the Near Islands, and includes Attu and Agattu. Next comes a group inappropriately called the Rat Islands, since rats could hardly survive the climate, and this includes Kiska Island.

* * * *

THE AMERICANS had stationed 12 Navy weather observers on these islands and they constituted the "defense."

But the Japanese, soon smarting under a crushing defeat at Midway, found some consolation in holding at least a tiny bit of the American continent. The "invasion" served to bolster morale, perhaps, except for the men who were stationed on the rocks.

In the United States, the seizure of the three islands stirred a ripple of alarm, enough to bring the Navy to the attack. A navy and air force task unit started pasting the three islands with monotonous regularity, and with scarcely any opposition. Having garrisoned these lonely outposts, the Japanese could barely supply them.

* * * *

HOWEVER, face was face, so the Japanese sent some naval forces of their own into action. Promptly they lost six destroyers and 24 small commercial vessels.

The defense of the rock called Agattu was scarcely spirited. When the Americans moved closer by establishing bases in the Andreanoff Islands, halfway between Dutch Harbor and Kiska, the Japanese "retaliated" by abandoning frozen Agattu.

* * * *

ON JAN. 12, 1943, the United States moved this icy episode to its conclusion. The first step, taken that day, was the occupation of lonely Amchitka Island, just 70 miles from Kiska.

The second step was a direct counter-invasion of Attu, launched May 11.

The battle was pitched when it began, and it lasted 19 days. It produced one of the United States' war heroes.

* * * *

HE WAS Pvt. Joe P. Martinez of Taos, New Mexico, of Company K, 32nd Infantry, 7th Infantry Division, a foot soldier with the courage of a lion.

His platoon had tried, and tried again to oust the Japanese from a key position high in the snow-covered rocks between East Arm Holtz Bay and Chichagof Harbor. On May 26 a reinforced battalion attempted the uphill attack. Halfway, it met murderous fire, and the attack stopped.

Here was the critical moment, and here was the man for the job.

* * * *

WHILE others burrowed in the snow and rocks, Joe Martinez grabbed an automatic rifle and jumped to his feet. Others followed. The plain private, often using hand grenades, drove the Japs from position to position, behind him came hundreds of Americans.

When the hill was over-run and captured, the Americans found themselves under attack from rocks that jutted 150 feet above them, across a snow-filled pass. The indefatiguable New Mexican led the attack again, on and up.

Amazed Americans lost count of the enemy posts he destroyed by grenade or Browning automatic rifle. Finally he reached the top of the pass.

* * * *

WITH victory in sight, the plain private found just one more enemy-held trench — and there he also found death, but with the capture of the heights and pass, the enemy was defeated.

For his heroism, Pvt. Martinez, one of the greatest fighting men of World War II, received the Congressional Medal of Honor — posthumously.

* * * *

NOW THE Americans turned their attention to Kiska, by now little more than a pinprick in their national pride. They prepared for it, however, as if it were the invasion of Japan.

Planes and warships attacked Kiska again and again, with furious firepower. Rocks and snow flew so thick that attacking planes could no longer distinguish the shape or outline of the land mass.

On Aug. 15, a combined task force of American and Canadian troops charged ashore. The debris they found there was incredible, but there was no sign of the Japanese. They had slipped away sometime during the bombardments.

* * * *

THE STRANGE "invasion" by the Japanese had, indeed, hurt the American national pride, and perhaps boosted the morale of the Japs at home. As a military maneuver, however, it seemed about the most useless action of World War II.

From these fragmentary "bases" the Japanese were unable to mount even nuisance attacks upon the United States. As observation posts, the Japanese study the weather.

The Aleutians were, indeed, a strange place for a boy from New Mexico to win a hero's medal for dislodging Japanese from snowbanks.

Advisory Panel Urges Long-Term Plan on County Hospital Facilities

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

A long-term master plan, looking ahead to the year 2000, should be developed for Los Angeles County hospital facilities, an advisory commission will report Tuesday to the Board of Supervisors.

Such a plan "is long past due," according to Mrs. Joseph H. Stout Jr., chairman of the Los Angeles County Hospital Advisory Commission.

As an immediate step, the commission recommends an amendment to the county charter to permit contracts with any accredited hospital in the county to care for indigent patients.

Such contracts would be negotiated, the commission said "when such care is desiorus and advantageous to the county.,"

Contracts with private hospitals "will solve any patient load problem that would develop in the next several years," the commission said. They also would be valuable in the event of "a great catastrophe," said the report.

* * * *

MRS. STOUT'S report said, however, a master plan must be established to cover both the use of private hospital facilities and construction of new county hospitals.

Costs to the taxpayer for the care of the county's indigent sick are "of such consequence" that they call for a "long, hard look" to the future, the report said.

"We believe no shorter view should be taken than to the end of the present century," Mrs. Stout wrote.

Neglect of such a plan, she said, "has led to practices of expansion that are not in the best interests of the public."

The commission report says that from "an economic standpoint," newly built county hospitals of modern design and proper facilities will bring a standard of care and efficiency which "in the long run, will offset the original basic higher cost per bed as compared to rehabilitating old hospital facilities."

Adenauer, Clay Will Meet in West Berlin

BONN (UPI) — Chancellor Konrad Adenhauer will discuss Berlin with Gen. Lucius D. Clay and the Western commandants when he visits West Berlin this week.

He also will reveal details of further Bonn government economic aid to Berlin at a press conference, government spokesmen said.

Clay postponed his return to the United States to be in Berlin for Adenauer's visit. The retired general is returning to private business after serving as President Kennedy's personal Berlin representative.

Egypt Asks Britain for Financial Help

LONDON (AP)—Egypt is reported to have asked Britain for financial aid to stabilize the Egyptian pound and avert an acute balance of payments crisis.

The urgent need for finance was attributed partly to a bad cotton crop in 1961, barter commitments to the Soviet bloc, and failings in the United Arab Republic's self-sufficiency program.

Liz, in Wig, Has Lunch With Father

ROME (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton lunched Saturday in an Appian Way restaurant—at separate tables.

The actress was with her father, Francis Taylor, a London art dealer, and his wife. The film star's dark hair was covered with a blonde wig like the one she wore two days ago on a date with Burton.

Burton came to the same restaurant with a group of friends. They ate across the room at another table.

The Welsh actor walked over to Miss Taylor's table and was introduced to the elder Taylors. Burton returned to his table after a brief conversation with the Taylors.

Ex-Track Bums Bat Past About

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Suddenly I felt like I wasn't needed . . .

Shelley Winters and John Ireland, sweethearts once, were evidently starting a new romance right before my eyes, in spite of me.

It was 11:30 Saturday night. I'd dropped in at Shelley's dressing room at the Royale, by appointment, to ask her a few simple questions about how was everything going in "Night of the Iguana" between herself and her leading man Patrick O'Neal?

"Hi!" said this fellow sitting there, lounging back in an ante-room, waiting for Madame to get dressed in her own larger room just beyond.

"DID YOU know" — said Shelley, suddenly appearing before us in an attractive, sexy reddish robe — "that John and I went together for four years? Was that before or after Vittorio?" she asked John, referring to her once-upon-a-time husband Vittorio Gassman. "I guess it was before.

SHELLEY

"The trouble is, John's always engaged or I'm always married," she said. "Are you engaged now, John?"

John didn't think he was that he could remember.

"You ought to marry me sometime, John," she said. "I always pay my husbands alimony."

Tennessee Williams could have done a new scene for "Iguana" hearing them relive their romance which I gather was a very important point in both their lives.

"We were all tennis bums in California," Shelley said. "And we played horses. We used to get our unemployment insurance money and go right to the track."

* * * *

"DO YOU remember" — John asked Shelley — "that Saturday when you had $2 for the weekend and I had about $20? And you got a tip on a horse from somebody?"

"From somebody! It was Franchot Tone. He knows about Method horses!"

"Paid about 99 to 1," Ireland exclaimed, "I can still remember leaving the night club where we spent most of the money."

* * * *

THEY LAUGHED, and talked about personal things. "How old's your oldest now?" Shelley asked . . . "Eighteen," John said . . . "EIGHTEEN!" Shelley said . . . "And how's that friend of yours you always talked about, who didn't like to work?"

"Didn't LIKE to work!" shot back John. "He didn't know whether he liked to... he never tried it."

And here they were again . . . John across the street . . . right across 45th St. in the "Infidel Ceasar" at the Music Box. And Shelley was up to her bosom in two forthcoming movies, "Lolita," and "The Chapman Report."

"DID YOU have any hesitance about taking over the Bette Davis part in "Iguana" inasmuch as she'd already created it?" I wondered.

"That's a kooky robe you've got on," John told her. "That's about the kookiest robe I ever saw you wear."

"Pardon me . . . 'Iguana,'" I said.

Honest I think Shelley'd have preferred talking about the kooky robe.

"Well, you see, it's such a great part. And Tennessee wrote a lot of new things for me. Changed the end around entirely."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Taffy Tuttle says she has no time to look for her ideal man: "I'm too busy looking for a husband."

HARDLY A CRUSHED LOTUS BLOSSOM

France Nuyen Rare Blend of Career Girl, Practicality and Detachment

FRANCE NUYEN
Career Girl

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A myopic press agent once described France Nuyen, the exotic Eurasian who is hitting the bigtime in movies, as a "crushed lotus blossom."

It's hard to regard France as a crushed anything these days.

She's rare blend of French practicality, oriental detachment and American career girl independence, who:

Has rare beauty, but a weight problem (remember the furor after she was bounced from the lead in the film "The World of Suzie Wong" for excess avoirdupois?);

Was calm and poised entertaining 20,000 men, but scared before 75 matrons.

Has high principles, which she's reluctant to discuss, and a high number of boy friends, about whom she's similarly reticent.

* * * *

FRANCE, AT 23, has lived a lot but she's still more shy than sophisticated.

Take the way she handled a couple of recent appearances, the first before 75 women at a hospital benefit luncheon.

"I like to help good causes in my spare time," she says. "But what do you do before a bunch of women?

"When I went to Seattle a few weeks ago to appear before 20,000 servicemen, I had a similar problem.

* * * *

I DON'T sing or dance. All I know is one song I learned six years ago—half the lyrics I remember in Chinese, the other half in Japanese.

"So I told the men, that's all I knew and they laughed and applauded and I sang the song for them. They didn't mind not understanding the words.

"But I was terrified about performing for the ladies. Some of them are rich and bored. I was afraid they'd sit on their hands.

* * * *

"FIRST I talked to them about how much they were doing for people who couldn't afford care and I told them not to just go to luncheons, but to see for themselves how they're helping people.

"Then I read them 10 or 11 of my love poems."

She writes them in a spiral notebook in her spare time.

"At the end, they applauded. I felt wonderful."

It's not difficult to understand why France, at first blush, would worry about meeting the ladies. She looks like a lot of them would like to.

* * * *

SMALL, fine-boned, she wears her thick, hip-length dark hair coiled at the nape of her neck. She doesn't really need the dust of powder and touch of pale lip rouge she wears.

France is shy about revealing who she's dating lately.

But she'll admit to an assortment of young actors, businessmen, doctors and lawyers whose company she enjoys because they're "intelligent and well-educated, people I can learn from. By knowing such men I can make up for some of the education I missed."

* * * *

AN ONLY child, France was brought up by her French mother in Marseilles, while her Chinese chef father was at seas during World War II.

France became a photographer's model in Cannes, London and New York, traveling with her mother, when in 1957 she landed the role of Liat, the young Polynesian girl in the film "South Pacific."

She could barely speak English then. But now she talks in a soft, precise English—with Gallic gestures—that's easy to turn on and difficult to interrupt.

Her mother is in New York and her father back at sea. So she lives alone in a small, one-bedroom apartment "just outside Beverly Hills. It's too expensive for me to live in Beverly Hills. Besides, it's quiet here and there's a nice older couple next door who don't bother me, but sort of keep watch over me."

* * * *

FOR A luncheon interview she wore a box-jacketed shocking pink suit trimmed with black braid and gold buttons, something that might have come from Chanel's Parisian atelier.

It didn't, she said, and whispered the name of a department store that specializes in copies of Couturier models.

It was the kind of confidence you might expect from an American career girl—or a French housewife watching her francs—or a Chinese girl in Hong Kong, haggling with shopkeepers.

Dallas Pastor Dies

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Rev. Albert Ott, 65, widely-known Assembly of God minister and pastor of Bethel Temple here for 25 years, died Saturday following a heart attack.

Japanese Girls Entering Race

Applications for the Miss Harbor contest are being accepted, Frank Sugiyama, Long Beach Harbor District Chapter President of the Japanese-American Citizens League said Saturday.

Miss Harbor also will be titled Miss Port of Long Beach, sponsors said, and will represent the port at the International Beauty Congress.

Deadline for entrants—who must be of Japanese parentage — is May 12, Sugiyama said.

AUTO HI-FI

Costs More Than Mitchum's Car

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the beauties of making big money as a movie star is that you can indulge your likes.

Robert Mitchum recently installed a six channel hi-fidelity system in his sports car.

"It cost more than the car but, to me, it's worth every penny of it," says Mitchum. "Beats listening to five commercials between each record on regular radio."

Humble Pie for Van Johnson

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Van Johnson, once a top movie star whose career faded to near eclipse, is making a comeback after deciding that acting is more profitable than tennis and swimming.

"I was playing tennis or swimming in Palm Springs," admitted Johnson, citing reasons for his career trouble. "I was becoming a tennis bum."

"I don't blame anybody but myself. I wouldn't read a script if the picture didn't have a foreign location."

* * * *

JOHNSON is back in Hollywood after 18 months in London where he appeared in "Music Man" on stage. He's now doing the show at the Ambassador Hotel's famed Cocoanut Grove.

"Going to London was the greatest experience of my life," said Johnson. "It's proven to me that I can get up on stage and do a show. I've always been afraid to get up in front of an audience.

"A man once said you should face the thing you fear the most. To me that was a live audience."

* * * *

FOR JOHNSON "Music Man" was a chance to get back on top. Van tours with the show this summer and is set to appear in a play, "Come On Strong," in the Fall. The bushy haired actor also plans to appear in a movie based on the play.

"I think my career goes in another direction now, towards the stage," he said while sitting in the living room of his Biltmore Hotel suite.

"After 85 pictures and 15 years at Metro Goldwyn Mayer Studios, work became like a family. All those years at M.G.M. I was wrapped in cotton batting and protected. I finally decided to get out of my cocoon and face the world."

* * * *

WHILE critical of his leisurely living, Johnson also slapped at his pictures.

"I used to do so much stuff just to pay the rent," he said. "In the last couple of years, before 'Music Man,' I did some pictures that were mediocre garbage.

"Everybody thinks I was in a lot of musical pictures. I was, but never had a chance to sing or dance, except for one, 'Till the Clouds Roll By.' I was in musicals but never a part of them."

* * * *

BEFORE going to London for his comeback start, Van said he refused television series which later became hits, with somebody else playing the lead role.

"I eat humble pie," he said with a smile. "I turned down a lot of television series. In a couple of years I'll listen to some television offers again. I'd like to come back here and have a crack at an offbeat series idea.

"The way things are today, an actor has to have irons in all fires, movies, theaters, television and nightclubs," Johnson said.

It's been a long time since 1945 when Van was ranked among filmland's top ten money makers. But he's determined to catch up for all those years spent on tennis courts and in swimming pools.

Tryouts Set for Off-Bdwy. Play

Tryouts for the Off-Broadway Theater's forthcoming production, "The Count of Clerambard," by Marcel Ayme, will be held at 2 p.m. May 13 in the theater, 211 Live Ave.

Ronan Hogue will direct the comedy. The cast calls for seven males and seven females.

HOW THEY LOOKED AS DECIDEDLY WON DECISIVELY

BELINSKY THROWS NO-HITTER

By ROSS NEWHAN

Robert (Bo) Belinsky, with a touch of revenge and courage in his heart and a spoonful of mustard and English on his fastball and screwball, achieved with his arm what he could never do with his mouth Saturday night.

Before 15,886 tense, roaring fans the Angels' Bobo hurled the first no-hit, no-run game in the history of Southern California major league baseball and in doing so reserved a line in the record books for himself as he knew he eventually would.

* * * *

THE FINAL score over Baltimore was 2-0, and represented Belinsky's fourth straight victory, the Angels' third straight, the Seraphs' second shutout and third complete game. And so Bo himself noted, it made the second "first" for the billiards master from Trenton. He also scored the Angels' first Chavez Ravine victory.

If such a thing is possible, it was easy. "I've seen six or seven of these things," said veteran Tom Morgan in the jubilant Angel clubhouse, "and this was the easiest of them all."

Although struggling with his control over the early going, Belinsky picked up steam and confidence as he rolled along, retiring the last 10 men in order. He faced 34 Orioles, walking four, hitting two and fanning nine—a season high for the Angels.

* * * *

HE WAS IN trouble in the second and fourth innings, but worked himself out of both jams with cool bravado. In the second Bo hit Jim Gentile and walked Gus Triandos, but then struck out Ron Hansen to end that threat.

Belinsky continued his bravado performance in the seventh and eighth innings, retiring the side in order in each. As he went to the mound to pitch the ninth the crowd, second largest of the season, responded with a mighty ovation.

* * * *

THE FIRST batter in the cardiac frame was Brandt and he went down on three straight strikes. Now Triandos was the hitter, or swinger, and after two strikes, he grounded to Joe Koppe who fired perfectly to first. Nicholson, already a strikeout victim twice, was next, and after one ball and one strike, he popped to Torres as the Angels stormed

Pays $19 Before 100,000

By JOHN CHANDLER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Greycoated Decidedly, a California colt trained by Argentinian Horatio Luro, pulled away from the leaders in the final sixteenth of a mile Saturday and won the 88th Kentucky Derby by clipping a full second off Whirlaway's 1941 track record.

Jockey Bill Hartack, who has been having his troubles in the big races, piloted the winner—a husky son of the 1954 Derby hero, Determine—to a 2¼-length victory over Roman Line.

Ridan, the heavy favorite of a screaming throng estimated at better than 100,000, finished third in a rousing windup to the $162,150 classic.

* * * *

ONLY necks separated Roman Line, Ridan and the fourth horse, British-bred Sir Ribot, an invader from the West Coast like the winner.

Decidedly, owned by the El Peco Ranch of George A. Pope Jr., of Madera, Calif., smashed home in 2:00 2/5 for the gruelling mile and one-quarter. This was the fastest Derby since the famous run for the roses was inaugurated in 1885 and it smashed the 2:01 2/5 clocking which has stood since Calumet Farm's famed Whirlaway routed 10 rivals and won by eight lengths 21 years ago.

Roman Line, owned by T. A. Grissom of Detroit and ridden by Jimmy Combest, was a great surprise as he was appearing in his fourth race in two weeks. He won at Keeneland April 16, was third behind Ridan and Decidedly in the Blue Grass Stakes April 26, and last Tuesday demolished his competition by winning the Derby Trial Stakes by six lengths over a sloppy track here at Churchill Downs.

* * * *

RIDAN is owned by Mrs. Moody Jolley of Miami Springs, Fla., E. H. Woods of Birmingham, Ala., and J. L. Greer of Knoxville, Tenn. He was ridden by Manuel Ycaza, the fiery Panamanian.

Ridan became the favorite Friday when Sir Gaylord, the big colt from Virginia, broke a bone in his ankle and was withdrawn in a dramatic pre-Derby castastrophe.

The winner, who was third choice in the betting, returned $19.40, $8.20 and $4.20 for the biggest Derby payoff since Dark Star upset the mighty Native Dancer in 1953 and returned $51.80 straight.

* * * *

ROMAN LINE, a 25-1 shot, paid $19.20 and $7.60. Ridan was $3 to show.

It was the third Derby victory for Hartack, which equalled another record. Eddie Arcaro retired with five Derby winners but only three other jockeys had won three of the classics. They were Isaac Murphy with a trip in the last century, and the famous Earle Sande.

The victory in the 15-horse even was worth $119,650 to the owners of Decidedly.

Arnie by 1 in Finals of Vegas Golf

By JERRY WYNN
I. P-T Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS — A desert hawk is on the wing today — preying on birdies and scenting $11,000 in silver dollars.

Incomparable Arnold Palmer, who plays golf with a passion usually reserved for young lovers, is the stalking hawk as the $58,000 Tournament of Champions advances into the payoff final round at the Desert Inn.

SANDERS

CASPER

The bronzed-like Atlas from Latrobe, Pa., took over his accustomed position at the top of the field Saturday with a back nine charge of three birdies for a three-under par 69 and a 54-hole total of 208.

While many of the front-runners wilted under the 96-degree heat of the third round, Palmer still has three strong contenders for the title in today's nationally-televised showdown duel in the desert sun.

* * * *

BOUNCY Billy Casper, who played with Palmer Saturday and is paired with him again today, is but one stroke off the pace and shares second place at 209 with surprising veteran Earl Stewart, a Dallas club pro. Doug Sanders, the comic swinger with ants in his stance, is alone in third place at 210. All three shot 69.

KRCA (4), 1:30 p.m.

Young Phil Rodgers, four strokes off the pace at 212, is the only other player given a chance to threaten Palmer.

Falling out of contention Saturday were second round co-leaders Doug Ford and Cary Middlecoff. Ford shot 74 for 213, Middlecoff an astronautical 80, fueled by two double bogeys and one triple bogey for 219. Defending champion Sam Snead carded his second straight 75 for 220.

Palmer, who had scrambled for his life through much of the first two rounds, was in keen form Saturday.

* * * *

"I PLAYED much better today," he said. "I hit the rough only a few times and had several chances for birdies. I drove the ball very well."

Followed by his usual massive gallery, dubbed Arnie's Army, Palmer played the front nine in even par 36. He three-putted from 30 feet to bogey the fourth hole and sank a six-footer to birdie the fifth.

Coming home, he made his move with three birdies on the first four holes. He came out of deep rough with a wedge shot three feet from the pin on the par five 10th and sank putts of 10 and 12 feet to clip par on the 12th and 13th. He made a strong par on the 18th when, after driving into the rough and hitting his approach into a trap, he blasted out and sank a five foot putt.

"I'd really like to win this

DODGER OF DAY

DOUG CAMILLI drove in four runs with homer and single in Dodgers' 10-1 win over Pirates.

Important Win for Me, Chants Hartack

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Derby roses have no special fragrance for the hard-bitten Bill Hartack, but revenge is sweet indeed.

"This was a very important Derby to me," said the unsmiling Hartack after his third victorious Derby ride.

But just to make it plain this was no new Hartack speaking, he said, "There were some very personal reasons involved. I had a lot of confidence in Ridan when I was riding him last winter; thought he was a great horse. He had a lot of problems, but he was improving—just when I was taken off him."

He added with a touch of more than his usual bitterness, "winning the Derby and beating Ridan were both important."

Hartack credited his own suggestion that Decidedly run in blinkers with being a major factor in Decidedly's record-smashing Derby run.

"He wasn't picked to win, but I thought I found out something about him the first time I rode him," the 28-year-old jockey said.

"He had a habit of ducking and shying. I wanted Mr. Luro to put blinkers on him for the Blue Grass, but the horse is a little spooky and he was afraid they would upset him. But we tried them out, and he ran straight and true. I believe they helped him to win."

Dodgers' Camilli New All-America Candidate

By GEORGE LEDERER
I. P-T Staff Writer

PITTSBURGH — Last year Doug Camilli earned the label of the all-America out. This spring he was the all-America holdout. Today he's the Dodgers' choice as all-America, period!

With regular catcher John Roseboro injured and Norm Sherry in a batting slump, manager Walter Alston Saturday gave Camilli his first chance as a starter and Camilli made the most of his promotion.

Camilli's bases-loaded single in the second inning gave Don Drysdale all the runs he needed to subdue the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Dodgers, however, certainly in need of the practice, didn't let up until they had trounced the Bucs, 10-1.

* * * *

CAMILLI, who entered with a 1.000 batting average, finally had it reduced to .714. He maintained his perfect record with a two-run, inside-the-park homer in the third inning, then grounded into a double play and popped up.

Going into his fifth game of the season this afternoon Camilli already has surpassed his hit and RBI totals in 13 games last year. He had only four hits in 30 chances (.133) and four RBI last year.

Camilli had his troubles even at Spokane (.250) and Omaha (.042) in 1961, yet had the nerve to ask for a $5,000 raise this spring. When he didn't get it, he was a holdout until the second week of the exhibition season.

General manager Buzzie Bavasi was kind enough to consent to a $1,000 raise at the time, but is certain to give Camilli another boost if he can maintain only a third of his current average.

Fastest-Ever '500' Clocking by Jones

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Parnelli Jones continued his drive to turn the first 150 mph lap at the Indianapolis Speedway Saturday with an unofficial timing of 149.7, best ever recorded here.

The stopwatch clocking, however, won't go into the books because the speedway's electronic timer wasn't in use.

The 28-year-old Torrance, Calif., driver set his unofficial mark in his Agajanian Special moments before the first serious accident since the track opened a week ago for practice.

Jimmy Daywalt, 37-year-old veteran driver from Indianapolis, lost control coming out of the southwest turn and skidded broadside about 600 feet before hitting the wall tail first.

Daywalt jumped out and escaped with minor wrist burns.

FOOTNOTES: Decidedly, taken in hand at the start to be held in reserve for six furlongs, came to the outside thereafter to commence his bid, continuing wide to engage the leaders through the upper stretch, moved to fore leaving furlong marker and was under pressure to draw off. Roman Line steadied while maintaining a striking position from the outset, rallied from between horses in late stages to gain command a furlong out but had little left to contain belated bid of Ridan. Ridan, allowed to settle through opening quarter mile, moved with a rush along outside thereafter to prompt the issue in run down backstretch, attempted to bear out rather badly on leaving backstretch but continued gamely to midstretch where he faltered under extreme pressure. Sir Ribot, away in good order appeared to run up onto horses' heels entering first turn, came out thereafter and finished strongly. Sunrise County, never far back while going much more kindly than before, duelled vigorously until the final sixteenth where he gave under pressure. Crimson Satan, shuffled back when bumped at start, rallied after six furlongs and finished full of run. Green Hornet turned in a good closing rally. Admiral's Voyage, tired suddenly after vying for lead to top of stretch. Touch Bar broke sharply to the outside. Lee Town tired badly. Mister Pitt broke sharply to the outside. Prego appeared to throw a stifle entering stretch and was immediately pulled up. Royal Attack showed little.

Water in L. B. Arena

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . If you're worried about drinking fountains in the new Long Beach Arena, relax. Manager Win Hanssen, cognizant of the "oversight" at Chavez Ravine, hastens to inform the nervous public that he will have 16 faucets in his new baby. Eight spouts will be on the first floor and eight on the second level. Concessionaire Lauren Proctor hastens to add that doesn't mean EVERYONE has to drink water. There'll be a commodity called soda pop around, too.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . Long Beach's new Arena was the subject of much comment among writers covering the Tourney of Champions golf classic at Las Vegas the past few days. Editors and writers from San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Phoenix and many Texas cities were astonished to learn that our soon-to-be-completed Arena would seat 14,500 spectators. For some strange reason they all thought the West's most modern all-purpose structure would accommodate about 8,000 people.

. . . Comment: Long Beach's Arena can be a tourist attraction almost comparable to Chavez Ravine. The building already has caught the fancy of "foreign" newsmen—and that's a major step toward attracting the general public. When the press OUTSIDE your own bailiwick gets on the bandwagon, the public relations job for any enterprise within a place like our Arena is halfway to the victory point.

. . . Las Vegas made an $800,000 bid for the Patterson-Liston fight, but don't count on the gypsy affair landing in Slot Machine Village. Jim Healy, the KLAC radio man, sounded the right note when he said the heavyweight go would NOT be carded in Vegas. Reason: Casino City won't consider handling the match until its slow season in November or December. Patterson, the man calling the shots, wants to defend his title in the usual month of September. Las Vegas is booked solid for attractions of every conceivable nature until November, so the city isn't going to make concessions before that month to anything—even a world heavyweight championship title brawl!

JOHNNY OLSZEWSKI doesn't have much time these days to handle his nightly radio show because he's on location with a Walt Disney Studio picture group. The show is none-the-less a success because of pinch-hitting efforts of Jerome Hall, the mild-mannered combination newsman-broadcaster. John's picture, by the way, is a sequel to Fred MacMurray's very funny "Absent Minded Professor." As you might expect, it's the story of an absent-minded football coach. (No, Clyde, John is NOT the coach.)

. . . Incidentally, if the sequel proves as successful as the original, Johnny-O might wind up in a TV series with MacMurray this coming fall. (How he's going to find time for line plunges with the Detroit Lions, his radio show and the possible TV series is a very pleasant worry for the fullback. Even Ralph Houk's worries aren't that delightful.)

. . . Another Long Beach picture man, Bob Lemon, was given a fat compliment a few days ago by Dick Donovan, the tremendous Cleveland pitcher who invaded Chavez Ravine recently. "I learned how to pitch by watching Lemon," claimed Donovan. I think he was one of the classic pitchers of this era. If every pitcher watched the successful ones who depend on the same kind of pitches as themselves, there'd be more good pitchers in this game."

JOE RODGERS, as indestructible as Gibraltar, insists he has another crackerjack Nitehawk softball club this season. The Long Beachers, who wrapped up as many world championships as the Yankees, found the going a little rough in Western Congress play last season, but claims he will plug the holes before this campaign gets very far along. Two solid hitters, outfielder Paul Peterson and catcher Cort Van Dyk, have been added. (But won't things seem strange without old reliable Stan White behind the log?)

. . . J. Howard McWilliams, formerly of Annapolis but now residing at 110 Via Di Roma Walk here, got a nice writeup in an Eastern paper over his non-stop attempts to establish the sport of lacrosse in California. J. Howard's efforts already have started clubs at USC, UCLA, San Diego and Arizona, while an Orange County team is in the formation stage. Anyone interested in this rough sort, played incessantly by American Indians, may contact McWilliams. (Don't look at me, J. Howard. I'll help, but not play. I've had this balding scalp too long to want to lose it now.)

Record for Musial, Victory for Redlegs

CINCINNATI (AP)—Veteran Wally Post rammed a bases-loaded single to center in the ninth Saturday — good for a run and an 8-7 Cincinnati victory over St. Louis.

Leo Cardenas wrapped it up in the ninth with a one-out single, a steal of second and third before Post's deciding blow.

Cardenas had picked on the first pitch of the first inning for a double, starting a five-run Redleg rally that routed starter Ray Sadecki.

Frank Robinson's double drove in three of the Reds' runs, and a sacrifice fly plus a single added two more.

St. Louis had finally caught up, 7-7, in the eighth inning when Minnie Minoso singled in Bill White, who had doubled.

It was a notable day for veteran outfielder Stan Musial, who played seven innings of his 2,785th game for the Cards, tying Honus Wagner's National League game mark. Musial scored twice and collected two hits.

FORGET HOME RUN RECORD--WAGNER

'I'll Settle for 'Glove' Award'

By ROSS NEWHAN

Leon Wagner, the thinking man's hitter, was talking about his fielding.

"You know," said the Angels' Atlas, "you can have the home run records. I'll take that "Golden Glove" award anytime."

For a man who once had the reputation of carrying an iron claw in the outfield, the statement was somewhat surprising.

"I know all about those blasts. They were made by sportswriters who never had seen me. When they did they said I wasn't so bad after all.

"I've had to fight a tendency to relax in the outfield. You can't do that. You ease up for a split second and man that ball is over your head. I think now, however, I can make all the plays the average outfielder does. I'm sure I've convinced Rigney of that. At least he doesn't talk to me anymore about it. Now, if I'm going to become a better than average outfielder it's all up to me."

In his quest for the "Golden Glove" Wagner made six errors on 205 chances last year. That's not bad considering Mickey Mantle made the same number and such classy glove men as Lennie Green and Jackie Brandt committed more.

"Man I'd really love to go a season without any errors. I've always hit home runs now that my fielding is coming around I feel more like a complete player. Why if I continue to improve in a couple more years I may be a super star."

It's not the glove which will keep Wagner in Cadillacs, however,—and Leon is well aware of that. Off to a tremendous start at the plate, Wagner has done some serious thinking about hitting.

WAGNER

With constant prodding from manager Bill Rigney, the results have been most profitable for Leon and the Angels. After 8 games Wagner had compiled a .300 batting average and his muscular 6-1 frame had powered nine home runs. Heading into Saturday night's contest with Baltimore, the 28-year old San Franciscan had belted homers in the Angels' last three games and seven of the last eight. It was not until the Yankees' 37th game on May 28 last year that Roger Maris hit his ninth.

Wagner has always hit homers (51 at Danville, 29 at St. Cloud), but not until last year when he moved into the Wrigley Field band box and socked 28 has he been abel to hit with consistency in the majors.

"Leon has had two basic faults" says Rigney,, Wagner's tutor for two years at San Francisco. "He doesn't bear down against the so-so left hander. I mean that against a pitcher like Ford or Podres he takes a good stance and is an aggressive hitter. But against a southpaw of less ability he eases up. His second fault is that he swings at too many bad pitches. When he makes up his mind thou shall not pass, brother, that's all. If he can ever overcome these faults, and I've seen much improvement, then there's no reason he can't hit 40 home runs every year."

Wagner realized early this spring that if he wanted 10 to 12 additional homers he would have to "hang in" against all southpaws.

"There is a natural instinct for a lefthander to pull away from a southpaw," said Wagner, who belted only one homer off wrong side pitching last year but has hit three already this season.

"With me it's never been a question of courage. I'm not afraid of standing in there. It's been more a mental block and now I think I have it cracked.

* * * *

"I'VE BECOME a much more aggressive hitter against southpaws. I'm exercising the baseball I've stored in the back of my mind. I look for different pitches in certain spots and if they come I make up my mind to do everything right when I swing.

"My main purpose now is to just get a good cut at the ball. I'm not trying for home runs. Of course it's harder for me to hit homers off lefties. In most cases I have to hit their pitch. They can make a mistake against me where as a righthander can't.

"I would say, though, the big reason I'm hitting with more consistency is that I've trained myself from eight years experience to hit the hanging pitch. Basically I'm taking advantage of a pitcher's mistake, especially when the count is in my favor. Take guys like Ted Williams and Stan Musial, when they got the count to three and one you could bet they'd get a hit."

* * * *

WAGNER DOES not entirely agree with Rigney's opinion that he swings at bad pitches.

Wagner enjoys playing in Chavez Ravine. The distant fences do not bother him. Last year he hit a ball 473 feet into Avalon Blvd. and last week at Detroit he tagged one which would have reached Canada had it not run into the facade of the third deck 92 feet above terra firma.

And where else besides the spaciousness of O'Malley's Gardens would Wagner have a better chance to win that "Golden Glove."

Wow! Phils Run Streak to Five

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies extended their winning streak to five games — their longest since 1960—Saturday by taking a 2-1 decision over the New York Mets before 7,993 at Connie Mack Stadium.

Cal McLish, the Phillies' 36-year-old curve ball expert, posted his third win of the campaign with help from reliever Jack Baldschun in the eighth.

Jacke Davis, a rookie outfielder with a tricky first name, broke up a tight pitching battle between McLish and southpaw Al Jackson with a run-scoring single in the seventh inning.

Cubs' Barrage of Homers Ends Giants' Streak at 10

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two home runs by Billy Williams and another by Ernie Banks carried the Chicago Cubs to a 12-8 victory Saturday and broke the San Francisco Giants' 10-game winning streak.

Williams belted his first home run in the third inning and climaxed a three-run Chicago rally in the seventh when he hit his ninth homer of the season with a man on base.

The blow put the Cubs in front to stay at 11-8. Banks led off the eighth with his sixth home run of the season.

The Cubs wrapped five pitchers for 18 hits, tagging Jim Duffalo with the loss. Chicago used four pitchers in the free-hitting game.

Willie Mays' ninth homer gave the Giants a 3-1 lead in the third. The Cubs quickly tied the score for the first time with Williams' leadoff homer, a triple by George Altman and Andre Rodgers' single.

The Giants scored three runs in the fifth, including two on Willie McCovey's triple. The Cubs also scored three times on three singles, a wild pitch and a walk.

Yanks' Newcomer Sparks 7-6 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Joe Pepitone's first major league homer with a man on base capped a five-run New York Yankee spurt in the eighth inning Saturday for a 7-6 victory over Washington.

Yogi Berra's three-run homer accounted for the other runs of the big inning attack against Bennie Daniels and loser Marty Kutyna. Berra's blow off the right field foul pole came off Daniels after Tom Tresh and Mickey Mantle singled.

When Daniels walked Johnny Blanchard, and Phil Linz ran for him, Manager Mickey Vernon brought in Kutyna. Pepitone, playing first base instead of Moose Skowron against a right-handed pitcher, hit the relief man's first pitch into the right field bleachers.

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Lee Stange, backed by the homers of Rich Rollins and Bernie Allen, went the distance in his first major league start Saturday to lead the Minnesota Twins past the Detroit Tigers, 7-2.

Stange paced the Minnesota rookie delegation by surviving a shaky start. He won his first game against no losses. Stange retired 20 men in a row before Bill Bruton doubled with two out in the eighth.

Rollins and Allen hit two-run homers off Detroit starter Jim Bunning. Rollins, who also had a pair of singles, hit his sixth round tripper in the first. Allen connected for his third homer in the third.

Indians, Athletics in Standoff

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Athletics rocketed 21 hits Saturday night in drubbing Cleveland, 18-6, in the first game of a doubleheader, then fizzled before the six-hit pitching of Jim Perry as the Indians came back with a 5-2 victory.

Perry had a four-hit shutout going into the ninth inning and after shortstop Woody Held dropped a throw at second for an error, the A's scored twice. Perry was relieved first by Bob Allen and then Barry Latman for the final two outs.

L.B. STATE CAPTURES TITLE

WYNN

Man to Man

LITTLER

By JERRY WYNN

LAS VEGAS—In this land of gin and honey, gentleman Gene Littler fits as poorly as a dime in a dollar slot machine.

But there isn't a golfer ever to play in the 10 years of the Tournament of Champions more popular and successful than the 31-year-old star from San Diego. No other player has won the title more than once. He has won three times.

Success and the years have not tampered with the charm of Gene Littler. He still is very much the same good-looking, unassuming all-American boy prototype who began an outstanding pro career more than eight years ago.

Does golf offer as much of a challenge to you now, Gene, as it did when you first turned pro?

"I've kept much the same attitude now as then. I play as well as I can, and try to win some money. That's not to say that I don't want to win. I just don't try to tear the flag off the pin."

Would you consider yourself a wiser golfer now?

"Yes, I know more about the mechanics of the golf swing, and I hope I'm a smarter player. I don't get excited when I don't play as well as I once did. I know now that there will be weeks when things just won't go well. I don't fight it."

What has been your greatest victory?

"The U.S. Open last year. It is the tournament to win as far as prestige goes. It was at Oakland Hills near Detroit, one of the few really tough courses, and I had four of my best rounds there."

To what do you contribute your success in the Tournament of Champions?

It's always been a mystery to me, but I suppose putting is the main reason. The first year I won, I played really well. The other two, I just putted well. I set a putting record each year."

Do you feel that a golfer who abstains from the night life stands a better chance to win?

"Yes, here and everywhere else. It isn't for me. My wife puts me to bed early. But all golfers are individuals. Some can take it, and some can't."

Do you gamble when you are here?

"Virtually none. I may lose a few bucks, but I have no weakness for gambling. I play for a few dollars on the course sometimes, but I don't consider that real gambling either."

Would you like to see the Desert Inn Calcutta restored?

"I don't care one way or the other, but I would just as soon have no gambling in the tournament. People hound you on the course because they have a couple of bucks bet on you. It's no fun to hear people say, 'C'mon, get going, I got a wad of bills on you'."

What do you think of Jackie Burke's refusal to play because of the gambling?

"I wouldn't want to comment on that. I don't know his thinking."

Why has Arnold Palmer become so dominant a player?

"He's the best driver on the tour and a phenomenal putter. That and his aggressiveness."

You have won the National Amateur and National Open. Do you have other goals left in golf?

"Yes, I'd like to win all the major titles, especially the Masters. I played very well in the Masters this year, but putted terribly. (Ed. note: Littler missed four fairways in four rounds; champion Palmer missed eight in one round.)

Why is it that San Diego has produced so many fine golfers?

"It's probably because of the year-round climate and opportunity to play. We have a wonderful junior program and Bill Casper, Phil Rodgers, Mickey Wright and myself all are products of the program."

San Diego and all of Southern California (toss in Las Vegas) can well be proud of gentleman Gene Littler.

Record Broad Jump

Davis Blazes 1:53.4; Poly Spikers Romp

By DOUG IVES

Steel-legged George Davis of Millikan, running on a track he didn't like, blazed to a 1:53.4 half-mile to lead a record romp in the Moore League track and field championships on the sun-baked Poly High cinders Saturday.

Eleven marks were shattered and two were tied in the greatest record-busting in Moore League history, but the one which will stand the test of time should be Davis'.

The stocky Ram clipped 1.6 off the existing standard, which is not only the best in the CIF this year but the finest in the nation.

* * * *

DAVIS, improving with each race, finally got the push he needed to break the barrier. Jordan's Mutt and Jeff duo of small George Janquart and tall Al Ormiston were the boys who pressed Davis to the finish line.

Janquart finished in 1:54.6 and Ormiston in 1:54.8, both under the league record. Their times are the third and fourth best in Southern California this season.

Davis, who admitted he didn't like to run at Poly, led all the way and kicked strongly at the end. He was overcome by exhaustion and collapsed seconds after breaking the tape. He revived quickly.

* * * *

DAVIS NEEDED his tremendous feat to steal the spotlight from John Yancy of Wilson. The muscular Bruin broadjumped a record 24-1 and recorded an amazing series of 23-2¾, 23-8½, 23-10½, 24-1, 24-0 and 23-8½.

Buoyed by this effort, Yancy shocked Millikan's Paul Reynolds by winning the low hurdles in 19.2. Reynolds, however, tied a league record of 14.5 in the highs.

Downey's Bob Goodson set the other varsity record, winning the mile in an excellent 4:22.3.

Potential record-breaking in the 100 and 440 never materialized, at least not in varsity. But Jordan's Tom Brosnahan tied the Bee 100 standard of 10.0 and bettered his own 220 mark set last week by whipping 21.4.

* * * *

POLY'S James Miles grabbed off the lion's share of records in Bees, setting three. He toured the high hurdles in 8.8, the lows in 12.8 and broad jumped 22-7¾. He also ran on Poly's record (1:06.4) 660 relay squad.

Jordan's Fred Bristow (3:15.5) in the 1320, Poly's Ronnie Myers (21-10) in the broad jump and Lakewood's John Williams and Poly's Roy Anderson (5-8) in the high jump set Cee records.

Poly totaled 156½ points and qualified more men in each division than any other school.

Depth Earns 49ers First Track Crown

By JOHN CASH

Long Beach State's track and field forces staged their greatest team effort of the year Saturday to walk off with their first California Collegiate Athletic Assn. cinder title in the championship meet at Los Angeles State College.

It was truly a team effort as the 49er spikers accumulated points in all but one event to garner a total of 64, 13½ greater than second-place Los Angeles State with 50½.

The 49ers crossed the finish line first in four races—mile, high and low hurdles, and relay — but it was depth that gave Long Beach top honors.

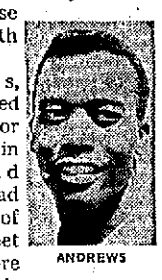

TAYLOR

Fresno, which figured to give the 49ers a fight for the title, finished a disappointing third with 40½, while San Diego ended fourth with 34.

The best race of the day was, as expected, the mile run.

Long Beach's Darryl Taylor, Bob Standen of L.A. State and Fresno's Spike Biggers staged a grueling battle with Taylor winning with a strong stretch kick in 4:16.7, which equalled his best previous clocking.

Dazzling Dee Andrews was a double winner in the hurdles with teammate Gary Patterson a close second in both races.

ANDREWS

Andrews, however, failed to qualify for the finals in the broad jump. He had two leaps of over 24 feet but both were declared fouls.

The only meet record was established by Fresno's Don Schaefer in the pole vault.

Schaefer catapulted 14-6 to break the 14-4½ mark set by Fred Barnes of Fresno in 1953.

Long Beach's mile relay team breezed past the field to win in 3:19.5.

* * * *

DAVE SHIRLEY led off with a 50.4 quarter to give the 49ers a substantial margin, Doug Hall ran 50.6, Patterson 50.4 and Jim Richardson a sizzling 48.5 to hold off an LASC threat in the final yards.

LBSC, Diablos Split

Bob Lancaster pitched a masterful seven-hitter as Long Beach State College ripped Los Angeles State, 8-4, in the opener but the Diablos came back to nab the second game, 7-2, in a CCAA doubleheader Saturday on LASC's diamond.

The 49ers exploded for five runs in the sixth inning of the opener to clinch the three-game series. Long Beach now stands 8-7 in conference standings and 15-15-1 for the year.

L. A., which ranked fifth in the national college poll this week, remains second in the league with a 12-6 mark and 29-12 on the season.

Coach Dick Clegg's third-place club, winners of eight of their last 11 league outings, host Fresno State in a crucial three-game series this weekend. The Bulldogs have lost but one conference game this year.

It Follows SCript for 30th Time

Bruce Munn, Brian Polkinghorne and Kevin Hogan scored double victories Saturday and led Southern California to its 30th consecutive dual track meet win over crosstown rival UCLA, 86-45, in the Coliseum.

Munn won both sprints, Polkinghorne took the high and low hurdles and Hogan tied for first in the quarter and half-mile runs.

Munn breezed to a first place in the 100 in 9.7 and returned to take the 220 in 21.2 around a curve. Polkinghorne edged teammate Rex Cawley in the high hurdles in 14.3 and won the 220-yard lows in an easy 24 seconds flat.

Hogan hit the finish line at the exact instant teammate Ted Doll flashed across in the timed in 47.9. Then, running the 880 for the first time, Hogan tied USC's Warren Farlow in 1:50.8.

Hawks Rip Vista, 3-0

By RAY CUNNINGHAM

VISTA—With Jack Randall striking out 17 batters, the Long Beach Nitehawks blanked Vista 3-0 in their Western Softball Congress opener Saturday night.

Randall allowed only three hits and walked none. Although the Hawks committed four errors, he was never in serious trouble.

Roger Hull doubled home Clint Herron, who had singled, with Long Beach's first run in the fifth. The Hawks finished their scoring in the eighth when Larry Silvas walked and Cleo Goyette pounded a long homer down the left-field line.

Long Beach plays San Pedro at Daniels Field in San Pedro tonight at 8:15 in what should be one of the season's better games.

McCalla Runs 8:52.7

STANFORD (AP) — Loose-striding Harry McCalla, a Stanford sophomore, ran the third fastest two-mile in the nation this year, an 8:52.7 clocking in a dual meet Saturday won by Stanford over California, 88⅓-42⅔.

The Indians set three school records while winning 13 of the 15 individual events.

Stanford had two double winners, Steve Cortright taking both hurdles (14.7, 24.3) and Phil Lamoreaux taking the 100 and 220-yard dashes (9.9, 21.7).

Belinsky Pitches No-Hitter, 2-0

the field and the crowd rose to its feet for an ovation which shook the concrete castle.

In the fourth, with one out, the Seraphs' southpaw walked Gentile and Jackie Brandt and then watched third baseman Felix Torres bobble Triandos' cinch double play ball to load the bases.

Again Bo rose to the occasion, striking out $115,000 bonus baby Dave Nicholson and forcing Hansen to fly to Albie Pearson in center. That was the closest Baltimore came to a run. The closest it came to a hit occurred in the sixth when Brandt drove Pearson back to the warning track in left centerfield to haul in his 390 foot fly.

* * * *

THE NINTH inning was all Belinsky. As the crowd shook the concrete castle with each pitch, Bo brilliantly struck out Brandt, forced Triandos to roll to shortstop Joe Koppe and got Nicholson on a foul pop to Torres. It took 10 pitches.

"The way he was throwing at the end he might have gone a couple more innings," said catcher Bobby Rodgers, credited by manager Bill Rigney with a "superlative" job.

"Considering he was behind so many hitters at the start, it was a tough way to throw a no-hitter," said Rodgers. "He had great stuff all the way. I never hesitated calling on either his fast ball or screwball when he fell behind."

Surprisingly, the man who had just thrown the American League's first no-hitter since Hoyt Wilhelm, who watched this one, did it against the Yankees on September 20 of 1958, was, for a moment, at a loss for words.

"I never dreamed I would throw a no-hitter," said Bo as Angel owners Gene Autry, Joseph Thomas and Leonard Firestone took turns pumping the handsome 25-year-old's hand. "I have trouble pitching shutouts. I've just got to wonder what's going to happen next."

It's been a spectacular year for Belinsky, a $25,000 draftee this winter from the Baltimore organization. Bo once went to spring training with the Orioles. That was in 1959 and he didn't get much of a chance to show his wares. The only thing manager Paul Richards said to him was: "Maybe I'll see you again sometime."

When Bo reported to Palm Springs there was a fiery salary dispute with general manager Fred Haney. Bo signed for $6,000 which becomes $7,000 on May 10. Will he now ask for a raise?

"I hate to push fate. If I ask for a raise I'm liable to start pitching poorly. If Mr. Haney asks me nicely I'll accept one."

While on the mound, Bo did not seem disturbed by the mounting pressure. "I started thinking about it in the sixth inning, but I didn't get cautious. In fact I started throwing harder. I wanted to get to the ninth inning as fast as I could because I knew that's what the fans wanted. They were enjoying it as much as I was. This thing's good for me and the team. It couldn't have happened to a nicer team (Baltimore)."

Losing pitcher Steve Barber, a former teammate of Bo's, was among those congratulating the Angel hero. He yielded single runs in the first and second after which the Angels collected only four hits.

Rigney, after using 53 pitchers in 14 games, commented: "It must be the first time in a close game that I haven't had anyone warming up. He pitched a wonderful game."

He certainly did!

Pin Placements No. 1 Complaint

LAS VEGAS—The ego of professional golfers is such that they never admit to shooting poor golf. Something also contributes to a bad round.

There is always the caddy and the weather to blame it on, the rough perhaps was too tall, the gallery was unruly and noisy, etc.

But nine out of 10 times, the pros will blame a poor round on the pin placement. That is their No. 1 gripe.

One of the most important parts of tournament golf is placing the pins. Each round finds the cup in a new location on the green. The pin sets separate the men from the boys and there is no doubt but what the result of every tournament is affected by the placements.

In fact, a pin placement decided the 1959 Tournament of Champions here at the Desert Inn Country Club. That was the year burly Mike Souchak won it by two strokes over Art Wall.

ART WALL
Putted Well, but . . .

On the final day, Wall, one of the exceptionally good putters on the tour along with Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, Gene Littler and Jerry Barber, was the only one in position to take a run at Souchak.

As they came to the 14th hole, Wall was only one stroke behind Mike, but at that point he four-putted to knock himself out.

Howard Capps, golf director at the Desert Inn and former PGA tournament chief, recalls that he had a "real good" pin set at the top of a slope on the slick 14th green. "Wall was too aggressive on the first putt, lipped the cup and ran past," Capps recalls. "Then he was too desperate on the second and third putts. In fact, I thought he made four very good putts . . . but only one dropped.

"That is one of the classic examples where a pin set has decided a major tournament."

CAPPS PREFERS TO MAKE HIS own pin placements for the Tournament of Champions. In fact, it is only one of three events on the tour which handles its own pin sets. The other two are the Masters and U.S. Open. Joe Black of the PGA makes the placements in all other tourneys.

Capps explains that the reason for wanting to set his own pins is the fact that "for 51 weeks of the year, the Desert Inn is a resort course. Thus, to bring it up to championship conditions we let the rough grow, stretch it out to its fullest length by setting back the tees . . . and most important, using corner pin sets.

"Each round we put the pin in a different corner of the green, but never closer to the edge of the green than 14 fet. On the PGA, the cups can be placed as close as 12 feet of th edge."

Black reveals that the most important thing about setting the pins is to make sure they are not unfair.

"After all, we are trying to sell good golf. We put them in tough locations, yes, but we try to make sure that the players don't have to worry about subtle or 'dirty' breaks. We attempt to place the cups on a surface where there isn't a quick or tricky break."

JOE ALSO POINTS OUT THAT the courses are set up so the best players have the best chances. He puts the pins where players have to execute their finest shots in order to get into the tough pin placements. He also strives to keep a course near the same toughness each day through the pin sets.

Capps and Black concur on how to map out their pin placements. They set six easy placements with gentle breaks; six medium with fairly flat putting surface, and six "interesting" greens that range from hard to difficult with all pin placements in tough locations.

During practice rounds and pro-amateur events, pins are usually placed in the center of the greens. Corner pin sets are saved for the real championship play. That's why you see much lower scoring on the whole in pro-amateur events. Most courses also will use center pin sets for daily play.

If the average amateur golfers played the corner pin sets the professionals do day in and day out, their handicaps would soar.

WHY ARE CORNER PIN SETS more difficult? Because it cuts down the margin of error. On a center pin set, you can miss a shot at least two ways and still be on the green. On a corner pin set, you can miss a shot only one way and still manage to reach the putting surface.

Weather conditions, of course, are taken into consideration when the pin placements are made. For instance, wind always plays a big role at the Tournament of Champions here.

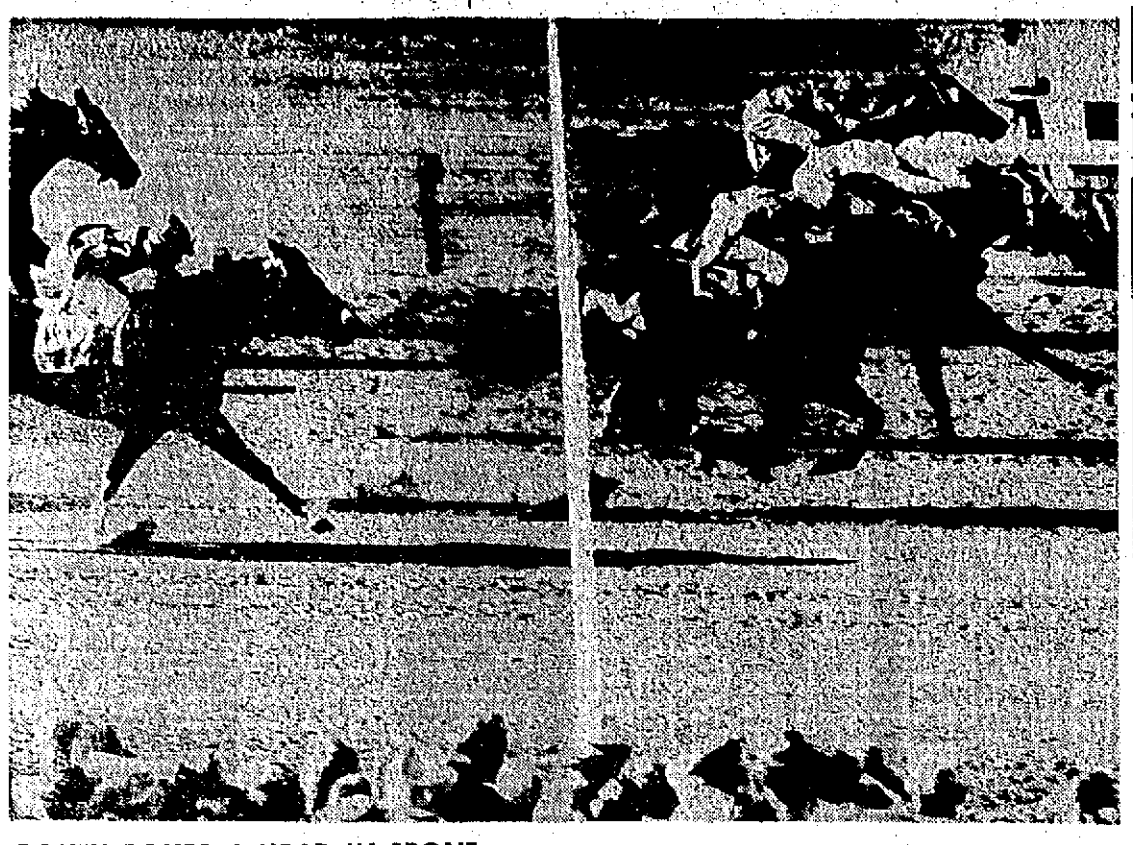

And if there is a threat of rain, pins are placed in high spots so the cups will not be flooded in the event of showers.

Television also influences pin sets today. Placements are made on certain holes where cameras are stationed so that the best picture can be obtained.

The players themselves rarely go out and look at the pin sets, but most of them send their caddies over the course in the morning to check the placements and diagram the greens.

It's important to know just where the cups are located!

Alamitos Championship to Pokey

POKEY POKES A HEAD IN FRONT
Pokey Bar (5) gets head in front of Alamitos Bar (6) at wire to win Los Alamitos Quarter Horse Championship Saturday. On rail, finishing a nose behind Alamitos Bar, is No Butt.

Ties Own Record With Jump at Wire

By MAC McGUIRE

Hugh Huntley's great Pokey Bar snatched away the $25,000 Los Alamitos Championship from Western Stables' Alamitos Bar right at the wire and tied his own world record for 440 yards Saturday before 10,097 fans at Los Alamitos Race Course.

For most of the race it appeared that erratic and third choice Alamitos Bar had the winner's $13,750 share in his saddle bags, but the huge strides of the strapping Pokey Bar steadily closed the gap and he got up in the last jump to win by a nose.

* * * *

FOR HIS 21.6 second victory, Pokey Bar paid $3.20, $2.40 and $2.40. Alamitos Bar paid $3.00 and $2.80 and Guy Purinton's No Butt paid $4.40 to show. Second-favored Fly Straw was fourth.

The gallant victory of Pokey Bar hiked his already record-earnings to $146,547.

Alamitos Bar broke out flying on top and for most of the race it appeared that he was going to end his long career as bridesmaid to Pokey Bar.

Even No Butt and Fly Straw had the edge on Pokey Bar at the beginning and No Butt made a fighting drive from the rail at Alamitos Bar, but the dainty mare just could not hold on.

After the race, jockey Kenneth Chapman said he and Pokey Bar were at least a length behind Alamitos Bar at the halfway mark. "I didn't even see No Butt, I was watching Alamitos Bar."

But once Pokey Bar settled into his easy, ground-eating stride, he quickly caught Straw Fly, then passed the flying No Butt. Alamitos Bar, however, seemed to have too much of a lead. But Pokey Bar kept gaining and finally jumped up and got him at the last instant.

Chapman said the inappropriately named Pokey ran his usual pace and could not fault his start.

"Alamitos Bar broke more alertly than usual and got a good jump on us. He had at least a length lead on us about halfway down the track."

* * * *

JUST LAST week, Alamitos Bar fell on his nose two jumps out of the gate to give Fly Straw the edge she needed to cop the Chicago V. Stakes.

Two weeks ago, Pokey Bar set the present 440-yard record, breaking the 21.7 mark set in 1960 by Vandy's Flash.

Pap, who won this event last year, was a late scratch when his ankle filled following a Friday work.

The final two days of racing will be held Monday, when the fabulous Derussa seeks her fifth straight victory at this meeting in the Newport - Balboa Purse, and Tuesday, when Tiny Charger and Jete Deck fight it out for the $10,000 juvenile championship for 2-year-olds.

NAME THE Q-H WINNER SET FOR TUESDAY

Tuesday is the Day of Decision.

Judges will announce the winning entry in Tuesday's papers in the "Name the Quarter Horse" contest.

So many names were suggested that judges have been working overtime at envelope opening and name consideration.

DERBY--

ing in the Preakness and the Belmont "if he feels like it," Pope said.

"It's up to the horse—and the trainer, of course."

Pope said he expected to win the Derby "but not so convincingly. I never thought he would set a record."

He described Decidedly as a "generous horse—ask him and he gives it to you."

Decidedly's daddy, Determine, won the 1954 Derby but did not race in either the Preakness or Belmont.

The $150,000-added Preakness will be run in two weeks at Pimlico and the Belmont, a $125,000 added race like the Derby, will be run June 9 at Belmont in New York.

Merry Ruler Winner of Carter 'Cap

NEW YORK (UPI)—Merry Ruler, under a brilliant ride by Johnny Sellers, overtook the front-running Hitting Away in the stretch Saturday and won the $59,300 Carter Handicap before 46,194 fans at Aqueduct.

It was the second straight stretch-running triumph for Merry Ruler, who paid $15.20, $6.70 and $4.60 and was timed in 1:22 flat to equal the track record held by Rare Rice.

SAN BRUNO (AP) — Royal Grounded stayed unbeaten and won his first stakes race by running away from an outclassed field in Tanforan's fentured $12,150 San Bruno Stakes.

It was the second win in as many outings for the 2-year-old brown colt. Royal Grounded paid $3.40, $3.00 and $2.80 for his four and one-quarter length victory in the five-furlong dash. The time was 1:00 2/5.

The Tanforan daily double, from Inver Hawk ($82.40) to Jean Goyo ($59.40) paid $2,963, a record for the track. Thirty $2 tickets were sold on the combination. The daily double a week ago paid $2,253.20.

BOSTON (AP) — The largest $2 payoff in the history of North American racing occurred at Suffolk Downs when a lone, unidentified bettor tabbed the twin double for a $56,677.40 return. The ticket is still uncashed.

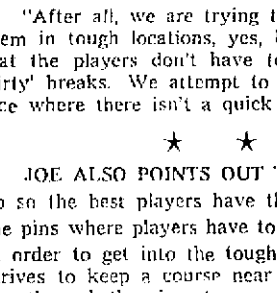

Tork Honored

Dave Tork, Camp Pendleton Marine who on April 28 bettered the pole vault record by clearing 16 feet, 2 inches, has been voted Southern California "athlete of the month" for April by the Helms Athletic Foundation.

A TRULY NOBLE FOOTBALL EXPERIMENT

Writers Coach Trojans for a Day

By JEROME HALL

One of the truly noble football experiments will be performed at the USC Varsity-Alumni game to be played in the Coliseum two weeks from today.

Sports writers are going to take over all the coaching duties for both teams.

Maybe it won't be the best coached game ever seen, but it's sure to be the MOST coached.

The Trojan varsity, currently in the middle of its four-week spring training session, will oppose a USC alumni team that includes a couple of dozen professional players plus most of last year's senior players.

It's a formidable team, better than the one that last year beat the varsity 33-6.

This year the USC coaching staff will take seats in the grandstand and the typewriter authorities will take over direction on the field. John McKay and his assistants won't even have so much as the power of a suggestion in this game.

"That proves we've got guts," says McKay, who is in his third year as Trojan head coach. Since he has two years remaining on his current contract, he figures the writers can't hurt him too much.

Coaches of the varsity squad will be Paul Zimmeran, Jack Disney, Mel Durslag, Jerome Hall, Tom Kelley and Al Wolf.

The coaching crew for the alumni team will be George T. Davis, Bud Furillo, Tom Harmon, Hank Hollingworth, Jim Murray and Sid Ziff.

Since the alumni team won by four touchdowns last year, the varsity has been given the stronger coaching staff, obviously.

Palmer Tops by 1; Vegas Finale Today

tournament," Palmer commented, "because I've played so poorly here in the past."

His best finish in six previous attempts was a tie for fifth place.

If anyone has anything to do about Palmer not winning today, it should be Casper.

Still wearing a sweater to heat a sore back, the San Diego star was even with Palmer through 17 holes Saturday, but bogied the 18th by spraying shots into the rough twice. It was his only bugey.

* * * *

CASPER had ripped off four straight birdies from the 13th through 16th holes on putts of 4, 15, 5 and 18 feet—a charge more accustomed to the likes of his playing partner.

Did playing with Palmer affect you in any way, Casper was asked.

"No, I play my own game," he shot back. "It makes no difference who I play with, as long as I'm playing well."

Stewart, who is here for the first time since 1954, has the largest rooting section of any player. Ninety members of his Oak Cliff Club in Dallas flew up in private aircraft to cheer for him. He had five birdies Saturday, including a 30-footer for the second hole.

Sanders played even with par through 12 holes, but then spurted with birdies on the next three holes to fashion his 69.

* * * *

THE DAY'S best rounds of 68 were posted by Jay Hebert and Tommy Jacobs. For the second straight day, three-time champion Gene Littler had five birdies but could only score 71.

Palmer is a 4-5 favorite to win today, with Casper at 2-1, Stewart 3-1 and Sanders 5-1. At any odds, the best bet is Palmer.

Tork Wins Vault, But Only at 15-8

Pole vaulter Dave Tork Saturday failed in his attempt to clear the 16-foot mark for the third time during a triangular track and field meet at Camp Pendleton Marine Base.

Tork, a lieutenant stationed here, cleared 15 feet, 8 inches but missed all tries at 16-1.

Last week Tork vaulted higher than any man in history when he soared over 16 feet, 2 inches at the Mt. San Antonio Relays. He cleared 16-¾ Friday night in a meet at Sunnyvale.

Long Beach City College's baseball team moved back into a tie for first place Saturday without lifting a bat.

ANOTHER PROMOTER QUITS

Is Boxing Dead in Long Beach?

By FRANK HARVEY

Boxing, which has been on-again, off-again in Long Beach during the last four years, is off-again.

Major Don Taylor, the third Long Beach promoter in as many years, has tossed in the sponge and turned in his license to the State Athletic Commission.

Taylor said Saturday that while he felt certain that boxing could be promoted successfully here, or in Orange County, there are too many headaches involved for him to continue at this time.

The fact that the three promoters failed here is understandable to boxing men, who point out that none of the three had prior professional boxing experience, that they tried to promote independently, and that none of them were financially able to promote a really major fight.

However, we feel that all three did stage attractive fights despite the fact that none of them were able to procure "name" fighters with the exception of Leon Black, who brought in Joey Giambra and Gaspar Ortega.

With the withdrawal of Taylor from the local boxing scene, a group of former Long Beach and Wilmington promoters are considering organizing to promote fights either in Long Beach, or one of the nearby areas.

SUGAR RAMOS, undisputed No. 1 featherweight contender, is an early 3-1 favorite over Danny Valdez for their Olympic Auditorium fight Friday night.

The bout is carded as a 12-rounder, with the winner ticketed for a crack at Davey Moore's featherweight crown.

Last year Moore disposed of Valdez in less than a round in a title bout at the Olympic.

Monday night, promoter Jimmy Lennon stages an attractive card at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium.

Welterweights Al Grant and Tony Norriega are carded for the top half of the double eight-round main event, with featherweights Luis Perez and Frankie Castanada holding down the lower portion. A six, and two four-round bouts also are on tap.

Amateur boxing is scheduled to start at the Pasadena Arena Wednesday night when Canto Robledo stages his first simon-pure show.

PCL UMPIRE LOSES GEAR, ISSUES SOS

PORTLAND (AP)—Veteran Pacific Coast League baseball umpire Pat Orr is hoping somebody in Portland will return his baseball gear, along with two suits and a suitcase.

He lost the articles just before leaving Portland for San Diego Thursday night. They apparently fell out of the trunk of a car.

Orr sent word he would be in San Diego for 10 days. He added:

"And please send the gear C.O.D. I need it for my work."

He values the equipment

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Earl Buchholz Jr. defeated Pancho Segura 6-4, 6-3 and 6-4 Saturday night in the finals of the 13th annual World's Professional Tennis Championships.

Buchholz, 21, of St. Louis, scored a service break in each set as he defeated Segura in a little more than an hour.

116 RIDERS ON HAND

'Cycle Obstacle Race at Ascot

National TT champion Dick Dorresteyn of San Pablo and Dick Hammer of Lakewood will go to the post as co-favorites in tonight's motorcycle steeplechase race at Ascot Park, though Dorresteyn has had the best of it so far this year.

It'll be the first under-the-arc race of the year over the 10-foot obstacle jump and around the infield lakes. A field of 116 rides from up and down the West Coast will be on hand.

Dorresteyn has won three of four main events this year, including the big 100-lap Jimmie Phillips last time out. Hammer, however, won seven of his eight main events last year at night.

Artesia's Jack Simmons, the only other rider to beat Dorresteyn this year, also will be on hand along with Clark White, Eddie Kretz, Skip Van Leeuwen and Jack O'Brien.

Races in novice, amateur and expert classes will be held. First race goes at 8:30 p.m., qualifying at 7.

L.B. State Net Team Fourth

Long Beach State's tennis team whipped San Fernando State 5-2 to finish fourth in the conference tournament at Los Angeles State Saturday with a 6-6 record.

4TH FOR DRYSDALE--

singles, a double, a triple and a home run for 11 total bases. He has driven in seven runs, won the 16-inning game against the Cubs, tied Friday's game and contributed generously to Saturday's victory.

Drysdale, winning his fourth game with a neat five-hitter, again helped himself with two hits that maintained his average at .500. He doubled home two runs as the Dodgers sent 10 men to the plate in a five-run second inning and singled infield in the eighth.

Drysdale retired 18 batters in a row between a single by pitcher Bob Veale in the third and a double by Dick Groat in the ninth. Groat's hit was misjudged by left fielder Tommy Davis and led to the Pirate run. Groat scored on Dick Stuart's single.

* * * *

DAVIS HAD done his share to help Drysdale by collecting four of the Dodgers' 15 hits, including his sixth home run. It was his first in the last 11 games.

The Dodgers, who entered with a team average of .208 against the Bucs, last amassed 15 hits in a nine-inning game on April 16. A revised lineup, featuring Camilli and the promotion of Willie Davis to the No. 3 position, brought the Dodgers out of their slump.

Willie chipped in with three hits and stole his fifth base. Wally Moon, batting .234 for the year, but only .161 in the last 10 games, was benched in favor of Ron Fairly. Fairly had only one opportunity to hit and was called out on strikes. However, he walked three times and also sacrificed.

* * * *

THE DODGERS knocked out loser Tom Sturdivant (1-2) in the second inning and continued their attack against Veale and Wilmer Mizell. Hits by Snider and T. Davis and an intentional walk to Fairly preceded Camilli's first hit, good for two runs.

Drysdale followed with a two-run double to KO Sturdivant and Jim Gilliam singled home another run against Veale.

Sandy Koufax (4-2) is the Dodger starter in this afternoon's deciding game of the series. He will oppose Vern Law, making his first start since last July 2. Law, a 20-game winner in 1960, had a sore arm and a 3-4 record last year.

State's Outstanding Sportsmen Honored

REDDING — Donald Welch, 15-year-old sophomore at Weed High School, and Clarence E. Wilson, 61, of Castro Valley, who has devoted a quarter of a century to conservation of California's fish and wildlife, were honored here Friday night by the outdoor writers of California and the Shasta-Cascade Wonderland Assn. of Northern California.

This was the eighth annual award banquet of the SCWA. It was the fifth time that a youngster had been picked to receive honors with a man, and, once again, it was a privilege to do honor to a boy who already has done so much for the outdoors. But that's the way many work in this country.

Donald is a First Class Scout, the son of Louie and Jean Welch, and has been a top-notch camper for three years. His prime hobby is the care and study of California's song birds. He holds BSA merit badges in swimming, life-saving, forestry and marksmanship, plays football, basketball and is a member of the Weed High School track team.

PRINCIPAL ROBERT W. PURCELL, of Weed High, said in submitting the winner's name:

"In the process of selection of a deserving individual for any award of recognition, it is proper that the possible candidate truly merits the honor of such recognition, if the award is to accomplish its intended purpose.

"A sincere active interest and participation in the outdoors, sporting activities and conservation is a personal trait that needs to be cultivated and promoted. Certainly, your junior sportsmans' award tends to foster that end, for which your organization is to be commended."

Other recipients of the SCWA junior awards have been Bobby Statham, Redding, 1958; Charles Causley, McCloud, 1959; Dan Murdock, Dunsmuir, 1960, and Mike Auman, Weed, 1961.

DONALD WELCH
Junior Sportsman

There is much more to the junior award than just being sports-minded. Each of the boys selected has been carefully screened, and each recipient has had some special talent for the outdoors, all of which marks him as a true sportsman of the future.

IN THE CASE OF WILSON, it was a screening by the outdoor writers of California, all of whom are well qualified to pick out men who are outstanding for their work in the forests, on the lakes and streams and in conservation work.

Wilson has been particularly successful in causing the opening of reservoirs to sportfishing that otherwise might have remained closed forever. He joined other sportsmen in promoting the passage of legislation outlawing commercial fishing in inland areas of California.

He is secretary of the Hayward Sportsman's Club, a delegate from that group to the Associated Sportsmen of California, Inc., a member of the executive committee on public reservoirs, secretary of the advisory committee on public fishing and has the same position on the Pardee Reservoir fishing.

In connection with Pardee, he did much to cause the opening of that lake to the public in 1959.

Other recipients of the award have been Henry Clineschmidt, Redding, 1955; Dr. Paul R. Needham, Berkeley, 1956; Don Hunter, San Francisco, 1957; Albert B. McKee, Pasadena, 1958; Ray Welch, Fort Bragg, 1959; Orien W. Todd Jr., San Diego, 1960, and Father John McGoldrick, Willows, 1961.

THE SCWA ALWAYS MAKES the state's outdoor writers feel at home in this beautiful country, even though the stay is short. We arrive on Friday afternoon, attend an official dinner, sleep for three or four hours and then attempt a bit of fishing on Saturday. We fly to our respective homes on Sunday.

This year I'm stretching the time as far as is possible. Instead of fishing on Lake Shasta, one of the finest in the state, I'm touring the new Trinity Lake, formed back of Trinity Dam and destined to become as large as Shasta. There's room for argument there, but it's going to be a beautiful lake just the same.

We'll have an outdoor steak barbecue at Kamloops Kamp for the Saturday-evening blueplate special and then take a show-me trip with the U. S. Forest Service this morning.

I've had these show-me trips before. Usually a U. S. Forestry expert spins you through some of the most interesting country in the area and leaves you breathless and exhausted when you arrive at the airport to catch your plane.

Fast Construction Methods On Douglas Plant

Every Floor Is Poured at Ground Level

Hydraulic Jacks Lift Floor Sections Into Place

READY FOR WALLS

Lift-slab concrete construction methods were used for the floors of the new engineering and product development building at the Douglas Aircraft Co., plant here. The pre-poured pillars support 24 roof and floor sections 100 by 140 feet each. Each slab weighed 1,250,000 pounds and required 10 hours to jack each of the 10-inch concrete and steel slabs into position. In the background at the left is the new nine-story headquarters building also under construction in the $7,000,000 expansion program.—(Staff Photos by Sundquist.)

Rising Building Costs Termed Threat to Economy of Nation

WASHINGTON — Leonard L. Frank, president of the National Association of Home Builders, says the home building industry is seriously concerned with the problem of rising costs, which it is "seeking constantly to hold down."

As an instance of rising costs, Frank referred to the recent contract of Local 3 of the Electricians' Union in New York City which set a 25-hour work-week with a 56-cent hourly wage increase and said it has "caused particular alarm." He continued:

"A spiral of exorbitant wage increases in all the building trades might be set off. Construction costs could soar."

* * * *

"THE HOME building industry and the entire economy — building trades labor along with them—will suffer acutely if the continual demands for higher wages without corresponding productivity, do not cease."

The Long Island builder said that "the sum and substance of most of the difficulties encountered by builders rests in costs." He said all costs continue to grow—the cost of labor, of materials, of land and its development, of overhead, of taxes and the cost of money.

"The NAHB," he said, "has been only too keenly aware of this price spiral affecting its builder members. It is constantly seeking to hold down costs.

"It conducts a great deal of research at its laboratory in Rockville, Md., near Washington, D. C., where new building materials and methods of construction are developed and tested. Manufacturers of materials and equipment cooperate with us closely in these enterprises."

* * * *

"THE GOAL, of course, is to produce homes with better value for the owner and better value for the underlying mortgage," he said.

"We try continually to improve the quality of design and construction, create more livability, lessen the cost of maintenance and provide greater resale value."

Frank pointed out that the home building industry has produced more than 20 million dwelling units in the last 15 years and in doing so has added close to 150 billion dollars to the national wealth.

Highway Projects Called 'Too Big'

Renewed effort is being undertaken to reduce the basic size of California state highway construction projects to enable a larger number of construction firms to bid on the jobs and thereby reduce the most as a result of greater competition, according to H. E. Witt, president of the Engineering and Grading Contractors Association.

Smaller contracts, he said, would generally increase the speed of job completion schedules and would also spread the purchase of job materials and supplies among a larger number of vendors, thereby benefiting a greater number of California businessmen.

THIS ORGANIZATION, which is made up of grading, paving, excavating and bridge-building contractors throughout California, launched the program to seek reductions of the size of state highway contracts last year. Although 94 per cent of the unit state contracts let to bid are under $2½ million, the remaining six per cent still represents a much greater dollar volume.

Contracts in multi-million dollar size reduce the number of potential bidders since only a few firms are large enough to handle such contracts. It is the EGCA contention that if these large contracts are broken down into smaller segments, a larger number of bidders will participate, with an increased probability that lower bids will be received by the state and provide the public with more highway per dollar, and with less time for job completion schedules.

Life Agents Selected on Honor Roll

Eight Long Beach life insurance representatives and three more in the area are listed in the 1962 roster of the Million Dollar Round Table of the National Association of Life Underwriters. Every member of the 1962 Round Table must have sold at least a million dollars of life insurance in 1961 or else have met the even stricter requirements for Life membership by his sales in prior years. Fewer than 1 per cent of the word's life insurance agents are Round Table members.

The Long Beach representatives are C. C. Bateman of American National Insurance Co.; Richard C. Johnson of Equitable Life of Iowa; Sultan Z. Kuatza and Raleigh A. Parker of New York Life; Claude H. Murrell of Mutual of New York; Heller Stahl of American Mutual; Lawrence A. Whitesides, CLU, of Connecticut General Life, and John T. Wolf of National Life of Vermont.

The other area qualifiers are John W. Allen of Equitable Life of Iowa, Rossmoor; Benjamin V. Bellmore of American Mutual, Westminster, and Charles S. Nelson of United Services Life, Palos Verdes Estates.

NOTES OF BUSINESS

Market Explosion Seen in Southland

An executive of the world's largest tire company predicts the Southern California area will far outstrip the national average in the years ahead as a growing market for replacement tires and service.

By 1975, according to Vice President O. E. Miles of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., the population of the Long Beach-Los Angeles metropolitan area will grow some 45 per cent, compared to a 27 per cent increase in the United States.

Speaking before the Southern California Tire Dealers and Retreaders Association, Miles said the Long Beach-Los Angeles area will have an increase of more than 4.5 million people and a metropolitan market of 10 million persons in the next 13 years. This is comparable, he said, to adding the city populations of Detroit, Baltimore, Washington, Boston and San Francisco to the present market.

Citing these figures to show that Southern California is the fastest growing area in the country, Miles said "it represents a market 'explosion' in every sense of the word." He spoke at the convention in Los Angeles.

Armour Heads Low-Cost Housing Planning Group

Heading the Low Price Housing Study Committee of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties will be Larry Armour, Anaheim home builder, according to Merrill Butler Jr., HBA president.

The HBA will build a demonstration low price housing development this year. These homes will sell in the $10,000 price range with payments of approximately $75 a month, including principle, interest and insurance. From 20 to 40 single family homes will be built, with a dozen or more HBA builder members participating.

"Our objective is to demonstrate that individual home Builders can produce a low price home for the family earning $5,000 or less a year in this high-priced home market," said Armour.

* * * *

"IF THE LOCAL governing bodies in control of zoning, codes and other regulatory devices will work with us, this necessary job of low-price housing can be done. Their help is needed to permit our home builders to produce homes without the restrictive regulations which are unnecessary in most cases and which in effect increase the cost of the home. Particularly do the zoning regulating lot sizes need to be re-evaluated."

Armour, secretary of the HBA, and a member of its board of directors, is co-owner of Park Village Homes. The firm has built more than 1,000 homes since it was launched in 1954 in Orange County, mainly in Anaheim, Fullerton, and Buena Park, under the Park Village name.

Last Golden West Home Unit Already Under Construction

Construction is getting underway on the eighth and last unit at Golden West Estates in Huntington Beach, announced Jim McCarthy, vice-president of the McCarthy Co., co-builders with the Sant Construction Co.

"As we have before, we'd like to invite homebuyers to inspect every step of the construction process. We encourage everyone to talk to our skilled workmen, ask questions, and check things for themselves," McCarthy said.

"Since we've run out of land, the new eighth unit must be our last at Golden West. To buy more land, we'd have to pay some $5,000 an acre more than we paid years ago for our present land. That's about $1,500 more per lot—a cost which would make it impossible to offer homes like these at current low prices."

* * * *

GOLDEN WEST homes are offered in a choice of 22 different exteriors, including Colonial, Spanish, Provincial, Monterey Ranch, Contemporary and Hawaiian. Among the plans is a double-patio design, with an enclosed entrance-way court and a second patio designed for fresh-air meals and secluded pool-side relaxation.

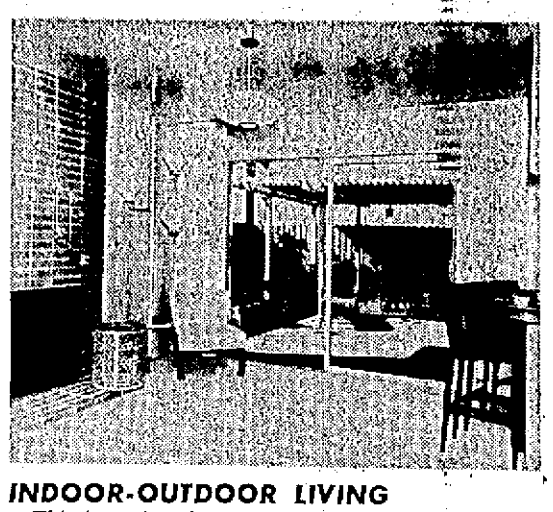

Priced from $17,800, Golden West homes are offered with new 35-year, 5½% FHA terms, as well as conventional terms and VA no-down-payment terms. FHA down payments are from $800, while conventional down payments are from $695. A lay-away plan permits buyers to reserve their home with a $100 deposit while they build up to their down payment.

* * * *

SUCCESS STORY

GW GW GW

THE GOLDEN WEST SAGA is a story of overwhelming public response. To date, SEVEN FULL UNITS have virtually sold out...EIGHTH AND LAST UNIT NOW SELLING! Why such outstanding popularity? Not because these homes are cheaply priced...they aren't. Not because they're expensively priced...they certainly aren't. Why, then? Because Golden West offers you, the buyer, more solid value for your money than any other home at any other price.

BONANZA! Golden West offers you 1963 value at yesterday's low prices! Wide choice of custom-varied exteriors...beautiful double-patio models...wood-paneled living rooms...large garages with rear "boat doors." Sales up to 25 homes in one weekend give proof of superior value!

YOUR FINAL OPPORTUNITY...THE "LAST FRONTIER" AT GOLDEN WEST! You must buy now...while the new eighth unit lasts. When it's gone, our supply of land will be exhausted. Buying the same land today would cost us $5,000 more per acre...about $1,500 more per lot! Thus we can offer no more of these value-packed homes at current low prices. This is your last opportunity to get your land at yesterday's low costs...to gain a huge potential resale profit...and to enjoy life at beautiful Golden West Estates!

Dividends Available

Twenty-three million dollars is still available to pay dividends to some 210,000 Korea veterans who hold "RS" term insurance policies, according to Mort Webster, manager of VA's Southern California Regional Office.

This special dividend, Webster pointed out, is available only to those veterans who still hold policies with the prefix "RS" in front of their policy number. No other government life insurance policyholders are eligible.

THE "RS" policyholder cannot be paid this dividend unless he takes one of the following two actions:

1. Exchange his "RS" term insurance policy for a term policy that (a) will generally cost him only one-third of what he is now paying; and (b) the new policy cannot be renewed as term insurance after age 50—but it can be converted to a low cost permanent plan insurance policy at any time before the insured reaches age 50.

2. Convert his policy to a low cost permanent plan insurance policy now.

If the "RS" policyholder takes either of the above actions before Sept. 14, 1963, he will receive his special dividend. These dividends average about $100, depending upon the age of the policyholder and the length of time he has held his policy.

MONEY MATTERS

Loans and investments in the United States throughout 1961 continued their general upward trend of the past few years, providing needed lubricant for the wheels of business. Barbecue for Oil Pioneers

More than 750 pioneer oil men are expected to attend the annual spring barbecue of the Petroleum Production Pioneers to be held May 12, at the Kern County Golf Course picnic ground, Bakersfield.

Social period and refreshments are scheduled to start at 3:30 p.m. with a barbecued steak dinner at 5:00 p.m.

Arrangements have been made for bus transportation from Long Beach, Los Angeles and Ventura. The Long Beach bus is scheduled to depart from the Petroleum Club, 3636 Linden Ave., at 11:30 a.m.

Tourists Tipped on Mexican Tips

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Tourists traveling from the United States to Mexico are advised that a 15 per cent tip is expected in most restaurants and hotels.

Bellboys in Acapulco, Mexico City, Monterrey and other popular resort areas expect higher tips than elsewhere. A traveler who tips 50 cents for a service rendered in a hotel in the United States should tip about 35 cents for the same service in Mexico.

40 YEARS OF BUILDING — GEORGE M. HOLSTEIN & SONS — MEDALLION HOME — LIVE BETTER ELECTRICALLY

A DEVELOPMENT OF GEORGE M. HOLSTEIN & SONS

Wide Selection of Customized Homes Available in Del Cerro

A wide choice of plans and customized selections are available this week at George M. Holstein and Sons' Del Cerro community in Tustin, with the pioneer building firm offering a pre-selection in their newest unit.

With occupancy set for late summer, buyers purchasing in the new group of three and four bedroom homes will have choice of colors, tile, entry material, paneling, fireplace design, cabinet finish, appliance color, carpet type and color, and many other custom like details.

* * * *

PRICED FROM $23,400, the developer pointed out that the custom details available to the particular buyer were in many ways the same kind of choices usually reserved for much more expensive homes. The pre-selection also gives buyer a chance to sell a current home in many cases, the developers explained.

The initial Del Cerro unit sold rapidly and pre-sales in the new group are already well under way, but the selection is still ideal for almost every plan, Holstein declared.

* * * *

ALONG WITH the choice area, custom details, and tasteful Del Cerro designs, the development also offers some of the Tustin area's most liberal terms. Several homes in the initial unit are offered as low as a total $995 down payment.

To reach Del Cerro from the Long Beach area, drive East on 17th St. to Santa Ana then take the San Diego Freeway South. The Freeway on-ramp is just east of Main St. off of 17th St. in Santa Ana. Stay on the Freeway south to the Red Hill turnoff then take Red Hill North (left) about one mile to Del Cerro.

A DEL CERRO HOME
Choice of several cabinet finishes, tile, flooring, light fixtures, fireplace design and many other custom details are available in the current unit of the Del Cerro homes on Red Hill Avenue in Tustin. The homes are priced from $23,400 with presale program allowing buyers to customize home with late summer move-in date.

To Raze Hollywood Normandie Village

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Normandie Village, a Sunset Strip landmark where Hollywood stars of a bygone era worked and played, is about to be demolished to make way for a modern hotel.

The village, a complex of garden type apartments, was built in the early 1920s and many of Hollywood's big names made their homes here before and after their names were big.

Those were the days when movies were silent and movie-makers' parties were noisy.

* * * *

THE ORNATE stuccoed walls of the place — French provincial in architecture — were used for exterior shots in many movies. The Casbah scenes from "Algiers" were filmed here. And it was a convenient and suitable location for movies made after World War II on the French underground and in spy pictures with a European locale.

Names of world famous figures associated with the place at one time or another include: Richard Dix, Billie Dove, Jimmy Stewart, Jean Hersholt, Paul Muni, Myrna Loy, Clara Bow, Joseph Schildkraut, Edgar Rice Burroughs, P. G. Wodehouse, Henry Fonda and Michele Morgan.

The gardens will be swept clear of their lush foliage—with only a towering palm tree spared.

After demolition of the landmark, construction will begin on a $9 million, 20-story hotel—the Hollywood Thunderbird. The 600-room hotel is scheduled for opening in 1963.

Terrace View Sites in Huntington Hills

Consensus of home-buying families at Huntington Hills, "Ocean view" community in smog-free Huntington Hills lists terraced view sites, Sea breezes and the very favorable financing as "plus" attractions of the handsome, luxuriously appointed residences, W. D. McCaffrey, of Sale Co., reports.

Veterans, he explained, have a total "move-in" of just $88 and for non-veterans there is choice of good conventional loans of the new, low 35-year FHA financing, and full prices are from $17,500. Homes are ready for occupancy, including two fine "specials" — these, the two spacious homes that are complete with pool and patio and boast a full price of $20,990 each.

Huntington Hills presents a diverse choice of attractive exteriors and the plans are designed with three and four bedrooms, two baths, a convenient multi-purpose family room and a big two-car garage.

* * * *

FOCAL POINT of interest for the distaff members of home buying families, McCaffrey said, is the kitchen. Each is planned for pleasant efficiency, and equipped with built-in gas wall oven and range, cabinets of natural ash, double compartment sinks with disposer and single handle swing spout faucet. Added convenience, a built-in ash cabinet inside the house that is designed for washer and dryer.

From Long Beach, Huntington Hills is reached by driving south on Pacific Coast Highway (U.S. 101) to Huntington Beach. Then go left on Beach Blvd. (Highway 39) and drive two miles to the community.

Admiral Sales in Sharp Gain

CHICAGO — Consolidated net sales of Admiral Corp. in the first quarter were $49,135,496, 16 per cent higher than the $42,432,930 reported last year, it was announced today by Vincent Barreca, president.

Consolidated earnings before taxes were $1,187,956, compared with $302,910 in the comparable quarter of 1961.

Barreca said that television movement continued strong during the quarter, with color receivers being backordered for the entire period. Appliance sales were considerably higher in the quarter with refrigerators setting the pace.

Find Fewer Delinquent Home Loans

CHICAGO — Delinquency rates on home mortgages for the first quarter of 1962 show a "substantial reduction" according to the latest national survey of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America. The survey analyzes almost 2,800,000 mortgage loans on one to four-family units from 400 MBA member firms to determine the percentage of delinquent payments past due at least one month, as well as the percentage of loans in foreclosure as of March 31, 1962.

This latest survey shows decreases from prior quarter delinquency figures for all three types of loans.

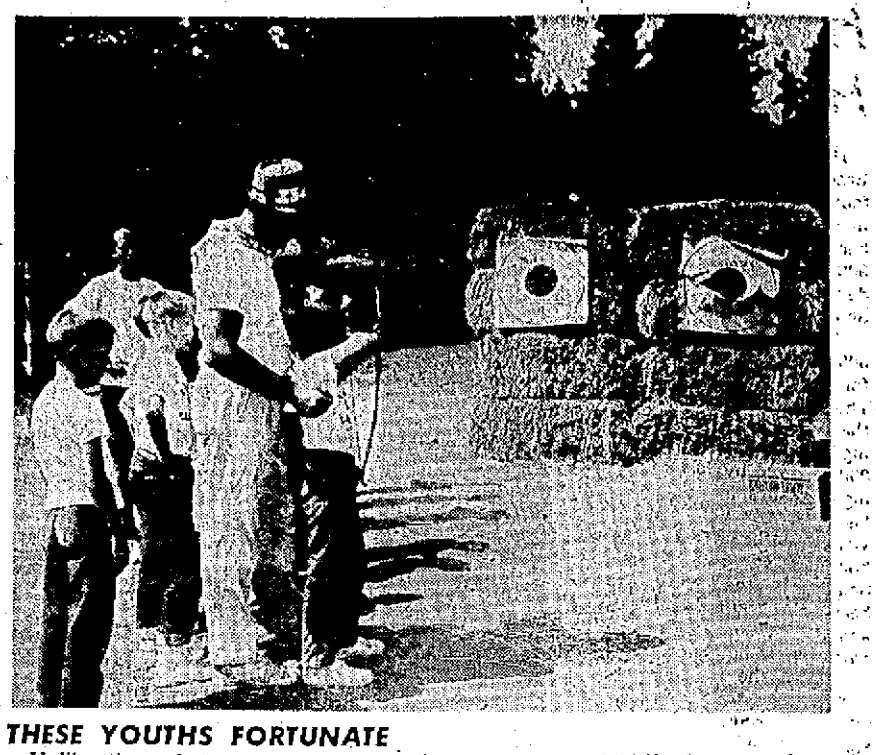

Delinquencies fell from a high of 94,744 as of Dec. 31, to 75,010 as of March 31 (a delinquency percentage drop from 3.10 to 2.68). Of this 2.68% delinquency ratio, less than one-half of 1% of all mortgage loans were over 60 days delinquent (.48%), and less than one-third of 1% were more than 90 days delinquent (.29%).

Directing Bank Training Program

Appointment of Creighton Lacey-Baker, 3121 Woodruff Ave., to assistant cashier, management development division, was announced by Security First National Bank.

In his new post, he will assist the branches in Orange County in establishing training programs.

A native of Long Beach, Lacey-Baker attended Long Beach Woodrow Wilson High School and graduated from Long Beach State College with a B.S. degree in business administration.

THESE YOUTHS FORTUNATE
Unlike these fortunate youngsters whose parents could afford to pay for their week's camping and fun at the YMCA's Camp Oakes, there are hundreds of boys and girls in the Long Beach area dependent upon the Community Welfare Council's campership drive for money for their fees.

Ask Help to Send Many Needy Youngsters to Mountains Camp

As part of the observance this week of American Camp Week an appeal for camperships for needy boys and girls living in the Long Beach-Lakewood area has been issued by Carl Bartlett, Community Welfare Council campership chairman.

Eight youth organizations maintaining mountain camps plan to share funds collected by the Council committee to pay camp fees for deserving children.

Citing examples of boys and girls worthy of help, Bartlett told of the only son of a mother who is mentally retarded; the boy lives with two uncles, both of whom are ill.

* * * *

"THIS YOUNGSTER, alert and bright, desperately needs the companionship of others his own age," Bartlett reports.

He said that the majority of the children come from broken homes, and may be further handicapped by having mothers who are either mentally or physically ill.

Through the Welfare Council's plea for camperships last spring, over a hundred youngsters were enabled to enjoy at least one or two weeks in the mountains.

The average fee that Community Chest agencies charge for a week in camp for them is supplemented in some cases with partial payments by relatives of the children, Bartlett explained, but many must depend entirely upon the generosity of the organizations and individuals contributing to the fund.

* * * *

"FOR INSTANCE, in a family of nine children where the father is out of the home there is scarcely sufficient money for food and shelter and none for recreational advantages," he continued. "Particularly in need of a change in this family is the 11 year old boy who misses having a father around to teach him how to play."

He tells of another situation where there are five children and the 14 year old son has had to assume all the responsibilities of being the "man of the house."

"If his father couldn't take it and deserted them, you can imagine what it is doing to the youngster," the committee chairman remarked. "He should have a chance to be a kid again for at least a week."

Careful screening goes into all requests made for camperships. Names and circumstances are submitted by social workers and juvenile authorities for consideration.

* * * *

KNOWING THAT there are enough funds to take care of all that wish to go and could benefit, special pains are taken that only those most urgently in need of the experience are selected.

LAW IN THE NEWS

Even After Death, Contract May Bind

You cannot get out of a contract just because you made a bad deal or because you changed your mind. Tough luck will not get you off the hook, unless you cover it in the contract.

A builder agreed to build a home for a certain price. Then his costs skyrocketed due to unexpected increases in labor and material costs. Could he get out of his contract? No. Unless the contract says what is to be done if there are unexpected costs, the contract is binding and the law will hold the builder to it. From the builder's standpoint, a good contract would provide that, in case of increased costs, the buyer would pay them.

* * * *

SUPPOSE YOU AGREE to sell 100 steers which you own for a certain price, and hoof and mouth disease kills off most of them. Scarcity may boost the cattle price. Since you can buy steers, even at ski-high prices, you will either have to do so and perform the contract, or pay the buyer damages for your failure to perform.

Things which the law says the parties should have thought about, such as increased costs or strikes, are no excuse for not going ahead with the contract unless the contract says that it is an excuse. An exception to this rule is where performance is prevented by an irresistible, superhuman cause—as where the grape crop which was sold failed because of unusual heat.

The law itself — without anything being said about it in the contract—excuses you from carrying out your contract if the law forbids the thing called for in the contract—for example, a building in violation of a zoning law.

* * * *

WHERE THE VERY THING contracted for is destroyed, as when the house to be sold burns down, the law excuses performance.

Contrary to popular opinion, death will not excuse performance, unless the contract calls for the personal services of the decedent, such as those of an author, actor, or lawyer.

And so the law will enforce most agreements against the estate of the decedent. This is true even if the contract calls for the payment of money over a long period of time, as in the case of a lease. The result may well be to impoverish the decedent's family. A good lease provision, from the lessee's standpoint, would be one giving his estate the right to cancel in the event of his death.

Where fraud exists, the innocent party who entered into the contract can, on learning of the fraud, cancel the contract and be excused from performing his part of the agreement.

(Prepared by State Bar Assn.)

UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Builder Ray K. Cherry announced processing has begun on more than 150 reservations in Lakewood Manor, a 380-home development under construction. Located just north of Candlewood on Palo Verde, the three and four-bedroom homes will sell from $18,750 to $19,250.

Historic Ranch Land Offered for Homes

Recent discovery of abundant well water has spurred development of a portion of historic Rancho Carrillo in the rolling mesa above San Juan Capistrano. Three-acre rancho sites, access roads, equestrian trails and other recreational facilities are being completed under the guidance of Orange County developers Richard Beamish and Ronald Diggins.

Beamish announced this prime coastal ranch land is now available for the first time for outright ownership.

Rancho Carrillo is 8 miles east of San Juan Capistrano —just off the Ortega Hwy. (74). At an elevation of 2200 feet in the Cleveland National Forest, it has a fine all-year-round climate, out of the coastal fog zone, but still cooled by ocean breezes.

Rancho Carrillo sales office is across from the Mission in San Juan Capistrano, or the main Rancho office is at 365 Newport Blvd., Newport Beach.

Peacock Hill Homes to Provide Luxury

Construction has begun for one of Southern California's most extensive residential developments, an area of exclusively designed homes known as Peacock Hill and located off Newport Blvd., north of Foothill, in North Tustin.

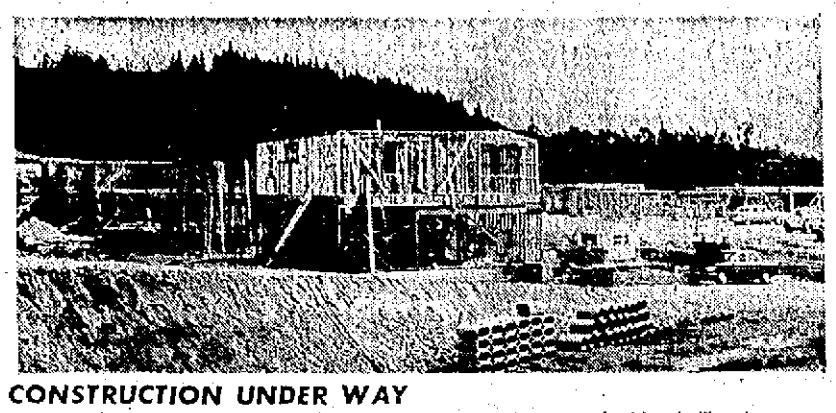

When completed, the new Peacock Hill will embrace a total of 363 acres of residential properties. According to the developer, the Peacock Hill name was selected because of the stately and impressive architecture of the residences being planned for the area and the community's picturesque location at the foothills of the Santa Ana Mountains.

* * * *

ALL RESIDENCES at Peacock Hill will be individually plotted so that building sites and architecture will complement one another.

Another attractive feature of the development will be the preservation, as far as is practicable, of the natural contours of the land. The area is generously wooded with an unusual variety of trees that range from spreading tropical palms to tall forest pines. This natural vegetation will be retained to as great extent as possible.

Prices of Peacock Hill homes will range from $34,950 to $44,750, with all financing arranged on conventional terms.

CONSTRUCTION UNDER WAY

Large luxury homes in the Peacock Hill development in North Tustin are under construction and soon will be placed on sale.

Prices Reduced on Custom Homes

One group of custom built homes in Orange County's prestige St. Hubert Woods area of Tustin will be offered for sale this week-end by the lenders with discounts up to $7,000 available.

The builder of the select group of large three and four bedroom homes is no longer associated with the development and the lending agency is selling the homes direct at near cost through their sales agents, Red Hill Realty, a spokesman pointed out.

ALL OF THE NEARLY 20 homes are different in design and styling and include up to 2,400 square feet of luxury living area. Many are carpeted, some are landscaped, and all include luxury tiled kitchens with two ovens, dishwashers, etc., dining rooms, family rooms, large baths with roman tubs, and a score of other features usually found in $50,000 to $60,000 homes.

Originally priced as high as $54,000, the homes offered by the lending agency are priced from $37,950 to $40,000 with most flexible terms available.

To reach the St. Hubert Estates sale from Long Beach, go out 17th St. to Santa Ana. Turn left on Prospect off of 17th St. (just past Tustin Ave.) to Santa Clara then turn right through the gates to the sale.

Picked Good Spot to Build Nest

The homes are spacious and offer private access to the beach along with a wide variety of features included in the purchase price. Some of these are separate activity room, dining areas, all-electric built-in kitchens, rich textures and materials add to the style, charm and refinement, including stone or brick fireplace, sliding glass walls, lath and acoustic plaster insulated ceilings, perimeter forced-air heating, automatic dishwasher, wall-to-wall carpets. Treasury officials are moving to recoup some $650 million a year in "lost taxes." Their weapon: withholding 20 per cent at the paying source of savings account interest, dividend payments and earnings of U. S. Savings Bonds when cashed. Legal Aid: Justice for All

Schulein: "Even the Poor Can Afford the Very Best"

Zimmerman: "Free Counsel Protects the Penniless"

By MARY NETH

The lawyer's sympathetic interest was too much for the distraught young woman.

She burst into tears.

Legal Aid Attorney Robert Zimmerman reached into his desk drawer for the tissues he keeps for such emergencies, waited for his client to compose herself, then went ahead with the interview.

Her problem? No means to support her two small children. Her husband had left for another state. She had no money for child care and so, could not look for work. Evicted from her apartment for non-payment of rent, she and her off-spring had spent the night in the park.

Was there something the attorney could do?

There was. He filed a complaint to force the out-of-state husband to provide for his children. He called the landlord and finding the eviction illegal, arranged for the young woman to re-enter the apartment on a temporary basis. Then, he sent her to a welfare agency for immediate aid.

Cost to the client: $2 registration fee. That's the way the Legal Aid Foundation works.

LEGAL AID means justice for all: For the elderly pensioner, the unwed mother, the unemployed, the infirm—anyone lacking the where-with-all to pay for legal counsel.

Domestic relations (child support and custody, annulment, adoption, separate maintenance) make up 60 per cent of the cases. The rest of the work load takes in money claims, tenant's rights, installment contracts and garnishements.

In fact, the foundation handles all types of cases but the criminal. Those are turned over to the public defender.

How is it done? The organization, set up locally six years ago as a non-profit corporation, is supported by the Long Beach Bar Association—with no help from either taxpayer or community agencies.

The office itself at 115 Pine Ave., suite 512, is far from pretentious, but serves its purposes. There clients are cleared by the receptionist, then seen on a 'first-come, first-served basis, which sometimes can add up to a lot of waiting room reading.

But, everyone is seen.

And those who qualify get the best legal representation money can buy—at no cost.

DEALING OUT the advice and fighting the court battles are two of Long Beach's busiest and most dedicated young attorneys.

Chief Counsel Zimmerman and his associate, Sidney Schulein, handle about 200 new cases a month, besides keeping on top of those already on file.

"Often, however, just a telephone call will do the trick," says Zimmerman. "In border-line cases of legality the bully-type plaintiff usually yields as soon as we enter the picture."

A Stanford Law graduate, 27-year-old Zimmerman came to Legal Aid directly following admission to the bar in 1960.

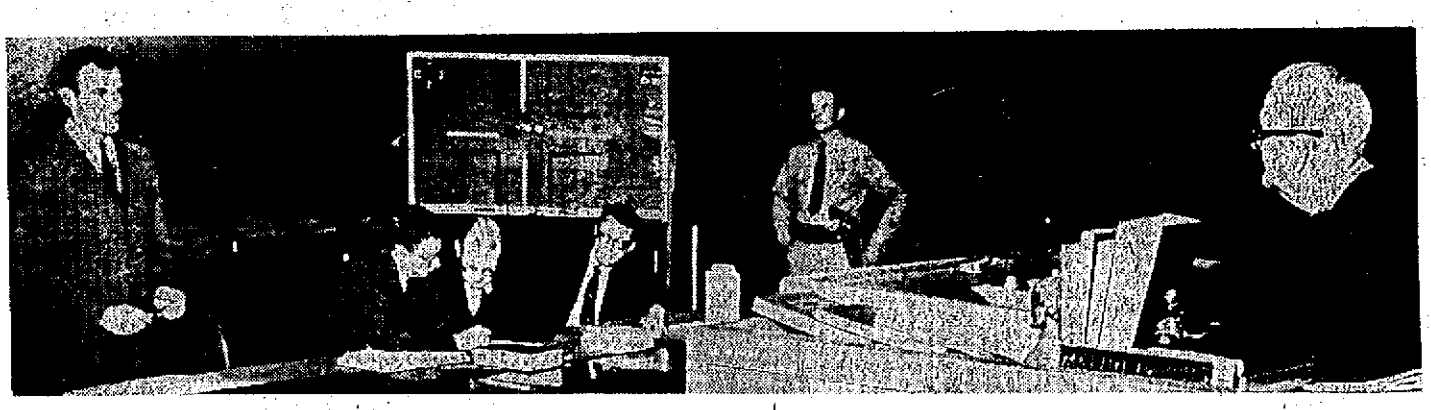

He entered the profession because he "believes in justice, likes to deal with people and thought it would give him the best chance to use his talents." He hopes to go into practice for himself someday, meantime likens his Legal Aid work to an "internship." "The work is harder and more repetitious than encountered in a regular practice," he explains. "But, for a young law-

Blackwell Needles the Pin-Ups

By MARY ELLIS
I, P-T Fashion Editor

Needles and pins are the favorite weapons of Hollywood's actor-turned-designer Mr. Blackwell—especially when it comes to sticking them in overdressed (or underdressed) pin-up girls.

With a tongue as sharp as his workroom shears, he recently proclaimed his second annual list of the cinema capital's Ten Worst-Dressed Women.

The bosomy ones: Sophia Loren, Jayne Mansfield, Marilyn Monroe and Diana Dors.

Also named: Zsa Zsa Gabor, Lucille Ball, Connie Stevens, Kathy Nolan, Shirley MacLaine and Debbie Reynolds.

LEADING THE LIST is queen-of-the-international-set Zsa Zsa, of whom he says: "She reminds me of a car covered with a nylon parachute."

Miss Loren he dismisses with: "Off screen she is still the Italian shop girl she so often portrays."

As for Mansfield: "Her plunging neckline has become a bare midriff problem."

And about Marilyn: "In private life she is a road show version of her screen personality."

Of England's voluptuous Miss Dors: "Nothing stylewise can be salvaged from this girl, so why bother?"

PROVING HE doesn't love Lucy: "Miss Ball's motto must be, 'if you can't wear it, carry it.'"

Connie Stevens? "Away from the studio she wears anything she can get her hands on, and it shows."

He accuses Kathy Nolan of looking like a "hill billy wife."

About Miss MacLaine: "She looks as if everyone she knows has given her something to wear."

As for Debbie: "She simply can't project the sex she tries for in her clothes. They make her look silly."

After a Fashion

IN AN EXCLUSIVE I. P.-T. interview, this maverick of the fashion world, who grew up in the New York slum area known as Hell's Kitchen, explained why he presumes to build fires under movietown's glamor queens.

His words: "My motto is to encourage women to dress UP to themselves. I merely let the 'ouches' fall where they will."

Did he have repurcussions from last year's worst-dressed list?

"Press agents threatened suits, also to punch me in the nose."

Result: He goes on undaunted, seemingly unconcerned about offending a prospective customer loaded with residuals and oil wells or who, figuratively speaking, has pink champagne in her swimming pool

RICHARD BLACKWELL was born in the slums of New York, went on to movie stardom as one of the original Dead End Kids. While trying for other, more mature, parts, he designed ladies' check-book covers and belts, later returned to show biz as a personal manager. His flair for design emerged when he whipped up a gown for a client. The next day, newspaper notices were for the gown, not the singer's talents. It was then Mr. Blackwell, together with his partner, Robert L. Spencer, opened a small showroom which, in a few short years, has catapulted into one of California's leading fashion houses.

'DISCOVER YOURSELF'

You CAN Be Lovely, Desirable - - You Really CAN

By WILMA HASTINGS

You are a wonderful person, absolutely fabulous!

You CAN be lovely — you CAN be desirable — you CAN be charming and make others feel wonderful just by being near them.

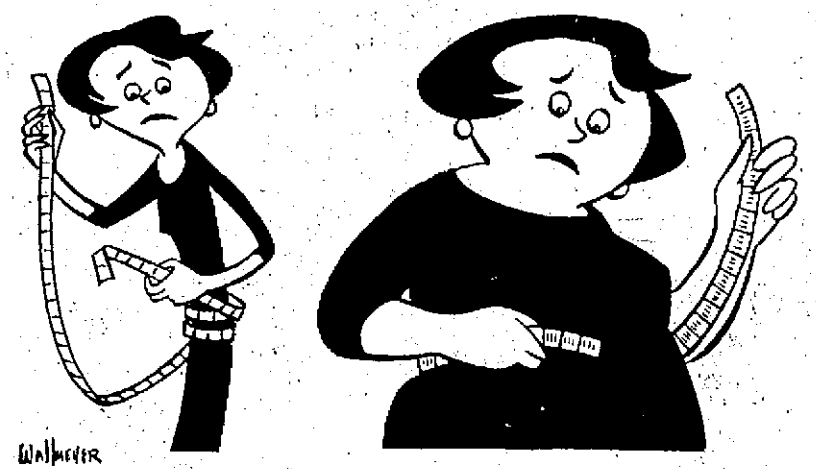

But ARE you? Are you as feminine and attractive as you could be?

Just look at yourself and be honest. Are you pleased with the person you see in the mirror? Few of us are completely satisfied — and when our families and friends try to reassure us about our shortcomings, it doesn't really help, because we KNOW the shortcomings exist and we must meet them in mortal combat, not try to excuse them or deny their existence.

We must overcome our shortcomings in three ways — by making the most of our actual persons, by dressing appropriately and by giving our personalities full sway.

But remember, before we get into the mechanics of discovering the true you, this material is for ALL women and girls, not just teen-agers. WHY? Because it's NEVER too late to be lovely!

I'll tell you how to stand and walk, sit properly, and get in and out of a car gracefully. Ever see a baboon in motion? Don't laugh — chances are the baboon is right and you are wrong, that's why I teach the "baboon walk."

* * * *

I'LL TELL you how to style your hair and care for it correctly, how to apply your make-up and what make-up you should apply, how to select the right colors in make-up and apparel. Moving into clothing, I'll show you how you should dress right from the skin out! And we'll talk a good bit about your personality, too, because this is so important.

Did you ever walk along a beach and pick up a beautiful sea shell? Wasn't it exquisite? It was the "fine feathers" of some sea creature — and it remained beautiful.

But it is utterly devoid of personality, therefore it is merely an ornament instead of the vital thing it should be with the beauty it possesses.

None of us wants to be like a sea shell, beautiful but merely decorative. That is why it is necessary to accent the personality work so heavily.

There are three things necessary for self-improvement — getting started, an open mind and constant application of the suggestions offered. YOU are the only person who can help you in this work. I can give you the material — but how you apply it is up to you!

* * * *

NOW, let's get started. Put on a blouse and pair of shorts. On a piece of paper record the date you started and your measurements — bust, waist, upper hip, lower hip, thigh, calf, ankle, height and weight. Put this away in your files — you're going to see some dramatic changes.

My standard is that a girl five feet tall should weigh 100 pounds, providing that she has a normal bone structure. Five pounds should be added for each inch above five feet, and five pounds should be subtracted for each inch below five feet.

Proportion is important in measurements. There should be 10 inches difference between the bust and waist and 10 inches difference between the waist and lower hip. Thighs are another matter, and a great deal depends on body structure and firmness of flesh, too. But, generally, a girl five feet, six inches tall should have a thigh measurement of 21 inches maximum, while a girl five feet four should have a 19-20-inch thigh.

* * * *

NOW THAT you have determined what your weight should be, let's consider overweight, which is much more common than underweight. Overweight is a matter of pounds, so it is possible for a girl to be the correct weight and yet have big thighs, legs or hips. This calls for normalizing the flesh so you will lose inches, not pounds.

But with overweight, do not be foolish and go for "crash" diets and violent exercise. These can kill you. The answer is good diet and systematic exercise. In my booklet I provide a complete seven-day diet, but for the purpose of illustration, let me give you just a sample one-day diet here:

BREAKFAST: ½ grapefruit, 1 soft-cooked egg, 1 slice whole wheat toast, ½ square of butter, 1 cup black coffee.

LUNCH: 1 cup broth, medium serving roast beef, ½ cup new cabbage, 1 slice tomato, 1 sliced orange, 1 glass skim milk, 1 slice whole wheat bread, ½ square of butter.

DINNER: Medium serving lean cold ham, ½ cup green beans, 5 or 6 celery or carrot sticks, 2 halves water-packed pears, 1 glass skim milk, 1 slice whole wheat bread, ½ square of butter, 1 cup tea with lemon.

Underweight is not as serious as overweight as long as the general health is good. Usually time will correct this condition.

But this is important — overweight or underweight, please be tranquil when you eat. Avoid disturbances. Also avoid eating at your desk, if possible. Get a change of scenery. But if you MUST eat at your desk, then get a change of pace—read a magazine or chat with friends — but NOT about work. This will do wonders for your digestion and your mental well-being.

In tomorrow's article I'm going to tell you about "The Great Lady Look and Walk", and give you a simple exercise to improve your posture, which is what 90 per cent of us need!

Star Spangled Soroptimist Party to Greet Soon-to-Be U.S. Citizens

One is a young man from Hungary and one is a matron from Red China. What have they in common? Both are living in Long Beach and each is well on the way to becoming an American citizen.

Their preparation: Completion of a course in citizenship through Adult Division, Long Beach City College.

To celebrate: A "New Citizens" party Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Whaley Park Clubhouse, 5260 Atherton Ave.

The star-spangled event is the fifth annual such party given by Soroptimist Club of Long Beach. In all, 520 invitations have been sent to those who've completed and who are still taking the course. Quite an increase in guests when compared with the mere 20 attending that first get-together back in 1958.

Siegfried C. Ringwald, assitant dean of West Adult Center, will preside. George Geiger, assistant superintendent of Long Beach Elementary Schools and Louis Cook, dean of City College Adult Division, will present certificates to the 200 graduates.

* * * *

THE PROGRAM will include introduction by Darlene Capouch, president of Soroptimists, community singing and speeches by two students (Angela Wolfron, Mexico and Willie Kraan, Holland), on 'What American Citizenship Means to Me."

Thirty-nine countries will be represented. The largest number of citizens-to-be are from Great Britain with West Germany a close second. Also, and not to be forgotten, party-goers: 10 Hungarian freedom fighters who participated in the revolution, November 1955 and one Thailander.

Perhaps the happiest celebrant will be Ernoe J. Szegfue, a Hungarian who has had a first hand look at satellite statehood from behind concentration camp barbed wire in Yugoslavia.

Following escape to Salsburg, Austria, he waited-out a four year U. S. quota and now is a maintenance man at Memorial Hospital studying industrial electronics on the side.

Among the other modern-day immigrants: interns, housewives, dishwashers, doctors, lawyers and teachers.

CITIZENS-TO-BE . . . Ernoe Szegfue of Hungary and Yuk Lee Fong of China proudly compare citizenship certificates—their first step toward naturalization. He escaped Hungary via Yugoslavian term in concentration camp, came to U. S. on quota from Austria in 1955. She left Red China in 1953; still receives mail from daughter who is not allowed to join her. Both will attend "New Citizens" party given by Soroptimists Wednesday.

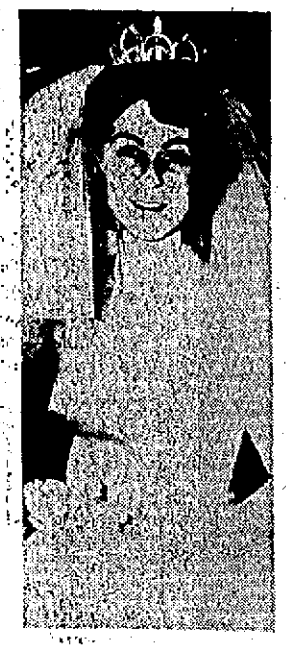

Party Invitation

Sunday Get-Together Club will host a card party, open to the public, Wednesday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Garden Room, Third Street and Alamitos Avenue. Refreshments will be served.

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Iola Masterson • I, P-T Women's Editor

IN MEXICO CITY well dressed women are never supposed to wear hats. But when Pat and Dr. Walter Gilkey were there recently Pat ignored the Mexican fashion rule, wore a lavish red petaled affair.

"Hers was petaled"

So one day, with her wax bonnet firmly in place, she and Walt set out. They wanted to visit an old church. To get there they had to walk through a courtyard which was being torn up for repairs.

As they picked their way through the yard they casually noticed that the workers were playing some kind of throw and catch game. Suddenly, whap! One of the pitchers missed his mark and hit Pat's head and hat, knocking both quite askew.

The kicker of this story is, it wasn't a ball which bounced off her bright beanie but a human skull! What the workers were doing was digging up an ancient graveyard, probably of Aztec origin. They were tossing bones of all kinds to be stacked row on row in readiness for re-burial somewhere else.

Instead of horror the whole incident struck Gilkeys and workers, alike, as hilarious. Guess from now on Pat can call her chapeaux her skull cap.

MANY LEGAL eagle types at Apple Valley Steak House Tuesday p.m. Most of them were un-winding after winding up duties on annual Law Day. Dining together, for instance, were Georgia and Blaine Simons, Glenda and Earl Barnes and Legia and Sterling Clayton.

Also noted were Betty and "Tennessee Johnny" Calhoun and Virginia and Charles Dickie, the latter not legal. Meaning not of the bar set. Hmmm. Doesn't come out quite right, whichever way you say it.

IN PALM Springs trying to diagnose what's wrong with their golf games are the Long Beach Medical Golfers Association, a group of medics who have banded together in self defense of their game, no doubt. Among those who went down for a tournament at Tamarisk are Liz and Bob Barmeyer, Joan and Greg Hoskins, Bonnie and Dan O'Toole, Joan and Bill Eddy, Charlotte an Paul Smith and Ann and Jack Lynn.

All I have to add is, "Physician, cure thy slice."

HERE'S A social note you can call musical. Lillian Crawford, chairman of the just-getting-organized Women's Guild of the new Community Music Theater, is having a coffee reception Wednesday for the charter membership.

Assisting her tend doorbell and coffee cups will be Myrtle Murphy, Marela Hart, Peg Akers and Doris Wood.

They'll jump in, with batons flying, to aid and abet the group's first production of "Music Man" in June.

"IT FLOATS" triumphed Jan and John Miller when they launched their sleek new 36-foot cruiser, Aloha Mele (love song), Wednesday. Of course, they rather suspected that it would all along having been overseers of its construction from the beginning. They designed and did most of the interior themselves, incidentally.

A launching calls for a party and a party they had. A few of those who boarded were Sue and Ross Elliott, Mary and John Holmes, Mac and Peg McColloch and Nan and Lee McColloch, Bill Williams, Pat and Ray Olerts, Dr. Bill Scott and Phyllis Kronenberg.

Assistance League of Long Beach will sponsor its third annual Presentation Ball July 27 in International Ballroom of the Lafayette Hotel with 12 young ladies making their bow at the highly fashionable affair.

First in a series of parties to be given in their honor in the weeks preceding the ball was the poolside patio party Saturday in the garden at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Houston C. Fairley, 4219 California Ave.

Through courtesy of Buffums', the presentees and their mothers were given a preview of debutant gowns, some flown in from New York for the showing. William Cahill of Hollywood designed 12 gowns exclusively for the Long Beach presentees which were modeled by former debs, Patricia Exley, Linda Louise Forman, Patricia Davis and Donna Murphy.

They lived in Tacoma for a short while, then moved to Seattle where they remained for almost 40 years. He was in the furniture business, owning his own store, and later was associated with a brewing company for many years.

Tea to Honor Foundation Benefactors

Exceptional children shouldn't be the exception when it comes to education.

The Exceptional Children's Foundation, Inc., of Long Beach, is seeing that these youngsters have that chance —with classes keyed to the needs of the mentally retarded child.

Friday the foundation will honor churches, fraternities, sororities, men's and women's service clubs who have helped (through contributions) to make this possible.

The event will be the group's 11th annual reciprocity tea from noon to 3 p.m. at 4519 E. Stearns St.

Exceptional Children's Foundation was organized here in 1951. In 1955 it moved to its own building constructed by AFL building trades with labor donated by union members. Then, when the city of Long Beach donated $25,000, work shops for older boys and girls were added.

* * * *

APPROXIMATELY 90 students are enrolled at the present time. The nursery class is open for the young mentally retarded who need training in personal habits and socialization.

The kindergarten class is for the young child who is able to take simple direction for short periods of time. Intermediate and primary classes are for children capable of doing craft and some academic work.

In the two senior classes the children are at various levels of development. There individual instruction is most important.

One afternoon a week senior students bowl and senior girls attend a homemaking class at the YWCA. A teen-dance is held once a month and swimming instruction is available for all age groups during the summer in Jewish Community Center. Boys 12 and over participate in an active Boy Scout Troop.

During Friday's tea the children will be in their classes to demonstrate the type of work they do.

Chairmen for the tea are Mmes. O. A. Warner, Gordon Warnock, John Castle, Gertrude Anderson, Glen McKee and George Papadakis.

—Staff Photo

THEY MEAN IT . . . Mrs. O. A. Warner and Mrs. Millard Nichols express appreciation for contributions to Exceptional Children's Foundation. Tea honoring local clubs, churches and individuals who have supported work for mentally retarded children will be given by foundation Friday from noon to 3 p.m. at 4519 E. Stearns St.

Poll's Compare Art Tastes

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

How does the art preference of laymen compare with that of professional artists?

In a practical effort to find out, Long Beach Art Association has just conducted simultaneous polls—one a "People's Choice" in which non-professionals balloted, the other "Selectors' Choice" directed to association members.

For comparison and as a sort of control, artist Lucille Brown Greene was asked to make a selection of her choice from the paintings shown in the association's Villa Riviera Gallery March 26 to April 29.

Popular voting gave first place to Mrs. Alyce Sanders' portrait, "Mexican Boy;" second to Edward Rugels' "French Nurse;" third to Audre Hutchins' "Morning Mist."

* * * *

CONCLUDES gallery director Marie Bucher: "Since these pictures all come within the classification of traditional expressionism, it thus appears that the Long Beach public leans toward discipline in art, respects literal reproduction of anatomy and nature and would be counted among the hordes who look with wonder at the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel or the walls of the Reichsmusee and marvel at their reality."

* * * *

WINNERS in the second category were Dr. Eugene C. Wallin, first, "Locomotive Wheels;" Lee Beck, second, "Foggy Harbor;" and Robert J. Adams, third, "Lyric for a Garden." All are classed as modified, transitional or tentative abstract.

Says Mrs. Bucher: "While the ballot results indicate that the professional artists tend to be more progressive than the public, it is apparent that our local artists have not abandoned self-discipline for non-objectivism and are not likely to drive cars back and forth in pools of paint and hope to be discovered as creators of a new school of art."

* * * *

YOU CAN judge the winning paintings for yourself. They will hang in the gallery until May 28. Winners will receive awards during a reception today from 3 to 5 p.m.

Also on display is a one-man show by Wallin, who has been association president since 1960; paintings by Dr. Charles Thompson, Evelyn Carpenter, Orva Dillingham, Lucille Brown Greene and Marlyn Prior; and ceramics by Dr. Robert Ramsey.

* * * *

NEW EXHIBITS opening today at Long Beach Museum of Art, in addition to the LBAA Juried Show, are a review of the first exhibit in the Arts of Southern California series, "Architecture;" and "Arms and Armor of Old Japan." Master work of the month is a Yoroi composite suit of armor, 16th century Japanese, from the collection of Robert E. Wright.

A reception is scheduled from 2 to 4 p.m. today; exhibits will be on view through May 27.

* * * *

OILS, watercolors and caseins by Jean Lee, Long Beach artist, will be on display through May 31 at Dana Branch Library. Hours are noon to 9 p.m., weekdays except Fridays; 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Saturdays.

"AUCTION of the Month" painting at Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave., is by Connor Everts, winner of many prize awards. It will hang in the center lobby until May 15 and bids will be accepted.

The first painting, featured last month, "The Vendor," by Paul Blaine, was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. David Ruderman.

—Staff Photo

'SELECTOR' VS. 'PEOPLE'
Dr. Eugene Wallin won first place with "Locomotive Wheels" in the Selectors' Choice poll conducted by Long Beach Art Association. Mrs. Alyce Sanders received first in the comparative People's Choice balloting for her painting, "Mexican Boy."

Musical Arts

Romara Olson, dramatic soprano, will sing a varied program for Musical Arts Club members and guests Tuesday at noon in the Wilton Hotel. Louise Agal will accompany. Miss Olson is soloist at First Baptist Church and has sung for many Long Beach organizations and with LBCC Schola Cantorum.

Clayton Barrie, president, will conduct the business session.

KNUT NYSTEDT ADDS TALENTS TO FESTIVAL

By RACHEL MORTON
I.-P-T Music Critic

Knut Nystedt (pronounced Nee-sted) lately arrived from Norway, has been making quite a stir at Long Beach State College this past week as composer, lecturer and adjudicator in the Long Beach Music Festival. He is also an organist of repute and has appeared as guest conductor of the Oslo Philharmonic Orchestra.

I found him a charming, sensitive man, in his 40s—quite alien in personality to the harsh music he sometimes writes. I protested that, after hearing some of his lovely chorale works, his composition, "The Seven Seals" seemed quite a wide departure.

"The chorale works you heard," he informed me, "were written years ago. My change in style came after I had spent a summer at Tanglewood studying composition under Aaron Copland."

"That explains everything," I laughed.

* * * *

"WELL," protested Nystedt, "you wouldn't want to be driving an old model car, would you?"

"No, and neither would I want to drive the latest model car upside down," I retaliated.

That put us on a happy footing.

Knut Nystedt was a boy soprano and for three years he toured Norway as soloist with a boys' choir. He heard music from the time he was a toddler, as his father loved to play violin in string quartets in their home. When he entered the Oslo Conservatory he made the organ his major study. He also studied composition and conducting. He was the first Norwegian after the war to win a scholarship for study in America. At Tanglewood he joined the International Society of Contemporary Music.

* * * *

IN 1960 Nystedt brought 35 Norwegian singers to America for 20 concerts in 28 days, which he conducted. The final one was given in Carnegie Hall, New York, with great success. They are planning a return visit in 1964.

When I asked him to tell me something about Norway his face lighted up with joyous enthusiasm. Oslo has 400,000 inhabitants. It now has a permanent opera, thanks to the famous singer, Kirsten Flagstadt, who organized and directed the first opera company a few years ago. She is now in retirement in Norway and sings only upon occasion for charity.

* * * *

NYSTEDT loves to take his family—a wife, two daughters, 15 and 17 years of age, and a boy of 9 years—for skiing in Northern Norway in the winter. But he does not want to live there.

"For six months there is no sun at all," he told me, "and then one day the sun appears for two minutes. That day there is great celebration with fireworks, dancing, festival music and general rejoicing."

He then told me that for the next six months the sun never sets. "It is very strange," said he, "but when there is continuous sunshine one rarely sleeps—and three or four hours seem sufficient rest."

His three weeks stay in our country will terminate excitingly for him when he joins the Prime Minister of Norway at a luncheon given in their honor by President and Mrs. Kennedy at the White House on May 9.

Quality, Stature in LBAA Juried Show

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The Annual Juried Show of Long Beach Art Association, along with other exhibits at the Long Beach Museum of Art, opens today with a reception at 2 p.m. Don Laviere Turner of the USC Art Faculty selected 49 from the 162 works submitted.

Despite rumors that the juror made some surprising choices, the collection of drawings, watercolors, oils, and two sculptures is excellent—sophistocated, highly competent, often touched with flashes of brilliance.

Both sculptures are figurative and have the quality of classic serenity. Ed Rugels' "Chaucer's Monk" in grey fiberglas and mosaic is stylized except for the aged face and hands. Jentano Shimo's "Fellow Student" is a subtley contoured head.

* * * *

"WE ARE EACH of Us Alone," an oil by Marie Harris, suggests many shades of meaning. Vivid pasted papers with a pattern of black make Jim Green's "Inter Alia" bold and exciting.

Excellent style in Bob Click's drawing, "Seated Women," conveys a sense of ambiguity. "Eros" by Pjete Lindstrom exploits the use of high color and mastery of the painter's brush. The same qualities in an oil by Robert Adams are employed in small panes of color. Grace Dimmick uses quick, vivid strokes of mingled color in the dancing "Solo Turn."

* * * *

GLENN CAVALLI'S watercolor, "Oil Wells," is a scene glimpsed through the base of a familiar local structure; his watercolor in overlays of muted tones is most successful. A free use of pure tones in the same medium is Meleita Artin's "Floral Arrangement." Vesta E. Carton's "5½ Pears" sparkles with amazing light from a close range of red browns. Calligraphic economy of black and sepia on an expanse of white space mark Joyce Ullstrup's wash drawing.

The association reflects free enterprise at its best. The artists do not flavor their works with the methods and styles of their colleagues. The mutually stimulating competition results in better quality and stature each year in this show.

IN 'ZOO STORY'
Ken Kennerson (left) and Ed Young discuss the merits of their respective ways of life—the secure vs. the unsecure—in the "Zoo Story" which, along with "The Sandbox," currently is showing at 8:30 Friday and Saturday nights at the Off-Broadway theater, 211 Lime Ave.

'Crucible' to Open at Horseshoe

"The Crucible," Arthur Miller's intense and symbolic drama of the witchcraft hysteria in old Salem, opens at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Horseshoe Theater, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

The admission-free Long Beach City College Business and Technology Division production, directed by Herbert Caesar, continues Friday and Saturday nights.

Central roles are taken by John Solbes and Elenor Hunden as a young farm couple falsely accused of witchcraft and by Carole DeDera as the malicious servant girl, Abigal Adams.

* * * *

BEFORE the final curtain, Abigail and other sensation-seeking children of the town have caused 19 innocent men and women to be sent to the gallows for alleged possession by the Devil. The tale of bigotry and deceit reaches its almost unbearable climax during the trial scene.

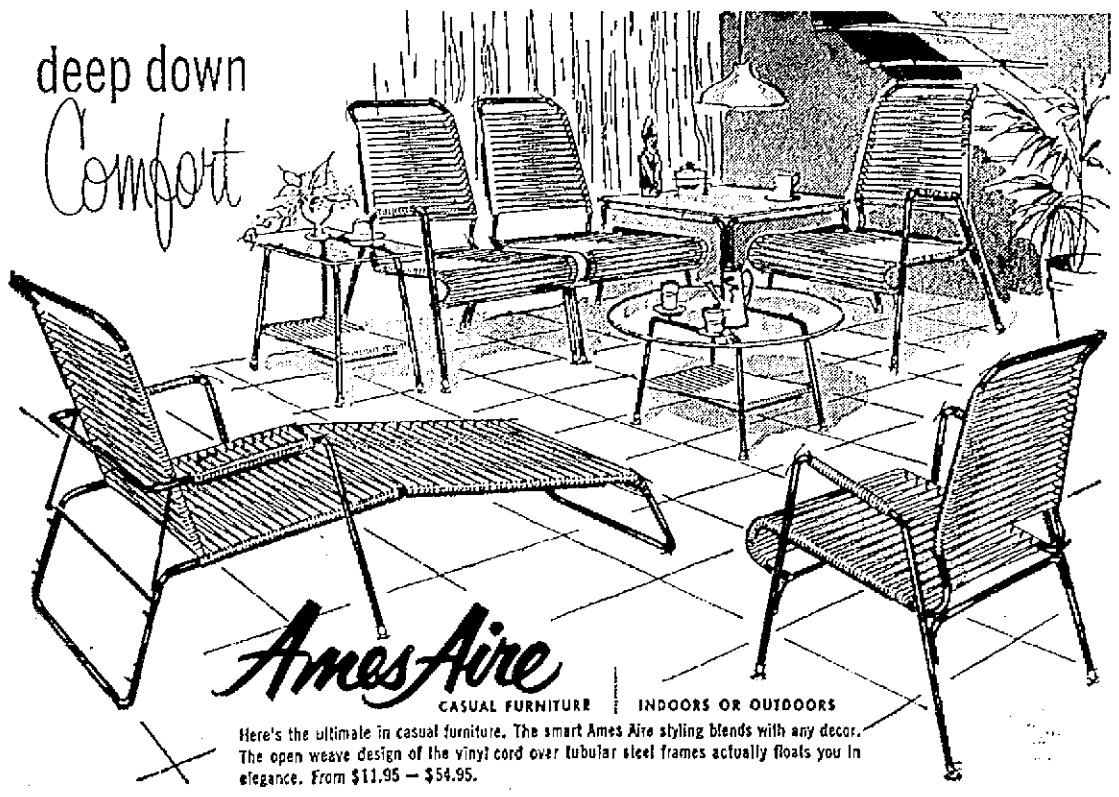

Other leading roles are played by John Nasheim, John Edmiston and Jim Contis.

On Stage---

At Delta Zeta's recent Rose Formal, Len Alfieri (Sigma Pi) was named DZ Man-of-the-Year; and sorority awards were as follows: Marsha Maddox, outstanding pledge; Jeannie Miettunen, outstanding active; Sharon McMahan, Maureen Kramer, and Lynne Winnik, Order-of-the-Rose (outstanding activities); Colleen Logan, DZ president-elect, best scholarship; and Gloria Puckett, past president, a plaque for service and loyalty to Delta Zeta.

Delta Gammas distributed about 50 handmade stuffed animals at Easter to children in the DG school for visually handicapped in Los Angeles . . . Teri Taylor is Phi Kappa Tau fraternity's Dream Girl . . . and Jackie Dole Jagerson was honored at Delta Gamma Founders Day luncheon by being named outstanding member for the year.

Gamma Phi Beta's first-ever Orchid Ball was held last Saturday in the Ambassador Hotel. Joining in the historic occasion were chapters from USC and UCLA. At a pre-party at the home of Margi Miller, the GPB members presented their dates with gold key rings.

HERE'S WHAT'S happening in Phi Beta, national professional fraternity for women in speech, drama, and music:

The membership roster totals 23 following the initiation of nine pledges: Marcia Frederick, Carol Dahl, Donna Johnson, Charlene Galley, Cecilia DeMeneces, Carol McCoy, Annette Davidson, Charlotte Greenwood, and Judy Miller . . . all feminine roles in next week's four-day run of MacBeth are played by PBs; you will need a program to tell which witch is which, however . . . Saturday the chapter participated in the golden anniversary Founders Day ceremonies at the Ambassador in Los Angeles; afterwards, it was over to Charlotte Greenwood's in Manhattan Beach for a beach party . . . Phi Betas are working on a play, written by Joyce Pierce, which will be staged this summer for the Veterans Administration hospital . . . new officers in the group are Josie Mancuso, president, and Jackie Victor, Anita McKay, Janeice McConnell, Georgie Hicks, and Sue Gallagher.

East-West Club presents an unusual Japanese movie this evening at 5:30 and 7:30 in the Little Theater, "Storm on the Silvery Peaks," which stars — you would never guess — Toni Sailer, Austrian Olympic ski champion. Anyway, the film is a mixture of top ski thrills, tantalizing camera techniques, and, as E-W prexy Al Rinehart terms it, "that good Japanese photography." Admission is $1, and proceeds go towards the club's scholarship fund.

WHY GROW OLD?

Results of Diet Should Be Evident Very Soon

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Those of you who started following "Why Grow Old's?" 9-Day Reducing Diet last Tuesday probably are beginning to feel and look better. However, you are only about halfway to the goal of a loss of from five to 10 pounds. Just stay in there for another few days! If you think your results should be better by now, remember, people lose weight at varying speeds.

Reducing has been taken out of the three-ring circus and put on a sound basis.

Today's good slimming diet is WELL-BALANCED, and often gives you more vitamins, minerals and proteins than the fair-to-average diet provides. Many women find that they have increased energy as they lose pounds.

The menus for Monday:

BREAKFAST
One-half grapefruit
One boiled egg
One thin dry slice of whole wheat toast
Black coffee

LUNCHEON
Chicken sandwich (no butter—thin slices of whole wheat bread)
Sliced tomatoes or canned tomatoes
One glass skimmed milk

DINNER
Minute steak or chops
Salad of shredded cabbage and carrots
One-half cup spinach-greens or broccoli
One-half grapefruit
One glass skimmed milk

IF YOU have missed some of the menus which have been published in your newspaper this week, or would like to have my complete 9-Day Reducing Diet which gives you a loss of from five to 10 pounds in a convenient booklet, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Lucianna Sodani, Italian soprano, will sing at Sisterhood of Temple Beth Sholom donor luncheon Tuesday noon in Lakewood Country Club. The program also will feature a TV and film star.

Mrs. Baldwin is donor chairman. Mrs. Kohn is in charge of reservations and Mrs. Surlow of telephone inquiries.

A ROSE, IS A ROSE, is a rose. But when it's being added to bouquet for such an event as Sisterhood of Temple Beth Sholom's donor luncheon, where it goes makes lots of difference. Here (left) Mmes. Robert Baldwin, Mary Frank and Edward Rhodes pool talent in flower arranging for event, which will take place Tuesday noon in Lakewood Country Club.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Talk to Friends—Pop, Too

DEAR ABBY: All my friends are either 16 or 17. I like my friends and want to keep them as friends, but here is my problem: My father wears a hair piece and when he walks by my friends, they say "bow wow" and "meow" and make fun of his hair piece. My father never says anything to them because he is too embarrassed. Abby, how can I tell my friends to quit making fun of my father?—BOTHERED

ABBY

DEAR BOTHERED: Tell them that their sense of humor is off, and they are being cruel. They will understand if you approach them seriously. P. S. your father should take a long look at his hair piece.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor borrowed our vaporizer and she never returned it. When we needed it, I had to go to her house and get it. She said, "Oh, I'm sorry you had to come after it. I guess I should have returned it." Then her husband turned to me and piped up. "There is no reason for us to have returned it. You KNEW where the vaporizer was and it is just as safe at our house as it is at yours!" Can you imagine anyone so inconsiderate and stupid? How can we refuse to lend things without giving our neighbors the impression that we are selfish?—NOT SELFISH

DEAR NOTSELFISH: Not all neighbors are as inconsiderate and ignorant as the husband of your friend. But a good rule is: "Neither a borrower nor a lender be."

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: Many of your men readers, including myself, must agree with the prospective bridegroom who prefers twin beds. Women would be surprised to know how many men would rather sleep alone but who won't admit it for fear of being ridiculed. I think two people sleeping in one bed is the most stupid of all marriage customs. It was understandable in the log cabin days due to lack of space. But in this health-conscious age why should an intelligent adults put up with someone breathing in his face, kicking him in the stomach, arms and legs suddenly flung across his chest, snoring, cold feet and having one side of the bed slanted down because of weight difference? Can you explain it?—PENSI

DEAR PENSI: I haven't seen any surveys on how many married couples sleep apart and, if so, whose idea it was. But I would guess that as many women prefer solo slumber as men. As for cold feet, flying arms and legs and snoring, it's the little woman who takes the beating.

For a personal (unpublished) reply to your problem, send Abby a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Shop Is Talent Storehouse

What good is artistic talent unless it's put to use?

That's the question craft-conscious Ann Lahde asked herself several years ago.

The result: She opened a shop where local people with a knack for making things (from aprons to earrings) could display their work.

Now her small store is a picture of careful clutter with shelves - full of handicrafts from both near and far; shell jewelry from Long Beach; reindeer horn spoons from Lapland.

And for those interested in India, there's a large variety of items from that country brought to Mrs. Lahde by a Hindu friend and a missionary.

Among the shop's multifarious merchandise are the following.

Under $5

Temptingly tatted notes. For those who prefer unusual stationary, handmade cards decorated with water color sketches and raised flowers tatted in pastel shades are real find.

* * * *

Belt beauties from Switzerland come in variety of gay colors. They are handwoven, range in price from $2.50 to $6.50.

Give a belle a bell. Richly decorated brass bells from India add up to gay interior decorating touches. They are engraved in original designs with color added through baked on enamel.

Under $10

Maharaja money for Milady. In India, death of Maharaja makes his personal coins (decorated with his emblem) valueless, as far as monetary transactions are concerned. But, the coinage can add up to big value when fashioned into fine necklaces, etc. Mrs. Lahde has fortune in such Maharaja wealth, which she is having made into unusual pieces of jewelry. She also displays heavy Indian-made silver collar of filigree—you can be sure it can't be duplicated.

Under $25

Anyone for opium? Charming oriental opium holder could be used as dressing table accessory, etc. It's of solid brass, features clever peacock lock, four containers, rests on elephant fashioned legs.

In linen line, shop features Indonesian hand woven materials, $10 for 3 yards; Indian Saris, 1⅓ by 5 yards at $25, and handmade embroidery work for table.

FOR additional information about items and store where they may be purchased, telephone the Independent, Press - Telegram, HE 5-1161, Ext. 348.

Wool Shrinkage — Excess fullness in the knee of wool slacks can be "shrunk-in" by a simple technique. Place an untextured wool cloth on the knee and a cotton press cloth on top of this. (Moisten the cloth if you haven't a steam iron.) Continue to press until fullness has disappeared, checking progress as you go. Or ask your cleaner to do this for you.

Blackwell Needles Hollywood Pin-Ups

and lions on the lawn.

Blackwell has set himself up as Hollywood's "controversial designer" and plays his role to the hilt.

"A STAR should be a star at all times," is his credo. "She shouldn't be a slob at the supermarket, then a dream-walking at the premier."

Stating he creates clothes for "self-satisfaction, not money," this rebel-with-a-cause stated:

"I design for my kind of woman, who is smart, wants a little high fashion, doesn't want to spend a fortune on clothes, is looking for a husband or wants to keep the one she has."

About Over-There: "I am not influenced by Paris. I go there for fun, not inspiration. Foreign designers do not understand American women, their way of life —OR their figures."

As to the future of fashion: "I don't think the American woman will give up feminity for space. Even if she is going to the moon, she will want to be well-dressed. After-all, she never knows whom she might meet there."

ALTHOUGH his worst-dressed list includes some of Hollywood's sexiest sirens, Mr. Blackwell stated he isn't against sex appeal.

If he designed for the Mansfield-Monroe-Loran curves, would he exercise camouflage?

"No. I certainly wouldn't hide their charms, but would try to avoid being flamboyant."

"I love Jane Mansfield, think she is a great gal. But I wish she wouldn't show so much. She gives the wrong impression."

Numbered among his own clientele are Lily Pons, Janis Page, Joan Crawford, Barbara Hale, Sandra Dee, Shirley Jones, Terry Moore and Ann Blyth.

WHO DOES he consider best-dressed among the stars? Audrey Hepburn and Dean Martin.

"Audrey dresses with taste and thought," he noted. "And Dean Martin is always in the very best of dress wherever he's seen."

About his own jivey-Ivy mode of dress—high-water pants so slim they just miss being leotards, a slither of a necktie and short-stop jacket:

"I would not recommend my dress for the nation's male population. It's too high fashion."

Answers to other random questions: "I love Liz Taylor's leopard coat . . . Jackie's pillbox should be in a drugstore on a shelf with the pills . . . skirts have gotten too short, will be much lower for fall . . . Bikinis look great on Bardot and if you have the figure wear them."

He predicts demise of the Twist this summer. "Too hot for the fastidious woman," is his simple comment.

What will replace it? "Personally, I like the waltz," said he. "It makes a woman look like a lady."

And that's what Blackwell says.

Aid Lawyers Tell Rewards

yer it offers a chance to know a city—its judges and courtrooms."

Schulein, married and the father of two, had his own practice in Washington for 10 years before coming here.

"I was laid-up in the Long Beach VA Hospital for a year and a half," he says. "When released, I called the Bar Association to check on openings—and they hired me."

Now Schulein handles the majority of in-office cases while Zimmerman represents clients in court.

* * * *

MANY of the persons who enter the office have no real legal problem. "They are merely bewildered, frightened and unsure of their rights," says Schulein, who views such interviews with calm compassion.

Both he and Zimmerman are emphatic about the importance of the work they perform, feel Legal Aid is a necessity.

"Lack of money should not spell inequality," says Zimmerman. "Our clients are often the least able to fight their own cases—the most likely to be taken advantage of."

Though most of Legal Aid counseling deals with serious problems of privation and want, a few cases in the lighter vein occasionally appear.

One of Zimmerman's favorites: The case of the closeted dentures. Seems the plaintiff wanted to go to work. To foil the move, her husband put her false teeth under lock and key.

Zimmerman managed to settle this one out of court. A phone call turned the lock and the lady (plus shining, toothy smile) departed for the office.

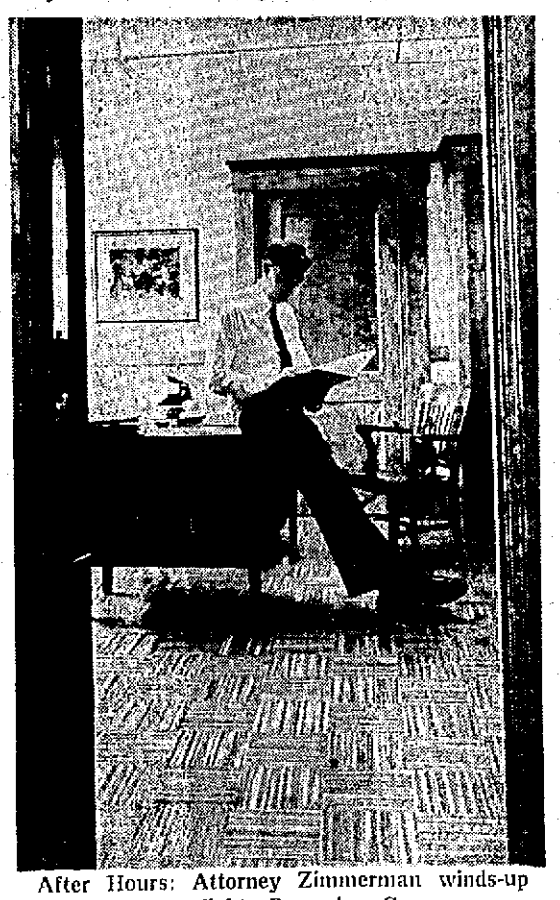

* * * *

THE LEGAL AID office also is headquarters for Lawyers' Reference Service, which suggests attorneys for persons who have money to hire private counsel but don't know whom to contact.

Zimmerman and Schulein are aided by a full-time secretary and volunteer workers from Lawyers Wives, who recently contributed money to refurbish the waiting room.

The work doesn't add up to Cadillacs or caviar where the two young attorneys are concerned but it does have its rewards.

"We often hear from clients long after a case is closed," says Schulein. Their most often repeated remarks —"I don't know what I would have done without your help. I didn't know where to turn."

After Hours: Attorney Zimmerman winds-up day—Late at Night—Preparing Case.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Is Cooking 'Computer'

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.-P-T Food Editor

Harley A. Thornson

As branch manager of IBM, Long Beach, since August of '61 he's usually guiding the destinies of the IBM 1620 digital computer.

But the appearance of Harley Thronson, today's Chief of the Week, has strictly to do with his ability as a cook. A kitchen range knows nothing of "extra sensory perception," but it's far more challenging than his IBM brain buster.

Thronson was born in Chippewa Falls, Wis. He received his education in that state, graduating from University of Wisconsin in 1942 with a B.A. in accounting.

That same year he joined the Navy and spent World War II seeing action in New Guinea, Dutch Moluccas and the Philippines. A lieutenant, he commanded a P-T boat. HIS boat dodged a bullet too!

* * * *

DISCHARGED in 1946, he joined IBM as a salesman in the Chicago area. After seven years there, and in Madison, Wis., he moved to Endicott, N.Y., where he was instructor in that company's sales training program for two years. Thronson's next stop was Pittsburgh, Pa., where he served as data processing manager.

He again returned to Chicago and served as regional personnel and education manager for three years before coming to Long Beach last August.

A member of Beta Alpha Psi and Pi Kappa Pi fraternities, Thronson is a past president of the Exchange Club, Madison, Wis., and is an associate member of the National Machine Accountants Association. A Long Beach Rotarian, he belongs to El Bekal Shrine, the Pacific Coast Club, the Shrine Club and the Sales & Management Executives Club. Active in the Chamber of Commerce, he's also general chairman of the Dan Beard Council Scout-a-rama for 1962.

Thronson doesn't exactly take-his-sports - sitting-down. Baseball and Spring bring him-to-life with a gusto. It takes two TVs and a radio all going at once, each with a different game, to keep him abreast of what's doing and where.

Married to a Washington University graduate, he and Mrs. Thronson have "weathered" some pretty rough New Year's Days when Washington played Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl.

* * * *

HIS HELPFUL domestic intentions, while sincere, are usually "excused" because of sons, Harley, Jr., 13, Charlie, 11, and Robert, 3½. They and their activities are more fun, anyway.

A coffee addict, there's potent magic in his concoctions. One cup, and you're rarin' to go! As a lad in Chippewa, our "chef" worked in "Hamburger Heaven," and today he can hold-his-own with he best in whipping up a hamburger or flipping a hotcake.

His recipe today for Charlie's Beans and Pork Chops, is so named, after his son, who can eat them any time, any place. Thronson guarantees the recipe, too, for while his first venture was a bit unsuccessful, he's made it so often since, that he's mastered the dish to the 'nth degree of perfection.

CHARLIE'S BEANS AND PORK CHOPS

6 man-sized servings
12 rib or center cut pork chops
1 large can (3 lb. 3 oz) baked beans
½ cup tomato catsup
¼ cup molasses
½ tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. instant minced onion

Brown chops in skillet. Season with salt, pepper and season salt. Set chops aside. Pour beans and remaining ingredients into skillet, stir, scraping pork chop drippings from bottom of pan. Into baking dish place layer of pork chops, then beans, then chops, with last layer of beans on top. Add a little water if desire more moisture. Bake 325° for 1 hour, or until chops are well done.

Serve with tossed salad, French bread and a light dessert. This is an excellent main dish for picnics, stags, family gatherings or late-comers, as it can be held for hours by putting a cover on it and turning the oven to "warm."

'Uppercut' Is Defense

No one has ever constructed a set of par hands without one example of the play called the "Uppercut." Bill Root, who did such a splendid job with this year's intercollegiate tournament, has not gone against this precedent.

The uppercut occurs when a defender ruffs with a moderately high trump and forces declarer to use a really high trump to win the trick.

East and West should arrive at four spades and North and South should defeat the contract. South should cash two hearts and the ace of diamonds, then lead the third heart for North to ruff with the ten spot. This play will establish South's queen of trumps as the setting trick.

	NORTH	5

WEST		EAST (D)

No one vulnerable.

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ♥	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♥ K

* * * *

IT SHOULD be noted that South must cash his ace of diamonds before leading the third heart. Otherwise, East will simply discard his losing diamond and the uppercut will not have worked.

How should South make sure that his partner will ruff with his highest trump? He should lead the queen of hearts after taking the king and continue with a low heart to make his message absolutely plain.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

The Trick's in the Divider

Providing children's rooms with dividers, as pictured here, is a trick that leads to full enjoyment, is conducive to tidiness and is not often found in home planning.

When Architect J. Richard Shelley recently designed a home for his own family at 197 Rivo Alto Canal, the rooms for his children received top consideration. The ingenious use of a plywood partition has proved the key to tidiness in the rooms of both boys.

The room is separated into two parts: the sleeping room and the play area. A plywood partition, painted to match the room, forms the divider. Spaciousness is maintained since the plywood does not quite reach the ceiling.

The bedroom section is carpeted, the play area tiled. Built-in desk and large work area are both functional and attractive. The play area side of the plywood serves as a bulletin board. Scattered toys are not in evidence from the other side of the room.

An adaption of this plywood divider would be workable even in relatively small rooms, since size of either the bedroom or play area is not of major importance. The fact that the room is divided is the trick that outsmarts even the busiest youngster with countless treasures to accommodate.

—STELLA GEORGE.

Kitchen Remodeling on a Budget

By Dee Zeiner

If your kitchen is dark and gloomy, crowded and with no place for informal meals, cramped for working space and storage — if you feel sometimes like kicking out a wall . . . could be you have the solution.

A reputable remodeling specialist can show you how to modernize your outmoded kitchen in a style to fit almost any budget. One of the best places to get one-stop home improvement service, according to Celotex Corporation's remodeling experts, is from your local building materials dealer. He not only can help design your new kitchen and supply all required materials, but in most cases will also arrange for approved contractors and assist with financing.

If your problem is lack of space, you may want to shift an interior wall or remove an exterior wall to add another room.

IF YOU are dissatisfied with the kitchen's appearance, consider some of the modern building materials aimed specifically at dressing up home decor. Two products now gaining increasing popularity for kitchen remodeling are fiberboard acoustical ceiling tile and woodgrain hardboard paneling.

Acoustical ceiling tile absorbs up to 70 percent of the sound striking it, preventing harsh noises from being amplified and considerably softening kitchen clatter.

Acoustical tile is available in a wide range of patterns featuring miniature perforations or deep etch fissures and in diamond white and printed finishes. Costs vary from 18 to 28 cents per square foot.

HARDBOARD paneling is offered in several realistic cherry and walnut woodgrain finishes and can add a breath of luxury for as little as 23 cents per square foot. The paneling, in 16-inch or 4-foot wide panels, features a scuff-resistant factory-applied finish which requires no waxing and can be cleaned with a damp sponge.

Although local prices may vary somewhat, this is what you will get for that $263: acoustical ceiling tile (288 sq. ft.) — $52; woodgrain hardboard paneling (about 420 sq. ft.)—$90; furring for application of ceiling tile and hardboard—$29; asphalt floor tile —$34; birch door with pine jamb, trim and hardware—$28; studs, base plates, cove and base modeling—$30.

If you are operating on an extra tight budget, the cost of your family room can be cut to as little as $198, by selecting decorative non-acoustical ceiling tile, limiting the woodgrain hardboard paneling to one accent wall and using masonry paint on the other walls.

Barbecue Twins

Before you fire up your barbecue for a summer of patio pleasure, don't overlook two newly-revised books from which you may gain tremendous prestige as a host or hostess.

They are the well-known "Sunset Barbecue Book" and its barbecue companion "The Sunset Salad Book" (Lane Book Co., Menlo Park, Calif., $1.95 each).

For down-to-earth techniques and recipes, the barbecue book has never been surpassed. In its 160 pages are 483 tested recipes, illustrated with drawings and 100 photos. It also tells all about "firemanship" which means getting the fire started; shopping for meat, and such forms of barbecuing as broiling on the grill, skewer cooking, roasting on the spit, fire-pit and smoke cooking. Other chapters are on sauces and marinades and barbecue accompaniments.

"Salad Book" contains 301 recipes for a wide variety of delectable salads and salad dressings, making it a "must" for ambitious outdoor chefs.

Remodeling Gives Homes New Glamour

By Jim McCauley

THE BOXY tract home — the mass-produced dwelling that spawned suburbia and solved Long Beach area's postwar housing problems a decade ago—is disappearing.

It is being glamorized and expanded in a wave of additions and remodelings. Starts on additions now top new-home building in Long Beach area, and the trend is growing.

Even Kilroy wouldn't recognize the transformation that is changing the face of postwar tract homes. After remodeling and additions, many look like custom-built homes.

The latest trend: to add whole second stories. Formalism and traditionalism are staging a comeback. Going in are more brick archways, courtyards, clipped hedges, louvers, shutters, large pots, nice latterns and simple forms.

FAMILY ROOMS, the favorite addition in the 1950s, are giving ground to expansion of more conventional rooms. Dining rooms, shunted to a minor role in most new-home housing plans during the past decade, are becoming increasingly popular.

One contractor said: "The feeling is that when the family is able to eat in a separate room, manners improve and it is conducive to a far better way of life."

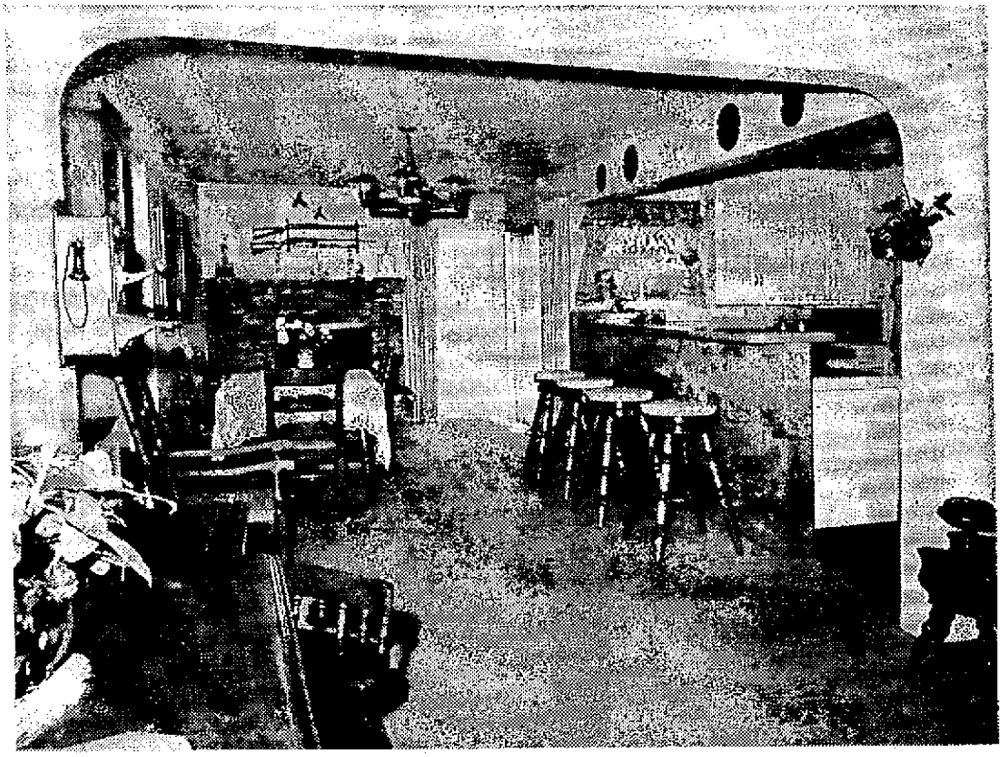

Another interesting development in new additions: the indoor-outdoor life has proved too much for some Southlanders. Many families are screening and roofing patio areas. Pools now are subdued to supplement the landscaping—not dominate it.

Also going big, contractors say, are bedroom additions, kitchen renovations for built-ins, extra bathrooms, swimming pools and patios. Many families are using large window areas with open sliding glass doors.

GROWING FAMILIES, rising prices for new homes, available financing for additions and a shortage of good building sites in the Southland all have induced more home owners to expand rather than to seek new housing.

Why stay put and expand rather than move? It often is both more economical and convenient. Often, a comparably good new-home site cannot be found without relocating miles away. THAT means uprooting the family, sometimes increasing commuting costs and financing a new home loan at today's higher interest charges.

FHA short-term home improvement loans are available for 5 per cent discounted—figuring out at about 10 per cent for its true annual rate.

Newest home addition trend is dining room expansion. L. M. Bishop, 1830 Greenbrier Rd., extended the rear of his home by 12 feet to increase the dining area, add a fireplace and make room for a breakfast bar.

EDWARD M. O'CONNOR, Long Beach building superintendent, said some do-it-yourself craftsmen tackle their own addition. But most turn to a contractor—and many use an architect.

One banker cautioned home owners to plan any addition carefully. He urged that a reputable architect be retained and asked to determine whether the planned addition meets FHA specifications. One home owner planned poorly, and he ran into problems on getting a loan commitment when he sold his house later.

Addition costs vary widely — dependent on many factors. But most range from $11 to $15 a square foot. The cost can be pared slightly if the home owner does the painting.

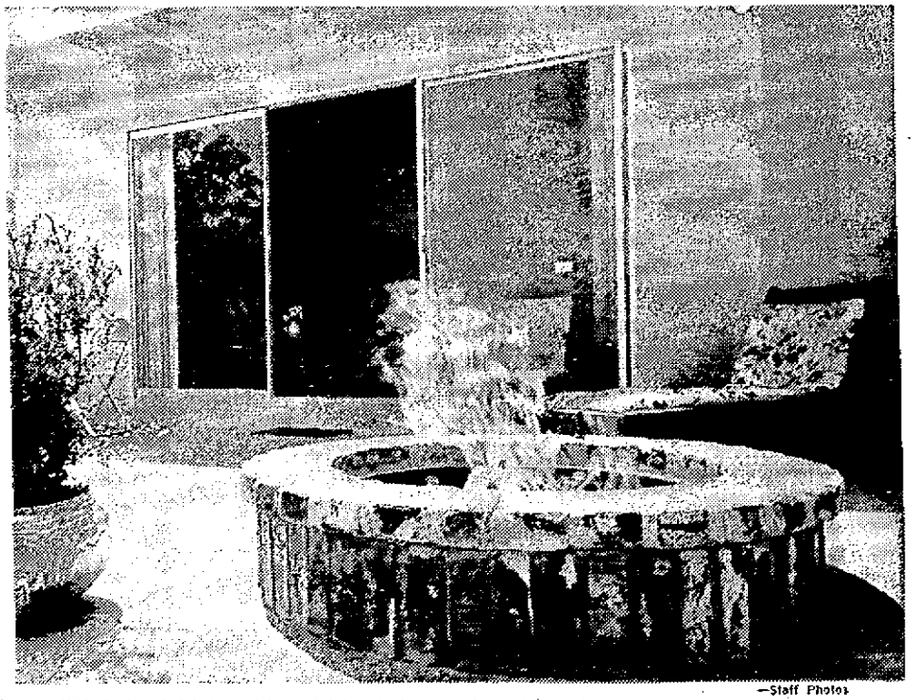

NEW ACRILIC paints are out now which stick to almost any surface. Gray golds, lavender grays and cool browns with light accents are the latest color trends, according to architect Edward Killingsworth Jr.

One veteran painter also reported that many Long Beach home owners have scrapped two-tone colors—and the trim is getting the same color paint as the rest of the house.

A vast array of new, exciting materials have bowed on the market in recent years.

Fiber glass panel now simulates shake stone. Tiles, plastics and ceramics also are being used. Other trends: metal doors and windows; insulation board sheeting over roof beams, radiant-heated ceilings, heat pumps and dry wall construction.

—Staff Photos

Home at 5759 Cedar Ave. looks forward as carpenter Glenn Bruss and son, Don, prepare to expand the dwelling's front. Warmth of fire-ring blaze comes right into this Los Altos home by reason of a new, 16-foot sliding glass door. This $3,500 addition gives modern look to a tract home.

Having a pool is like a year-around vacation, says one owner of such a back-yard play area. Teen-agers take special joy in having pool parties.

Pool? More Families Take the Plunge

By John Ronson

NEW LONG BEACH area families each week are taking the plunge into a back-yard swimming pool. Four hundred pools were built in Long Beach last year and the outlook is for even more in 1962.

Pools, one-time status symbol of only the plushest neighborhoods, now are invading the back yards of many modest homes. So many pools dot the scene that—from the air—Long Beach area resembles resort lake country.

Increasingly, pools have become the center of the family's recreational activity. The swim-pool craze blacks out television sets, keeps teenagers at home and makes Junior the most popular kid on the block.

"OUR FAMILY recreation costs have dropped substantially since we built a pool 18 months ago," said one Los Altos housewife.

A pool with minimum accessories now costs about the same as a new car. "And the depreciation is much less," added one new pool owner. Easy financing, public beach congestion, and the keep-up-with-the-Joneses pool pressure all have combined to spur the pool-building boom here.

How do you plan to build a pool? There are a multitude of decisions—though for most families the plan-and-dream stage is half the fun.

MOST IMPORTANT decision is selection of the right builder. Pick someone who is reliable and has a good reputation in the community. The Better Business Bureau, the contractors' licensing board or credit agencies may be able to tell you whether your prospective contractor has a sound business record. Most reliable contractors also can obtain a completion bond.

The cost of the pool varies with the size and extras. Pools start at around $2,000 but many of the installations run double that when custom features, accessories and extras are figured in. A $4,000 pool may add about $75 in property taxes annually. You also should figure on $12.50 to $35 a month for chemicals and cleaning.

Another tip: check your home liability insurance to be sure you are covered on swimming-pool mishaps. Sometimes the premium is a few dollars extra with a pool.

EVEN IN THE MILD Southland climate, swimming in unheated pools often is limited to two to four months a year. For year-around swimming, plan on a heating system. The cost of gas for heating water may double your pool operating costs during the more severe winter months.

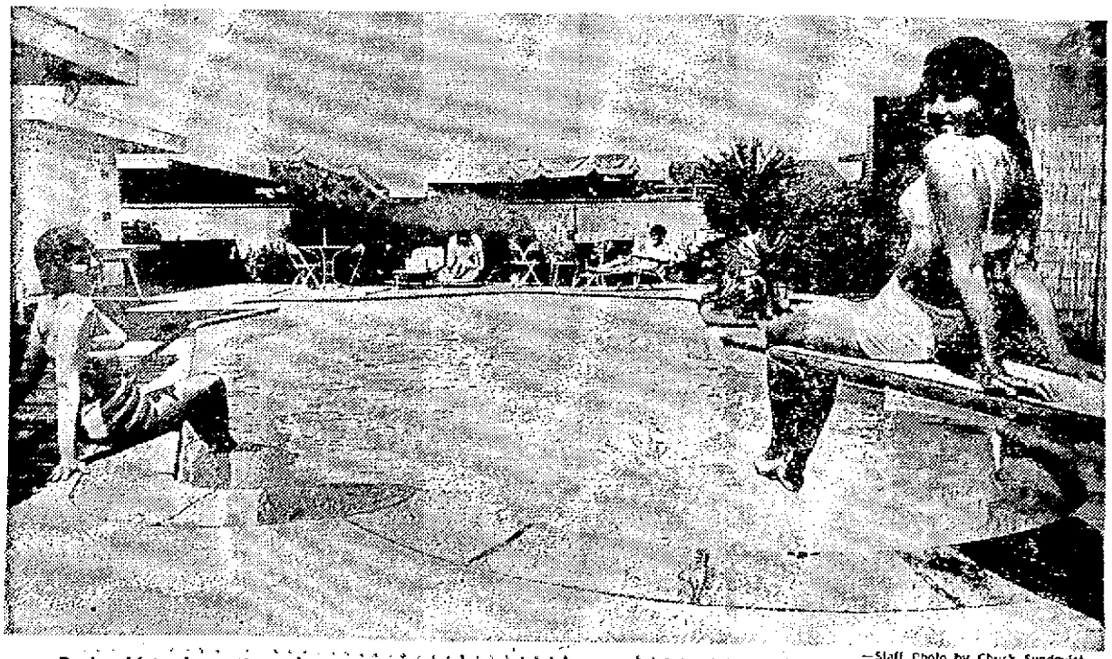

The ideal shape for your pool is the one best adapted to your yard. Consult your architect or pool builder for advice here. The modern trend is away from square corners and rectangular shapes. Most popular pool recently: the kidney-shaped—one of the most picturesque.

Pools also have brought spectacular landscaping effects and an array of new play devices to back yards. Waterfalls, sea horses, floating chairs, water games, shimmering lights, flipper fins, arched pool bridges, islands, miniature boats and rafts are making frequent appearances in the pool paradises of Long Beach back yards.

"It is a perpetual vacation," said one proud new pool owner, a Long Beach school teacher.

Tips to Follow for Pool Safety

1. Allow children to swim only under adult supervision.
2. Keep inflated tube handy to pool.
3. Stay out of pool for one hour after meals.
4. Close gates and maintain fences so wandering tots are excluded.
5. Keep water well-chlorinated to fight growth of algae and bacteria.
6. Illuminate pool for night swimming and to help prevent falls into pool.
7. Run filters so pool water is completely filtered every 24 hours.
8. Cover pool during off-season with plastic or canvas top strong enough to support anyone who falls in.

Pools add to decorative values of the home, having come far from original rectangular shapes. This pool is a happy installation at the Morton Herz home, 1864 Pattiz Ave., where family and friends have unending pleasure.

Our hero, bucket and brush.

Look Ma I'm...Oops

A BRUSH, a can of paint—and thou! (With apologies to Omar!) What ambitions . . . what dreams . . . what undoing! Into every man's life comes the urge to paint his house—if he owns a house, of course. He hies down to the paint store for a brush and a bucket of goo. He borrows a ladder from his neighbor. He dons old clothing. Then up he goes to the wild roof yonder, and it's everybody for himself, including spectator kids who shouldn't stand so close. But let Eric Wahleen's pictures tell the story . . .

Up to the wild roof yonder . . . Oops! Look out below!

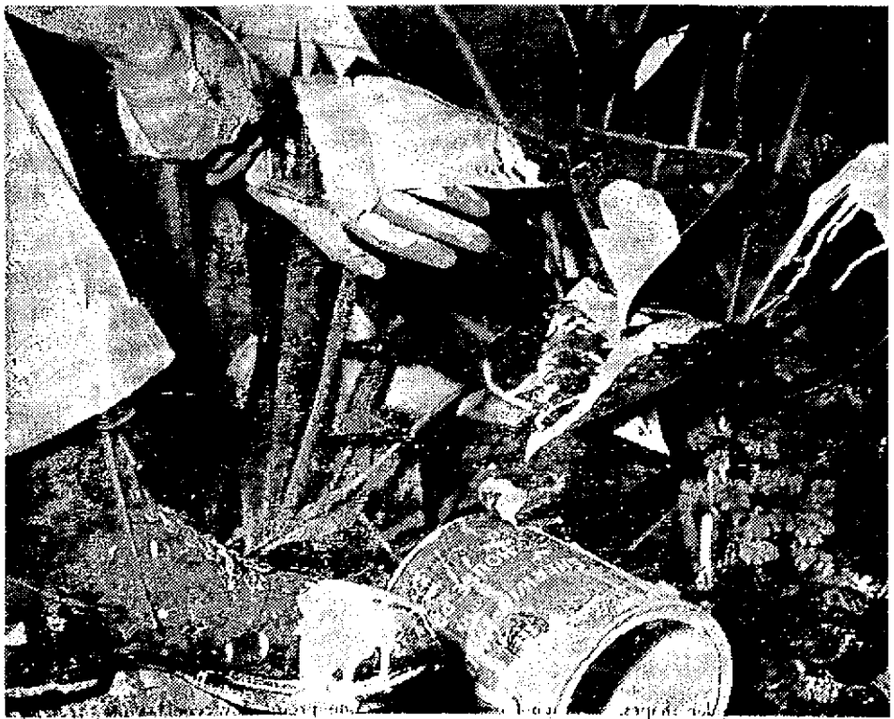

Everything that goes up must come down . . . some things taking longer than others!

Personality Cottage

By Stella George

PERSONALITY — an indefinable factor—is not necessarily inherent in an architecturally well-designed house, as Mr. and Mrs. Richard Steyer, 1292 W. Taper St., have proved in their home.

When the Steyers first moved in, the house was unimaginative in design and ripe for the architectural and decorative changes that the new owners saw as possibilities. The living quarters then consisted of a living room and a separate kitchen. Now the two rooms are merged into one spacious area, made even larger with the end of the room being set out several feet to incorporate a fireplace and a place for sit-down dining.

A large bar, placed just off-center at the right rear, separates the living room from the portion of the kitchen that includes the sink and work area and the refrigerator. At the end of the room, next to the fireplace, the stove and cooking accessories (spice shelf, etc.) are blended into the used brick background, assuming a decorative aspect in themselves.

THE CREATIVE talents of both the Steyers are evident in every corner of the room and in many small details that add to comfort or attractiveness. A small couch with a used brick base runs at right angles to the fireplace, with the bricks carried up at one end to form an end table. Twin wing-back maple chairs face the fireplace with a small coffee table on a hand hooked rug in front. Mrs. Steyer made the rug and others like it in the home.

The bar has sit-down space for as many as eight persons. On the kitchen side are regular bar stools with comfortable backs. On the living room side, plow seats mounted on iron legs are decorative and unusual.

Cupboards and drawers are in abundance both above and below the bar. A divider at the end of the bar appears, at first glance, to be circles of brightly hued glass set in a frame. Close inspection reveals that the "glass" is cellophane paper glued on heavy cardboard rings — the latter created from a long roll used to store carpets! Mrs. Steyer originally designed the piece as a gay Christmas decoration, only to find that it served a year-around purpose.

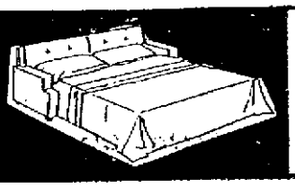

OLD AND treasured small items acquired over the years are hung at random on the wall near the back door. There is an old pincher for hog's nose rings, a rug hooker, a 40-gauge bullet mold, a rug beater, a hand-carved needle holder, an old muffin pan, to name but a few. Nearby on the floor is a milking stool, and close by, an old clothes plunger.

Wool chenille carpeting is used on the living room floor. An upholstered couch faces a slender and graceful maple couch. An old dry sink, now polished and gleaming, acts as a small sideboard in one corner. A row of pitchers in an assortment of sizes and colors are set on a high shelf above the front door and window.

The Early American theme is carried out in the bedrooms, one of which (there are three) is used as a den. In the latter, even the TV is enclosed in an appropriate setting. Embroidered cars, mounted in little frames, line one wall. Even the door is given that added touch with triple tiered curtains instead of a panel.

As mentioned before, this is a home with personality and it extends a warm glow of greeting to the visitor. In miniature it would be a doll's house; in real life it is an enchanting cottage.

Traditional in conception with modern ideas, this handsome two-story house has side-entry attached garage, with family room in the rear. Many features are included.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Best of Past and Present Joined

By Jules Loh

MODERN DAY architects have come up with ranch houses, raised ranch houses and split levels of nearly every conceivable variety. But let's face it, grandad's traditional two-story is tough to beat when you apply the tests of economy, livability and convenience.

House of the Week B-71, an attractive plan for a three-bedroom family, offers the benefits of two-story construction but also features modern housing appearance and ideas.

As architect Herbert C. Struppman put it, "I took the advantages of traditional design, combined them with present needs, and the house just sort of designed itself."

B-71 has 1,130 square feet of living area on the first floor, not counting the 470-square-foot double garage, and 830 square feet in three bedrooms and two baths on the second story. It also has a full basement.

THE FIRST FLOOR design provides excellent "circulation" — something grandfather's two-story concept often lacked.

The front entrance vestibule and hall leading to the living room and kitchen assures privacy as well as convenience for daily living. Any part of the house can be reached without disturbing activities in any other part.

The kitchen is a pleasure for any housewife—a 16x11-3 work center with a sunny dinette corner.

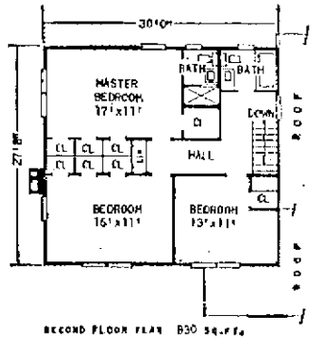

DOWN A STEP is the family room which, like the entire house, is itself a contemporary feature with traditional touches. Focal point of this 11 feet 3 inches by 24 feet 3 inches casual area is a handsome colonial fireplace. But its most practical feature is a lavatory tucked away where it is convenient not only to persons indoors but also to children playing outside who may enter through the garage or rear entrance.

If there was one thing lacking in grandfather's two-story it was adequate storage space and closets. Not so with this house. There are 10 closets in all, including a family-sized linen closet upstairs and a well-placed coat closet in the front vestibule.

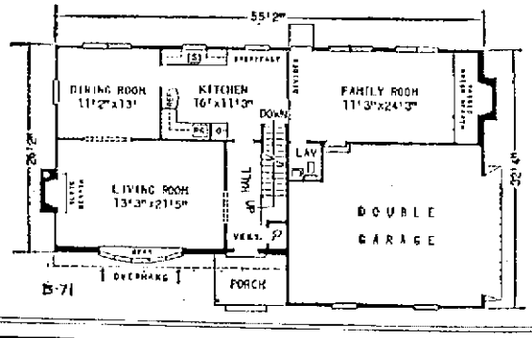

Note the roomy walk-in closet in the master bedroom in addition to the spacious triple closets which also serve as a sound buffer between the two adjoining bedrooms. Other storage opportunities are in the basement and the nearly full-depth alcove in the garage.

ECONOMY of two-story design makes possible some luxury features (such as three baths and two fireplaces) not usually found in a three-bedroom home. And B-71's dimensions — 32 feet 4 inches by 55 feet 2 inches——adapt it to a modest sized lot.

Front vestibule and hall provide excellent circulation in this well-set-up home. Note abundance of closets — ten in all — plus storage alcove in the garage, a full basement.

Colonial charm is reflected in this artist's conception of the family room. Fireplace has built-in benches facing across room. A lavatory is offset from the spacious area.

Upstairs there is a minimum of hall space, but more than enough to make good passage possible and to assure the privacy of each of the three large bedrooms.

For gracious living, it would be hard to beat B-71's 13 feet 3 inches by 21 feet 5 inches living room with its formal fireplace and big bow window with built-in seat overlooking the front garden. Wide arches are used from the front entry into the living room and between the living and dining rooms.

The exterior of the house is a handsome combination of shingles and stone veneer in true colonial fashion. But its increased width, resulting from the side-entry garage, provides a dimension of suburban distinction characteristic of modern-day architecture.

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 50 cents and request House of the Week Study Plan, Design B-71.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Lighting Has a New 'Eye-Q'

YOUR "EYE-Q" is high if you look up—not down. The fashion trend for residential lighting, according to Lightolier, originators of many firsts in the home furnishing field, is to chandeliers. These symbols of elegance now return as a major focal point in today's home.

Decorators more and more favor the chandelier as a basic decorative theme for a distinctively designed room.

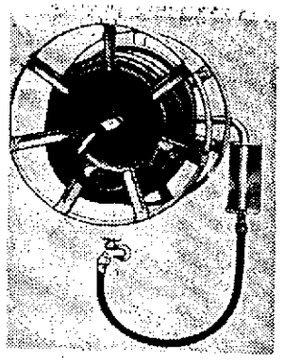

Luxurious embellishment is the keynote in today's decorative schemes. Elegant and elaborate accessories are used to bring flair to even the most moderately appointed interiors. The use of color too is more vibrant.

Chandeliers are making a comeback in the home as an important factor in decor.

TO MEET this decorative trend, Lightolier has introduced a veritable carnival of chandeliers. Pendants and ceiling fixtures now happily combine stylized designs with modern lighting techniques.

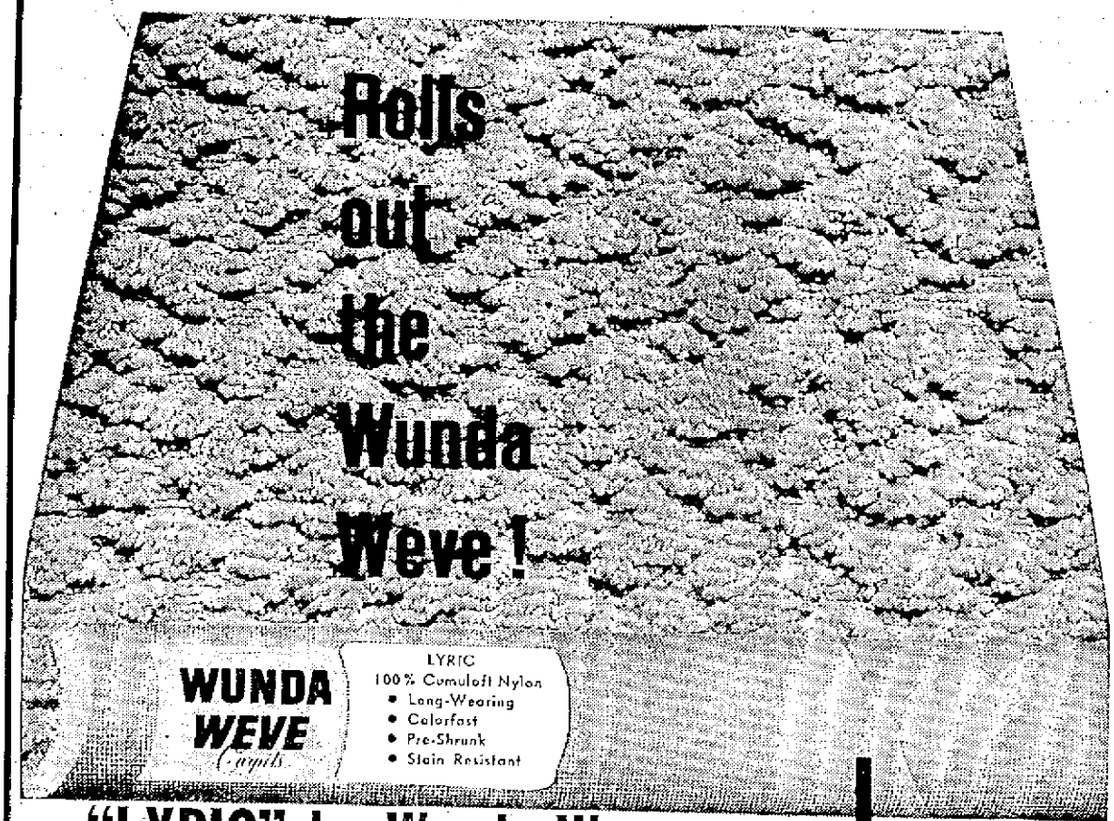

A chandelier in modern terms may be a cluster of individual pendants suspended to give dramatic emphasis as well as excellent illumination to an area. Some of these pendants are boldly scaled, others abound in varicolored glass or plastic, and some are formed of wicker in black.

FOR THOSE whose tastes are frankly on the "champagne level," there are elegant new approaches to crystal chandeliers. These are quite lavish, with the added "plus" of flexible controlled lighting. A light source is concealed within the crystal, and brings out all the brilliance of the sparkling prisms.

Hose reels are time and labor saving, adding to gardening fun. This one swings in and out, reels and unreels without turning water on and off.

Plan a Garden for Pleasure

THE BEAUTY and wholesomeness of garden living has taken America by storm. Today, with the development of smaller houses in communities throughout the country, many home-owners have discovered that one way to extend their houses is by using their outdoor space to full advantage. With the aid of vines, shrubbery and shade trees, they are making the patio a delightful place to dine, entertain and relax.

Nurserymen have many ideas to show how you can plan and plant such an outdoor space this spring, says the American Association of Nurserymen. Good planting plans, among other things, will indicate how the garden living room can be protected from cold or hot winds, whether in fall or the hot summer months. These plantings both increase comfort and lengthen the outdoor season.

In the usually small space of the patio the homeowner can develop a small but beautiful plant world in which it is a thrilling and luxurious experience to get away from it all.

AT LEAST one shade tree is important in the patio not only for coolness, but for the lacy, everchanging patterns of sun and shade that it casts on walls, floor and other plants. The wealth of foliage and flowering plants for the patio, developed in recent years, provides a wide choice.

Flowering plants and vines in baskets and jardinieres or boxes add to the luxurious feeling of the patio, and they can be changed when the choicest flowers are in season.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Looks and works like the real thing; no parts to get out of whack, and many parts can be cut from scrap.

By Bill Meyerriecks

TOYS that last are the ones that are simple. And the simple ones provide youngsters with the most fun.

You'll have to go some to find a toy more simple-than this wooden dump truck. Many of the parts can be cut from scrap. It's put together with glue and nails, and it will stay together under the worst kind of treatment.

The youngster can sit on the cab, roll it down the driveway, bury it in sand.

And as long as there's something around to haul and dump, your young engineer won't get tired of it. Like a real dump truck, as the box tilts the tailgate swings open. For spreading jobs, the clever child will soon discover that a block set between box and bed will hold the tilt as the truck rolls. There are no intricate parts to get out of whack.

The truck is big enough to do some man-sized hauling. Length is 26 inches and height is 11 inches. It is scaled to the same size as another Sketchbook wooden toy, the S-54 Steam Shovel, which makes an excellent companion piece and is also available for 50 cents.

The Sketchbook do-it-yourself plan provides full size patterns for parts with curved lines and exact dimensions for all others. Assembly is explained clearly in words and drawings in eight easy steps.

TO OBTAIN, send name and address with 50 cents for Dump Truck Plan S-56 to Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Barnyard Menagerie

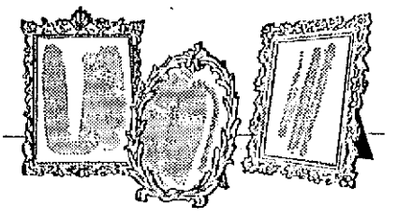

NBC-TV's Amy Fields is delighted with her assortment of animal cuties that are easily made from patterns.

EVERY DAY the mailman brings letters from readers who want full size patterns for little animals. Many, it seems, want to use them for lawn ornaments, den mothers for ideas that will help them to keep their cub scouts busy, farmers for their mail boxes, barns and weather vanes, mothers for patterns they can trace and paint on the walls of their children's rooms or paint on children's furniture

To obtain Pattern No. C-3 for making all the animals send $1 in currency, money order or check with name and address to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

And a Studio, Too

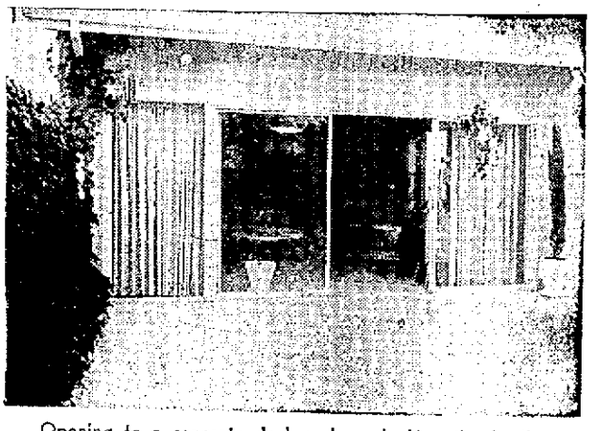

Well designed rumpus room, detached from the Irwin Cohen home, is decorated with Mrs. Cohen's art work.

SEPARATED from the house by a smooth carpet of cement, a detached rumpus room fulfills its purpose in an excellent way at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Cohen, 2753 Radnor St. The multi-purpose room is not only attractive but serves many functions, not the least of which is as an art studio for Mrs. Cohen.

The interior design is simple and well-planned. Cupboards hang from the ceiling to about four feet from the floor the full width of the room. The cupboards themselves are wide and spacious, affording storage space for countless items.

A wide two-piece sectional couch provides plenty of seating, with occasional chairs here and there. A large, round, mosaic coffee table was made by Mrs. Cohen. Her own paintings decorate the walls.

The room is ideal for entertaining, pursuit of hobbies, and everyday family use. Even the view from the large windows is pleasant: the clear, blue water of the family pool.—STELLA GEORGE.

Opening to a concrete deck and overlooking the family pool, this rumpus room provides for many activities.

BEFORE AND AFTER:

Homes Get New Values

BEFORE: House here was due for exterior face-lifting.

AFTER: New values in beauty; fire, weather protection.

By Paul Shoemaker

Treasurer: National Home Improvement Council

THESE DAYS millions of families are discovering how to live better. The secret? Remodeling to have "a new home at the old address." Improving the home has a number of advantages now being discovered in one out of every five households countrywide.

Modernizing gives new comfort, new convenience, new pleasure and, most important of all, increases property value of many out-of-date houses.

Sound, sensible home improvement increases value well beyond the cost of the improvement. For that reason remodeling becomes an investment rather than an expense and is like "putting money in the bank."

MOST FAMILIES have their pet fix-up project. Here's a quick rundown of some of the most popular: A remodeled kitchen is the favorite of homemakers everywhere who want new appliances to relieve the work load. Modern cabinets, lighting, new walls, flooring and ceilings are wanted to provide cheery surroundings in the "household center." New rooms are needed too (from additional baths to converting the attic or basement, to adding on to the present structure).

In addition to these, there are many more popular modernizing projects. Such things as swimming pools, breezeways, new heating and cooling equipment, additional storage space, wall paneling, wall papering and others to fit everyone's budget. All are guaranteed to make the home a better place in which to live.

The great need is to take care of growing families, give proper room for children's activities, for dad and mom to relax at day's end, for the whole family to live together in greater comfort.

EXTERIOR face lifting (and I don't mean adding a TV antenna). Modern, up-to-date families thing of outside remodeling as well as making the home inside more comfortable. Outside fix-up can range from a new paint job to re-siding to turning an old-fashioned porch into a sun room.

Here's important news. Home improvement financing is now readily obtainable at low rates. Improving your home today is as easy as buying a new car or financing a luxury vacation. For example, most homeowners can obtain sums up to $10,000 and repay over 20 years time under a government insured program. You can borrow lesser amounts, of course.

See your local building materials dealer or a finance institution in your community for more information on how you can remodel today, live better right where you are, and pay for the job in convenient monthly installments.

Orderly and efficient is this workshop at San Pedro home of Boynton Hays.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

A Workshop That's All Shop!

THERE IS AN EXTRA room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boynton Hays, 2019 35th St., San Pedro, that many men might envy. It is a work room that serves just that purpose for Boynton—and it is NOT a combination family room, TV room, and/or garage.

As the accompanying picture shows, it is streamlined to the point of excellence. Every saw, hammer and drill has a specific place to be stored. Screws, bolts and nails are stored in easy-to-reach jars. Drawers are marked according to their contents. A window provides plenty of daylight, and the electric lighting is well planned for efficiency. Here the picture tells the story: a dream workshop as well planned as the most modern kitchen.—STELLA GEORGE.

Good Landscaping Has Dual Value

By John Ronson

A WELL DONE landscape can be one of the chief resources of a home property. In addition to its aesthetic or utility purpose, a sound landscape often increases the real estate value of the home.

This is why this spring, 50 million homeowners are expecting to improve their properties with gardening programs ranging in size from a few shrubs to complete landscaping.

Home improvement through landscaping, usually brings a higher price to the homeowner, at time of resale. Well-landscaped homes bring 15 to 20 per cent more in the real estate markets, according to the American Association of Nurserymen.

Good landscaping need not be confined to luxury homes. Beauty at minimum cost, minimum care is easily gained.

INDEPENDENT studies show that a minimum of four per cent of the total value of the property invested in landscaping and planting will bring the higher return when and if the property is sold.

A sound requirement is always a basic landscape plan which can be used to guide the planting of the property from year to year. With a basic plan the homeowner does not have to plant all at once unless he wishes to. He can purchase plants piecemeal and when the landscape is finished he will have an artistic planting with excellent design.

Today professional landscape advice is available at modest cost to all homeowners, although just a few decades ago this service was associated only with wealthy persons who desired it for privacy and prestige.

MANY nurserymen now have specialists on their staffs to provide plans, and the emphasis is currently on more relaxed and easy, informal living.

It is more economical for the homeowner, when an experienced landscape nurseryman lays out the basic plan, the landscape nurseryman does not look at a property in terms of so many plants as an amateur is likely to do. He considers the topography of the land and the planting in terms of artistic design that will fit well in its surroundings, providing plenty of space for garden living or privacy, or whatever else may be desired in addition to the foundation planting or lawn.

All homeowners, no matter how small their properties may be, can have good, effective landscaping.

GOOD landscaping makes the house look attractive from the street; unifying house and land by use of trees and shrubs to provide a pleasing "lived-in" look to the house. . . . Sound landscaping includes a garden or outdoor living area, or patio planted for outdoor recreation, dining and entertaining.

Proper landscaping includes trees and shrubs that supply adequate shade and privacy to the living area. Where homes are exposed to cold winds in winter, proper planting of windbreaks offer more comfort on the property and lower fuel bills. . . . A well-planted property provides plenty of cut flowers for use inside the house.

The homeowner can achieve unlimited advantages from his land. The exterior of his home can be as lovely, as comfortable and as valuable as he makes it.

Use Pails of Steel

OUTSIDE gardening work requires strong, durable containers. Many containers that can be used indoors are not sturdy enough to carry dirt, seeds and soil additives.

Galvanized steel pails are recommended for outside use because they are rugged and versatile. These pails are made with leakproof seams, and have zinc coating to prevent rust and corrosion.

Durable zinc coating on all steel pails prevents scratching, and the pails can be used for any gardening chore after poisonous chemicals are carried if they are washed out thoroughly. Crevices in other types of containers often harbor poisonous chemicals that later contaminate plant food or seed.

Home handymen also find galvanized steel pails just the right size for mixing cement or paint for small repair jobs around the house. Twin pail sets are ideal since they have twice the capacity and are easy to carry.

Mama's New Convertible

By Eileen Heil

Hobbies can add to home clutter, but this little cabinet with code flags is an interesting storage compartment.

HOBBIES can be wonderfully rewarding but the clutter incidental to most of them can be pretty hard for your family to bear. When the hobby that was designed to keep you out of your family's hair threatens to drive them from the house something must be done. That was the situation at my house recently.

What I needed was some sort of filing system. A regular office type wouldn't do for I wanted something that wouldn't look out of place in the living room. A local department store had a shelf that was the perfect solution.

My filing system is basically a set of black metal shelves 36 inches wide by 39 inches tall and contains 9 cardboard boxes. The cardboard containers come in bright shades and make a most attractive unit. Any handy person could make a similar one by starting with a set of metal shelves and making wooden boxes to fit.

At the library, I looked up symbols for words in Chinese such as health, good luck, happiness and painted these on the little boxes. These made the cabinet more decorative and now that my files are more orderly they are more useful to my family as well as myself.

THE CHINESE symbols were chosen for their decorative value, not as an indication as to the contents of the boxes, and this produced some amusing results.

"Mama," said my grade schooler bustling in from school, "do you have any material on Father Serra?"

I glanced at the boxes with their varied symbols. "Father Serra," I mused, "that would be California history. Look under 'Happiness.'"

THE LITTLE cabinet can have multiple face lifts for different decorative effects. With adhesive backed coverings, spray paints and even wallpaper, I can see it have more lives than the proverbial cat.

"Hey, what's in the box marked with the red flag," asked a visiting sailor one day. "Does it hold a copy of Tropic of Cancer?"

"Tropic of Cancer! Isn't that the book that was banned?" said Jan. "I don't know what you mean; that's mama's new convertible; her filing system." She pulled out a box and reversed it to show the Chinese symbol on the back.

"It isn't only a letter," the sailor said, "that red flag in Navy code stands for a whole phrase, 'I am loading or unloading explosives.'"

I'm glad he didn't ask what was in "S" or "T." After the bragging my family has been doing about Mama being so well organized these days, I'd hate to have them know "S" and "T" stands for Stuff and Things.

Organize Storage

DEADEND areas in homes are useful for storage, but, of course, only organized storage will do.

Such spots include the end of a hallway, or one of the sides; under the stairs, over the kitchen cabinets, between kitchen cabinets, under the kitchen sink and bathroom lavatory, over the flush tank in the bathroom, over the washer or dryer, under laundry stationary tubs and similar locations.

Organized storage can be supplied readily in any of these areas by building cabinets that have handy sliding doors and convenient Peg-Board backs for hanging a variety of items on hooks or shelves.

SIMPLE lumber frameworks, fastened by means of corrugated metal fasteners, are the basis for cabinets anyone can build. These then are covered with rich-looking but low-cost Masonite hardboards, now available in woodgrained finishes as well as unfinished.

Sliding doors are a cinch with quarter-inch hardboard, as no framing is required and they operate in metal or wood channels. They conserve space, too.

Where it is desirable to have adjustable shelves, line the cabinet ends with Peg-Board panels and support wooden shelves on metal hooks that fit into the perforations.

Family Room Is A Modern Need

Complete with built-in stereo, TV, comfortable reading area and space for hobbies and work, this is an ideal family room. Floor is of custom designed sheet vinyl.

By O. N. Rene

HARDLY a family hasn't been faced with the need for more living space at one time or another. With the trend toward more informal living, one of the first areas to be considered in a home improvement project is a family room.

There seems to be three main influences behind the growth of family rooms: a trend to more informal living and more leisure time; a widespread interest in home renovation and expansion, and the desire for more family centered activities in the home.

Whatever the reason, family rooms are more popular today than ever, and the theme of "Don't Move—Improve" seems to be gaining more and more supporters.

For homemakers who are considering how they might acquire a room, here are a few basic suggestions offered by Armstrong Cork Company's Bureau of Interior Design that will help during the planning stages:

1. Make the family room for the entire family — not just a game room for the children or a watch-the-game-on-television room for Dad. Each member of the family should have a say in how it is to be furnished, to ensure that in includes something of interest to all.

2. Since the floor and walls will be the largest areas in the room, start with them when decorating. It's now possible to get an almost unlimited number of effects in embossed linoleum, sheet and vinyl tile, and other smooth-surface floorings. A wide variety of colors and designs are also available in vinyl wall covering material. These floors and wall surface materials are exceptionally durable and easy to clean. Most stains will wipe off with a damp cloth.

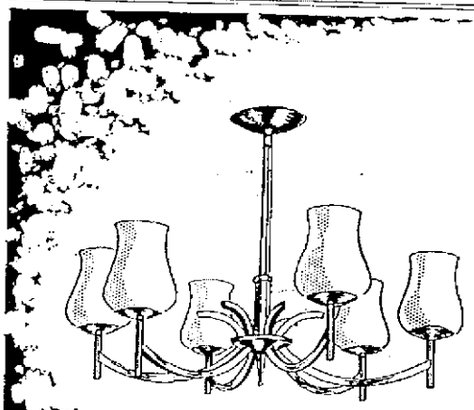

3 Provide for sufficient storage space. Books, games and other household articles tend to accumulate in the family room, and it's wise to have covered cupboards to stow them in.

4. To keep the noise of family fun from spreading to other parts of the house, install an acoustical ceiling in the family room. Acoustical tiles, which are a bright, decorative addition, absorb up to 75 per cent of the sound waves that strike them.

5. Don't overlook the do-it-yourself possibilities. This can save money and will give the whole family a sense of creative accomplishment. Both resilient flooring tiles and acoustical ceilings lend themselves to installation by the home handman.

6. Next to comfort, make easy maintenance the chief consideration in selecting furnishings for the family room. Fortunately, today it's possible to choose from a wide variety of furniture, flooring and wall covering materials that are easy to keep clean.

7. Plan the family room carefully beforehand; decide on color scheme, furiture, and equipment before the work actually begins. The advice of friends and professional decorators may be helpful. What counts most though is the opinion of the people who will be using the room. Here's an opportunity for every member of the family to cooperate in designing a room that will give many years of pleasure for all.

Dual Purpose Divider

Patio privacy and display of potted plants are offered by this arrangement of easily assembled materials.

NO NEED FOR A tract house to be a dreary place in which to live. With a little imagination and a few dollars wisely spent, the patio and garden can be made into a delightful spot.

One home owner wanted two things: a little privacy and a setting for his potted geraniums (see illustration). The flat stones at the base of the divider, the barrels and the post were painted white. In pleasing contrast are the post, the tree limbs that form the trellis background, shelves of unfinished plank and flower pots in natural colors. An old-fashioned lantern makes a garden light that is practical and harmonizes with the rustic setting. The bright blooming plants and the leafy foliage of the climbing rose make this a screen of beauty for utility and privacy.—BERTHA BLANCHARD.

Small areas, such as this space under a stairway, can be converted easily into a powder room or extra bath.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Budgetwise Bathroom

BUDGET - CONSCIOUS householders seeking to add a second bath will be interested in three basic plans suggested by a home improvement expert. No increase in existing floor space is required.

Hal Workman, home improvement director of Marsh Wall Products, suggests these three plans.

1. Utilize the end of a hall plus the corners of two adjacent bedrooms, with doors opening to both bedrooms. This arrangement is popular with families having two or more teenagers.

2. Build a mud room with a space-saving corner lavatory off the kitchen or the utility room. A homemaker with smaller children will appreciate this arrangement, Workman says, because it enables her to clean up the tots before they get into the house.

3. Install a powder room, or half bath, under the stairs leading to the second floor. Families that entertain often need a powder room for guests, and this is one arrangement that works well.

"In each of these plans," Workman points out, "the convenience of a second bath is gained without adding costly floor space."

When planning a bath, Workman urges homeowners to choose wall and ceiling paneling that is both decorative and practical. Ideal for bathrooms is Marlite paneling, whose washable plastic surface makes it practical for busy homes.

"THE SURFACE on this paneling resembles that on a refrigerator," Workman explains, "and it is just as easy to damp-wipe clean. Hard use, stains and high humidity conditions will not mar its baked surface."

Marlite comes in 4x8-foot panels, 16-inch by 8-foot planks and 16-inch square blocks. The large panels can be used in tub and shower areas. Easy-to-handle blocks are effective as an accent wall, but also are widely used for bathroom ceilings.

Lumber dealers have the paneling, which comes in plain colors, high-fidelity woodgrains and eye-catching patterns. Economical to use, the washable paneling never needs painting or refinishing. It can be put up right over old walls and ceilings.

Repair Old Ceiling

Spring is the ideal time to attend to those unsightly cracked or stained ceilings. Rather than go through all the mess of an old-fashioned patch-up job, though, try covering the old surface with an attractive new acoustical tile ceiling that won't crack, chip or peel.

Acoustical tile can be cemented in place with a special tile adhesive or stapled to wood furring strips, depending on the condition of the existing ceiling.

You Ask We Answer

By Hoskin

Q. How far can flying squirrels fly? S. G.

A. Flying squirrels can glide through the air up to distances of 80 yards or more, but the ordinary flight is usually only 50 to 60 feet. Flying squirrels do not actually fly, but glide through the air by means of loose folds of skin which connect their front and back legs and act as wings when the legs are extended.

Q. At what temperature is water too cold for swimming? D. F.

A. When the water is 68 degrees Fahrenheit or above, the body can generate enough heat to balance that lost through the skin surface. Below 68 degrees, more heat escapes than can be replaced, and the water is uncomfortably cold for swimming. In 40 degree water, wartime records of ship sinkings show, about half of the survivors die within an hour. Ideal swimming temperature of water is from 74° to 78° F.

Q. Why are stock prices quoted in fractions of one-eighth of a dollar, rather than one-tenth? T. D.

A. This question is asked so frequently that the Stock Exchange has done considerable research on the subject — but apparently no one knows when or where the custom started of expressing share price fluctuations in eighths. The origin may go back to the Spanish dollar—"pieces of eight" — which were in wide circulation in the colonies in the 1700s. Early merchants used these in trade, and the New York Exchange may simply have adopted a familiar, long-existing custom of quoting prices in "pieces of eight." A researcher has also found that early stock brokers on the Exchange charged a commission of ⅛ per cent—further evidence that this fraction was one common in business.

Q. How many men who held the office of vice president of the United States were subsequently elected to the presidency? P. D.

A. Six: John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Martin Van Buren Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge and Harry Truman.

Gold Knobs and Marble Tubs

By Irwin Frank
Associated Press Writer

GOLD DOOR KNOBS and bath tubs carved from solid blocks of Italian marble—these are the little extras that make a house a home to Texas millionaires.

For $150,000, give or take $15,000 or $25,000, Ben H. Rosenthal of Dallas manages to put these colorful touches in homes he builds for the wealthy of Texas and occasionally elsewhere.

Of course, some men are pressed for money, so Rosenthal skips the marble tub and a few other niceties and holds the price to $100,000. He won't go any lower.

His biggest job is now underway in Beverly Hills, Calif., where he's building a $350,000 home for a movie star whose name he doesn't know.

"I'm dealing with their agent."

THE HOUSE for a man and wife and their two children, will have five bedrooms and seven bathrooms, a playroom, family room, breakfast room, kitchen, utility room, library-study, dining room, living room, butler's pantry, a wine cellar, heated pool, and a three-car Cadillac lounge.

Inside the house will be such items as gold doorknobs, gold plumbing fixtures, and walls and floors made of white, black and brown Italian marble. The tub in the master bathroom will, of course, be carved from a block of marble in Italy.

Behind the house will be a 22x52-foot heated pool.

Rosenthal is a retired Dallas millionaire who sold his meat packing plant to George A. Hormel Co. in 1954.

Rosenthal is a slightly heavy, partly bald, healthy-looking 54-year-old father of two and grandfather of five. Half the day he keeps a long, unlit cigar stuck in the right side of his mouth.

He sees nothing unusual in driving through Dallas with the air conditioning unit of his Cadillac running full blast —and all the windows in the car down.

"I like fresh air and the unit still keeps me cool enough.

Before and after he sold his packing plant Rosenthal built homes.

"I found I was dealing with people who were formerly bricklayers, carpenters, and concrete men.

"These men wouldn't hire a decorator, which I insist on," he says. He does most of the design on the homes he builds.

Rosenthal, who says, "I have imagination," uses an architect and a designer on his homes. He finishes the interiors with paints, wallpapers, and art objects picked up in trips to Europe and tours of Japan.

"I build every house as if I personally were going to live in it," Rosenthal says.

"I turn down lots of jobs in the $100,000 price range because people want to skimp on things."

Some of the wants:

ROSENTHAL had to put a store-type soda fountain in one $110,000 house. In another an eight-stool bar, complete with ice maker, is hidden by a wooden wall eight-feet wide that slides into the attic.

"When the minister comes, press a button and zip—no bar, just a nice wooden wall like the other walls in the house," he says.

Rosenthal does not think the homes are too expensive.

"After all, when a lot costs $45,000 you've got to put a good house on it."

As rich as the people are who buy his homes, Rosenthal sighs, "I've never met a man who didn't care about money. I know they exist, but I've never met them.

"I've never had the lush customers who would just let me go and do whatever I wanted to. It would only cost an additional 15 or 20 per cent." But he did have a man who took his decorator to New York for 10 days to furnish a Rosenthal house.

Rosenthal works on a simple business basis: He'll build a house for $100,000 or more for anyone at cost plus 12.5 per cent. Rosenthal says of the average home:

"THE GREATEST mistake in homes now being built is the quality of materials. The foundation, the lumber, the plumbing, the wiring—it's all the cheapest they (the builders) can get by with. No quality is put into the framing," Rosenthal says.

"I build homes because I love what I'm doing. I haven't built a house that can't be sold today at a profit by the person who bought it from me."

Rosenthal thinks that certain areas of California offer the best chances of building really expensive homes.

"We're still selling land by the acre in Dallas," he says, "while out there they sell it by the square foot. The higher the land the more expensive the homes will be."

Simplified installation procedures make re-doing a living room with hardboard panels an easy project.

Paneling Gains New Beauty

By L. H. Selz

RESEARCH has now developed factory-finished hardboard paneling that can give any room, regardless of its present condition, a glamorous background for any decor of the homemaker's choice.

This transformation can be made with do-it-yourself or professional help. Panels, in beautiful woodgrain finishes, go right over existing walls, if they're true, or over furring strips. Since they are factory-finished, no decorating is required.

Masonite Corporation's million-dollar-a-year research program has come up with fully tested woodgrained hardboard panels in both walnut and cherry woods. Both are authentic, high-fidelity reproductions that even experts have trouble telling from wood.

UNLIKE wood panels, the hardboard woodgrains are highly scuff and wear resistant. Marks wipe off easily with a damp cloth. To detect the difference between Masonite panels and wood, try the thumbnail test. No mark will be left on the hardboard, which is dense and resistant to abuse.

The homemaker has a range of color selections chosen by the noted color consultant, Faber Birren. In the walnut line, ready for any furnishings whether traditional, contemporary or mixed, are a light toned Glacier, medium Tawny and darker Sable. Colors in cherry wood are Natura, Frosted and Honeytone.

BECAUSE OF their moderate cost, woodgrained hardboard panels can give a rich-appearing, durable and easily maintained background for any room on even a modest home improvement budget.

Lumber dealers can help families plan home improvements. Especially qualified are Design-Service-Counsel dealers, who have the know-how, training and service, including the preparation of color renderings according to the owner's wishes.

A Chip Off the Old West

At least, the "Durango Kid" tried to keep the spirit of the Old West alive—!

For years, the "Kid," whose real name is Ronald Echols, operated the Frontier Firearms Co. in Tombstone, Ariz.

Nobody, just nobody, it was claimed, knew more about guns than he did.

The "Kid's" career ran into a snag when he was sentenced to three years imprisonment for advertising and accepting remittances for firearms which he did not possess.

Echols served 18 months for mail fraud in 1956, and then started activities again in 1960.

With his knowledge of firearms he was able to entice and subsequently defraud persons who were attracted by his authoritative advertisements and apparently low prices, said the gendarmes.

True to the Old West characters he tried to emulate, he jumped bail and crossed the border to Guadalajara, Mexico, only to be charged by Mexican police with smuggling guns across the line.

He was returned to the United States authorities for sentencing under the Mail Fraud Statutes.

But residents and tourists in Tombstone miss the "Durango Kid."

They're Quicker Than You Think!

By Suzanne Armstrong

HAVE YOU noticed how many newly decorated rooms these days feature an area rug? How the rugs provide a bright and interesting accent? Well, now that these little rugs are back in style, why not make one to suit your own home, your own taste and color scheme? Or, perhaps, make one to give to a special friend?

Modern or traditional in style, hooked area rugs are fun and easy to make and because they're small they take very little time to do.

Next to the wonderful feeling that you've created something both handsome and useful, one of the nicest things about rug hooking is that you can pick it up or put it down as you feel like it.

EQUIPMENT needs are few. About the only thing you have to buy to start hooking is the hooking needle and these are quite inexpensive. You'll also need material to hook through (burlap or other coarse fabric), a wooden frame (a good-sized picture frame works well), and fabrics dyed the colors of your choice.

Fortunately for the beginner, the simplest patterns usually make the most effective rugs and some imperfections and a little unevenness only add to the finished rug's handmade uniqueness.

As a first step, collect the unused fabrics about the house — the too-good-to-throw-away faded curtains, the worn blanket, the outgrown or outmoded clothes—even the stockings that have run. It is impossible to give an accurate estimate of the amount of fabric required for a given size of rug. Differences in fabric weaves will cause wide variations. The safest estimate is "more than you think." However, these figures will serve as a rough guide. For a rug 28x40 inches, five pounds of dry materials; for a rug 40x40 inches, about eight pounds.

Most rugs are made all of wool or all of cotton fabrics, but a little silk or nylon can be used for highlighting the design. Suit the size of your rug to the amount of material you have or beg from friends and neighbors enough to make the size of rug you want. Rummage sales are another good source of fabric supply.

RIP SEAMS, separate linings, remove bindings. Wash everything thoroughly using fabric softener (NuSoft) in the final rinse to make the fabric soft and springy and much easier to work.

Having taken inventory of your fabric supply, the next step is to plan the rug. Even if you claim there isn't an artistic bone in your body, do make your own rug design. Inspiration for color and pattern can come from anywhere—from seed catalogues to Junior's geometry book.

Draw the design on the burlap with wax crayons to guide you in color as well as shape, allowing three inches extra of burlap all around to hem back when you are finished.

Attach your burlap to the frame by tacking it tautly or by lacing it to cloth wrapped around the frame. Care should be taken to assure that the burlap corners are square and true.

Now, sort your fabric pieces according to color. You may be able to use some pieces in the colors they are, but you will probably need to dye some in order to carry out your planned design. With all purpose dye (Rit), you can achieve the colors of your choice no matter what the fabric.

If your pattern calls for varying shades of a color, as would be natural for green leaves, just vary the time different pieces of fabric are left in the dye bath. Many women feel that this "creative dyeing" is a large part of the fun of rug making.

ON THE other hand, for large solid areas of color, as for a background, the easiest way to dye your fabrics is in the washing machine, following the directions in the package, of course.

The instructions that come with the hooking needle will tell you how to use it and also how to cut the fabric in strips to prepare it for that kind of needle. Nevertheless there is a lot of variation here, too. Heavy materials, such as woolens, are often cut as narrow as ¼ inch; thinner materials may be cut wider than ½ inch. Obviously, it's best not to cut all your materials at the beginning so that you can experiment until you find the most satisfactory width of strip for your burlap and hook.

Now—go ahead and hook! It is usually best to work from the outside of the rug to the inside, at least until the border is finished. Outline patterns in the design with a row of hooking before filling the centers. Background spaces come last.

At the end of a strip, or when you wish to change colors, bring the end of the strip to the right side of the rug and cut it off short. Left on the underside, loose ends are likely to pull out and leave a gap in the pattern.

ALL WOOLEN rugs or rugs made of non-fraying knit fabrics are often sheared. Loops should be drawn higher for this—at least half an inch. For woolen rugs each loop should be cut individually, while in other fabrics the "pile" may be trimmed off evenly with shears.

For embossed effects, shear parts of the rug but not other parts, or draw the loops higher in the design area than in the background area.

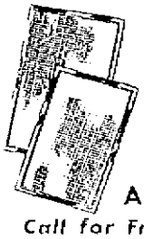

With the hooking completed, remove from frame and turn edges under and hem tightly to the back. For extra softness and a pretty finish, many women like to fit in a smooth lining before hemming. Carpet binding also makes a neat finish and is particularly good for circular or oval rugs.

The final finishing touch is to lay the rug face down where it will be walked on as frequently as possible. This flattens the loops and fits them more securely into the meshes of the backing.

Simplicity adds to beauty of modern area rugs you can hook for yourself or friends from materials at home.

Blood-Clot Studies Conflict

By Ben Zinser

Independent, Press-Telegram Medical-Science Writer

EVIDENCE that heart patients benefit from anti-clotting drugs appears to be growing weaker, says an editorial in the British Medical Journal.

In fact, risks of treatment can be greater than those of not using the drugs, the journal contends.

The only certain indication for their use following heart attack, says the journal, is appearance of certain complications: clot in a vein or clot in a lung.

In milder cases of heart disease "no harm is likely to result from their omission," the editorial continues.

Meanwhile, conflicting studies continue to appear in medical journals. Some reports say the drugs help, others contend they don't.

TOKYO doctors are experimenting with ultrasonic devices as a means of diagnosis of cancer and gallstones.

A pulsed ultrasonic wave is radiated through human tissue. The wave is reflected by any object that has a different acoustic nature, such as cancer tissue or a gallstone.

Echoes are amplified and displayed on a cathode ray screen.

The doctors, reporting in the Western Journal of Surgery, Obstetrics and Gynecology, say the technique is more accurate in the detection of gallstones than is the X-ray method.

They also are using ultrasound to detect breast tumors.

A NEW antihistamine drug now undergoing tests has been able to control a variety of allergic disorders, report two Minneapolis physicians in Annals of Allergy.

The drug is cinnarizine, trade-named Mitronal.

Drs. Lloyd S. Nelson and Albert V. Stoesser say the drug works rapidly and that many patients experience relief within a half hour.

Unpleasant side effects are infrequent, they say.

The drug is especially effective for nasal allergy of the unseasonal variety, and in children with allergies.

Tests of the drug continue.

A RARE CASE in which a girl was born with two noses is reported in Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery.

Each nose had two distinct nostrils and nasal cavities.

A series of operations was begun on the girl when she was 4 years old. The child, now 5, has a single nose with a fairly normal contour.

Dr. John B. Erich of the Mayo Clinic, who reported the case, says there has been only one other case like it recorded in medical literature. The first patient, also a girl, underwent surgery for the condition almost 40 years ago. The first case was reported in the Proceedings of the Royal Society of Medicine.

A NEW anti-fatigue drug called Spartase has been able to boost energy and strength of a majority of a group of 84 housewives afflicted with chronic tiredness.

The drug, a tablet, is able, in most cases, to relieve fatigue within 5 to 10 days, says Dr. Palma E. Formica, Old Bridge, N. J., in a report in Current Therapeutic Research.

Six weeks of medication is required on the average, he says.

BOYS WHO eat wild, unripe persimmons while on hunting trips sometimes develop symptoms resembling those of peptic ulcer or stomach cancer, a research team reports in Missouri Medicine.

What happens is that the swallowed persimmon rolls up into a food ball. In most patients surgery is necessary to remove it, the report says.

Fireplaces Are Prefabbed, Too

Prefabricated fireplaces are interesting and may be installed in remodeling with little fuss or mess.

FIREPLACES have, since the colonial period, been traditional in the American home. The comfort and enjoyment of an open fire, without the high cost of masonry, is now possible through the development of prefabricated fireplaces.

These unique fireplaces, designed to satisfy every budget and style preference, make this American tradition a reality for every home or summer cottage.

Prefabricated fireplaces offer versatility and are exciting additions to home remodeling plans. At a fraction of the cost of a masonry fireplace, they can be used as the focal point in a room.

THERE'S a fireplace for every remodeling scheme, from the rustic camp setting to the modern contemporary decor. They add a decorative touch to satisfy even the most discriminating homeowner.

There is a rising trend in installations of fireplaces in new homes. Although accurate statistics are not available, this trend has also been evident in installations in older homes. While "do-it-yourself" has become a popular household word, the factory-built fireplace for home remodeling is becoming one of the most popular means of adding an unusual touch of charm to a room. Any handyman can install a prefabricated fireplace in from just a few hours to less than a day.

For example, the popular prefabricated Uni-Built Fireplace is now available in five decorator designed models. Low cost and modern styling are features of each new model.

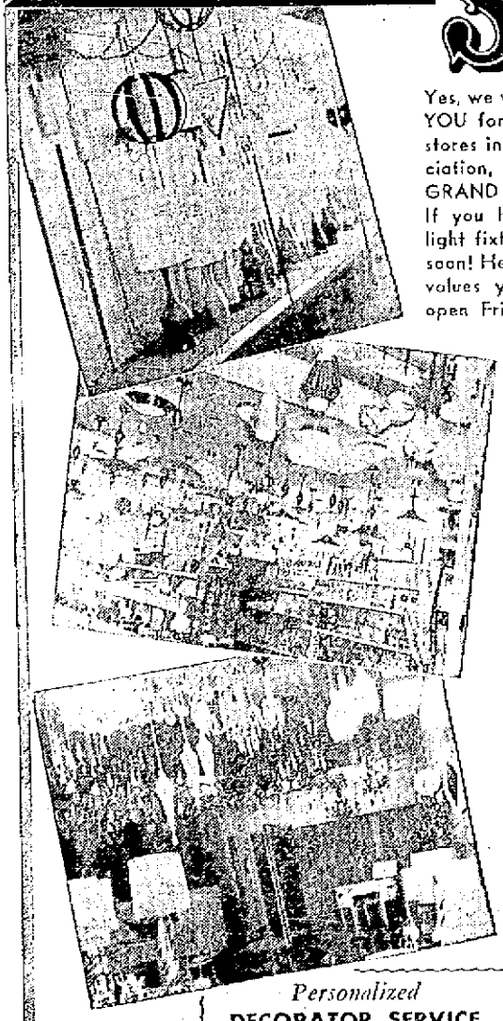

SEVERAL of these beautifully styled and functional fireplaces are finished in vitreous enamel with a selection of decorator colors. Other models are prime coated and can be painted any color to accent or harmonize with the room decor.

Fire Safety Stressed

CARELESSNESS still is the number one cause of destructive home fires.

Studies conducted by fire prevention authorities show that 75 per cent of home fires could be avoided if people would follow a few simple rules of fire safety.

Children who play with matches and adults who are careless with cigarettes and matches cause nearly one third of all home fires. Parents should first eliminate their own careless habits, as good example is essential in teaching safety practices to children.

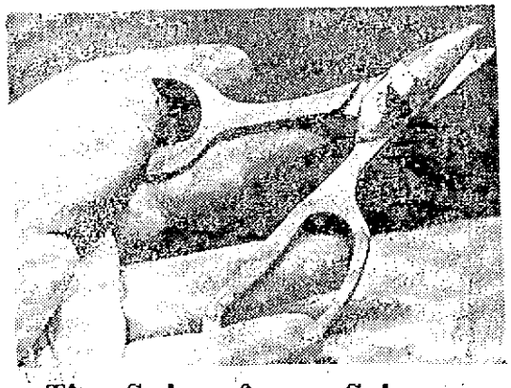

ELECTRICAL fires often are caused by placing pennies in the fuse box, overloading circuits and using defective wire. An amateur electrician usually is behind these mistakes. Have experts do all major electrical work.

Good housekeeping is another key factor in preventing home fires. Spontaneous combustion often occurs in piles of rubbish. Even if a fire does not start in old papers or wood scraps stored in the basement, this material may feed flames and turn a small fire into a major blaze.

Fire safety officials urge homeowners to keep all rubbish in covered galvanized steel containers until garbage collectors arrive. Steel cans are fireproof and their close-fitting covers protect the contents.

USING flammable liquids in the home invites destructive fire. A small spark can cause an explosion. Keep gasoline and other flammable liquids in galvanized steel fuel cans which have spouts and filler caps to prevent fumes from leaking.

Make every week "Fire Prevention Week" at your house.

Tin Snips from Scissors

HANDY, light-duty, sheet metal cutting shears (see photo) can be quickly made from ordinary household scissors which may have been discarded because of a broken blade. To make the shears, shorten the blades by grinding them down until there is just an inch or two remaining. The short blades and long handle of course means extra leverage, thus providing a cutting tool that will trim heavy gasket material and thin sheet metal easily with minimum finger pressure. It is light in weight and can be easily carried and stored in a small kit.

Tile installations can cover ceiling cracks, but furring strips may be need if area is in bad condition.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

There's a Cure for Ceiling Ills

By Penn Lancaster

PATCHING UP a cracked ceiling has yet to be listed among the most popular of household projects—and for good reason! It's tedious, messy work, and at best, provides only a temporary solution to the problem.

Many a do-it-yourselfer has spent long hours perched on top of a ladder scraping, patching and sanding an unsightly ceiling—amidst clouds of plaster dust—only to have ceiling cracks develop somewhere else in the room later on.

No wonder homeowners try to put off this gruesome task as long as possible!

Fortunately, though, there's an easy and economical way to avoid all the fuss and bother of ceiling repair. Many homeowners are now applying new types of ceiling tile right over cracked, broken or stained ceilings to conceal the unsightly finish and give the room a permanent, well-groomed look.

TILE CEILINGS today needn't be limited to attics and basement game rooms, say a leading acoustical tile manufacturer, the Armstrong Cork Co. There are tile patterns on the market designed to complement any room decorating scheme, many in beautiful pastel colors with intriguing new surface textures.

Installation techniques, too, have been perfected to the point where anyone who's the least bit handy can put up a new tile ceiling in not much more time than it would take to patch up the old one, Armstrong points out.

If the original ceiling is badly cracked or broken, it is advisable first to nail up a framework of wood furring strips, then staple the new ceiling in place—tile by tile—to the strips. When the existing ceiling is in reasonably good condition, however, the tiles can be cemented up without the use of furring strips.

PROBABLY the most popular variety of ceiling tile for home use is the acoustical type. This attractive, versatile material is equipped with tiny sound-absorbent perforations or fissures to help subdue irritating household noise. Plain white and pre-decorated tiles are also available for areas of the home where noise isn't a problem.

As far as cost is concerned, the better grades of ceiling tile run between 20 and 40 cents a square foot, depending on the type and design selected.

Lumber and building materials dealers usually carry a complete line of ceiling tiles and related installation supplies. Most dealers can also furnish or recommend a professional installation service, if desired.

Pull-Outs Solve Problem

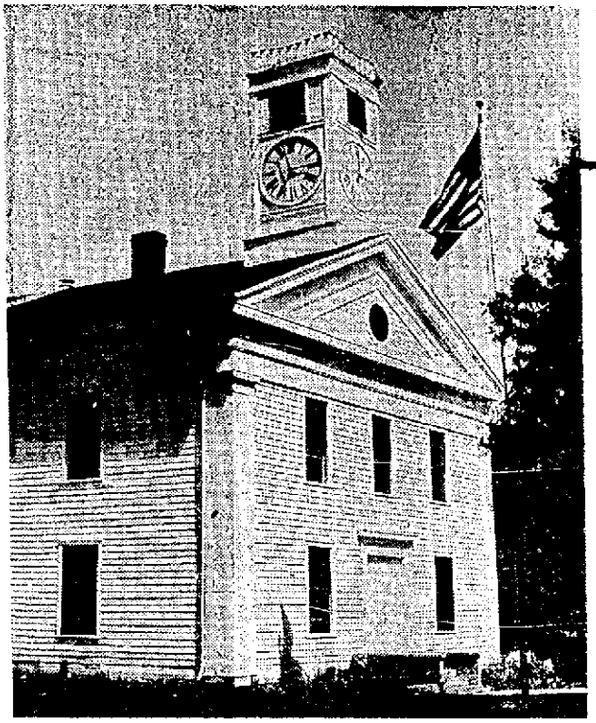

A SMALL, hard-to-reach cupboard in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Ward, 11661 Puryear St., is serving a very useful purpose. Ward made two large pull-out drawers to fit in the cupboard, big enough to hold a complete set of best china. The drawers pull out far enough to make the china easy to reach. Because the cupboard is closed, the china is dust free and always ready for instant use. Too there is absolutely no fear of breakage in a safe, hidden away such as this.—STELLA GEORGE.

Hard-to-reach cupboard posed a problem that was solved by installing large pull-out drawers to store the china.

California's Oldest Courthouse

By Earline Gladstone

Mariposa County courthouse was one of California's earliest seats of justice. Building, completed in 1854, is still used.

MARIPOSA County courthouse is one of the state's most interesting historical buildings. It stands in the town of Mariposa, located in the southern portion of the Mother Lode country. It is said to be California's oldest seat of justice still in use. On week days the ancient but well-preserved building is a bee-hive of activity.

The original building consisted of what is now the front half and was completed in 1854. It was built from lumber cut from the nearby forests. The framework was held together by mortised joints and wooden pegs. The lumber used for finishing the building was planed by hand and nailed with square nails. In 1861 a fireproof vault was added and was later enlarged.

THE ENGLISH-MADE clock in the cupola came around the Horn in an early clipper ship. It has a 267-pound bell. This clock has counted off the hours since the days of the Civil War.

The white frame building stands on a spacious green lawn, enclosed by a wire fence with iron posts. Scattered about under tall cedar trees there are iron benches, uncomfortably reminiscent of another era.

Just in front of the building is a handsome marker made of gold quartz crystals and gold ore topped by a huge quartz crystal. It was erected in 1929 and dedicated to the memory of Mariposa pioneers.

Inside the building there is an interesting display of minerals and ores taken from that vicinity. One small bottle contains the gold nuggets and gravel found in the gizzards of two Mariposa chickens many years ago.

IN PIONEER DAYS cattlemen recorded their brands and ear marks by placing the hot branding iron on a small piece of leather or wood. These samples were filed with the county recorder and became permanent records. Since Mariposa County once consisted of a large portion of California, including a part of what is now Los Angeles County, many of these old brands are in the courthouse files. Many ancient documents and valuable newspapers are kept in the fireproof vault.

On the second floor, the courtroom remains the same as in early days except for electric lighting and a secret stairway which has been taken out. At one time this stairway led from a corner of the courtroom to the office of the district attorney on the first floor. It has been credited with saving at least one man from the hands of those who were waiting to lynch him.

The judge's bench which is still in use is long enough to accommodate three judges although only one uses it these days. It was built for the Court of Sessions which was composed of the county judge and two associate justices. The original tables and chairs and even the hand-planed spectators' benches with their straight, hard backs remain the same.

THIS ROOM WAS the setting for many famous legal controversies and some of the mining questions settled there in pioneer days are the law of the land today. A number of well known and highly respected men have been members of the Mariposa County Bar. Alexander Deering, John M. Corcoran and Joseph J. Trabucco were a few, although there were many others.

The name Mariposa (Butterfly) came from early Spanish explorers who found countless numbers of beautiful butterflies in the Sierra foothills. Since the Mariposa hills yielded such fabulous fortunes it has been said "The wings of the butterflies were gilded with gold." Butterflies, gilded or not, live only a short time. Most of the gold and all of the people who took it from the hills so long ago have been gone for many years, but the old courthouse still stands and serves with dignity.

When the Lusitania sailed for England on her final voyage during World War I, she and the Americans aboard her were to figure in a major cause of U. S. entry in war.

THE CASE OF THE LUSITANIA:

A Sinking That Set the World at War

By Blaine Nels Simons

FORTY-SEVEN years ago tomorrow—May 7, 1915—the gigantic British liner, the Lusitania, steamed slowly through a thick morning fog off the south coast of Ireland. Her port of destination, Liverpool, lay some 400 miles to the north. Aboard the vessel the 1,959 passengers and crew greeted this last day's run with mixed emotions. Most were relieved to know the journey was almost at end.

Many, however, had forebodings of danger, and well they might have for the ship was now in an area which Germany, three months before, had proclaimed a "War Zone" while threatening to sink every enemy-nation ship she found in the area. To date, her submarines had picked off ninety ships in proof that her threat was not a hollow one. To further add to the consternation of some aboard, the German Embassy had, hours before the Lusitania left New York on May 1, inserted an ad in various newspapers reiterating the existence of the war zone and warning all who set sail for Europe did so at their own peril. On May 7, however, few aboard were really worried. The trip had been uneventful. The friendly green shores of Ireland were visible off the port beam as the fog broke by mid-morning. The ship's captain, William Turner, was an old hand at avoiding subs and had assured the passengers that there was nothing to worry about. The Lusitania could out-run any submarine in existence.

At about 11 a.m. began a strange series of events. In contradiction to British Admiralty orders, Capt. Turner headed his ship in towards the coast to better establish his bearings. He had been advised many times during the last 24 hours that subs lurked in this area but he took his chances. About 1:30 p.m. he saw the familiar, rocky cliffs of the Old Head of Kinsale. He now knew where he was but wanted to make certain. A four-point bearing was then ordered taken on the Old Head, a process that would require one hour's time and (contrary to Admiralty orders to run a zig-zag course in this area) to continue in a straight line.

WHILE MOST aboard the big ship were not too pleased by the loss of time the bearing-taking would involve, there was one man in the locality who was delighted by the change of the ship's course. That man was Capt. Walter Scheiger of the German sub U-20. The new course on which the Lusitania had embarked would take her directly by the submerged "unterseeboot." Schweiger readied his torpedomen for action. A few minutes before 2 p.m., the Lusitania crossed his sights, within range. "Fire!" cried Schweiger.

Aboard the hulking liner a few persons reported that they saw the shimmering path of the torpedo as it sped towards the ship. Moments later all aboard felt a deafening crash and were thrown off their feet as the huge vessel dipped sharply to starboard and down at the bow. A second explosion (whether from a torpedo or a boiler blast has never been established) rocked the ship seconds later. The ship began settling fast. Eighteen minutes later the 755 feet and 30,000 tons of the "unsinkable" Lusitania slipped finally and forever beneath the waves of the Irish Sea, carrying more than 1,000 persons — including 128 American

His Glee Club Kicked Him Out

Jerome Hines turned the tables on high school glee club failure to become a top-ranking opera singer.

By Aubrey B. Haines

MORE THAN one youth has been asked to drop out of glee club because he could not carry a tune. What boy did so only to become a noted opera singer? The answer is Jerome Hines, whose prep school days were spent in Los Angeles. His voice has been heard in appearances in Long Beach.

Today Hines' voice is smooth, big, and dark. This helps to enhance his commanding appearance, which is augmented by his basketball player's height of 6 feet, 6½ inches. The son of a Hollywood production manager, Jerome Hines was born in November 1921. Dismissed from high school glee club, he took singing lessons but spent most of his spare time experimenting with a chemistry laboratory on his back porch. "However, when I got my first role at 18 as Bill Bobstay in 'H. M. S. Pinafore'," he recalls, "I knew that I wanted a singing career."

Jerry got a degree in mathematics and chemistry at UCLA. Finding that he was a half-inch too tall for military service, he worked for an oil company during World War II, singing when he had the opportunity. By the time that he received his B. A. degree in 1943, he had already appeared with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra at Hollywood Bowl. Three years later he won the Metropolitan Opera $1,000 Caruso Award and made his debut later that season in "Boris Godounov."

"AT THE beginning," Hines says, "I was usually given medium-sized bass parts, except for Mephistopheles in 'Faust.' As a result I found it difficult to compete with foreign stars for the leading roles, so I began to do some training. I sang the relatively minor roles of Brother Pimen in 'Boris Godounov' and the Grand Inquisitor in 'Don Carlos' in exchange for a share of the bigger roles."

As one of four Boris bassos Hines expected few opportunities to sing the role. He wished to try for a Don Giovanni at the Metropolitan and then devote himself entirely to a role in which no one specialized—Boito's Mefistofele. Today, however, the only relatively small part Jerry still sings is Colline in "La Boheme." He now performs the title role in "Boris Godounov" and King Philip in "Don Carlos." He sang all the Don Giovannis on the spring tour of the Metropolitan in 1959 and again the next fall and winter in New York.

Although his singing career keeps him busy, Hines somehow manages to sandwich a home life in New Jersey between the professional engagements that he and his wife fulfill. His wife, Lucia Evangelista, is a lyric soprano and sings with the New Orleans Opera Company. The couple are parents of three sons: David Jerome, Andrew Peter and John Matthew.

men, women and children—to their deaths.

THE FREE WORLD was plunged into dismay at the sinking. "In God's name," cried President Wilson, "how could any nation calling itself civilized purpose so horrible a thing!" Most Americans echoed his sentiments. Many mourned the passing of such distinguished figures as Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, writer Charles Frohman and philosopher Elbert Hubbard and of the many children aboard. In the Los Angeles area concern was expressed for the 15 from this county who were aboard. As reports began trickling in from Ireland and London it was learned that most of these had been saved. Most tragic death was probably that of pioneer industrialist-millionaire A. C. Bilicke of Los Angeles. First reported only "missing" he was then declared definitely found alive, yet two days later positively identified as one of the dead.

The sinking of the Lusitania is important to all Americans. Prior to its loss Americans had been allowed to travel without restriction on any ship they chose. Following the Lusitania incident many felt that Americans should be restricted to sailing only on American liners, none of which had been sunk by the Germans. The Government, however, in protesting the loss of American lives to Germany, averred that the United States would protect its citizens no matter what the nationaliy of the ships on which they sailed and that there would be no restrictions on them. Just how we could protect American sailing on ships over which we had no control was never determined.

NEEDLESS to say, when declaring war some 23 months later much of the cause for entry into the conflict was laid by Wilson to the loss of less than 200 American lives, most of which had resulted from destruction of English ships on which Americans sailed. Such eminent persons as Winston Churchhill and professors Edwin Borchard and Richard Van Alstyne attribute our entry into World War I directly back to the sinking of the Lusitania and the American policy resulting therefrom—that Americans need not stay home nor travel only on American passenger ships.

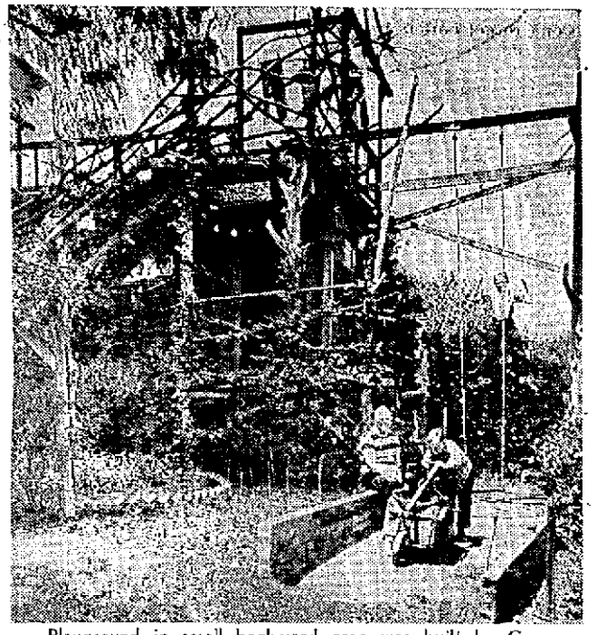

Irish fisherman today report that, at low tide, they can discern the mast-tips of the Lusitania far below them. Deeper yet—unseen and unfound — are entombed the Americans who gambled at sea under a policy of unrestricted travel in time of war. By the time the next war arrived, Americans would be warned not to travel on belligerent ships. For those on the Lusitania, however, the warning came 22 years too late. They believed, somehow, that just being neutral Americans would protect them and the Lusitania is their sepulchure for so believing.

They had bargained in fairy tales, but war bargains in facts.

Small Space, Big Playground

By Eda Johnstone

Playground in small back-yard area was built by Guy Monroe, shown with his grandson, Mike, and a friend.

PLAY AREAS for small children in crowded residential sections is sometimes a baffling problem, especially on long summer days. Where the older boys attend a neighborhood playground, often those aged 4 to 10 are deprived of adequate group activity.

Unrestricted and abandoned play is normal. Pretending at fishing, camping, airplanes, cowboys and Indians, is a normal part of a boy's development, but in crowded residential areas much of this natural urge goes unfulfilled.

This was solved in a West Los Angeles neighborhood when grandfather took a hand. Guy E. Monroe, who is 76, worked alone, two hours a day, the limit of his strength, to build a play area for his grandson, Mike. Here are a "cowboy-and-Indian" area, a workshop, bunkroom for "camping out" and playground all in a 12x20-foot space.

THIS HAPPY playground for Mike and his playmates developed from a load of old cypress trees that had been cut down in a neighboring subdivision to make way for a housing project.

All branches were cut off and the logs peeled. Then Monroe chose the sturdiest for his building. He measured a space back of the garage, 20 feet long and 12 feet wide. The back yard is on a downward slope and therefore the floor was laid four feet above ground. Eight-foot studding was used and all posts were grounded on cement blocks.

Monroe built a shallow stairway to the roof which was made of strong packing box wood nailed across log beams and covered with heavy tar paper. This roof area has proved an ideal spot to dry family laundry. When there is no laundry on the lines, the children often go there to blow soap bubbles, watching them float far out.

THE OUTSIDE of the playhouse is shingled, and again scrap lumber from packing boxes forms the base. The combination bunkroom and workshop is also used for a toy depository, and Mike has learned to keep it neat, clean, and orderly when not in use.

On rainy days the children helped to make animal cutouts under Monroe's supervision. They are made of plywood, and in this way the children learned the proper handling of tools. They papered the walls with magazine cover pictures, all of fun-work to occupy leisure hours.

Monroe built a trap door in the floor and one in the ceiling, reached by a ladder —providing "escape hatches" for boyish imagination to use in such games as submarine, airplane and cops-and-robbers. A 2½-foot runway provides a "pier" for dry-land fishing.

FOR THE playground equipment, 2x4s were extended from the roof for a distance of 8 feet. All uprights are reinforced with two-inch pipe, using scrap fence posts for uprights. Here are a swing, a trapeze, bar, rings, and a rope ladder. A large pepper tree provides shade.

The area is also only 15 feet from the kitchen, permitting Mike's mother to keep unobtrusive supervision of activities.

Tips on Rewiring a Home

By Jack Eden

FOR PROSPECTIVE homeowners and those thinking of having their homes rewired, the American Standards Association has some handy suggestions for planning up-to-date wiring.

Useful planning of electrical circuits and outlets for every room in the house was urged by the ASA sectional committee which developed the American Standard Requirements for Residential Wiring. Sponsored by the Industry Committee on Interior Wiring Design, the sectional committee included representatives from 11 trade organizations and associations in the lighting, electrical, construction, manufacturing, engineering and electronic fields.

Good indications that your home needs rewiring are the rerating of fuse loads, no lights on stairways and entrances, use of octopus outlets and the necessity of groping in the dark to locate light switches.

A thumb-nail rule for determining the number of outlets needed for any room is to divide the total square feet of area by 150, the area specified for each outlet. For example, if a room has 390 square feet of space, you divide by 150 and arrive at an answer of 2.6 or three outlets as the basic minimum for the room.

AS REGARDS outlets, the standard classifies them as lighting, convenience and special-purpose. No special locations are given for lighting or special purpose, but convenience outlets should be 12 inches above the floor line while wall switches should be 48 inches above the same line.

In planning household wiring homeowners should first consider branch circuits to feed electricity safely and efficiently in the house. Branch circuits are needed for all lighting and for convenience outlets; special circuits are needed for the kitchen and for special appliances such as the electric range, clothes dryers - washers, air conditioners, fans and dishwashers.

Homeowners short change themselves by not having a good wiring system. A five per cent voltage loss in a circuit will give the housewife a 10 per cent loss of heat in the clothes dryer, iron or rotisserie and a 17 per cent loss of light from an electric bulb. It means more cooking time, too, on the electric fryer.

Some suggestions for planning household wiring:

1. In the kitchen, good lighting comes first — over the range, sink, counters and tables. The refrigerator, if electric, should have an outlet 44 inches from the floor line. Other considerations: convenience outlets for the clock, radio and for lights in under-cabinets; special purpose outlets for a ventilating fan, food waste disposer, toasters, mixers, electric iron and appliances.

2. For the living room, good lighting is the first thought—by ceiling, wall fixtures or portable lamps. Plan lighting outlets, wall-switch controlled, in locations appropriate to the decor. At least five convenience outlets are needed for the average room and should be positioned so that a six-foot cord from any lamp would reach an outlet. Plan outlets for vacuum cleaners or portable appliances, decorative lighting, TV and radio and, if you anticipate an air conditioner, you'll need a special purpose outlet for that.

3. Bedrooms must have good lighting, usually controlled by a wall-switch. If portable lamps are used, convenience outlets should be placed accordingly. And, don't forget outlets for a bed-side lamp, radio, clock and likely use of an electric blanket. Special purpose outlets will cover the use of vacuum cleaners, air conditioners and portable heaters; a rule of thumb in planning wiring in the bedroom is to provide enough outlets so that no one circuit will be overburdened by lighting or appliances.

4. In a recreation room, planned wiring will enable the family and guests to enjoy the comforts and activities to the fullest. Wall switches are recommended for general illumination and five convenience outlets would handle the normal electrical needs of a clock, radio, hi-fi, ventilating fan and motion picture and slide projectors. Place the outlets in relation to their intended use, but they shouldn't be further apart than 12 feet for useable wall space.

Other suggestions are provided for halls, stairways, utility rooms, attics, porches, garages, patios and exterior grounds. However, the standard on planning residential wiring emphasizes one point: That planned wiring should be fitted to the particular needs of a house. Modifications in home wiring should be made only when certain electric appliances are not to be used, but always leave room for additional wiring when and if you change your mind.

To obtain copies of the standard, write to ASA, 10 E. 40th St., New York 16, N. Y., and enclose a quarter for the purchase.

Bequest of a Glamour Clown

By Ellen Saunders

A CLOWN who would rather be glamorous than funny has willed his $10,000 wardrobe and a large oil painting of himself to the Los Angeles County Museum.

"Wally, the Glamour Clown," whose costumes have been dazzling onlookers since he made his debut at Disneyland in 1955, spent $3,000 on his latest creation which he wore while appearing in Huntington Park's 1961 Christmas Lane Parade.

The costume, designed by Wally, consists of form-fitting pants and a red jacket trimmed in blue are decorated pants and a red jacket trimmed in blue are decorated with hundreds of rhinestones. A huge nylon ruff, a crown sparkling with sapphires and topped with ostrich plumes and a white velvet chiffon robe edged with mother of pearl completes the costume.

"I DESIGNED my costumes primarily for children," Wally explains, "but it is the grownups who get the most kick out of them. Particularly the women who like to examine them in detail."

Wally also designed his own glitter glass makeup.

"As far as I know I'm the only individual in the world to apply glitter glass to the skin. It takes me two hours to put it on and another to take it off.

"In show business, people are quick to discover the other guy's secrets so I have patented both my makeup and my costumes."

Wally, the "Glamour Clown," poses dramatically in his lavish costume, an outfit he has bequeathed to museum.

Wally was born in Hartford, Conn., and came to Los Angeles in 1944. He conceived his brain child seven years ago.

"I decided that life was not worth living unless you gave something of yourself to others. Clowns had always fascinated me but at the same time I was repelled by what I considered their ugly and grotesque costumes. It was then I decided to become the world's most beautiful clown.

"FOR TWO months I traveled with Clyde Beatty's circus as an apprentice clown. It was an invaluable experience which stood me in good stead a few years later when I led the Cristiani Bros. circus parade riding on the head of an elephant.

"It took me 14 months to design my first wardrobe and perfect my makeup. My false eyelashes are really different. They are made of plastic and are glued above the eyes."

Television viewers may have seen Wally as a guest star on the Dinah Shore show or Polka Parade.

As for parades in Southern California — you name them, Wally has been in them, along with such stars as Jayne Mansfield, Ida Lupino and Debbie Reynolds.

When Wally isn't being admired in California he is touring the country with his night club act or entertaining crippled children in Shriner's hospitals throughout the United States.

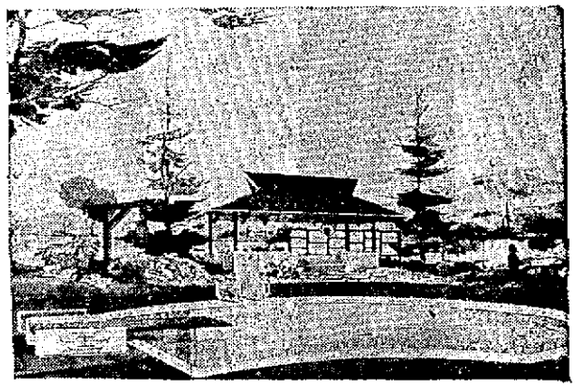

He writes his own material for his act which includes a quartet of beautiful girls.

Game With a Thousand and Forty Fingers

By Mary Louise Lynott

(Member of NOMA)

WHEN more than 100 healthy boys and girls from Long Beach junior and senior high schools put aside a sunny, Saturday afternoon to "go to school" that means a contest. Next Saturday future office workers will gather in the gym of Business and Technology Division, Long Beach City College, to compete in the second annual district-wide typing contest under auspices of Long Beach Chapter of National Office Management Association and directed by Monroe Hubbell, city supervisor of business education, who said about the competition:

"At stake is a game that will be played long after the first astronaut sets foot on the moon—the game of American competition."

IN THIS rivalry between schools, tangible awards are portable typewriters, $50 U.S. Savings Bonds, savings accounts, and large cash awards. But the intangibles are more highly coveted by these young contestants—school with the fastest typing team, typing for ten minutes with no errors, top typist in the show.

Competition will be in two classifications—those with one year of typing; and those with more than one year. Each junior and senior high school may enter a team of four. Highest composite score determines team honors; highest individual score picks speediest typist in the contest. Correcting copy for all tests will be BTD dean of business, Dr. Wiley Garner. He will be assisted by student teachers of Long Beach State College.

Last year there was little room in the gym for parents and spectators, so Dean Patterson of BTD has arranged to set up closed-circuit television coverage in the campus theater.

THIS MAY-TIME test of finger dexterity culminates a year-long program of the education committee. Their other activities include administering NOMA spelling tests—to more than 1,000 students with 431 perfect scores resulting; giving a basic arithmetic test to boys and girls from seven high schools; and the selection of the "Outstanding Business Student of the Year," whose name will be announced by President Herbert Vaughn at "Education Night" in June.

The 1961 winner of this business award was Diane Fitting, 17, a blue-eyed strawberry blonde and a Lakewood High School senior. Selection was on the basis of scholarship, extra-curricular activities, display of business skills, and personality. Awards were a bronze plaque and a $100 cash certificate. Incidental winnings included seven job offers of secretarial positions in government and industry—from which Diane picked Autonetics of Downey. The position carries extra fringe benefits in the form of a partially paid part-time college education after a probationary period.

Tuna Can Don Elaborate Dress

Tuna is presented here in three different main dishes, good for business or club luncheons.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

TUNA by its popular and versatile flavor can go as elaborate as the cook is creative.

Tuna Florentine starts with canned tuna and a basic cheese sauce. The tuna and sauce are turned over cooked spinach and the dish is brought to serving temperature under broiler heat.

In a salad, tuna finds a flavor peer in Louis dressing.

For a main dish with the French air, canned tuna may be heated in a white sauce to which sherry, chopped parsley and ripe olives contribute interest. This tuna combination can be served "as is" or on toast.

Tuna Florentine

- 1 pound fresh spinach, or 1 package frozen spinach
- 2 cans (6½ or 7 oz. each) tuna-in-vegetable oil
- 3 tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1½ cups milk
- ½ cup grated Swiss cheese
- ½ cup light cream
- ⅛ teaspoon Tabasco
- ½ cup bread crumbs
- 1 tblsp. butter, melted

Cook spinach; drain well and chop fine. Transfer to 2-quart baking dish or casserole. Drain oil from tuna, measure 2 tablespoons into saucepan. Blend in flour and salt. Gradually add milk and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add cheese, cream and Tabasco; stir until cheese is melted. Remove from heat, stir in tuna. Pour creamed tuna mixture over spinach. Toss bread crumbs with melted butter; sprinkle over tuna. Place under broiler heat until crumbs are browned. YIELD: 4 to 6 servings.

Tuna Louis

- ⅔ cup mayonnaise
- 2 tblsps. lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- ⅛ teaspoon Tabasco
- ⅓ cup chili sauce or catsup
- ¼ cup chopped pimiento stuffed olives
- 1 tblsp. minced onion
- 1 tblsp. capers, optional
- 1 head lettuce
- 2 cans (6½ or 7 oz.) tuna-in-vegetable oil, chilled

To make dressing, combine all ingredients except tuna and lettuce; chill. To serve, shred lettuce and pile into salad bowl. Add tuna, then spoon over dressing. Toss before serving. YIELD: 4 servings.

Tuna Sherry

- 2 cans (6½ or 7 oz. each) tuna-in-vegetable oil
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ⅔ cup milk
- ⅓ cup sherry
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- tablespoon chopped parsley
- ⅓ cup pitted ripe olives

Drain oil from tuna; measure 2 tablespoons into chafing dish or skillet. Blend in flour and salt. Gradually add milk and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add sherry, tuna and lemon juice; heat to serving temperature. Sprinkle with chopped parsley; garnish with ripe olives. YIELD: 4 to 6 servings.

$5 for Your Recipe

WITH THE RETURN of spring, fruit of many kinds return to the produce markets, and with this in mind contest editors awarded the $5 best recipe prize this week to Mrs. Isabelle Langner, 329 E. 57th St., Long Beach 5, for her loquat jam specialty. Mrs. Langner's recipe:

Loquat Jam

- 6-8 lbs. loquats (ripe but firm)
- 4 red apples (do not peel)
- 1 lemon cut in slices
- 1 pkg. M.C.P. or Sure Jell pectin
- ½ cup strained lemon juice
- 6½ cups sugar

Wash and stem and remove seeds from 6-8 pounds loquats, ripe but firm. Add water to just cover fruit that has been cut in quarters. Remove seeds but do not peel 4 red apples, and top with the lemon cut in slices to keep apples from turning dark. Cover, and bring to a boil then simmer about 3 hours.

Let cool slightly then force through a colander and let stand until cool: should be thick. To five cups pulp add the package of pectin, the lemon juice and stir constantly with wooden spoon while it boils for 4 minutes. Then add the 6½ cups of sugar and boil for 3 minutes. Skim. Makes about 10 glasses of jam.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address, to: Recipe Contest Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, Southland Magazine, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give the meaning of BRYSON.—Mrs. D.B., J.B., Long Beach.

D.B., J.B.: BRYSON, a Welsh surname, is the modern result of contracting "Brysson" into Bryson. Brys in Old Welsh meant "Quick, speedy one." Bryson family records include the wedding of Alexander Bryson and Hannah Reed in London in 1790. The Bryson coat-of-arms has an "X" shaped cross between two spur rowels across the center of a red shield. Above the cross is a silver spear head; below it is a gold crescent. John Bryson, an American descendant, was born in Pennsylvania in 1758.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please define DOUGLASS. — C.D., Long Beach.

C.D.: DOUGLASS is a divergent spelling of the name of the Scotch Clan Douglas, used by one family branch. Douglas was a place description of the valley owned by the founder, William de Douglas, who was born about A.D. 1150. Douglas meant "Black water," alluding to a dark, shadowed stream near the family manor house. Sir James Douglas was a famous captain under King Robert the Bruce in the war of Scotch independence from England in 1306. In the 1400s the Douglases were created Marquesses of Queensbury. The clan coat-of-arms has a red heart with an imperial crown on it, placed below two silver stars on a blue band that crosses the top of a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like history on PILCHER.—S.P., Long Beach; R.J., Lakewood.

S.P., R.J.: PILCHER represents an early English maker of "pilches," or "fur gowns and cloaks." Chaucer's 14th century writings state, "After great heat cometh cold; no man cast his pilche away." Descendants of the first Pilchere include Hugh le Pilecher of Cambridge in 1273. The Pilcher coat-of-arms has three interlaced red chevrons on a golden shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have history on MUSGRAVE and MUSGROVE.—Mrs. L.K., M.H., Long Beach.

L.K., M.H.: MUSGRAVE and MUSGROVE were taken by family ancestors from their home village in Westmoreland, England. An ancestor, Roger de Musgrave, is recorded there in 1277. Musgrave and Musgrove were composed of the old English phrase "Mos-graf," meaning "Mossy grove of trees." The original family coat-of-arms was granted at the time of William the Conqueror in the late 11th century, and has six gold rings on a red shield. The family motto, the French "Sans changer," was granted later, and means "Without change."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of MOON.—E.R., Long Beach.

E.R.: MOON was first recorded by the Sire de Mohun, a Norman French military leader under William the Conqueror during the French subjugation of England in 1066. De Mohun was the family estate-name in Normandy, and meant either "Place in the middle of the valley" or "Place of the Thinker." The Sire William de Mohun was granted 57 manors in England by William the Conqueror. Mohun was altered to Mohn and Moon in the 13th century. The ancient Mohun shield is red, emblazoned with a man's arm in an ermine cloak sleeve, holding a silver fleur-de-lis in the hand.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have the origin of McKINNEY. — G.M., Midway City.

G.M.: McKINNEY is from the Irish Gaelic MacCionaoit, with the very old mystical meaning "Sons of the fire-sprung one." The McKinneys were chiefs of a barony in north Monaghan and were followers of Clan O'Connor for centuries. MacCionaoit was modernized to McKinney, McKenney and Kenney in the 1500s. The family coat-of-arms has two narrow black vertical stripes between five red spur rowels formed in an "X" on a silver shield. American ancestors include David McKinney, born in Augusta County, Va., in 1755 and Robert McKinney, a south Pennsylvania land owner in 1740.

Prune Well But Wisely

By Bob Gilmore

Regular pruning is conducive to plant health and growth, but a slashing spree with the pruning shears can be ruinous.

ONE OF THE MOST controversial issues in gardening circles is that of when to prune . . . and how much. Professional gardeners seem to have their own personal beliefs about pruning; and the amateur gardener, unfortunately, thinks that pruning is synonymous with going on a whacking spree with his favorite pair of pruning shears.

There is really nothing very complicated about pruning. In fact, it is one of the most sensible procedures in gardening. Simply stated, pruning consists largely of removing those parts of a plant that are considered superflous. Pruning, when you are through with it, produces certain conditions that benefit both the health and looks of the plant.

REMOVING DEAD or diseased wood is definitely a part of pruning. There should be no argument on this point. Once these members are gotten rid of the plant will look much better and chances of the disease spreading will be minimized.

Pruning encourages new growth and the point to learn here is that this new growth can be developed along the lines you wish. Roses, for example, are usually pruned to an outside bud to encourage laterals to grow in that direction. Pruning to an inside bud would divert new canes toward the center of the plant.

Pruning also produces very definite effects on flower production. Specimens that are pruned back rather heavily, this is especially true of deciduous stock, usually flower with greater force the following season.

Periodic removal of flower heads is also a part of your pruning program. This step aids in maintaining flower production at high level. Allowing seed to form taxes a plant's strength and consumes energy that otherwise would be directed toward producing more bloom.

Generally speaking, plants should be pruned after their flowering period. Shrubs that flowered this summer can be cut back in the fall. Evergreen shrubs in this area react favorably to being pruned at almost any time.

HEDGES SHOULD BE trimmed whenever required to preserve a neat and clean appearance. These specimens often signal the approach of pruning time by losing their natural green coloring and stiffening up somewhat. Prune the plant so it can follow the natural contour lines. This calls for light, rather than heavy pruning.

Hibiscus plants are often ruined by faulty pruning. It is advisable to leave the plants alone for the first four or five years of growth. During this period they seem to hold a fairly compact shape. After this time sensible pruning will be required.

It is best to prune the hibiscus over a period of time. Three separate pruning treatments during the year are recommended. Remove the larger branches back to about one-third of their former length.

ABELIA GRANDIFLORA is another common plant often abused by poor pruning. This ornamental is best pruned during the winter when it tends to go dormant. The grayish-toned stems should be cut back about eight or nine inches from the ground. The new growth will start below this cut. Pruning abelias high up in the plant causes them to become topheavy the following season.

Camellias are more or less self-pruning. Plants that grow excessively in one direction should be shaped up. Otherwise, very little cutting need be done.

Club to Install

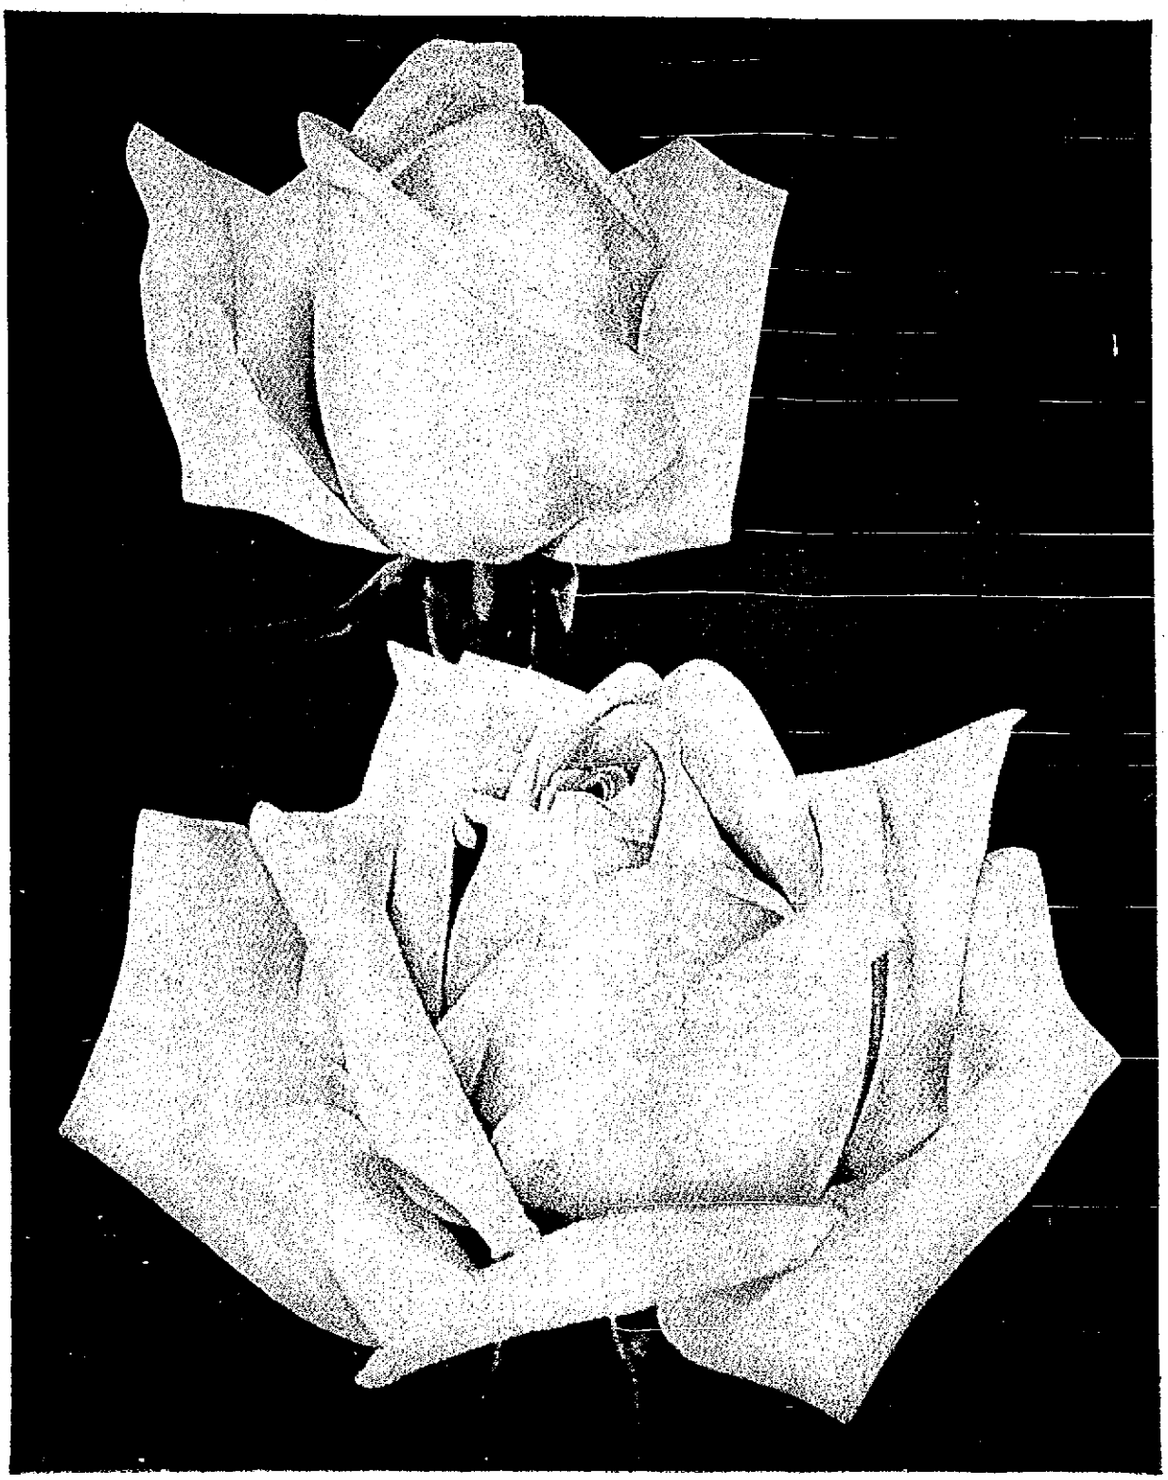

Long Beach Garden Club will install the following officers at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday at 208 Linden Ave.: Mrs. Pearl Adams, president; Mrs. Florence Sunn, vice president; Miss Mary Lillibridge, secretary; Mrs. Lillian Hruz, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Blanch Ashby, treasurer. Mrs. Addie Keating will install.

A talk on tropical plants will be given by C. B. (Doc) Houghton, horticultural expert.

1963's Rose Queens

By Harold L. Golden

All America Rose Selections

Royal Highness is a truly regal member of the rose family, the first pink hybrid tea rose in eight years to receive All-America selection. Garden showpiece, it also delights exhibitors.

FOR THE FIRST TIME in eight years a pink hybrid tea rose has been named an All-America Rose Selection.

Royal Highness, a clear light pink, has captured the coveted award and will carry the distinguished honor of 1963 All-America Rose along with another hybrid tea, Tropicana.

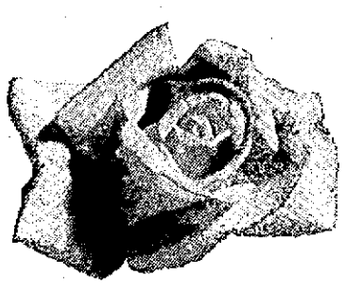

The new winner, a perfect reflection of what prize rose should be, is a paragon of the popular hybrid tea class of rose. In every way, Royal Highness is an exhibitor's delight as well as a stunning showpiece in the garden.

Royal Highness' refreshingly new color is entrancing; soft, pristine pure, pink petals made even more appealing by a frosty, sugar-like coating.

LONG, BEAUTIFULLY proportioned buds give only a hint of the majestic loveliness to follow in the fully opened flower. Large blooms, measuring 5 to 5½ inches, are borne individually on long, clean erect stems making cut flowers of this prize rose one of its many magnificent attributes. Blooms are fashioned in the classic tradition: high centers and gracefully turned petals that create the most delightful of rose shapes. Flowers that clothe the bush or dress the home in arrangements are unusually durable, lasting without blemish on the average of 4 to 5 days. From bud to bloom, there is little variation in the subtle, soft color of the flower.

The other rare qualities of Royal Highness also befit its pink-ice kind of beauty. The plant itself is a true reflection of the high standards set for an AARS winner. Its solid, well-rounded bush is generously branched, wearing the most beautiful of foliage. Rich, dark, dense glossy leaves serve as the suitable surrounding for Royal Highness' pink flowers.

The plant, an unusually vigorous, upright and bushy grower of middle height, withstands variations of weather in all sections of the country. Its masses of foliage are extremely disease-resistant. The plant Royal Highness is a fitting companion for the many other All-America remains in constant activity throughout the growing season.

Tropicana, an orange-red beauty, has an international background.

NOT THE LEAST among Royal Highness' winning ways is its fragrance, an attribute found all too seldom among recent garden roses.

The result of a cross between Virgo and Peace, Royal Highness boasts a most distinguished heritage. Peace, itself a 1946 All-America Rose Selection, claims the distinction of being the most loved and memorable rose of all time.

Developed by the famous American rose hybridist, Herbert Swim, Rose Selections award winners originated by Swim.

Plants of Royal Highness will be first available for home gardeners in the fall from local nurseries.

THE OTHER All-American selection, Tropicana, is making its debut with the amazing background of 13 international awards. Introduced by the Jackson & Perkins Co. of Newark, N. Y., the Tropicana is a hybrid tea variety.

Developed by the famous German hybridist, Mathias Tantau, Tropicana literally swept the boards when it won 12 awards in nine countries before getting the All-American citation.

This vibrant orange-red beauty—the result of a cross between a Peace seedling and an Alpine Glow seedling—far exceeds its forebears in vigor, hardiness, disease-resistance and brilliance of color.

Its color—brand new in the rose world—is equally remarkable in its intensity, brilliance and durability. There is said to be virtually no change in the hue of each flower from the moment the blossom bursts open until the spent flower drops off cleanly. Furthermore, the blooms are said to withstand the severest weather and will last up to two weeks without blemish.

The 4½ to 5-inch blossoms are produced in unusual abundance since nearly every cane bears several long-stemmed flowers of classical exhibition quality and size.

The plant itself is remarkable. It grows from 3 feet in the more temperate areas to 5 and 6 feet in warmer climates. Each plant is heavily branched and well clothed with the most rugged foliage to be found on any rose. It is perfectly adaptable to all parts of the country, from Minnesota, New York and Maine to California, Texas and Florida.

Tree That Brightens Spring

Flowering peach provides a brilliant display of color in the garden and for cut flowers in the early spring.

By Joe Littlefield

PLANT a flowering peach in your garden or lawn, and you can be sure you'll have lots of color, and branches of flowers to cut for table decoration early each spring. That is, you will have color and flowers, provided you don't prune the trees at the same time you prune your fruiting peach!

The time to prune a flowering peach, or other flowering tree, is at time you cut branches for decoration, or when the tree has finished blooming. If you have such a tree that has not been pruned and it needs shaping, prune it right away. It is even a little late now. Apply a pruning compound to seal the larger cuts to prevent possible excess sap bleeding. Next year, prune it as soon as it is through flowering.

Just because you may have read earlier in year that the time to plant deciduous flowering and fruiting trees is during the winter, don't mistake that is is the only time they can be planted. Many nurseries have flowering peaches and other deciduous flowering trees as well as deciduous fruit trees in containers. These bare-root plants set out earlier, now are well rooted and ready to be set out. They'll continue growing this summer. Late next winter, they'll be blooming for you.

ONE OF THE sweetly fragrant shrubs, gardenias, showing many well developed buds with promise of blooming may drop lots of buds due to a drastic weather change. During temporary warm balmy weather, buds form, and slowly develop. Weather changes to cloudy days, foggy, or cool. Suddenly buds drop: Generally, gardenia buds stay on, develop and bloom, when weather becomes more evenly mild to warm, then hot. As soon as hot weather rolls around they are in high gear for blooming.

Continue fertilizing them with same plant food you feed camellias, azaleas, and rhododendrons.

Should flower buds turn brown or black along flower petal edges the flower still in tight bud, thrips probably are attacking them. One of several sprays containing a good percentage of DDT controls those pests, provided you spray several times. Thrips are the same kind of pests that damage the foliage and blossoms of gladiolus, carnations, roses and many other plants.

Honeysuckle that can be grown like a shrub is favored by many who dislike the tangled mass of vine variety.

A Better Honeysuckle

By Eda Johnstone

ONE OF the oldest plants to be sentimentalized in song and story is the honeysuckle. Whether for its delightful scent or its attractive yellow flowers, it still has a place in many gardens for fence or trellis. But to many, its tangled growth and deciduous habit have made it unpopular.

For those who still would like a honeysuckle, there is one that is a shrub rather than a vine — the Lonicera Chinensia, a variation of the Japonica. If the first shoots are trained on a trellis, and tied, the plant will grow naturally into a rounded mass. The outer growth should be kept pruned. The blossoms are similar, but smaller and of a creamy white color, turning to a deep yellow as they age. Buds are a rich carmine, prominent at the back of the flowers when they open. This colorful effect is unusually attractive against the dark green foliage.

THE HONEYSUCKLE belongs to the Caprifoliaceae family, sometimes referred to as the elder or twinflower. Of its 350 species, there are 12 genera of garden interest, which are grouped under the name of Lonicera, comprising 150 species. This group was named for Adam Lonicer, a 16th century naturalist.

Easily cultivated, the honeysuckle will thrive in almost all localities when started from seeds or cuttings. It requires a fairly moist bed of loamy soil.

Guard Against Wind Damage

Plant protectors are valuable in transplanting, protecting young plants from wind and drying of the soil.

By Walter Finch

IN Southern California windy weather is not restricted to spring or any other particular season. The entire coastal region is subject to what meteorologists call a "prevailing westerly." A wind does not have to be a gale in order to damage plant life. Even the lightest breeze, if persistent enough, will lead to trouble.

Adequate watering is a must during windy weather. Just as clothes dry out more rapidly during windy weather, plants, too, suffer from excessive drying. When more moisture is given off by the plant leaves than is taken in by the roots then the entire plant is damaged. Watering during a wind is somewhat of a problem but it can be solved.

Overhead sprinkling is not desirable at a time when wind currents are moving rapidly. Irrigation will prove more effective as it keeps the water on the ground. Overhead sprinkling throws the water into the air where wind carries it away. So when it's windy keep the water low.

LAWNS CAN best be watered during windy weather by using a canvas hose that is stretched across the surface. The hose is porous and water trickles through it all along its length. This water is not subject to the movement of air as it immediately soaks into the ground. This canvas hose is available in several lengths and may prove one of your most valuable gardening tools.

Constructing irrigation ditches in flower beds will save water in windy weather, also guarantee that the moisture will seep down to the root zone. These furrows need not be deep or wide and water should be allowed to move slowly through them. This allows sufficient time for the moisture to move downward into the soil.

You should consider a windbreak as protection against winds of all velocities. The purpose of such a planting is to either stop or divert the course of the wind away from your property. A very excellent plant for windbreak purpose is the bushy blue gum, known botanically as Eucalyptus globulus compacta. This is a fast-growing plant, attaining a height of from 20 to 30 feet at maurity.

ANOTHER interesting plant that serves well as a windbreak is Pittosporum undulatum. This is an extremely popular ornamental in Southern California, being used in a very large number of landscapes. It may be trained either as a small tree or as a large shrub. It grows from 20 to 30 feet. You can obtain this plant at nurseries in practically any size desired from a one-gallon container up.

Young seedling plants often suffer from the wind and this treatment causes severe setbacks. The plants, being young, are quite tender and sensitive. Frequently they may be uprooted. You can solve this problem by using plant protectors that fit over the individual plant. It is comparable to placing a miniature hot-house over the ornamental to be protected. These protectors are made out of specially treated wax paper that lets sun in but keeps out wind, rain, frost and bugs. They also aid in maintaining a dust mulch on the soil.

Cultivation is also essential during windy weather for it prevents caking of the surface and also aids in maintaining proper soil porosity. Water penetration is always cut down should a crust form on the surface; this can be broken down after each watering by a light cultivation.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . Start feeding tuberous begonias with liquid fish when the tops have about three inches of growth.

Use a weed killer for easy control of weeds in parkways and along a driveway where other plant material won't be affected.

Protect newly planted annuals from the sun with a shingle or some other shade-giving shield.

Lawns may be fed once a month for best results. However, do not exceed the recommended dosage on the package of fertilizer.

Feed fuchsias copiously and water them to promote a vigorous new growth of flowering wood.

By Dorothy Jonson

I always feel that camellias should be disturbed as little as possible during their blooming period. Never sprayed unless some very severe infestation makes it necessary; not fertilized lest the blooms develop too rapidly; only watered by long, slow, deep irrigation sufficiently to keep the soil always slightly moist.

But when they finish blooming they should have every attention to make them comfortable for the long, restful summer ahead. Right now, the soil should have a contribution of soil sulphur, iron and other minerals. They should be fed with a good camellia food. And sprayed thoroughly to provide comfort and freedom from irritating and destructive insects.

The ideal spray for camellias is a light oil emulsion containing nicotine. This is not a heavy spray oil but is composed of light mineral and organic oils to give lasting control of insect life by suffocation, and nicotine which is safe but instant in its killing effect. This is a super fine spray for super fine, tender plants. Use it the moment your camellias finish blooming.

GRADE CARD

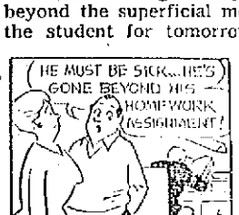

A Learning Secret

By Harry Karns

Education Research Associates

ONE OF THE MOST important things any student can learn is the secret of "over-learning."

Over-learning is simply learning in depth. It goes beyond the superficial memory work which prepares the student for tomorrow's classwork but which leaves him in the lurch at next week's examination.

Over-learning helps him retain points longer, gain new insight into the subject, and develop confidence in his knowledge.

But what is the process of over-learning?

It consists of approaching the subject from several different angles—studying it in a different way each time. At one stage, the student learns the facts. Next, he thinks of examples of the principles expressed in the assignment. Next, he compares what he has learned with what he learned in previous assignments.

The difference between a student who studies merely to get by, and a student who studies to learn, may be seen in the manner in which they attack the study of words. One will note what the word looks like and, perhaps, how it is spelled. The other will speak the word aloud, learn to spell it, learn its definition, write it in several sentences, and use it in his conversation. The word becomes his not merely for a day, but for life.

If you want to help your child acquire knowledge in depth and, just incidentally, get better grades, impress on him this advice handed down by educators:

"The time to really start to study is after you have learned everything in the assignment."

YOUNG READERS need to learn to look at the signs which writers and editors erect in books.

Those chapter headings and sub-titles are as important to readers as the signs along the highway are to the motorist.

For example, a history chapter may be entitled "A Nation Divided."

That's the main route.

The sub-titles mark the important stops along the way:

1. The Manufacturing North, and the Agricultural South.
2. Slave States or Free States?
3. States' Rights.
4. Immediate Abolition.

Thus, the book outlines the big points. The student who understands the signs will immediately grasp the pattern of the assignment.

With a little practice, he will be able to discern the pattern even when it has not been set forth typographically.

This ability will prove one of his most valuable aids as he advances through school and college.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Room 403, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

One solution to the need for more storage in the home is illustrated here. Many other plans are available.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

For More Storage

TO THE LADY of the house, "conquering space" means discovering new storage room —rather than rocketing to the moon.

Now a new plan for a bedroom closet wall deserves the designation of "space maker" say its designers at Weyerhaeuser Company, makers of lumber, plywood and other assorted wood building products.

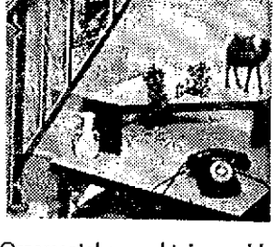

The plan (see illustration) provides twin closets ("his" and "hers") on either side of the head of the bed. It is a neat solution to the otherwise vexing storage problem in many, many homes since most bedrooms have unused space along one wall. Usually, you don't even need to rearrange furniture; other times, moving the bed to another wall makes the addition practical, simple.

CLOSETS require only 2-foot depth, and they can be as wide as the room allows. Even a 2-foot wide closet provides storage for at least a dozen men's suits or two or three times as many dresses. Above and below the clothes on hangers, there's added space for shoes, hats, accessories.

These built-ins are simple with either lumber or plywood. Finished natural or with a light stain, the warmth and beauty of wood adds restful charm and updates the home. Choose a light-colored economical wood such as western hemlock that readily accepts a wide range of stain tones or one of the new pre-finished Craftwall hardwood panelings offered in a half-dozen woods and even more finishes.

FOR THE advanced do-it-yourselfer, building a closet wall probably falls into the "moderately easy" category. When built by a professional, the project would go fast, cause little disruption of the home and usually cost only $350-$450 complete, unless there are unusually complicated conditions.

Plans are available free by writing Weyerhaeuser Company, P.O. Box B 103, Tacoma, Washington.

Ornamental wrought iron adds decorator effects to portions of the home that are hard to decorate, as this guard rail does—and a safety factor, too.

CAMERA ANGLES

Make Your Flash Unit Mobile

Holding flash units above and to side of camera or bouncing light are means of improving indoor shots.

By the Shutterbug

FLASH is used far more often than any other type of artificial light source for pictures made around the house. But all too many users of flash units, either bulb or electronic types, don't get anywhere near the full potential from their equipment. Most of them, faced with a picture situation calling for the use of flash, take the time-tested easy way out, leaving their flash gun mounted on the camera as they fire away.

Actually, there's nothing wrong with this approach to flash photography. In some situations, it's the only practical way to get the picture. But constant, unvarying use of straight on-camera flash brings with it a monotonous, unimaginative sameness to all pictures made in this way. Many subjects, particularly people, are often not shown to best advantage by on-camera flash. Here are some techniques and items of equipment that can be used to put new sparkle and life into home flash pictures:

MUCH MORE pleasing effects, particularly in close-ups of people, can be had from direct flash if the flash gun is removed from the camera and held above it and to one side at nearly arm's length. From this position the light will strike the subject downward from one side, giving high light and shadow effect that will bring out the contours, planes, and texture of whatever is being photographed to a much greater degree than is possible with the relatively flat light from a flash unit mounted on the camera. Annoying, unwanted subject shadows will be cast down and to one side, out of camera range, particularly when care is taken to keep the subject from being too close to the background, such as a wall or draperies.

Another form of off-camera flash is bounce flash, so called because the light from the flash gun is not aimed directly at the subject, but is bounced from a ceiling or wall to the subject, where it imparts a soft, almost shadowless effect that is particularly effective when shooting people. Bounce flash, a technique used extensively by professional photographers to simulate or supplement available light, helps preserve a natural feeling in the picture and can be used effectively with color as well as black-and-white films.

WHITE AND gray surfaces work best for shooting color pictures with bounce flash. If a blue ceiling is used, the subject will be given a bluish cast as the light from the flash unit picks up the color of whatever surface it hits. Unless such off-color effects are desired, avoid shooting in rooms with any but neutral-toned ceilings and walls.

Computing proper exposure for bounce flash is not as easy as when direct flash is employed, as the amount of light delivered to the subject by bounce is subject to many variables which no set of guide numbers could be expected to cover. Such factors as ceiling height and tone have a decided effect on exposure results. A relatively low, light-colored ceiling will reflect more light to the subject than would a high, dark one. As a rough guide in an average-sized living room, try opening the lens two stops more than the same shot would take if direct flash were being used.

GOOD BOUNCE flash technique comes with lots of shooting under a wide variety of room conditions.

A coiled-type extension flash cord is a virtual necessity for successful off-camera use of a flash gun.

Dogs Are Hobbies, Too

By Eleanor Avery Price

TO HUNDREDS of people, the Long Beach Recreation Department's annual hobby show, directed by Lois Delano, wouldn't be complete without the exhibit of beautiful Japanese spaniels owned by Mr. and Mrs. Leland Schenck, 35 Savona Walk. Happily, the Schencks both will be there on all four days of this year's event, May 10 through May 13, from 1 to 10 p.m. daily, at Municipal Auditorium.

Theme of year's show is "Hobbies For All Ages." Everyone needs an interest outside himself. As for the Schencks, their lives have been enriched for many years with toy dogs. A visit with them at the hobby show will gladden your day and may even cause you to consider having a dog or two for your own hobby.

If this happens, remember that all members of your family should in some way prepare themselves for dog ownership. All should be willing to share a small amount of time daily with the dog. And above everything else, the hobby of dog-keeping should be a hobby of kindness. In no way should anyone trespass upon the dog's good nature.

KINDNESS toward animals is especially emphasized this week since today starts National Be Kind To Animals Week, instituted annually by the American Humane Association, an organization that serves as a clearing house for hundreds of humane societies throughout the country. We wish there were words poignant enough to cause all animal owners to be good to their pets. Although monetary gifts are needed by our local humane organization, 2150 Cowles St., the society especially asks that you give of things which have no price — tenderness, sympathy, and kindness. And, if possible, come in and adopt a pet.

A few great humanitarians have made it their business to speak up for the rights of animals. G. R. Farnum wrote: "And let us include in the embrace of our love, and, may I add, our compassion as well, that great sub-human kingdom which shares with us the divinely ordained and mysterious gift of life. Thus we shall take the whole living world into our hearts." Also: "Kindness towards all sentient creatures and compassion of suffering in all its forms are the hallmarks of an enlightened community and the badge of a cultured individual."

In the 13th century, Francis of Assisi penned: "They (animals) have the same source as we had. God wishes that we should succor them whenever they require it."

From Harriet Beecher Stowe we read: "We should remember in our dealings with animals that they are a sacred trust to us from our Heavenly Father."

Puppies, Sumi and Ken Toi, are Japanese spaniels, a breed that will be included among dogs at hobby show.

TO PLUTARCH we owe these words: "The obligations of law and equity reach only to mankind, but kindness should be extended to the creatures of every species."

TWO BIG events are set today at North Hollywood Park: Hollywood Dog Obedience Club AKC trial and the annual fun picnic of the Basset Hound Club of Southern California.

TODAY the Scottish Terrier Club of California has its match at Cambria Kennels, 1451 E. McFadden St., Santa Ana.

THE SCHENCKS' Japanese spaniels will appear on the Dorothy Gardner show, KTLA, at 3 p.m. Monday.

ALL-SETTERS INC. fun match is held today at Cheviot Hills.

SAN GABRIEL Cocker Spaniel Club has a puppy match today at Pan American Park, Long Beach.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"Can you tell us about the new railroad line from Chihuahua, Mexico, to the Pacific Coast? What it costs and what you do to get on it?"

THIS IS A twice a week run from Chihuahua below El Paso, Texas, to Los Mochis below Nogales, Arizona. The reason for this line throws me. —Mexico generally has let its passenger trains run down. The business has gone to buses, cars and planes.

However, it's a great way for people from the Midwest and East to get to the Pacific Coast without the long drive. You wind up on Topolobampo Bay and the fishing is sensational.

The people who know most about this (and can get you tickets, entry cards, car insurance and good advice) are Dan Sanborn's at El Paso, Tex. Address them at 4501 N. Mesa.

First-class fare is about $13 round trip; $7 more for a lower berth. You can ship your car on the same train for $64 and drive onward. (There's a half-price rate if you are in a group and ship more than one car.)

Some real back country that tourists don't see through the Sierre Madre mountains. They've got breech clout, long-hair Indians in these hills. Wonderful trip for kids, I would think.

". . . anything about summer schools in Mexico?"

This is becoming a big thing. Cheap and good. There's an American boarding school, Colegio Beverly Hall, at Guadalajara, Jalisco — street address, Vallarta, 1851.

The April issue of "Seventeen" magazine has an article by James Norman on all schools for American summer students in Mexico. (I imagine this is the same man who wrote a "What to Buy and Where to Buy It in Mexico." If so, read the "Seventeen" article because he is absolutely tops in the country.)

He's a Champ Chef

CHEF CHARLES DANIEL
. . . "It isn't the eating . . ."

CLAIMS to the title of "The World's Best" in the art of meal preparation can be the subject of considerable debate. The championship is hard to substantiate because it depends somewhat on who is keeping score.

With a touch of pardonable pride, American President Lines offers a candidate.

He is Chef Charles J. Daniel, master of the gleaming galley aboard the SS President Roosevelt, newest and one of the most luxurious passenger ships on the trans-Pacific run to the Orient, which puts in at Los Angeles Harbor at 8 a.m. Friday and departs the following day.

By anyone's standards, his background and the creations from his skillet qualify him for title consideration. But this is the clincher—he is officially an international champion chef.

HIS OFFICIAL TITLE was earned as a member of the first United States team to win the world culinary championship in—of all things—the Olympic Games. Scene of the triumph was Frankfurt, Germany, in 1960.

It's not by idle chance that he became an expert chef. He comes from a Swiss hotel family. Two brothers are presently chefs there and his six sisters are in the restaurant and hotel business in Switzerland.

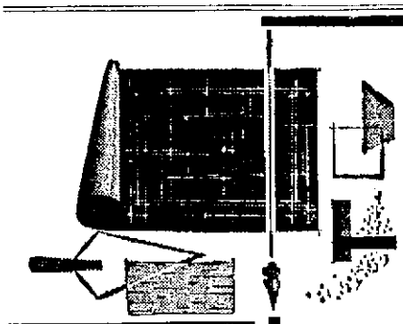

At 17 years of age he became an apprentice in the Swiss program that has produced some of the world's most famous chefs. The exacting training period was followed by years of experience in European cities renowned for food—Stockholm, Geneva, St. Moritz, Montreux, Copenhagen, Amsterdam, Paris and others.

SERVING AS CHEF aboard Dutch passenger liners, he found his way to the United States. U. S. citizenship became his top priority as he practiced his art in some of the best restaurants in New York, Southern California and San Francisco.

In preparation for his assignment to the President Roosevelt, he has served for the past two years on APL's luxury liners SS Presidents Cleveland and Hoover. On the President Roosevelt he is boss of 27 cooks and a kitchen staff of 57 skilled artisans.

Daniel complains his chosen profession involves the constant exposure to temtation in the presence of so much delicious food. Patting his waistline, he voices the universal apology of all who toil in the vineyard of stoves:

"It isn't the eating that puts on the pounds, it's the picking."

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

YOU'RE going to have to bear with us on this one. The paper may blush a little, but it's all for the good of the cause, and Social Responsibility is nothing if not our watchword.

You see, you may well find yourself in the same position we did — back in the hotel after a hard day of looking at cherry blossoms and buying wood-block prints — and decide that a steam bath and massage is just what you need.

Now, the Japanese views on bathing are well enough known not to need much elaboration here. Cleanliness is a veritable mania with them. Like most regular functions, bathing assumes the proportions of a ritual, as in the custom of family style communal bathing.

The steam bath and massage as we know it is not indigenous to Japan but was adopted from the Chinese after the war. We should have been prepared, we suppose, for the Japanese having adapted it to their own traditions. But we weren't as we hied ourselves up to the Miyako Hotel's solarium. Our suspicions began when we noted there was only one entrance, not the usual decorous "men" and "ladies" doors. Inside, a gaggle of wizened old ladies, the attendants, bowed and giggled at us.

WE WERE ushered into a locker room where one of the old ladies motioned us to disrobe and slip into kimonos. Modestly turning our backs on her in the accepted Japanese manner, we managed to pull off this maneuver without too much loss of—ah—face.

With great inhibition we clutched our robes about us, trying to make the mental adjustment of if-you-can't-like-it-join-it, and were led to the steam cabinets. Here we immersed for eight minutes in the false security of the steel surroundings.

Clutching towels about us, we proceeded to the private bathing room. It was an oversized version of a typical Japanese bathroom — a family-sized sunken tub made of wood surrounded by a tile floor where stood two tiny stools.

Divesting ourselves of the last shreds of human dignity, we awaited the next visitation of the crone and the inevitable back (and front) scrub. But when the door opened, what to our wondering eyes should appear but a teen-age girl. She was dressed (we warned you this was going to happen) in a short-sleeved blouse and pink lace-trimmed panties.

As she lathered and tubbed us, and ever since, we have speculated deeply on this costume. Nothing in our travel experience or meager knowledge of Japanese ways could explain it. Was it traditional? Was it merely the most comfortable dress for the hot room? What would Freud have concluded?

SWATHED in towels again and still wondering, we moved on to the massage room where two tables and two more old ladies were ready for us. We were preparing for the last blow to our composure when we noticed that the door to the steam cabinet room was open a crack. Through it we could see the perspiring head of one of our traveling companions emerging from one of the steel traps.

"George!" we cried with mixed dismay and embarrassment. The reddened face of George, the dignified editor of a distinguished Latin American magazine, turned white as his hair. He clanged the cabinet closed around his neck. We clutched the towels around us tighter.

The hags seemed delighted. "Friend!" they declaimed — the only English we heard—and prepared to yank him out of the steam cabinet and into our room for a really jolly three-way friendly massage party.

They were crestfallen when we finally communicated to them that no, no, things were already semi-private enough, thank you, and we only wanted the door closed.

The girls went about their massaging while we, in the usual dress for a massage, made bad jokes to each about Togetherness. The ladies laughed heartily, politely and uncomprehendingly at every word, cackling and bowing as they saw us back into our clothes and out into the world again.

When we saw George in the lobby a while later, he employed the classic Latin gambit for avoiding embarrassment. He pretended we'd never even seen each other upstairs.

NOT FAR FROM the German border is the quaint village of Lermoos, in Austrian Tirol. It is reached after a one and one-half-hour drive from Innsbruck over Fern Pass, a route which tourists find one of the most scenic anywhere. Lermoos boasts four pensions, or hotels, which have complete modern facilities.

Pilots Schooled in New Craft

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent, Press-Telegram Travel Editor

LOS ANGELES International Airport is playing an increasingly important role in the affairs of the airlines of the world.

New case in point is extensive training program which Trans World Airlines crew members were given at the airport before being assigned to the airline's Star-Streams, the "new breed" of commercial jetliners which went into service Saturday.

The training program marked the first time that large-scale instruction in new jet equipment has been carried out in Los Angeles. Previously, all training had been given at the TWA training center in Kansas City.

Selected captains, first officers and flight engineers were trained in classroom and cockpit at the airline's huge maintenance facility. Classroom sessions were devoted to study new systems, procedures and equipment. Crews and their instructors then took the giant jets aloft in training flights over the Southland.

The StarStream is TWA's designation for the new Boeing 707-131B jets—with a cruising speed of 630 miles per hour—designed and constructed around the newer, more powerful Pratt and Whitney JT3D-3 turbofan engines. Each engine develops 18,000 pounds of thrust.

IF YOU PLAN to go to Hawaii next month, and are in Honolulu on June 11—we'll, you'll be a mighty lucky person.

That will be Kamehameha Day, a favorite Aloha state holiday, when there'll be a parade with lei-decked horses mounted by flower-crowned princesses. There'll be hula dancers on orchid-plastered floats. The 30 floats will be interspersed with marching bands and Hawaiian music-makers.

After the parade, numerous poi luncheons will go on about the town—visitors invited. Public luaus also will give mainland vacationists a chance to feast on fish, poi and roast pig, Hawaiian style.

In addition, holoku balls and special entertainments are scheduled on numerous resort islands.

All of which will be something to remember for a long time to come.

SPEAKING OF Hawaii, Honolulu's new $30 million International Airport complex is scheduled to open July 2. A $5½ million overseas terminal building is located adjacent to the recently opened inter-island airlines facilities.

Eleven foreign and domestic carriers will be serviced at the new complex, which is only 20 minutes from downtown Honolulu.

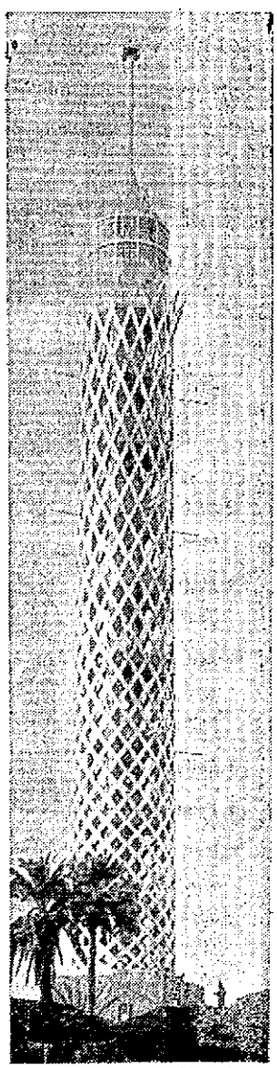

FUN AND PLEASANT sailing. That's the report from vacationists cruising aboard the SS Acapulco, which makes twice-monthly trips between Los Angeles Harbor and the Mexican Riviera city of Acapulco.

There's something doing from 7:30 a.m., when the gong announces breakfast, until 4 a.m. next day. Recreation, entertainment and loafing in the sun are in order. Activities include simulated horse racing or bull fighting lessons, music for those who dance, swimming in two pools, first run movies, bingo, trap shooting off the stern of the vessel, and so on.

The Acapulco is a one-class ship. The continental cuisine is prepared by Italian chefs and folks say it is good!

BIB OAK FLAT Road has been opened in Yosemite National Park with the removal by plows of a snow pack eight to nine feet deep in the Tuolumne Grove and Crane Flat areas, according to National Park Service. This road is the Park extension of SSR 12 which joins U. S. Hwy. 99 at Manteca.

WHEN THE SWANK 131-room Palm Springs SPA Hotel is opened at the height of the desert resort's season next year, the executive director and general manager will be none other than Eddie Davidson. Eddie, nationally known in the hotel management field, will run the new luxury palace in conjunction with his management of the world-famed Palm Springs SPA, a spot well known to so many Long Beach residents.

BOOK REVIEWS

An Admiral Looks at the Schools

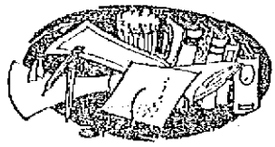

By Vera Williams
Independent Press-Telegram Book Editor

AS A sharpshooting but constructive critic of American school procedure, Vice Adm. H. G. Rickover reaches stature comparable to that he attained as the "father of the atomic Navy"—the genius who developed power plants for the submarine Nautilus, the cruiser Long Beach and eight other nuclear warships.

"SWISS SCHOOLS AND OURS: Why Theirs Are Better" (Atlantic-Little, Brown, $3.95) wastes no words, pulls no punches in attacking three favorite Rickover targets:

The school administrator, who usurps functions which Rickover says should be handled by experienced teachers; the "local-needs" doctrine of control of curriculum by local school boards, and the reluctance of American school authorities to borrow and utilize successful educational techniques from other nations, such as Switzerland.

With supreme documentation, he defends career teachers as the heart and hope of American education.

He pleads fervently for the elevation, by public recognition and reward of educational achievement, of the American teaching profession to the prestige level it enjoys in nations abroad.

FRANCOISE Mallet-Joris is about the best of France's women novelists; her newly translated "THE FAVORITE" (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, $4.50) is in a new genre—the historical novel.

Here is the story of Louis XIII's mistress, Louise de La Fayette, and of the two powerful factions at the court—those of Cardinal Richelieu and of the feudalists who follow the queen. The novel places Louise between the hammer of the one and the anvil of the other, yet refusing to use her love for the king to influence him. The cardinal's agents trick her into a convent.

Because Mallet-Joris is so gifted, the reader is held to the end by the suspense of the plot and the beauty of the writing.

"FISH, FOWL AND LIMERICKS, With an Added Lyrical Bouquet" (University of Washington Book Store, Seattle) is the latest output of the flying typewriter of Glenn Hughes, founder and for 40 years director of the School of Drama at the University of Washington.

Hughes, who was reared in Long Beach and graduated from Poly High in 1911, has written many books including theater histories, plays and poems.

"FF and L," lighter than most of his work, is marked by gay — and occasionally naughty — limericks. (Hughes suggests that his readers take only a few of them at a time.) There are charming Easter and Christmas poems including a fetching Christmas dialogue. A "Birthday Garland" is made up of poems in the style of Swinburne, Browning, Yeats, Shakespeare, Housman and Eliot.

The volume is dedicated to Hughes' brother, Bert E. Hughes, 1667 Poinsettia St.

BIOGRAPHER Christopher Hibbert pictures Benito Mussolini as a man of puzzling contrasts.

"IL DUCE" (Little, Brown, $6) recounts how Mussolini at one time soundly condemned war as a Socialist editor, then proclaimed war could be Italy's salvation in 1914.

The biography tells how Mussolini was a wild youth who resisted and resented all authority. This same Mussolini was the man who later ruled Italy with an iron hand in a Fascist police state.

The 365-page biography follows Mussolini's life from birth in a small village to the fateful 1945 day when he was shot by Communist partisans.

Concluded Hibbert: "Mussolini, as he himself once said, was not so much a Fascist as a Mussolinist."

"THE LAWLESS SKIES" by Donald Fish (Putnam's, $3.95) is the true story how a gold smuggling ring and other airborne criminal operations were broken up.

The author is the former chief security officer for British Overseas Airways Corporation.

ELLEN BROMFIELD GELD

The daughter of Louis Bromfield — Ellen Bromfield Geld—writes with humor and affection about her eccentric father in "THE HERITAGE" (Harper, $4.50).

Soda Is a Seven-Cent Bargain

Sponging a windshield with baking soda removes bugs that have been squashed there and block driver's view.

WHAT CAN you buy today for seven cents . . . one egg, half a cake of soap, or three and a half aspirin? In spite of soaring prices, however, there's one item that's been able to resist inflation . . . one that can still be bought for just about seven pennies, namely a half pound box of baking soda. Take advantage of the hundreds of practical household uses to be found in this little package and your weekly budget may wind up with a surprising surplus.

For example, it's a first rate dentifrice for both "true" and false teeth. It's the only product aside from salt recommended as a dentifrice in American Dental Association literature . . . only dentrifice in powdered form that's permitted to be exhibited at ADA conventions.

A HALF POUND of it added to a tepid tubful of water and you have a treatment recommended by dermatologists for the relief of dry skin, sunburn, prickly heat, hives and other minor skin irritations, but don't irritate by scrubbing. Since soda is a mild detergent, you'll come clean without the help of a washcloth. Have the water in your tub hot and aching muscles relax.

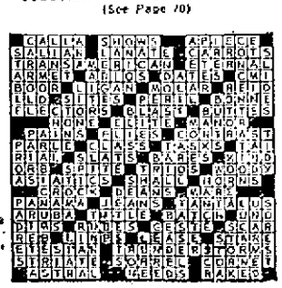

Soda also makes an excellent cleanser for your tub. Apply it dry with a sponge or brush. Run the water to rinse and, presto, soda dissolves. The gritty bottomed tub, the bane of bathers, becomes a thing of the past.

Soak sore, weary feet in a basin full of soda solution and they pep right up with the rest of you following suit. Insect bites or stings lose their itch or burn when covered with a baking soda paste. And soda is still the standard remedy for the relief of acid indigestion and heartburn.

SINCE BAKING SODA is a pure food product, it's particularly valuable as a household sweetener and cleaner for it can be safely used around food and small fry. Manufacturers of refrigerators and freezers, for example, recommend it for cleaning and refreshing the interior of their units. Manufacturers of non-aluminum coffee-makers do likewise, for soda removes that accumulation of coffee film which is responsible for giving coffee a stale-ish, off flavor. Makers of vacuum bottles and jugs advise filling their products with a soda solution after every using to keep them sweet and clean.

Manufacturers of stainless steelware advise using a soda solution or dry soda applied with a moist sponge for stainless steel surfaces, appliances and flatware. Other surfaces that respond well to a soda and water wash are tile, plastic, porcelain and marble.

REX WELCH
Hard to Believe

THE BUILDING is still as modern as tomorrow, its graceful curves and smart straight lines making it a landmark on Atlantic Avenue, noticed by everyone who passes. Its interiors have never been more handsome. Its picture windows, tropical plants and split-level dining rooms and banquet rooms are as glamorous as the day they were built.

So perhaps that's why people find it so hard to believe that Welch's, 4401 Atlantic Ave., is now 15 years old. Even the employes, some of whom have been there the entire 15 years, can't believe the restaurant has reached that age. Nor can owner Rex Welch, who had the idea for the restaurant, built it and has had the rich experience of seeing it prosper through its decade and a half of life.

Like a beautiful woman displaying more elegance with each passing year, Welch's has retained charm. It keeps its old patrons while regularly attracting new ones from throughout Long Beach and the surrounding communities. The luncheon and dinner menus have varied only slightly down through the years, offering sea foods and meat entrees of the highest quality, freshly prepared with the emphasis on flavor, fragrance and perfect appearance. Among the tastebud-stimulating dinner entrees are shrimp or crab Newburgs ($2.50); tender, flaky swordfish steak ($2.25); appetizing abalone ($2.50) and such other treasures of the sea as lobster thermidor ($3.50); grilled halibut ($2.25), and fried jumbo shrimps with a spicy sauce ($2.25). Among the beef items are prime ribs of beef au jus with Yorkshire pudding ($3).

The restaurant serves Sunday dinners from 12:30 to 9 p.m. Luncheons are served daily from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., dinners from 5 p.m. on.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

'Ben Casey' Romantic Success

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Two attractively dressed women approached Vincent Edwards after rehearsal for a "Ben Casey" scene.

"We're doctors' wives," said one of them, "and we want you to know we think you're doing a fabulous job."

Edwards, as non-smiling as his TV "Ben Casey" image, replied:

"Thank you."

The other doctor's wife said nothing. She just stood in awe. She appeared lost in that hero-worship type of crush-reverie usually reserved for teenage girls.

It is not a type of middle-age crush-reverie reserved for doctors' wives. In the case of "Ben Casey," resident neuro-surgeon, the hero-worship is catching.

An association of retail merchants from the East and Mid-West recently reported that financial deficits from a blizzardy winter had largely been offset by the sale of one feminine item—a "Ben Casey" blouse.

Most of the purchasers, the association reported, were middle-aged women.

JUST WHAT makes Vincent Edwards romantically click with middle-aged women is more than any mere male can analyze.

Certainly he is not pretty-boy handsome. He looks more like the public image of a hoodlum, than a neuro-surgeon.

In fact, prior to being signed as "Ben Casey," Edwards generally appeared in motion pictures and television productions as a heavy.

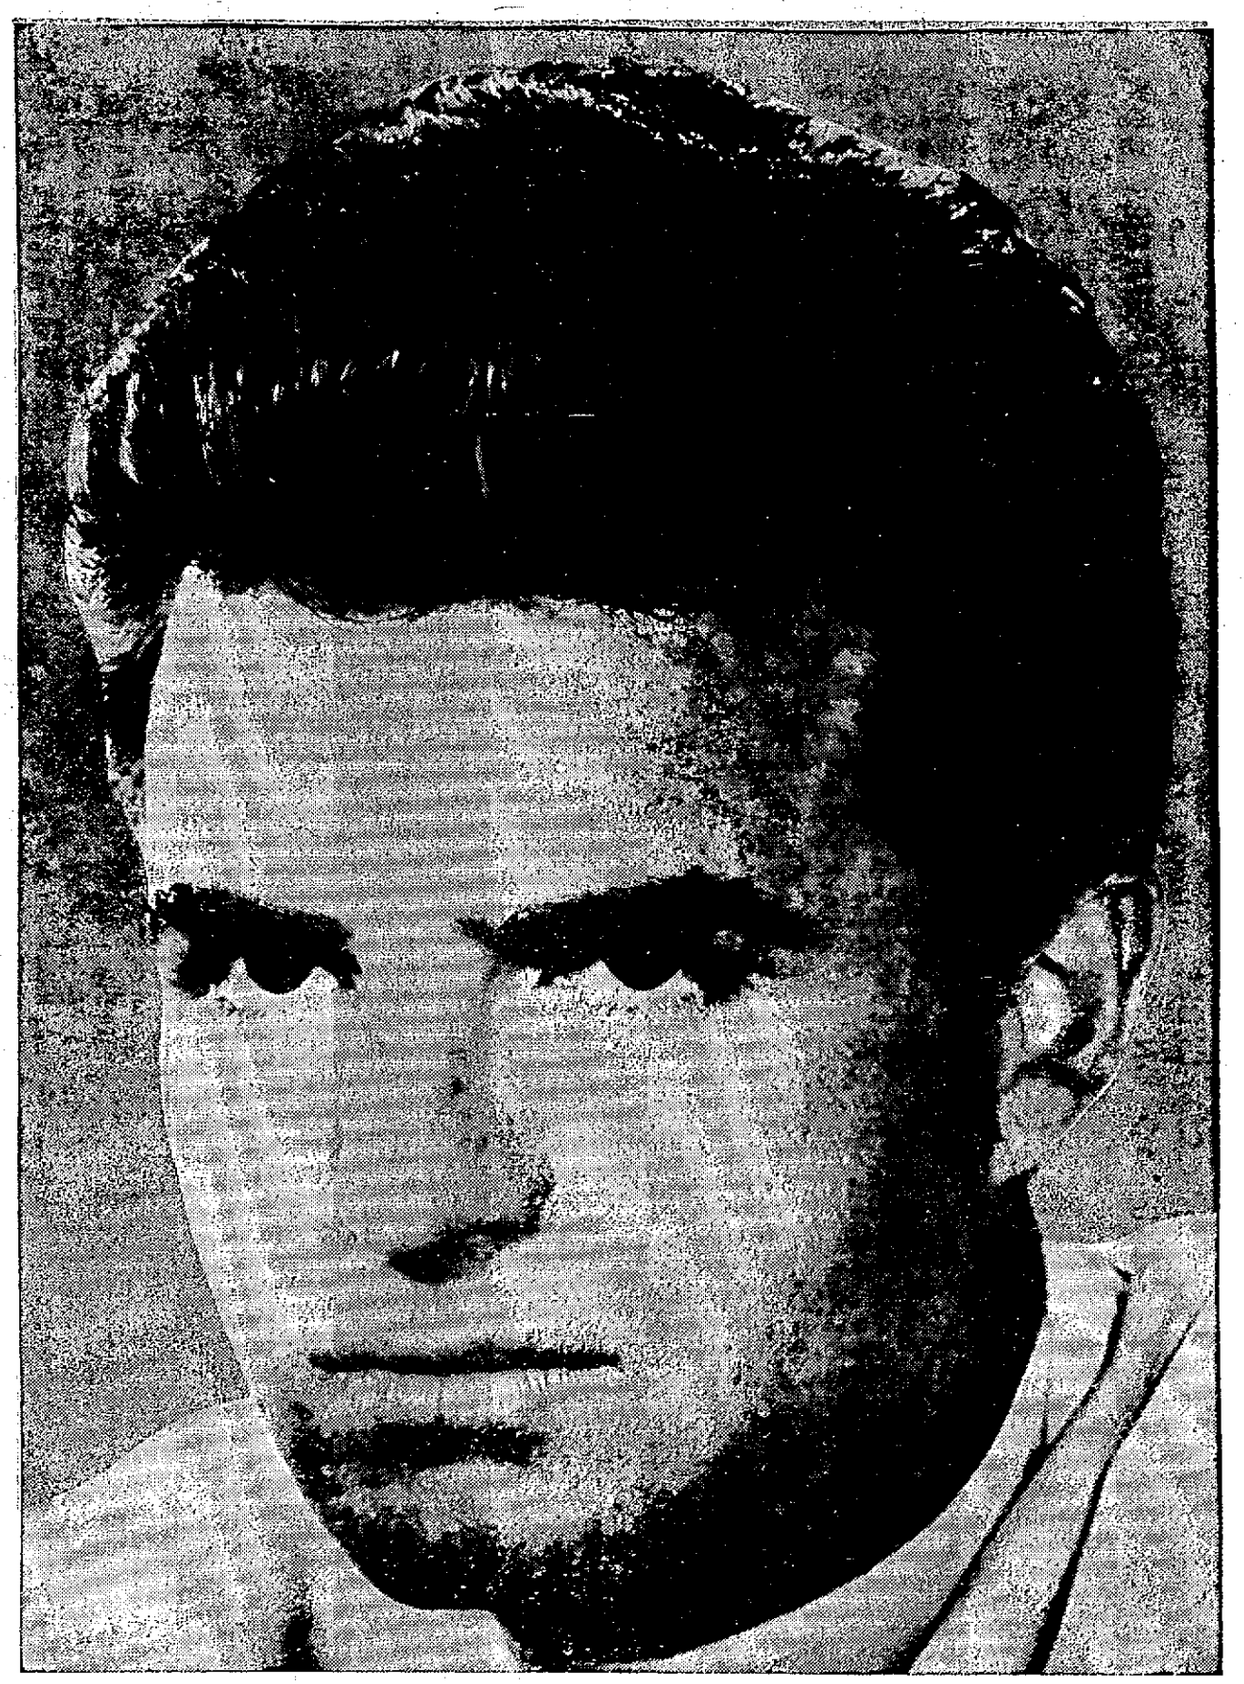

His type-casting as a villain made Edwards "feel disgusted, but I never wanted to give up acting."

What makes Edwards romantically click certainly is not love scenes. The only kiss in a TV season's portrayal as the neuro-surgeon has been expended on a thermometer when "Ben Casey" was ill.

In his role, Edwards is generally surly, usually controversial and always authoritative and commanding.

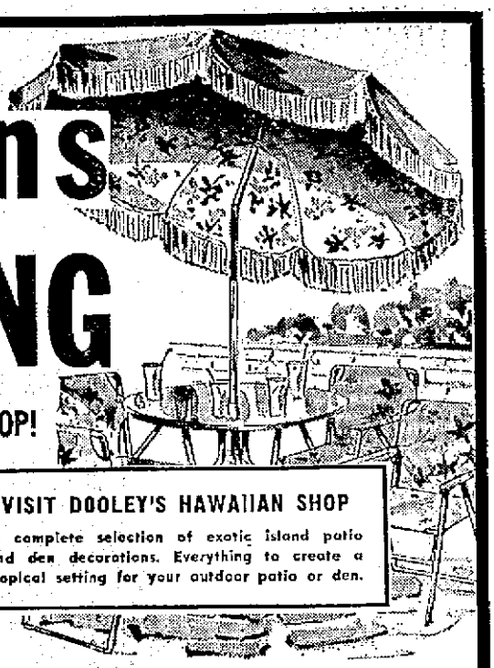

It is perhaps these last two elements—authority and command—that virilely stimulate the middle-aged feminine viewers who send him more

DR. HENNESEY TV WEDS NURSE MARTHA

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Jackie Cooper Explains Viewers Eager for Marriage Vows

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Doctor Hennesey is marrying nurse Martha Hale, and fans of the television show may be asking why.

"I'll tell you why," said Jackie Cooper, who is producer and director as well as "Hennesey" himself.

"In the past year or two, we've been getting a lot of mail from viewers, especially young persons and church people, wondering when Hennesey and his girl friend are going to get married. They seem eager to have it happen.

"Besides which, in three years of their courtship, we had used just about every kind of line and situation that could be used with two people who were dating. It was time to get a new dimension.

"A lot of people are now worried that 'Hennesey' is going to be just another family show. It isn't. The only difference will be that instead of going home to the bachelor office quarters, he'll be going to a house of his own."

* * * *

IT IS SAFE to predict that Jackie won't allow "Hennesey" to sink into the wall-to-wall rut of the domestic comedies. So far the show has managed to avoid all stereotypes for television series, while still building a steadily growing audience.

AFTER THREE YEARS of courtship, Dr. Chick Hennesey (Jackie Cooper) weds nurse Martha Hale (Abby Dalton) at 10 p. m. Monday, channel 2.

Young Dr. Hennesey is a Navy doctor—"We were on the air two years before Ben Casey and Dr. Kildare started practicing."

But it is not a medical show. "We have had a cigarette and a food sponsor, and they weren't eager for us to get clinical," Cooper explained. "I did remove a child's appendix in a mountain cabin once, but most of my practice has been off-screen."

* * * *

THE DUAL sponsorship also has contributed to "Hennesey's" split personality: "The food sponsor wanted us to play for comedy, while the cigarette people were willing to have some dramas. So we usually do a comedy when the food sponsor had two of the three commercials, and a drama—with some light lines—on the alternate week."

The sponsors were consulted about the forthcoming marriage. It will be the last show of the season (10 p.m. this Monday, channel 2). "But we didn't have to get their permission," Jackie added. "They've been very good about not interfering."

* * * *

WHAT COMES next for Hennesey?

First he has a fight for survival. Despite generally good ratings, the show has been bumped out of its time slot and is looking for another. It may be on CBS again, perhaps elsewhere. But Jackie is confident "Hennesey" will survive.

"We have a ready audience, and the show is a good buy for a sponsor," he said. "I would like to do one more season—two at the most.

"I expect this to be my last engagement as a performer; I've been at it 36 years and I've got a lot of other things I want to do. Next year I'd like the Henneseys to have a baby and get their futures settled. Then I can leave them."

Vince Edwards 'Happy Hero'

than 1,000 letters a week.

With a half-grin, one that would make Mona Lisa look like Martha Raye in the midst of a guffaw, Edwards added his own analysis of the romantic appeal.

"I guess they like my bedside manner," he said.

HAPPY to at last be a hero, Edwards is still happier that the ABC-TV Monday night medical series, in his opinion, has succeeded on another front other than its romantic appeal to middle-aged women.

"Children now have another kind of image to admire besides the gangster or western type," he said.

It's an image to which he's dedicated.

"I feel I have the character down to where I believe it," he said.

That his viewers believe it is evident from the series' success as one of the nation's top 10 television shows, according to Nielsen ratings.

That the series' producers are sure it is a success is evident with reports that Edwards will get a considerable raise in salary for his second-season appearance as the neuro-surgeon.

The personal financial success is one vastly appreciated by an actor who, not too long ago, "was renewing acquaintances at the unemployment office."

EDWARDS CREDITS a great deal of the success of the series to its excellent scripts.

"The basic element is 'survival,'" he said. "The stories are very real."

He doesn't think there is any point in comparing another TV medic, intern "Dr. Kildare," with resident "Ben Casey."

"That," said Edwards, "is like comparing Dobie Gillis with Eliot Ness."

TV's medical Eliot Ness is not as complete a success with the medical profession as he is with middle-aged women.

While not singling out the "Ben Casey" program in particular, the "Medical Tribune" in a Feb. 26 editorial comments as follows regarding video medicine drama:

"Medically the stories are apt to hinge on a diagnostic problem of staggering simplicity, which the principals solve in the strongest of ways —like hollering and screaming, though not, as yet, by drawing six-guns and shooting each other."

And further on in the same editorial:

"At the close of the program there is loud and clear 'gratitude' to the AMA (American Medical Assn.), and we wonder if our patients understand it refers only to the way the actors held their hemostats."

TV screen credits for "Ben Casey," incidentally, list the AMA.

IN THE APRIL 9 issue of the same medical publication's "Letters" department, a Philadelphia physician, Dr. Herman Miller, refers to "Ben Casey" as a "horror" story. Penned Dr. Miller:

"It is my strong opinion, and that of many other physicians, that this characterization of a 'medical knight on a white charger' is so unreal and downright insulting that the lasting impression left with the viewer is that medicine has acquired another black eye."

If there is antagonism among some doctors against "Ben Casey," that feeling apparently is not shared by an affiliate medical group.

On a recent visit to St. Joseph's Hospital in Phoenix, Ariz., Edwards was mobbed by nurses.

NEXT FALL television will have 11 series about medics. Their spawning is due, for the most part, to the success of Edwards as a "medical knight on a white charger."

The "knight" was born 31 years ago in Brooklyn, N. Y. A twin and the youngest of seven children, he was christened Vincent Edward Zoine.

He recently was signed by "Coral Records" to make a number of singing records.

He's a bachelor.

What kind of a girl is he looking for?

"Female," replied Edwards.

It is a category that does not exclude middle-aged women.

Q. Please do not print my name, but is Rosemary Clooney looking for another husband?—V. L. C., Washington, D. C.
A. Not at this point.

Q. When Tennessee Williams was a little boy, his father used to call him "Miss Nancy." I'd like to know why.—J. T. McDaniel, Oakland, Calif.
A. He felt his son was "sissified."

Q. Does anyone know how many Italians Mussolini sent to Hitler as slave-labor in Word War II?—Donald O., St. Louis, Mo.
A. One estimate is 700,000 of which number 30,000 died.

Q. What common stocks are owned by President Kennedy?—Neva Gregory, Los Angeles, Calif.
A. None. The President owns federal, state and municipal bonds.

Q. Mexico in this century has had three great painters: Diego Rivera, Jose Orozco and David Siqueiros. Can you tell me why Mexico has jailed so great an artist as Siqueiros?—Roger Jeffries, Phoenix, Ariz.
A. As secretary general of the Communist Party of Mexico, Siqueiros, in violation of the law, "engaged in public disorders on behalf of a foreign power." He was sentenced to 10 years in jail, two of which he has already served.

Q. Do you know how much Jack Paar will be paid on his new hour-long TV show this fall?—Mrs. Ada Remick, Charleston, W. Va.
A. Approximately $15,000 a week.

Q. The late Dr. George Papanicolaou, discoverer of the Pap smear test for diagnosing uterine cancer—is it true that for 20 years his discovery was disregarded by the medical profession?—R. Douglas, Chicago, Ill.
A. Roughly, yes. Dr. Papanicolaou published a paper on his discovery in 1928. Scant attention was paid to it until 1940 when Dr. Joseph Hinsey, dean of Cornell Medical College, was so impressed that he persuaded the doctor to devote all his time to cancer diagnosis research. In 1948 Dr. Papanicolaou began to be recognized by the medico-scientific world as a doctor of renown and great accomplishment.

Q. To what religious faith does Chief Justice Earl Warren belong?—C. Halloran, Wash., D.C.
A. The Chief Justice is a Baptist.

A. Unfortunately, yes.

Q. Has anyone learned what the late Alton Jones, head of Cities Service Oil, was doing with $61,000 in cash and traveler's checks when he was killed in that plane crash enroute to visit Eisenhower in Palm Desert?—E. R. E., Los Angeles, Calif.
A. Best guess—he was planning to contribute the money to the Republican party campaign headquarters in California.

Q. What's happened to Syngman Rhee, former President of the Republic of Korea?—Maribell Lewis, Baton Rouge, La.
A. Rhee, 87, was recently confined in the Tripler General Hospital, Honolulu, later entered a rest home.

Q. Please tell us why Rocky Rockwell and Larry Dean are not still with Lawrence Welk's Music Makers and what they are doing now.—Helen Rose, Hollywood, Fla.

Q. Can you tell me if Dinah Shore adopted a colored infant some twenty-two years ago?—T. R., Knoxville, Tenn.

A. She did not. She has two children: Melissa, 14½, her natural daughter; and John David, 7½, adopted.

Q. Now that Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh have separated, will Tony marry Christine Kaufmann?—Marie Lang, Los Angeles, Calif.
A. Curtis, still married, regards Miss Kaufmann as "a good friend." The two recently completed filming Taras Bulba.

Swim for your life

MIAMI, FLA.

WITH MORE SQUARE MILES of water than any other U.S. city, Miami has a water-safety problem second to none—and a solution to match.

It all began on a sun-specked weekend in March 1959, when three children toppled into the water in different parts of Miami and drowned. The triple tragedy came as a shock to all Miamians. For the city's mothers, it was also a call to action.

Overnight, 750 of them banded together as the Aquatic Mothers, set out determined to teach every child in Miami to swim. Dubbing their program "Swim for Your Life," the mothers themselves took swimming lessons from the Red Cross, then trained their own and neighbors' kids. After that they moved into neighborhood pools with full-scale clinics.

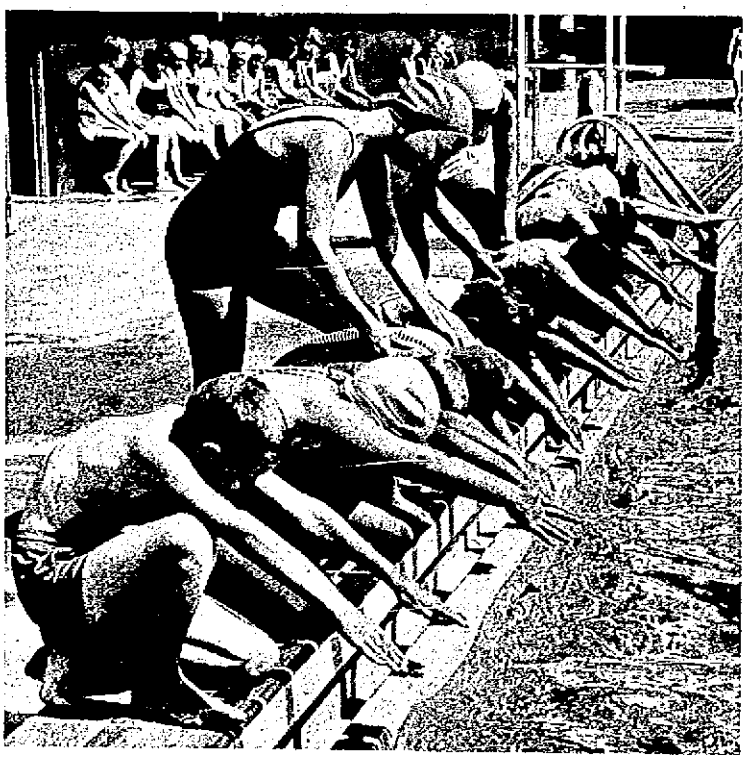

Soon other groups joined the fight. The Miami Herald launched clinics where Red Cross experts held "Teach Johnny to Swim" classes for 50,000 non-swimmers. University of Miami students put up skull-and-crossbones "Do Not Swim" signs at dangerous rock-pits and canals. Citizens with backyard pools turned them into impromptu swim schools.

Results were dramatic. Within a year, Miami's death rate from drowning was halved. Today the 750 original instructor-mothers have grown to 2,500, and 90,000 people—mostly children—have been taught to swim. Comments one Red Cross official: "Without question, it's the biggest and best water-safety campaign in the U.S."

How can other cities do what Miami has done? Pioneers of the project say local PTA mothers and the Red Cross are the ones to start the program, with the Red Cross training the mothers as swimming instructors. Once things are under way, newspapers, pool owners, schools and other groups can be encouraged to join. —PAT MURPHY.

THE SPY WAR

WHO'S WINNING

"RUSSIAN SPIES are better than American spies."

"Soviet Russia has the best-trained, most accomplished spies in the world today."

"In the past 25 years Soviet intelligence agents have achieved sensational success in the field of espionage."

"By comparison they have made American and British agents look like a group of bumbling, schoolboy amateurs."

Here, in this traditional hotspot of intrigue and informers, in this marketplace of conspirators and double agents which must be kept nameless, the above declarations are presented as facts.

If you deny their validity, as I did to a former Red agent, you are viewed with a smiling, sophisticated tolerance and presented orally with a boxscore of Soviet espionage achievements. You are asked to assess the Soviet spy record since World War II and to compare it with the American record.

Here is a partial list of Russian spy achievements from 1939 to 1962:

1. The Soviets have established extensive and rewarding spy networks in the U.S., Canada, Great Britain, and Australia. Their spies have obtained and transmitted vital data on everything from the atom bomb to decoding devices to the sex lives of Allied diplomats.

2. An extensive Soviet spy network still operates in the U.S. It consists of some Russian delegates to the United Nations, many of the approximately 700 Soviet diplomats and dependents in Washington, Tass correspondents, visiting culture groups, Soviet bloc diplomats and, of course, veteran Soviet intelligence agents ordered here by the Soviet Committee of State Security (NKGB—Narodnyi Komisariat Gosudarstvenoi Bexopasnosti).

The FBI has ruined the Communist Party in America as a Russian spy-auxiliary. J. Edgar Hoover and his men have penetrated the domestic Communist Party in such depth that it is now practically useless for espionage purposes. The FBI has exposed the Party for what it is—an agency of a foreign power. But the Soviets continue sending in home-grown spies.

One of the leading Soviet agents conducting a spy network in New York as late as February 1961, was Yuryi Osipovich Karakoz, 45, a graduate of the Marx-Engels Academy in Moscow and the super-secret Soviet school for spies at Caczyna, an espionage-training center 100 miles southeast of Kuibyshev. Osipovich conducted espionage in the U.S. under the cover name, William Arthur Mortimer, and recruited a number of civilian and military Americans through bribery and blackmail. A secret Soviet file lists his spy registration number as S-430901/112-G. He was ordered back to Moscow last year.

3. In Canada, the Soviet espionage network recruited into their apparatus the notorious spy-scientist, Dr. Alan Nunn-May.

Dr. Nunn-May, now teaching in Ghana, stole samples of Uranium 233 and 235, passed them to Lieut. Angelov, another Soviet spy in Ottawa, who had the samples flown to Moscow. The Canadian spy network also obtained details of "Asdic" sets, sonar devices for the detection of submarines, information on new electron shells, and plans of the entire Canadian defense strategy.

One of the most efficient Russian agents recently operating in Canada was a woman, Tanya Markovina Radyonska, 38, another Caczyna-trained spy, number B-480822/039-G. She used a British name in Ottawa from 1959-1961, seduced a top Canadian police official who became her lover without ever determining her true identity or background.

4. The Soviet spy network in England not only obtained the most vital atomic bomb secrets from Dr. Klaus Fuchs, the German refugee physicist now working for the Communists in East Germany, but later under Dr. Geoffrey Noble (real name—Mark Borisovich Zagorsky) and Gordon Lonsdale (real name—Colon Molody) it obtained vital radar information in which field the British are expert. It then penetrated the Portland naval base last year where the British atomic submarine Dreadnought was being equipped with an American atomic reactor. Using British informers, the Russians obtained information on such secret detection devices as "sniffers" and "ice eyes" which can smell and hear approaching submarines. It is also believed they obtained designs of an analog computer which records minute changes in the gravitational field, one of the best anti-submarine measures yet developed.

Worse yet for the British and Americans, the Soviets convinced George Blake, one of the top agents in MI6, the British Intelligence Service, to defect and become a double agent. Blake, of Dutch-Egyptian extraction (real name—Albert Behar), gave them the names of some 40 British spies operating behind the Iron Curtain. These 40 spies have since disappeared and according to my informant have all been shot. Behar was convicted of espionage in a closed trial last year. On May 3, 1961, he was sentenced in London to 42 years in jail, the longest sentence the British have meted out to anyone in this century.

5. In Australia, the Soviet spy network has managed to penetrate the rocket site at Woomera, to obtain valuable information of a military nature, to recruit into its apparatus Australian newspapermen and other knowledgeable personnel.

Several years ago, Vladimir Petrov, a top Soviet agent whose real name is Shorokhov, defected. He informed Australian security officers of the extensive Russian espionage network established in their country. The Australians paid him £5,000 for his help, granted asylum to him and his wife.

In 1955 after Petrov had exposed the Russian network, the Soviet NKGB attempted a new spy network in Australia. An attractive dancer named Rita Elliott was transported to Adelaide, ordered to recruit spies, obtain military and political information. Rita Elliott's real name is Esfir Yuryna. She is now 39. She was also trained at Caczyna. Her intelligence number is A-450110/215-G. She is the daughter of the well-known aerialist of the Moscow State Circus, Gregoryi Yuryn. In her service as a spy, Rita Elliott enticed several important Australian officials to her apartment, drugged and extracted from them in their stupefied states top-secret information.

In January 1961, when Australian counter-intelligence agents became suspicious of her activities in Melbourne and placed her under 24-hour surveillance, the Soviet escape apparatus moved Rita out of the country. Today she is probably back at Caczyna, along with Colonel Rudolf Abel and other crack Soviet spies, teaching the new crop of Russian agents how to operate in English-speaking countries.

So much for this fragmentized record of Soviet espionage achievements which have helped the U.S.S.R. to its present position of importance in the world.

What does the U.S. espionage record offer in competition? How have we done, and how are we doing?

These are certainly two of the most difficult questions to answer today, especially since the American agencies charged with obtaining foreign intelligence—the CIA and NSA, Central Intelligence Agency and National Security Agency—are not about to divulge very much on either their successes or failures.

The truth of the matter, however, is that in the omnipresent, secret war of spies, we Americans are doing well—particularly when you realize that we are Johnnies-come-lately to this game.

The U.S. had no coordinated intelligence setup in its government until the National Security Act was passed in 1947, authorizing the organization of the National Security and Central Intelligence Agencies.

A WORD about the National Security Agency of which, oddly enough, relatively few Americans have ever heard. It is possibly the greatest modern intelligence-gathering setup in existence. Its headquarters are at Fort Meade, Md. It employs more than 12,000 people, in addition uses 6,000 members of the armed forces to man overseas monitoring equipment.

It is larger than the better-known CIA. Its major function lies in the field of communications intelligence. Its personnel intercept and break foreign codes. The NSA has radio and radar stations scattered throughout the globe, some on ships, others on planes, monitoring all radio communications. It intercepts and decodes messages of the Soviet armed forces, thus learns where the Russian forces are stationed, what they're doing, where they are maneuvering. Should the Soviet Army suddenly be mobilized or a certain number of divisions massed on a particular border, NSA would monitor the logistics messages, Soviet cartoon satirizes spying. NATO agent (r.) has been assigned to Russia as tourist.

—WE OR THE RUSSIANS?

immediately notify Washington, thus prevent us from being victimized by a surprise attack as we were at Pearl Harbor.

Another NSA mission is to locate through electronic devices all Soviet and Soviet-bloc radio and radar stations, record their emissions on tapes which are then translated, later flown to Ft. Meade for analysis and storage.

At Ft. Meade, heavily guarded by machine-gun-carrying personnel, NSA is equipped with the best digital computers and translating machines the inventive American mind has been capable of developing. One source in Europe told me, "Your NSA people have broken every single foreign code, both friendly and enemy, worth breaking, and that includes the Red Chinese code as well. The only way any army can escape NSA detection is to send its command messages by carrier pigeon."

While this evaluation may be too optimistic, there is no doubt NSA knows better than any other intelligence agency exactly how many successes and failures the Soviets have experienced to date in missile launchings, earth orbitings and manned space flights.

During the Korean War, it was an NSA monitor which first picked up the voices of Russian pilots in North Korea, notified Washington that Russian pilots were in the war against us. It was also NSA personnel stationed in Turkey who monitored the U-2 flight of Francis Gary Powers over Russia, learned that he had been downed near Sverdlovsk.

To date, the most revealing information concerning NSA activities has come from two former NSA employees, William Martin and Bernon Mitchell, young, homosexual mathematicians, who defected to the Russians in August 1960. Helped to flee the U.S. by the Transport Division of the Soviet Intelligence Service which had a Russian trawler waiting for them in Havana harbor, Mitchell and Martin were later paraded before the foreign press in Moscow. There they revealed details of the NSA setup which not even members of the U.S. Congress have been privy to.

THEY DISCLOSED that NSA gives lie detector tests to all its top personnel to determine their honesty and integrity, that the organization is divided into four departments: one to intercept, decode and analyze foreign messages: another to produce unbreakable American codes; a third to specialize in research and development of cryptanalysis and associated fields; and a fourth to recruit proper personnel.

NSA is currently headed by a former chief of U.S. Naval Intelligence, Admiral Laurence Frost. Compared to Allen Dulles, former chief of the CIA, Admiral Frost is almost a complete unknown to his countrymen. Yet his job and mission are most vital to the nation's welfare.

As to the achievements of the CIA vis-à-vis the accomplishments of the Soviet Intelligence Service, it must be known that the CIA did not really get under way until 1950 when Allen Dulles came in and began to staff its top echelon with so many Ivy Leaguers, some bright, and some, as subsequent events have shown, un-bright.

The CIA in the past 12 years has developed into a top-flight espionage organization, employing every spy trick and espionage device the Russians ever dreamed of and some they haven't. Despite the European contention, "You are babes in the woods compared to the Soviet spy apparatus," the record shows that the CIA is more than holding its own, even though it badly botched the Cuban invasion.

The CIA employs upwards of 10,000 persons. Its chief function is the gathering and evaluation of foreign intelligence. On many occasions, it has extended this function by overthrowing foreign regimes, financing revolutionaries, directing military invasions and making foreign policy. It did this during the Eisenhower administration, but under President Kennedy and its new director John McCone, an ace production engineer with practically no experience in the field of intelligence, CIA will probably be reduced to its original mission of espionage.

The CIA has its agents distributed in American embassies throughout the world, under legal cover, of course, and its "illegal" spy personnel operating in all critical areas of American interest. Its most difficult job is to penetrate Soviet Russia.

The espionage term for this sort of penetration is "magic," which is why you hear so frequently in Europe, "You Americans have no 'magic' inside Russia."

THIS DOESN'T HAPPEN to be true. Soviet Russia is a police state where people can be tracked from cradle to grave. An American agent, no matter how well he speaks Russian, no matter how well-equipped with forged documents, could not operate in Moscow or Kiev or Odessa for more than a few months without detection. The Soviet people have been warned over and over again to watch for espionage agents. As a result, they are the most spy-conscious people in the world.

This is the one dominating advantage Soviet Russia enjoys in the war of spies. A Russian agent such as Rudolf Abel can land in New York and despite any strange accent, garb, or behavior-pattern, remain there undetected for a lifetime. But no American agent can possibly get away with this in Moscow.

The CIA, however, does penetrate the Soviet Union regularly. It uses—and these are the words of one intelligence officer—"any reliable Russian-speaking agent with a mouth full of steel teeth." It also employs Russian émigrés as informers. Some of these émigrés, Russian by birth and Communist-haters or victims by experience, are members of the NTS (Narodno Trouduyov Soyouz—National Alliance for Russian Solidarity). This anti-Soviet organization, headed by Georgi Okolovich, whom the Soviets have tried to assassinate at least eight times, is located in Frankfurt, Germany.

The CIA recruits agents, trains them in espionage at secret camps near Bad Wiessee, Kaufbeuren, Landsberg, and other West German towns. It equips them with all the necessary Russian identification papers: Komsomol cards, army service records, worker's cards, a vial of poison should they be caught—this is usually hydrocyanic acid or a derivative of curare—and frequently with a radio transmitter. These agents are then parachuted or slipped into Russia along the unguarded Polish, Czechoslovakian or Iranian borders from which they make their way inland to perform certain designated missions or to remain in Russia as "sleepers."

Every intelligence outfit employs "sleepers." These are agents who penetrate a country and do nothing but observe. When one of their spy networks is uncovered, the "sleeper" is surfaced to become an active operator.

Soviet Intelligence claims our émigré agents are ineffective. But our agents must be meeting with some FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover (c.) confers with President Kennedy and Attorney General Robert Kennedy. G-men have virtually destroyed U.S. Communist Party as spying agency.

success, because in 1960 the Soviets amended their criminal code to read: "A citizen of the U.S.S.R., enlisted by a foreign intelligence service to conduct hostile activities against the U.S.S.R., shall not be liable to criminal prosecution . . ." providing he gives himself up to Soviet authorities before he does any damage.

Several émigrés have defected to the Soviets, which is how Soviet Intelligence came to compile a pamphlet entitled Caught in the Act. It lists the names and stories of more than 20 supposed CIA spies caught in the last 10 years in the attempt to infiltrate. But many others are inside Russia today, loyal to the CIA. Perhaps the CIA spy apparatus in Russia is not as good as the Soviet spy apparatus penetrating the U.S.—but that's to be expected. In a free democratic society there is easy access to all sorts of information. There is no restriction on freedom of movement. In Russia 30 per cent of the land is off-limits to the citizenry. Railroad timetables and simple telephone books are considered spy paraphernalia. Ask anyone who's been to Russia how difficult it is to find a telephone book.

In the United States, the speeches of President Kennedy are available to anyone. In Russia, only the speeches Mr. K. wants published are read. For example, one of the CIA's most brilliant achievements concerns the secret speech Khrushchev made in 1956, denouncing the terrorist regime of Josef Stalin. The speech was made at the 20th Communist Party Congress and was smuggled out through Poland by a CIA agent. When later the New York Times published the speech, Mr. K. was reportedly fit to be tied.

Another top CIA accomplishment was the Berlin tunnel which its agents built in 1955. This tunnel led to the main Soviet telephone cables in East Berlin and for almost a year we had a tap on 62 Soviet telephone lines, monitoring every message of the Soviet military forces.

Perhaps the best CIA achievement to date, certainly the most rewarding one, involves the use of the U-2 spy planes. True, we got caught. But the U-2s are still good for reconnaissance work over China, Cuba, and other unfriendly countries. And in four years, from 1956 to 1960, we secured enough photos of Soviet factories, airports, missile and industrial sites, new cities in the Urals, new dams, storage facilities, submarine pens, atomic production sites, to provide the bombers of our Strategic Air Command and our missile experts with excellent target maps.

Many of our allies in Europe contend, however, that the manner in which the U.S. handled the Gary Powers U-2 incident was regrettable and inexcusably naive. They fault Allen Dulles and the CIA for that one, claiming that if Powers had been briefed not to divulge any information upon capture, had we not acknowledged him as a representative of any U.S. agency, then we might still be sending U-2s over Russia, because there is much evidence to support the belief that the Soviets do not have the necessary sophisticated guidance equipment to down that type of high-flying jet-powered glider-plane. If they had, they would have shot down all other previous U-2s penetrating the Soviet Union. Certainly they knew and vociferously complained of these as far back as 1957.

Incidentally, a popular theory in Europe concerning Gary Powers and the U-2 denouement is that he fell victim to enemy espionage. The story is that our 10/10 detachment at the Incirlik U-2 base in Turkey was penetrated by Bulgarian agents. Bulgaria is right next to Turkey, and the Bulgars are reputedly the best bomb technicians in the world. Supposedly one of them got to the U-2 and managed to plant an electronic device in the fuselage. The Soviets homed in on this sonic device when Powers was flying over Sverdlovsk, site of a new Soviet missile base about which former Vice-President Nixon reputedly tipped off the CIA after his 1959 trip to Russia.

One department of espionage in which the CIA has proven effective, successful, and relatively beyond adverse criticism, is defection. To date not one American working for the CIA has defected to the Russians, which speaks well for the CIA security setup.

There have been dozens of Russians, however, top intelligence agents, who have defected to us. The CIA has handled these defectors brilliantly.

Generally, Russians do not defect for money or women. They come over to our side because they have got in trouble with their fellow Communists or are fearful of being caught in the meat-grinder of the Soviet's periodic political purges.

CIA makes maximum use of these defectors by first extracting from them, if they are intelligence agents, the names of the Americans who have been supplying the Reds with information. For example, Lieut. Guenther Maennel, in charge of the American division of the East German espionage apparatus, defected to us last December. Since then he has fingered the various members of the U.S. military who supplied the East Germans with data while they were serving our armed forces in West Germany.

Another example: When Lavrenti Beria, head of the Soviet secret police and one of Stalin's henchmen, was murdered in 1953 by the Khrushchev group, many of his intelligence favorites planted in various Russian embassies quickly defected. They were afraid of being purged. Foremost of these defectors were Vladimir Petrov and his wife in Australia, Nikolai Kholklov in Berlin, Yuri Rastorov in Tokyo, Peter Deriabin in Vienna, plus several others the CIA has probably not yet surfaced.

CIA uses these men to identify the various Soviet agents who accompany Russian cultural and athletic groups participating in events outside of Russia. There were Soviet intelligence agents with the Russian athletes who participated in the 1960 Winter Olympic Games held at Squaw Valley, Calif. When the Moiseyev Dancers played New York, the CIA had Peter Deriabin in the audience opening night. He identified one of the dancers as Col. Alexander Kudryavstev, a leading intelligence officer in the NKGB, who was immediately placed under surveillance by the FBI.

Every Russian group which leaves Moscow is accompanied by a least one secret service man who has a two-fold job: the gathering of intelligence and the prevention of defection. And yet the CIA and its associates have been surprisingly successful in attracting defectors. They have been helped a good deal in this activity by refugees from the Russian satellite countries whom they employ to penetrate Soviet cultural and tourist groups coming out of Russia for a breath of fresh Western air in Copenhagen, Amsterdam or Paris.

From the evidence I have been able to gather, I conclude the following about the war between Russian and American spies:

1. The Russians have the larger spy network, an estimated 250,000 agents throughout the world.

2. The Americans have an intelligence personnel of possibly 50,000.

3. Russian spies are thoroughly trained. They are indoctrinated first at the Marx-Engels School, Gorky, after being recommended by local party chiefs. They are taught radio, micro-photography, coding and decoding at the Lenin Technical School, Verkhonoye. Then if they are scheduled to operate in English-speaking countries, they are sent to fabulous Gaczyna where typical American and British cities have been constructed to provide student spies with the exact atmosphere of the countries in which they will work. In Gaczyna their instructors are American and British defectors or veteran Soviet spies with previous experience overseas. Before being sent abroad, a Soviet spy receives from 10 to 15 years of training.

4. The CIA has embarked on a program of training junior agents. It recruits the best of the college crop for this purpose. The Army Language School in Monterey, Calif., is training cadres of military men in the Russian language, and conceivably many of them will be used in espionage and intelligence.

5. The Russian spy network met with its greatest success in the U.S. and Canada from 1940 to 1946 when we had no CIA, no NSA, and were completely dependent for security upon the FBI, one of the finest counter-intelligence agencies in existence.

Since 1950 we have held more than our own against the Russians. Of late, we have taken the espionage offensive, and for the first time the Soviets are on the defensive, yelling bloody murder. They have no organization to match the brilliant technical achievements of NSA. And when it comes to brain power, we have proved that Americans are as good as any—even with a late start—in so admittedly dirty and disreputable an activity as espionage. ■

How your life insurance can help you guarantee funds for college costs

Thousands of parents facing future college costs are using one or more of their life insurance policies to guarantee money for their children's education. They know they can count on the cash values in these policies to help pay college costs if the policyholder lives. Or if he doesn't, the entire amount will be available to carry out college plans.

No other way of "saving ahead" for college offers such a guarantee. It is one of the unique advantages of life insurance.

5 ways that the unique advantages of life insurance bring peace of mind at the stroke of a pen

1. Guarantees immediate family protection. Only life insurance enables you to provide full protection for your family right from the start.

2. Guarantees a family can keep its home. With life insurance, a man can guarantee there will be money to pay off the mortgage if he doesn't live to complete the payments.

3. Guarantees money for emergencies. The guaranteed cash values in your policy can help you meet big unexpected expenses.

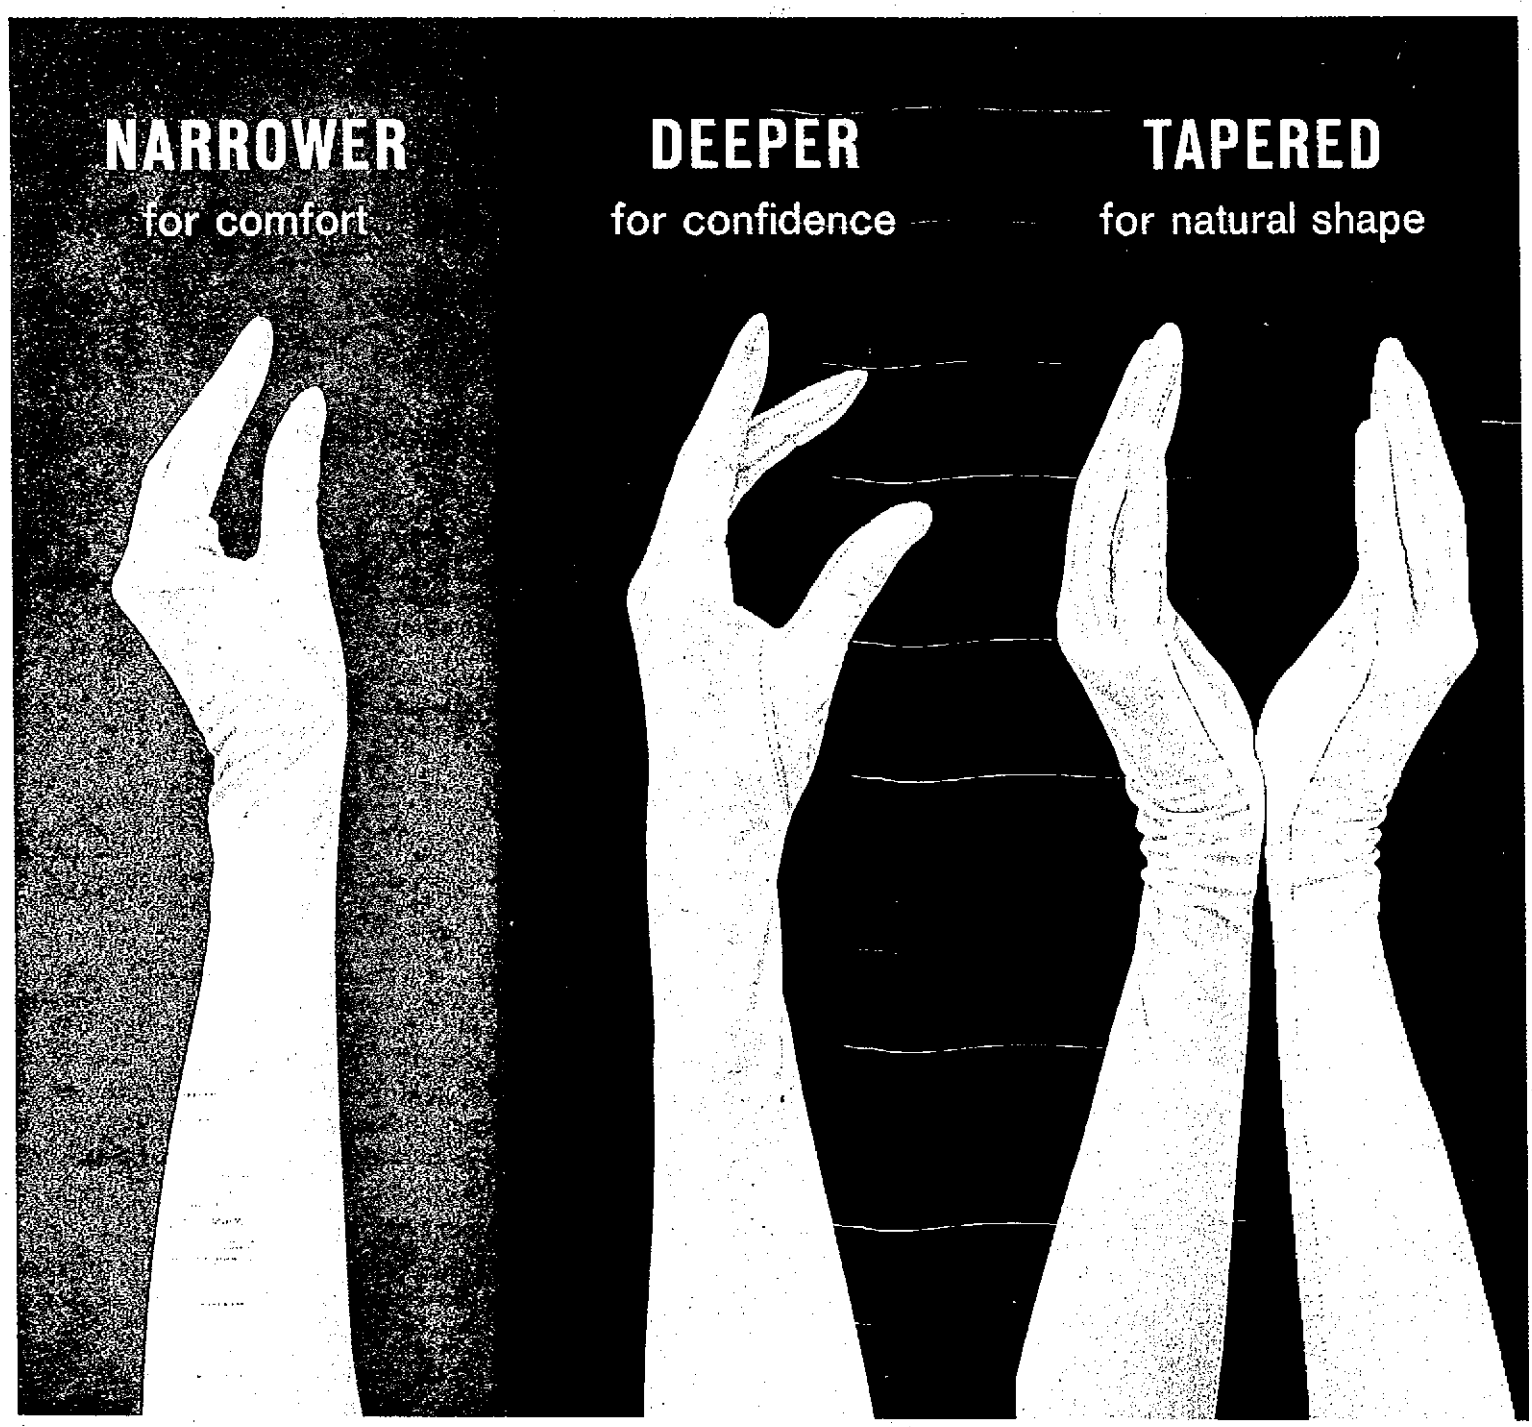

4. Guarantees a lifetime income at retirement. Life insurance can furnish additional income for the policyholder and his wife at retirement that's guaranteed as long as either lives.

5. Guarantees funds for children's education. By having a life insurance policy for college expenses, you can guarantee your boy or girl will have this opportunity, whether you live or not.

To make sure you get the most from your life insurance, take full advantage of the continuing service your life insurance agent offers. Review your program with him regularly—at least every two years—to keep it in line with your changing circumstances. This service, which costs you nothing, may make your life insurance even more valuable when you or your family need it.

VALERIE GEARON

An actress who doesn't want to become a star

LONDON.

RIGHT NOW the name Valerie Gearon means nothing to you. But six months from now, you'll see, it will.

Valerie is a dark Welsh beauty of 23, with soulful brown eyes and a smouldering sex quality who plays the female lead in the movie version of Nine Hours to Rama, the story of Mahatma Gandhi's assassination.

In this film, a spectacular photographed in India which has been kept under wraps by producer-director Mark Robson, Valerie plays the rich Indian lover of the militant Hindu fanatic who in 1948 emptied his gun into Gandhi's fast-wracked body.

It is her first motion picture role, and she was chosen for it because she can act, which is a most un-Hollywood-like reason. After all, Jayne Mansfield, Marilyn Monroe, and even Elizabeth Taylor are not given parts because they are great actresses. According to the Hollywood concept, audiences don't pay to see an actress; they pay to see a sexy, pleasing, provocative, photogenic personality.

Valerie Gearon modestly claims that she offers none of these traits. "I'm not cheesecake," she declares. "I'm not chocolate box. I'm not sexy. [She is, of course, with an attractive figure which measures 5 feet 2, 110 lbs., 34-21-33.] I'm none of the things Hollywood values.

"As a matter of fact," she continues, "I don't even know why I took this part. People keep telling me it's the first step on the road to becoming a great big film star. Well, I'm not keen to become any such thing. All I want is to become a fine stage actress and earn maybe two or three thousand pounds a year [$5,600 or $8,400] and have people say, 'What a marvelous performance Valerie Gearon is giving at the So-and-So Theatre. You simply must catch it.'

Valerie Gearon is with J. S. Casshyap as Gandhi and director-producer Mark Robson who discovered her.

Theatre Is All

"Theatre is the most important thing in life to me. When I tell that to my American friends, they look at me as if I'm balmy. They can't seem to understand my lack of interest in money, especially when they find out how poor I've been all my life."

Valerie Gearon was born in Newport, South Wales, on September 27, 1939, the third of five children. She has four brothers. "My grandfather was a miner," she says, "and I really don't know what my father did. I've been told he was a commercial artist, a rolling stone who never held a job very long. He and my mother were killed in a car accident when I was four. No one has ever told me the details."

As a child Valerie was farmed out to a succession of aunts and uncles, some of whom she describes as "not very kind. The result is that I spent my youth, first, under bombing attacks from the Germans. They bombed all the ports in Wales. Then I wandered from place to place, having no definite home. Naturally, I felt unwanted, unloved, unhappy. I escaped into dream worlds of my own making, which I daresay is why I came to like acting."

When Valerie was 16, one of her teachers suggested she go to Bristol, Cary Grant's home town, and audition for the Old Vic, one of Britain's famed repertory theatres. She was accepted as an apprentice, was paid one pound ($2.80) a week for walk-on parts, then was raised to five pounds a week ($14.40) and, finally, after three and a half years, was earning as much as $50 a week.

"I learned my trade," she explains, "playing every possible sort of role in the Old Vic. Then I came down to London for a year and half of television for bread and butter, and I hated it. Last summer I was playing in the London company of The Tenth Man, when Mark Robson phoned.

Hurry Up and Wait

"He asked if I'd like to test for the part of Rani in his film, Nine Hours to Rama. I'd never done any film work before. It was a challenge, so I said yes. Mark signed me for the part, and I've been sitting around ever since. I mean working on films is rather boring. You hurry up and wait. You shoot out of context, the middle or the end first. You do one scene, then they say, 'Come back next week for another.' It's a strange way of working, and up to now I don't like it. Film work has a way of corrupting one into laziness."

Valerie Gearon is under contract to both Mark Robson and 20th Century-Fox. Robson says, "This girl is painfully honest and blessed with a shining integrity. But more important to me, she can act. She tingles with talent. She generates emotion in subtle shades. She's well grounded in repertory, and what she brings to a part is power and depth and understanding. She is a young, sexy Bette Davis, a member of the new acting breed springing up all over the world today—youngsters who act not for money or fame but because of a driving compulsion. Valerie Gearon is one actress whom success will not corrupt. If it does, then I'm no judge of character, and you can do to me what they did to Gandhi."

Nine Hours to Rama is scheduled for release in the fall. Until then the jury is out in the discovery of Valerie Gearon. But in your memory, mark her name. ■

PARADE'S SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE REPORT

AMERICANIZATION OF JAPAN. The Japanese are beginning to look like Americans. Not only are they rounding their eyes via plastic surgery, but they are growing fatter and taller.

One of the first moves General MacArthur made during our occupation of Japan was to start a school-lunch program. For the next decade every schoolchild in Japan got at least one good meal a day and learned to eat bread and drink milk. An entire generation of Japanese has been influenced by this change in diet. The school lunches are now a fixture of life in Japan, and that country has become the leading customer in the world of the American farmer.

What's happened to the Japanese physique with the new diet? Boys of 15 are on the average three inches taller than their grandfathers were at the same age; girls are three inches taller than their grandmothers, and their bust-lines are one inch larger, to say nothing of their feet and legs. Tokyo school authorities also report that today's kids are too big for the desks their parents used as school children. Japan is rapidly becoming almost completely Westernized.

Bread is new diet staple of Japanese children.

JUDGING WOMEN. According to Dr. Edmund Volkart, Stanford University sociologist, American men, compared to others throughout the world, have a strange taste in women. In a land of abundance, we like our women thin. But other men, in lands of scarcity, like their women fat and go to great trouble to fatten them up. This is particularly true in Arabic and African countries where the fatter a woman is, the more desirable she becomes.

BOWLING SIDELINE. Bowling is good for show business. Bowling alleys are doing so well nowadays that many owners are bringing in top entertainment personalities to perform in adjoining lounges. For example, the Anaheim Bowl and Santa Barbara's Copa Room, both in California, have booked such talent as Mel Torme, the Ink Spots, Dorothy Shay, Linda Darnell. Once people are out and away from TV, the idea is to keep them out.

FLEEING SCIENTISTS. Britain is losing top scientists to the U.S. where salaries are higher, working conditions better. In recent years 71 British physicists have emigrated. The British don't know what to do about it.

Prince Rainier wants premiere in Monte Carlo.

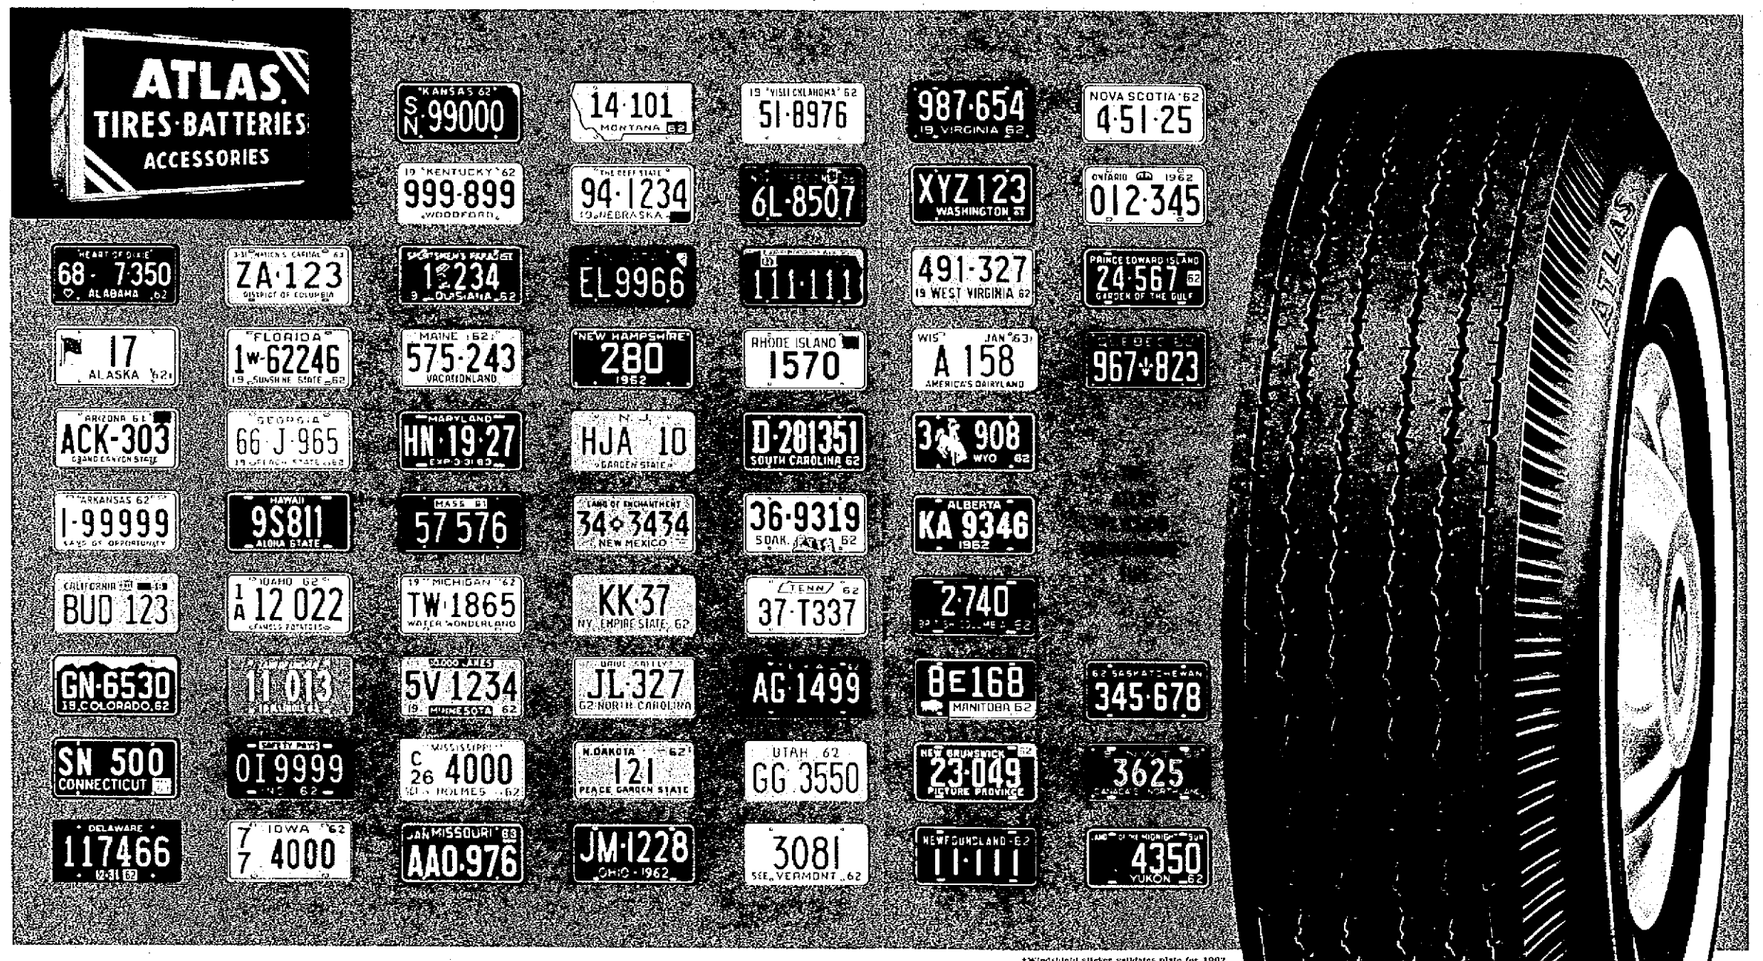

MONACO PREMIERE. Prince Rainier hopes the studio which eventually releases Marnie, his wife's comeback film, will hold the premiere in Monte Carlo. Princess Grace last year was offered the role of The Virgin Mary in King of Kings. "I'm glad she didn't take it," Rainier says. "The film was badly received, and I do not think it would have been right for her to accept that part."

PERON PALS. Twelve Argentine trade union leaders have been conferring with Juan Peron in Madrid, discussing with the exiled dictator the possible chances of his return to Buenos Aires where he has a tremendous following among the "descamisados," the so-called "shirtless ones." The workers and Communists want Peron back, are willing to forgive his corruption and misgovernment, but the military and clergy are dead set against him. In the Argentine a president's popularity depends on his personality, not his policy. Ex-President Frondizi lost out because of his non-winning personality.

NERVE GAS. Both the U.S. and Russia have developed a nerve gas which can incapacitate entire populations for several hours without doing them permanent damage. Biochemists are now busy preparing an antidote so that an advancing army would not be affected by the same gas sprayed upon the enemy.

YVES WINS. Yves Saint-Laurent, one-time boy-wonder designer for the Paris fashion house of Dior, has won his suit against his former employers. Saint-Laurent sued for $120,000 on the grounds that Dior failed to give him his old job back after army service. The designer was drafted in 1960, two weeks later suffered a nervous breakdown and was discharged. Court award: $24,000. But Dior plans to appeal. Saint-Laurent is now in business for himself.

A Mother's Day treat

FUDGE IS FUN

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

Children who would honor mother with a sweet token of love and affection on Mother's Day can present her with a gift of this homemade fudge, modeled into attractive shapes. The ingredients, well within the limitations of piggy-bank fortunes, make up into an easy fudge. Even the youngest, with mud-pie training, can manage the modeling. These sweets are a lovely treat for Mother —and for all the family.

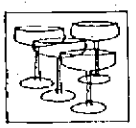

FUN FUDGE

½ cup each, miniature marshmallows and broken walnuts
2½ cups sugar
¾ cup evaporated milk
⅓ cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 large package (12 oz.) or 2 small packages (6 oz. each) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 teaspoon vanilla
Walnut halves, chopped walnuts, flaked coconut

Line an 8-inch square pan with aluminum foil. Cover bottom of pan with marshmallows and walnuts. Combine sugar, evaporated milk, corn syrup and butter in 3-quart saucepan. Bring to full, all-over boil, stirring constantly. Continue to boil 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add semi-sweet chocolate pieces and vanilla; stir until smooth. Pour ½ chocolate mixture into prepared pan. Turn remaining mixture onto greased cookie sheet, let stand until cool enough to handle. Grease hands and work additional butter or margarine (about 1 tablespoon) into fudge until smooth and pliable. Divide mixture into 4 parts and shape as follows: (1) Shape into 1½-inch patties and press walnut half on each patty. (2) Shape into cornucopias and press wide ends into chopped walnuts. (3) Shape into logs and roll in chopped nuts. (4) Work in ¼ cup chopped walnuts and shape into 1-inch balls; roll in flaked coconut or chopped walnuts. Makes approximately 2½ pounds. OF SPECIAL INTEREST to your baby

Suggestions from Mrs. Dan Gerber

New baby on the way? If you and your doctor decide that your baby is to be bottle-fed, you may want to ask him about Modilac . . . the Gerber Baby Formula. This special milk formula, which really looks and tastes like milk, provides nourishment comparable to that received by breast-fed infants.

Modilac is a complete formula so it's easy to follow your doctor's instructions for feeding. All you do is dilute with sterile water according to his instructions.

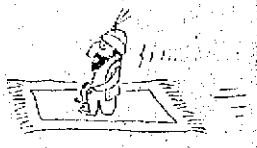

Comforting thoughts. When it comes to baby clothes it's a good idea to remember that wee ones like their clothes soft, easy to get into and loose enough for wiggle room. Comfort's the cue, with baby pants, too. Gerber Baby Pants are made of soft, soft polyvinyl film that's waterproof, leakproof, acid-proof. Amply cut for free 'n easy movement; bound in dainty nylon edging for soft contact with baby's legs and waist.

Important: Gerber Baby Pants are machine washable; will stay soft through many, many washings. Medium, large, extra-large, in pull-on or snap-on styles.

Nourishing baby specialty. Doctors recommend egg yolks in the infant diet for the iron and other important nutrients they supply. Gerber Strained Egg Yolks are high in iron and vitamin A and a good source of body-building protein. And, they're specially processed to make them delightfully palatable for babies. The happy result? A creamy, custard-like texture, a delicate fresh-egg flavor. Gerber® Baby Foods, Fremont, Michigan.

SONIC BROOM

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

Jacqueline Kennedy was discussing music with a White House visitor who inquired politely about the President's musical tastes. "What," asked the visitor, "is the President's favorite music?"

The First Lady, a mischievous twinkle in her eye, replied: "Oh, he likes Hail to the Chief" (the Presidential anthem). ■

Bringing Up Baby®
Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber, Mother of 5

a personality in the making

At about 3 to 4 months, a baby "comes of age" as a personality and responds more to the world around him. Now baby recognizes you. Eyes light up at the sight of you; ears rejoice at the sound of your voice. Offer a smile and you'll probably get a smile back. Look and you'll see little fingers dare to play, to touch, to reach. Listen and you'll hear new coos and gurgles in his self-styled vocabulary.

Now's the time to help baby up the ladder of learning by encouraging his efforts, stimulating his imagination. Then watch that wonderful personality blossom!

The growth picture. Your baby grows faster the first year than the next few put together. That's why he needs plenty of protein . . . the most important "growing tool" in his diet. Gerber Strained Meats, made from selected Armour cuts, are high in quality protein, offer significant amounts of B-vitamins and minerals. Additional benefits:

- Gerber Strained Meats are easy to digest because most of the fat is removed.
- All 9 varieties are pure meat with just enough broth for a smooth, moist texture.

Helping hand dept. "Will too much attention spoil a baby?" asks many a mother. Well, experts today say that, in general, babies whose emotional needs are satisfied at an early age make fewer demands later on. After all, when you cuddle your baby for comfort or croon away his loneliness, you're giving him a sense of security and helping him to develop into a happy, well-adjusted personality.

Nutrition notation. Specially prepared baby cereals play an important role in your baby's diet because of the special nutrients they supply. Gerber Cereals are enriched with the iron babies need shortly after birth. (Milk does not provide enough for babies' needs.) In addition they contain important B-vitamins for appetite and growth, calcium for sturdy bones. As for eating enjoyment . . . flavors are pleasantly bland, the texture ever so nice on the tongue.

Menu magic. Nothing quite like Gerber Strained Fruits to make a small-fry menu sing. For they have a natural talent for true-fruit flavors and eye-appealing colors. Have you treated your baby to Gerber Apricots lately? M-mmm, good.

Important: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—cereals, strained and junior—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say: "Babies are our business . . . our only business!"

Plants and animals come alive

Houston students Greg Boudreaux, Joan Edwards learn antibiotic-producing techniques.

A big change puts zip in high-school biology

HOUSTON, TEX.

DO YOU REMEMBER when you studied high-school biology? It seemed a dull, meaningless subject. You memorized great lists of Latin names and disconnected facts, watched while the teacher conducted "experiments," once in a great while were allowed to experiment yourself.

For your sons and daughters, however, biology can be exciting, challenging and different. Walk into Mrs. Helen Barnes' class at Stephen F. Austin High here, for instance, and you might find the students doing any of a hundred things your teacher never dreamed of. They might be raising colonies of fruit flies, cultivating their own antibiotics, testing milk for contamination, or even taking samples of their own blood.

For there is a revolution in the study of life and living things. The nation's biologists themselves have brought it about. Alarmed by the way their favorite subject was being neglected, they have formulated a whole new approach to it. This year, it is being tested on 52,000 students in 400 schools. And early results show that students are learning more and retaining it longer than any biology students have ever done in the past.

"It really makes biology come alive!" enthuses Connie Cruce, 15, one of 90 of Mrs. Barnes' students taking part in the test.

"My sister is in the other [standard] class," says Frank Villagonez, another student. "I read her textbook, and it's not nearly so exciting as ours." And Mrs. Barnes herself declares, "For the first time high-school biology really adds up to something."

The big change in biology parallels similar revolutions in physics, chemistry and math —all a result of Sputnik. It began in 1959 when the National Science Foundation granted $2 million to the American Institute of Biological Sciences to look at the high-school biology curriculum, which had been little changed in a generation. The institute called together the nation's top biologists and biology teachers to a summer-long conference at the University of Colorado. The result was a stack of textbooks two feet high with the stress on concepts, not isolated facts.

Out the window went several of the old complaints about biology. For instance, students no longer learn jawbreaking technical terms unless they are used more than once.

National leaders, Dr. Arnold Grobman and wife Hulda direct new biology curriculum. Course will be ready for wide use in 1963.

("Why," says Dr. Arnold Grobman, director of the new curriculum, "you used to learn more foreign words in biology than in French or Spanish.") Instead of monotonously learning to identify plants and animals, or taking up one by one the various organs and tissues, they delve into the very chemistry of life itself. And instead of simply plowing through books, they now learn mostly in the laboratory.

"You'll find my students bent over their microscopes far more than they used to be," declared Mrs. Barnes, a veteran of 12 years of biology teaching. "They don't just sit there and listen to me. They try for themselves."

In old classes, students merely reproduced "cookbook" experiments, carefully following each step to attain a predictable result. Now they're encouraged to strike out on their own, learning from the process and the investigation rather than the answer. Their investigations also go much deeper. They used to watch a teacher extract chlorophyll from leaves. They now not only extract it themselves, but also break it down chemically into its component parts.

An End to Taboos

The new curriculum also tackles head-on some long-taboo subjects. For instance, high-school biology used to tiptoe carefully around such subjects as reproduction, elimination and evolution. Teachers discussed it embarrassedly and discouraged students from asking questions. Now the way life perpetuates itself, from the lowliest species to man, is treated fully, frankly, and scientifically. Evolution, given an entire section in the experimental texts, becomes the heart and soul of the new curriculum.

The youngsters eat it up. One girl here, for instance, has started her own after-school project in yeast culture. Librarians say biology reference materials have never been so popular.

The students concede they must work hard. Since the course is intended for the average student, they were chosen for it at random, but given permission to transfer after a semester. Only a few have. "It's very hard in some ways," says Patsy Boone. "But it's more interesting and much clearer."

Teachers echo the praise. Those participating meet each week and report back to Dr. Grobman in Boulder, Colo., on how things are going. "This is the greatest thing that's happened to biology in 150 years," says one teacher. Added another: "Now I have something to stimulate me."

And this may be only the beginning of the biological revolution. The biologists are talking now about revamping the college curriculum, and are even trying out a second high-school course in biology. They also believe more and better biology should be taught in grade school.

"Biology has been neglected too long," says Dr. Grobman. "Most students will never take any other science. Yet science becomes more important every day and some of the world's most crucial issues—radiation, conservation, the population explosion—are based on biology. If we are to have an enlightened citizenry, the proper teaching of biology is crucial." ■

"Crash" site in Clinocopter test was this intersection.

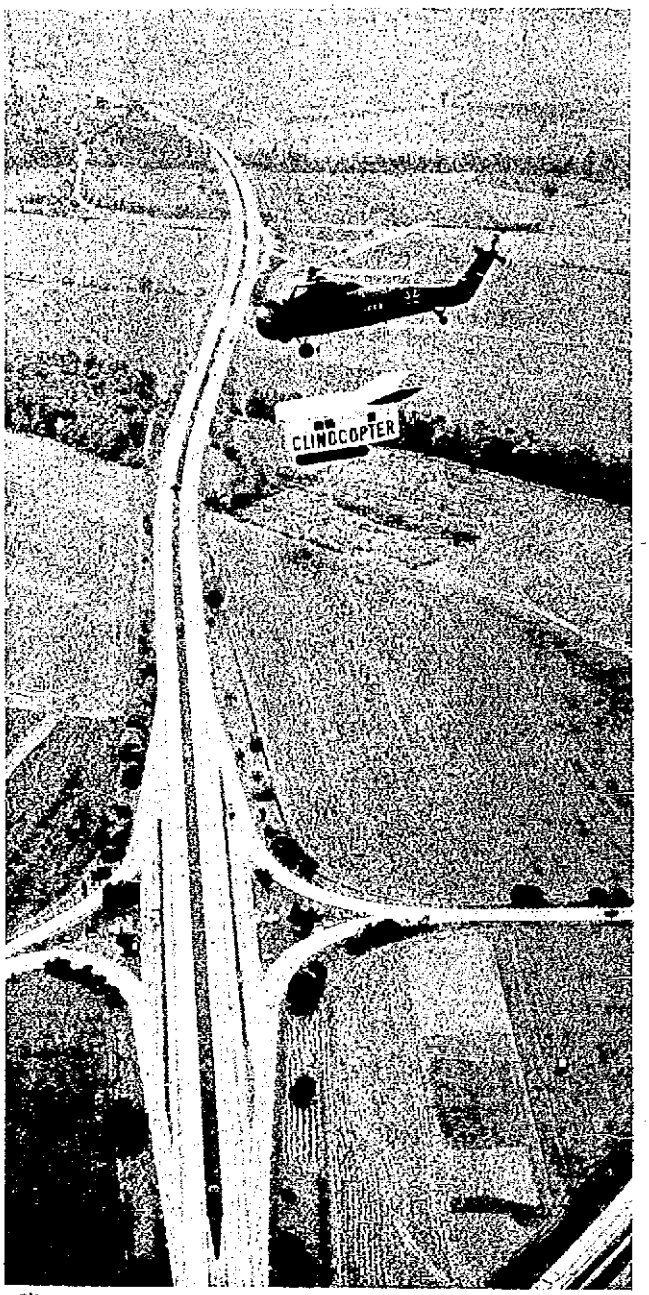

This hospital comes to the patient

HANOVER, W. GERMANY.

A STARTLING IDEA—a hospital that flies through the air to the scene of an accident—is being tried out here. Called the Clinocopter (see photos), it is being watched by American traffic authorities for possible introduction into the U.S.

The Clinocopter's purpose is to save lives that are lost in traffic accidents because the ambulance arrives too late. The flying hospital carries a surgeon, assistant and nurse, with all the equipment needed for an emergency operation, even a complete X-ray machine. Yet the Clinocopter is light enough to hang from a small helicopter, soar above crowded streets and jammed intersections to plop down at the scene of a crash within minutes of being called.

Tested recently in this busy West German commercial center, the Clinocopter may well be one answer to the U.S. problem of cutting traffic deaths.

Clinocopter races to scene of accident after being summoned by police radio. It arrived in a fraction of the time an ambulance would take.

Landing, Clinocopter is set down gently by helicopter and uncoupled. Stabilizing fins at stern keep it steady in flight, protect valuable medical equipment from damage.

Test ends successfully as surgeon treats victim 10 minutes after "crash." 'Copter may be good for U.S.

CARS on PARADE

by KEN W. PURDY

Rise up, girls. The World Health Organization recently announced that a world-wide study has produced no evidence whatever that women are more likely to have automobile accidents than men. This survey was the most nearly exhaustive ever made, and it should settle the argument for the next 10 years at least.

Commonest trouble spots. If you will keep an eye on the electrical system of your car—or have someone do it for you—and on the fuel-pumps, filters and carburetors, you'll much reduce the likelihood of trouble on the road. Electrical trouble stops more than a third of the cars that quit on the highway, fuel-feed bothers almost as many. Tire trouble comes next.

Which side, Jack? People who drive right-hand steering cars on the right-hand side of the road (a British car in the United States) and left-hand steering cars on the left-hand side of the road (an American car in Britain) often report a sense of unusual comfort and confidence apparently deriving from ability to judge accurately how close the car is to the edge of the road. Some drivers believe the benefits outweigh the disadvantage, which is difficulty in seeing around a big truck in order to pass safely. An organization of Swiss is now actively pressing to make driver-beside-the-road-edge the world standard. As one who has driven many right-hand steering cars in America and left-hand steering cars in Great Britain and Sweden I'm inclined to wish them success.

But no windshield cleaning. Coin-operated vending machines dispense milk, coffee, sandwiches, cigarettes and ice-cubes along the road and now the Germans have made a sensible addition: Benzin, or gasoline. The stranded driver (see right) can poke coins into the slot and take out a handled can holding 20 or 30 miles' worth of fuel.

How to stay awake. Much safety research work has been done by the Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, which has come up now with an elaborate device to make it hard for sleepy drivers to have an accident. It works like this: A light flashes on the dashboard. If the driver does not respond to it within five seconds by tapping the horn-ring on the steering wheel, the horn will sound. If within three seconds after the horn sounds the driver does not respond by tapping the ring, the vehicle will begin to jerk as the ignition is automatically turned off and on. If the driver does not respond to this, the ignition will be turned off and the vehicle will come to a halt. (Better he should have stayed in bed!)

German motorist takes can of gas from vending machine.

New Yorkers Were SHOCKED By The Recent EXPOSE of PATENT MEDICINE PRACTICES Now You Too Can Learn How To SAVE ...STOP PAYING HIGH PRICES FOR

VITAMINS

A recent public service study of Patent Medicines in one of New York's leading evening newspapers, devoted one entire installment to VITAMINS and disclosed many interesting highlights about the sale of Vitamins and Vitamin-Mineral combinations.

One of the startling revelations in this frank article was the wide variance of Vitamin prices.

The following three paragraphs taken from the series, as it appeared, are of particular concern to every family buying Vitamins.

"Any particular vitamin bottled under one label is, for all practical and therapeutic purposes, the same as if it is bottled under another label. The fact is, most of the Vitamin concentrates consumed in America are produced by only a few companies.

"The list of ingredients in a Vitamin compound is one thing the consumer can almost always depend on to be correct. Any company which fails to label the bottle with the exact formula and amount (or unit strength) of each ingredient risks a seizure by the U. S. Government.

"Bearing that in mind, it is interesting to pick up a few Vitamin catalogs and compare the prices charged by different companies for the same Vitamin compounds."

Following publication of the installment we received hundreds of phone calls requesting copies of the Hudson Vitamin Catalog. This interest prompted us to tell the entire nation our story.

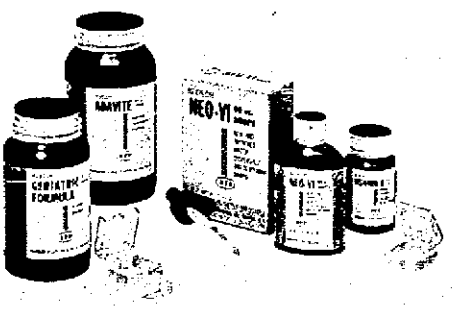

Hudson Vitamin Products has been serving doctors and nurses for over 25 years and now you, too, can purchase your Vitamins DIRECT from Hudson at savings up to 50% and more. Page after page in the Free Hudson Catalog shows tremendous dollar savings on Vitamins, Vitamin-Mineral combinations and Food Supplements.

Here is one example from the Hudson Vitamin Catalog: A very popular multiple vitamin that is taken once-a-day, regularly sells for about $3.10 per 100 . . . the Hudson formula sells for only $1.50 per 100.

Here is another—a well-known high potency B complex formula with Vitamin C and minerals (similar to a brand nationally advertised at $4.40 per 100) . . . only $2.10 per 100 DIRECT from the Hudson Vitamin Catalog.

These are only two examples that you will find in our 48 page catalog that is simple, easy to read and has been a Vitamin buying guide for millions from coast-to-coast.

Write for the Catalog and show it to your doctor if you like—but, by all means, discover for yourself why Hudson has become a DIRECT MONEY-SAVING source for vitamins throughout the nation. All Hudson vitamin products are sold with a money back guarantee.

TV stars make every minute count

HOLLYWOOD.

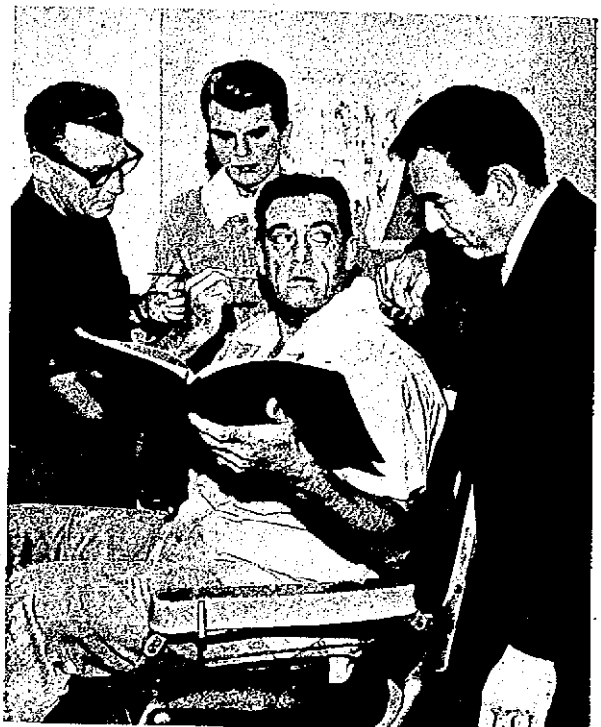

DR. WALTER ALVAREZ, 77, one of America's truly great physicians, claims the major lesson he's learned from a long life is "to use my scraps of time. Most people," the good doctor contends, "fritter away 10 or 15 minutes in every hour, hesitating, postponing, trying to make up their minds, inevitably doing nothing. What a colossal waste of time in the course of one's life."

On this page you see photos of four top television stars who've learned to utilize their time-scraps while in makeup.

Dinah Shore makes the most of time by dictating fan mail replies to secretary Barbara Memison. Comedian Bob Newhart dictates new comedy routines into a tape recorder which he later plays back. Raymond Burr likes to have assistant director Gordon Webb beside him so that he can ask script questions. Donna Reed in makeup always rehearses her scenes with leading man Carl Betz as director Earl Bellamy (left in photo) listens and offers suggestions.

The truth about TV performers is that they can't afford to waste time. Most half-hour programs are shot in two days, and producers hate like heck to pay overtime.

MY FAVORITE JOKES

by MORTY GUNTY

EDITOR'S NOTE: One of the brightest young comedians in show business today is Morty Gunty of Brooklyn, N.Y., who received a Master's degree in education from Brooklyn College in 1953. After teaching in the New York school system for a few years, Gunty realized he wasn't earning enough money, so on weekends he began playing the saxophone and clarinet in Ned Harvey's band. A natural comedian, he was given the opportunity while playing club dates with Harvey to perform as a comedian. He did so well as a funny man that he dropped teaching and music, gradually worked his way up as a TV and supper-club comedian of note. Here are some of his favorite funnies.

Youngsters are running the world today. No doubt about it. Just look at the singers we have: Elvis Presley, Fabian, Brenda Lee, Ricky Nelson, Frankie Avalon . . . each of them earns a million dollars a year. And they're only working after school!

There's no reason why I shouldn't own a sports car. I've certainly got the closet space for it.

*A girl friend of mine teaches kindergarten. One rainy day a few weeks ago her students came to school dressed in their rain clothes. When classes finished, my friend busied herself helping the kids get their clothes on.

She was helping one little boy with his rubber boots, tugging and grunting and struggling, and finally she managed to get them to fit. Whereupon the little kid looked up and blithely said, "But teacher, these boots aren't mine."

The teacher tugged and yanked and pulled them off. When they were on the floor, the little boy shook his head and continued: "They belong to my sister, but my mom let me wear them today."

There was this young hitchhiker thumbing a ride from Dallas to Fort Worth. A big limousine stopped, and the youngster hopped in. As the car raced along, the hitchhiker noticed a pair of spectacles with very thick lenses lying on the seat next to the driver.

This Texas driver was going pretty fast, and the kid was scared. So he leaned over and said politely, "I'm sorry, sir, but I think you forgot to put on your glasses. They're right here."

"Forget it, son," said the Texan. "Forget it. You see this here windshield?" He nodded towards the glass. "It's ground to my prescription."

I've been married a short time. But I've learned a lot about women. For example, I've learned that a woman doesn't marry you for what you are but for what she expects to make of you. As soon as a man mutters, "I do," his wife makes him into an unfurnished apartment, and she becomes an interior decorator.

We have real wild furniture in our apartment. Right square in the middle of our living room we have a lazy susan . . . it's my sister-in-law.

*A housewife I know visited her doctor. After a consultation he advised her to take a milk bath. He didn't tell her how much milk to use, so when she was leaving the order for the milkman she decided that 72 quarts should be the right amount.

When the milkman came and saw the order for 72 quarts of milk he couldn't believe his eyes. He rang the doorbell. As the housewife answered, he said, "Mrs. Schmaltz, do you really want me to leave 72 quarts of milk?"

"Yes, I do," Mrs. Schmaltz said. "My doctor wants me to take a milk bath and I measured my bathtub, and 72 quarts will fill it."

"Pasteurized?" asked the milkman.

"Oh, no," replied Mrs. Schmaltz, "just up to my neck." ■

KENTILE VINYL FLOORS

Main rulers in the house are Fred and his four-year-old son Raymond (above). Fred (right) patiently waits while his wife and girls measure off new drape materials.

He's the ruler of the house

1 FRED = 2 RAYMONDS

MADISON, WIS.

WHENEVER MOTHER needs a "Fred" everybody in the Bachmann household knows exactly what she's talking about. A "Fred" is six-foot-tall Fred Bachmann, official tape measure for his family.

Whenever Fred, a traveling salesman, isn't home, his son Raymond, 4, exactly half his height, acts as a 36-inch stand-in.

The Bachmanns, Fred and Veronica, have been using the system of Freds for measuring ever since 1949. You know how it is with some families. Someone is always misplacing the fuse, the flashlight, the dog's leash—and the tape measure.

Fred became a living, breathing tape measure when the Bachmanns—there were four then, eight now—moved into an old-fashioned house with an elongated kitchen window. Mrs. B. couldn't figure out how much material she needed for the curtains and she couldn't find the tape measure. Her eye fell on Fred.

"I asked Fred to stand on the window sill, so I could see how much over six feet the window was. Then I went into the other room and forgot about Fred. When I returned to the kitchen he was still standing on the window sill, and we both got a big laugh out of it," Mrs. Bachmann recalls. "I guess that's when it started."

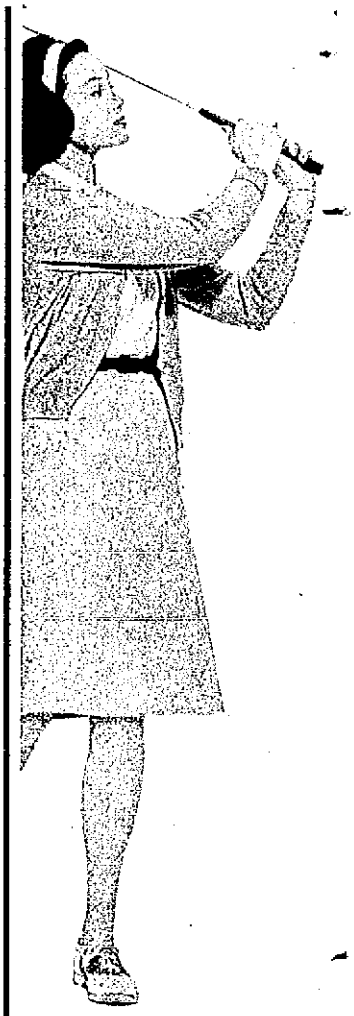

Since then, the Bachmanns have never bothered about a tape measure. Now practically everything in the house, drapes, the laundry chute, couch covers, has been measured off by "one Fred" or "two Freds" or "three Raymonds."

Playing ruler is only a sideline with Fred. As a registered pharmacist, his regular job is selling pharmaceuticals all over Wisconsin. As an avocation, when he's not doubling for a yardstick, he writes humorous essays and articles. (You have to have a sense of humor to be a human measuring rod.)

Since the Bachmanns come in assorted sizes and shapes, Mrs. B. need never worry that her standards of measurement will outgrow their usefulness. More youngsters may come and grow, but Fred, 72 inches tall, will remain the undisputed standard unit of measure in the house. —ROSALIND MASSOW.

Every inch a happy family is the Bachmann clan. With an obliging 6-foot father around, nobody bothers to keep track of tape measures.

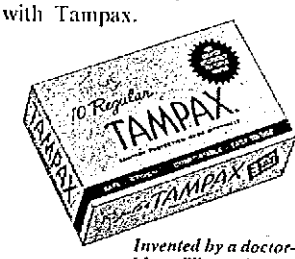

SHE'S ALWAYS UP TO PAR... WITH TAMPAX

Problem days are no longer problems to her. She uses Tampax.

80 PER CENT SLATED FOR COLLEGES

$37 Million L.B.-Area Construction on Ballot

Nearly $37 million in state construction in the Long Beach area awaits passage of Proposition 3 on the June 5 ballot.

The statistic was reported by John W. Hancock, vice chairman of the Long Beach State College Local Advisory Board who announced that the board has voted unanimously to endorse the $270 million bond issue.

Eighty per cent of the funds would go for college and university construction in 1963 and 1964.

Among construction at LBSC which would be financed largely by the state bonds, Hancock said, are projects costing more than $4 million.

They include a student health center and additional physical education facilities, plus classroom equipment for a building under construction.

In southeastern Los Angeles County, the proposed outlay also includes $7,400,000 for the new South Bay State College; $367,000 for Metropolitan State Hospital in Norwalk, and $156,000 for the Southern California Reception Center and Clinic, also in Norwalk.

Proposed construction in Orange County during the two years totals almost $25 million.

The University of California's new Irvine campus is scheduled for projects totaling $11,608,000; Orange County State College, $11,495,000; Fairview State Hospital, Costa Mesa, $1,359,000, and the Ranger Unit at Orange, $119,000.

Of Proposition 3's $270 million, $20 million has been earmarked for junior colleges to help finance $87 million in construction planned for 1963-64.

In its resolution endorsing the measure, the LBSC advisory board said rapid growth requires the immediate expansion of higher education facilities, state hospitals and correctional institutions.

The needs are too great to be met out of available funds, the resolution said, and "failure to meet the immediate needs will result in inadequate mental hospitals and correctional facilities and denial of higher education opportunities to young Californians."

Venezuela Halts Revolt Led by Reds

Uprising Caused Bitterest Fight Ever in Nation

CARUPANO, Venezuela (UPI)—President Romulo Betancourt's armor and plane-backed forces Saturday night crushed a two-day-old Communist-led revolt and captured its key leaders including navy Capt. Jesus Teodoro Molina Villegas.

Fifteen hundred soldiers equipped with recoilless guns, howitzers and machineguns stormed into this city of 15,000 after six hours of some of the bitterest fighting in Venezuelan history.

• • • •

THE REBELS, comprising 450 marines and nearly 100 Communist and leftwing extremists, fought from balconies, rooftops and windows before they were overwhelmed.

A few pockets of resistance held out late Saturday night, but the back of the revolt was broken.

At 8 p.m. (7:30 p.m. EDT) government American-built Sabrejets strafed a rebel garrison forcing the bulk of the insurgents out into the hills surrounding the airport at the entrance to the city.

Spotter planes directed government artillery with deadly accuracy.

• • • •

BETANCOURT'S soldiers tore half their sleeves from their uniforms to differentiate themselves from the uniformed rebels. In the early hours of the fighting government soldiers accidentally shot each other.

The government troops softened up the rebel positions with six hours of artillery fire before the soldiers started moving on the city.

The Sabrejets strafed an airliner at the air field to prevent the rebels from escaping by air. Three warships cut off flight by sea.

In Caracas, the capital, Betancourt's interior ministry made the formal announcement that the rebellion had been crushed.

World of Light

NEW SIGHT LIKE TOY TO BLIND TEACHER

By ARTHUR EVERETT

NEW YORK (AP)—Most persons can imagine the stark terror that confronts a man who suddenly goes blind. But what of a man who voyages the other way, from the world of blindness into the world of light?

"It's sort of like a new toy, something you must get used to—I'm still more familiar with my old world," said Leonard Ecker, a Bay City, Mich., school teacher who now enjoys a very small measure of sight after nearly a lifetime of blindness.

However, in contrasting his condition with that of a person moving in the opposite direction between the two worlds, Ecker pointed out that "mine is full of nothing but hope."

Leonard, 34, sat in his 17th floor room in the Hotel Manhattan Saturday and talked about the two days since he emerged from the New York Eye & Ear Infirmary, after a corneal transplant on his one remaining eye.

• • • •

HIS WIFE, ROSEMARY, also 34, sent here by the Bay City Times for a reunion with him, listened intently as he probed the depths of his mind for reaction to the new world in which he finds himself.

"In a sense—it sounds odd to say this — I'm less capable in getting around," Ecker said. "I'm getting a world of new stimuli in this eye. The doctors warned me it would be confusing.

"I'm not as sure of myself in getting around as I was before. I'm much more concerned about bumping into things, for example, and setting things back. I don't want to undo the doctors' wonderful work.

"The doctors took pains to see that I did not over-anticipate. It was explained to me very carefully what I would be able to see, that it would be very slow, that there would be good days and bad days.

"I haven't at any time been worried over the fact that I can't see now what I will be able to see later. I'm very much impressed with what I could see of the Great White Way, the lights of Broadway. Although I may have missed 99 per cent of them, I still saw an awful lot of them."

• • • •

ECKER TEACHES English at Bay City Central High School and students there contributed $500 to help defray his expenses here. He was operated on April 7 when a cornea was transplanted to his right eye. The left eye is artificial.

A dark-haired, trim man of medium size, Ecker had been blind in both eyes since an illness robbed him of his sight at the age of 14 months. Today, he can see very little but doctors are hopeful that with continued treatment he may regain 10 per cent of normal vision in the right eye.

Physicist Slays Wife, Tots, Self

By JAMES HYNES

Bodies of an Anaheim physicist, his wife and three children were found in their home late Saturday. Police said it was murder-suicide.

Dead were James E. Chambers, 33, of 631 Adria St., his wife Violet, 32, their two daughters, Cynthia Lynn, 5, and Marla Ann, 6, and their son, James, 1½.

County Coroner Dr. Raymond Brandt said Chambers shot the children and his wife in their heads while they slept sometime late Thursday. Then he lay down on the bed beside his dead wife and fired the shot that killed himself.

THE TALE of tragedy in the expensive Chambers' home was told in unemployment forms Chambers had filled out. Neighbors said he had lost his job.

One neighbor, however, said Chambers had said he

Time to Spruce Up Your Home?

Spring is in the air, and this means many things to many people.

But to most it means that the time has arrived to fix up the premises—paint and paper, build a sidewalk or patio, add a fireplace, put up awnings, set out more plants or trees, or even add that long-dreamed-of extra bathroom, family room or even a swimming pool.

Today, Southland magazine presents its annual Spring Home Improvement Issue which is loaded with ideas on what others are doing to make the home more attractive, more livable and more valuable. If you are thinking about making your home a better place in which to live, don't overlook today's Southland.

GOV. DANIEL THIRD

Connally Leading Texas Demo Race

JOHN CONNALLY
Former Navy Secretary

EDWIN A. WALKER
6th in Field of 6

DALLAS (UPI)—John Connally, a former Navy secretary in the Kennedy administration who repudiated the New Frontier after he resigned, took a substantial lead in late night returns from Saturday's Democratic primary election for governor of Texas.

Connally, 45, of Fort Worth, is a moderate conservative. Don Yarborough, 36, of Houston, the only ardent advocate of the New Frontier among six Democratic candidates, was running second.

Connally came home to Texas to campaign against much of Kennedy's program, despite his close ties with Vice President Lyndon Johnson.

The incumbent Democratic governor, Price Daniel, was running third. Daniel sought an unprecedented fourth term.

Former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, a member of the John Birch Society, ran sixth in the field of six Democratic candidates.

IN THE REPUBLICAN gubernatorial primary, Jack Cox, 39, an oilman, led Roy Whittenburg, 49, a Borger, Tex., newspaper publisher. The total vote in the Republican primary was very small. However, many conservatives who may support the GOP in November voted Saturday in the Democratic primary.

Returns indicated a runoff June 2 between the first and second Democratic candidates for the nomination with the winner virtually certain to be elected governor next November.

Returns to the Texas Election Bureau from 122 of the state's 254 counties, including 12 complete, in the Democratic gubernatorial primary, gave:

Connally, 74,042; Yarborough, 45,736; Daniel, 42,561; Atty. Gen. Will Wilson, 28,892; former highway commissioner Marshall Formby, 24,325, and Walker, 20,103.

Returns from the same counties in the Republican gubernatorial primary gave:

Cox, 15,760 votes, and Whittenburg, 2,537.

"We are still in the fight," Walker said, with the returns heavily against him. "Our intentions and pur-

Defense Plan OKd by NATO

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—The Western Allies Saturday approved a U.S. plan to share atomic secrets. Then, to bolster defenses, the United States assigned five missile-carrying Polaris submarines to the Atlantic Alliance and promised more when they go into service.

The nuclear-armed submarines remain under American command, but as of today, they are under technical control of NATO.

• • • •

THIS MEANS they would fall under actual NATO control if war broke out.

The word on the Polaris submarines was given the 15-nation alliance by U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara during a session here of the annual spring policy review by NATO defence and foreign ministers.

The Polaris offer bolstered American appeals for the Western Allies to beef up their conventional ground forces, which the United States considers an essential part of any deterrent force.

The alliance earlier approved a far-reaching U.S. plan to furnish tactical and strategic nuclear information to the NATO powers hitherto stamped "top secret."

• • • •

IN ACCEPTING the U.S. plan, NATO also agreed to formalize guide lines on the possible use of tactical atomic weapons in war.

In Washington, State Department officials said that the United States offer of additional information to the Allies on such things as the deployment and target objectives of nuclear missiles does not require new authority from Congress.

U.S. Eyes Brokerage Practices

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first public investigation of the stock brokerage business since 1934 will begin here Monday.

The inquiry is expected to produce testimony about dubious sales tactics, lax supervision of brokerage employes in branch offices and the hiring of stock salesmen with questionable backgrounds.

Witnesses also will tell of steps being taken by the industry to avoid trouble attributable to salesmen and their practices.

• • • •

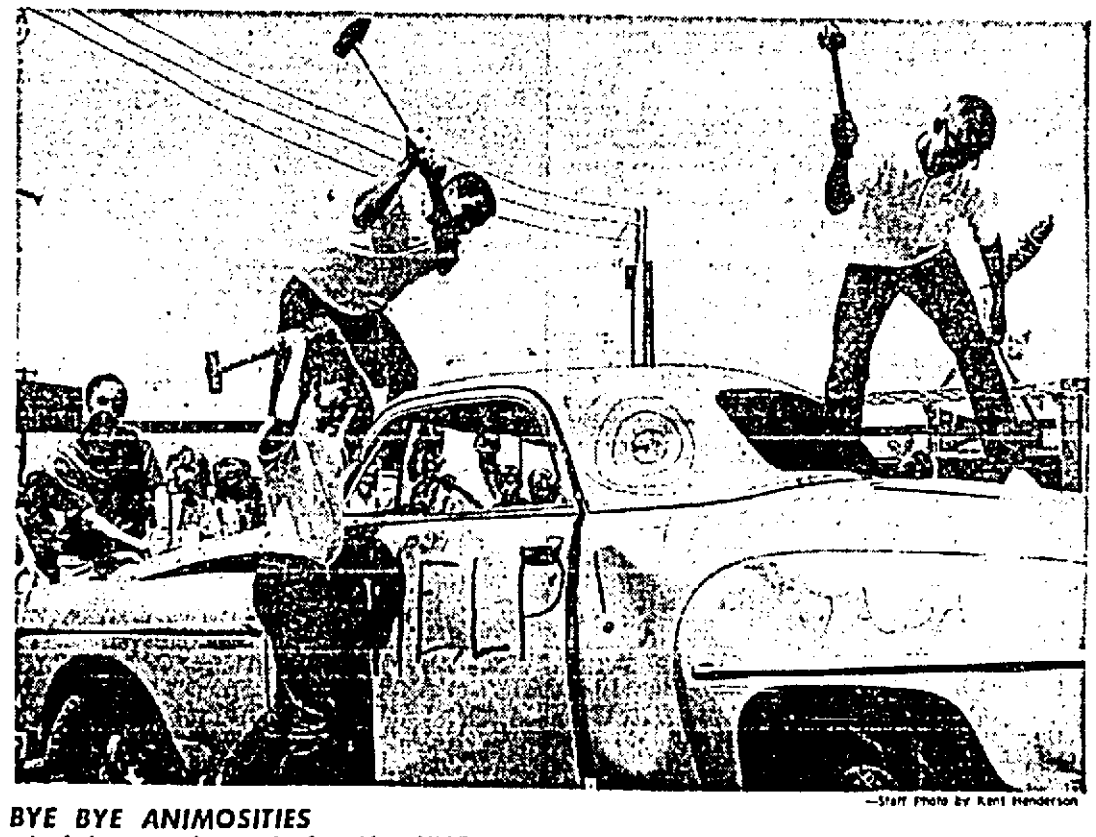

OFFICIALS of the Securities and Exchange Commission, which will conduct the probe, have given no hint of the specific situations to be scrutinized. Neither will they indicate whether they expect any major scandals to develop in the two weeks of public hearings.

It was known, however, that commission investigators have armed themselves with evidence of a number of unsavory situations involving major firms. These could figure prominently in the inquiry.

The hearings will launch the public phase of a $750,000 SEC study of the entire securities industry.

A choice attraction at the Los Altos YMCA Men's Carnival Saturday was the old car above. For a fee carnival-goers could pound on the car with sledgehammers. More than 40 game booths, mechanical rides and chuck wagon food were featured at the event. But, as you can see, old car was center of attraction for youths to vent feelings.

L.A.C. Says:

Running for Cover

We remember a story during the early days of the great 1930's depression when merchants were canceling orders and factories were closing. One merchant wired: "Cancel my order at once—reply." The company replied: "Sorry, you will have to wait your turn." We were reminded of the story by the rush of Democratic candidates now repudiating the California Democratic Council (CDC) endorsements for the coming election.

Almost daily we hear of a hopeful Democrat saying he does not seek, or want the CDC endorsement. Some of these candidates have never taken part in CDC activities and have disagreed with its policies of abolition of the loyalty oath and of the Un-American Activities Committee—and its general attitude of softness to Communist-dominated countries. But some of the candidates now repudiating the CDC have been strong supporters during the past two years when these policies have been a dominant part of the CDC program—adopted in February 1960.

Now they are running for cover because they have found these are not popular stands for an American to take. But where have they been during these years—and why have they waited until just before election day—only a month away—to stand up and be counted? Whatever their answer, it is reassuring to find some of them repudiating the left-wing CDC which has been so dominant a part of the Democratic Party in the state during the past four years.

There is no such repudiation by Gov. Brown or State Sen. Richard Richards. They are stuck with the CDC policy. They took part in formulating it. Brown is an honorary chairman of the organization and Richard Richards has been one of the main speakers and organizers of the CDC. It is too late for them to withdraw from programs they have so ardently supported.

The Brown-Richards, and generally the Brown administration, have attempted to cloud the issue by attempting to paint every conservative—be he Republican or Democrat—as a "Bircher." They loudly condemn all conservatives as "radical right-wingers." They have seen a whole Democratic Club in Long Beach change its registration because its members would not follow the CDC policies—so this group was also labeled as radical. But the left-wing CDC policies have not been referred to by the Democratic leaders of the state.

Some candidates have repudiated the CDC a little late. They have found it advisable to take such a stand in their efforts to be nominated by Democrats in the June 5 primary election. They remember how the California delegates in the 1960 presidential convention widely split over the CDC domination—and how the million-vote Democratc majority promised by Brown for Mr. Kennedy turned into a victory for the Republican candidate—who carried the state.

One little-publicized part of the CDC program shows its trend toward socialism and its contempt for the free enterprise system. It reads: "We specifically encourage the formation of more consumer cooperatives, and we call on Democrats in California to use the ones that exist." In other words, they would establish tax-free cooperative stores and factories to compete with tax-paying free enterprise establishments. This is one reason why many enterprises take a long look at such a philosophy before investing in the state.

These are some of the reasons for the repudiation of CDC support by candidates seeking nomination in the coming primary election. Gov. Brown and Richard Richards have only nominal competition for the Democratic nomination. But in the finals they will be faced with their past part in forming CDC policies. It will be interesting to see if—and how—they, too, will run for cover.—L.A.C.

Pravda Celebrates Anniversary

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda Saturday celebrated its 50th anniversary as the No. 1 press organ of world communism with medals, meeting and a strictly censored account of its history.

Premier Khrushchev led the cheers for Pravda at a special rally in the Kremlin Congress Hall attended by top Communist Party ofifcials, Pravda Editor Pavel Satyukov and others associated with the paper.

BUT THE two men chiefly responsible for making Pravda the force it is today were not even mentioned.

STRICTLY IGNORED were now disgraced and disregarded V. M. Molotov, Pravda's first and most famous editor, and Generalissimo Stalin, who turned it into the final arbiter in print of the Communist world.

The paper, its editor and some of its workers were awarded the Order of Lenin at the ceremony by President Leonid Brezhnev. The anniversary was the chief news in all the Soviet press. There was virtually no other news on the radio or TV.

Star's Mate Has Left Leg Amputated

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The left leg of Robert Morgan, husband of actress Yvonne DeCarlo, Saturday was amputated as a result of injuries suffered while making a film.

Morgan, a movie stuntman, underwent surgery Saturday afternoon at Good Samaritan Hospital.

Hospital authorities said the leg was amputated above the knee and that his condition was "satisfactory and normal recovery was expected."

* * * *

MORGAN WAS injured while making a film near Superior, Ariz., a couple of weeks ago.

Friday night Miss DeCarlo fled from Harris Restaurant in Anaheim, Calif., in tears where she was appearing in a night club act. The actress left by plane for Phoenix when she learned her husband faced a possible leg amputation.

Miss DeCarlo's appearance was her first on the night club circuit.

SURVIVED NAZIS

Three Refugees Killed at Railroad Crossing

TORONTO (UPI) — A young Jewish couple who lived through the war years in Nazi concentration camps and a visiting Israeli aunt who scrimped for years for the trip here died Saturday when a slow freight hit their car at a railroad crossing.

Police said the three victims were en route home after visiting other relatives when Joseph Winebaum, 33, apparently failed to notice warning signals and drove directly into the path of the Canadian National Railways freight.

In addition to Winebaum, his wife, Guilda, 31, and Winebaum's aunt, Rachael Bursztain, 46, of Tel Aviv were killed. All died at the scene.

Police said that the crash demolished the car and hurled bodies 100 feet along the track.

The happy, prosperous Winebaums were driving Mrs. Bursztain back to her sister's home after visiting other relatives when the crash occurred.

Mrs. Rena Zucker said the death of her nephew and sister, Winebaum and Mrs. Bursztain, left her the only surviving member of a family which once numbered 150 before the outbreak of World War II.

32nd Democratic Council Won't Endorse Hopefuls

Decision Hit by Congress Seat Seeker

The Long Beach area 32nd Congressional District Democratic Council voted "no endorsement" at its endorsing convention Saturday, but without prejudice to either of the Democratic congressional candidates, Joseph J. Johovich and W. Bud deCannis. The vote was 60-34.

The decision, however, represented a personal setback to Johovich, who had sought the endorsement while deCannis said he did not want it.

Johovich told the convention he "regretted" their action because he felt it eliminated the CDC (California Democratic Council) as a force to be reckoned with in any election. He admonished that the CDC should take more action and attack such endorsement problems with more, rather than less, conviction.

DeCannis explained he did not seek CDC support because it is too late in the primary campaign to confuse the issue and because he views the job of congressional representation as applying to all grassroots workers, not some 600 in the CDC.

DeCannis also blasted the incumbent GOP Congressman Craig Hosmer's "big brother buffers" which keep him one place removed from his constituents.

The convention action paralleled that of the 39th Assembly District council's no-endorsement decision of last month. In that case Dr. Kenneth W. Applegate sought support while Bert B. Bond repudiated it.

In a final piece of business, the 32nd Council Saturday voted to concur in the 44th Assembly District's endorsement of Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick's candidacy. He is unopposed in the Democratic primary.

Lt. Gov. Glenn Anderson will greet local area Democratic candidates and the public at 4 p.m. Wednesday in campaign headquarters of Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick, 5th Street and Long Beach Blvd., his 32nd District campaign chief, Duke Sims, announced Saturday.

Health Chief Rips Doctors on Boycott

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Secretary of Welfare Abraham Ribicoff charged a group of New Jersey doctors Sunday night with resorting to "blackmail" to defeat a proposed federal medical care plan for the aged.

More than 200 New Jersey doctors have signed a declaration that they would refuse to treat patients under terms of the King-Anderson bill, which would use Social Security funds to meet medical expenses of the aged.

• • • •

"IN TRYING to blackmail the Congress and the American people by refusing to treat older people," Ribicoff said at a state convention by Young Democrats here, "they are violating the Hippocratic Oath which they took before they began the practice of medicine."

New Jersey Gov. Richard J. Hughes also accused the signers earlier in the day of violating their professional oath. He said he hoped their "threat" would fail.

Ribicoff, whose department bears principal responsibility for shepherding the administration's medical care proposals through congress, said the bill in no way covers medical payments to private physicians.

• • • •

"IT SHOULD be absolutely no concern to a physician where a patient gets the money with which to pay his hospital costs," he said, "whether from his private funds, from premiums on an insurance policy, or from payments he would have paid into the Social Security trust fund, as provided by the King-Anderson Bill.

"Any doctor who refuses to treat a patient in violation of his Hippocratic Oath isn't fit to practice medicine."

Doctors responsible for the New Jersey declaration denied that they were violating their professional ethics.

SIMIAN SYMPOSIUM

This Audience Formal; They All Wore 'Tails'

By SHERM WILLIAMS

"These people," the man at the speaker's stand in the Wilton Hotel said somberly, "need to have someone around to talk to them.

"They need someone to talk to." He paused for effect and looked around the Empire Room at his audience.

Less than half the audience was paying attention.

Of the other half, a few of "these people" were rolling on the floor. One was trying to swing from an expensive drape. Another was quietly turning somersaults, an endless, tiring succession of silent nip-overs.

The California Conference of the Simian Society of America was in full swing.

Of "these people" in the room, one was a gibbon ape. Several were spider monkeys. Some were wooly monkeys. A few were just plain commonplace people. The kind without tails.

"These people," intoned the speaker, "have enough problems without having to be alone." One of "his people" bared her teeth at a reporter. Another let out a shrill howl.

"What happens to monkeys," the speaker implored, "when the people are not home?"

Two spider monkeys in the corner giggled.

A Gibbon ape, erect on his hind legs paced back and forth. His hair swept over his collar like that of an 1890 Shakesperian actor.

"Gibbon apes aren't very smart," confided Ray Beck of Bakersfield. He introduced the gibbon, "Bobette Back." The gibbon wasn't a boy after all. Bobette was garbed in a paisley suit, hardly the thing for a real redblooded boy ape to effect.

"Isn't Junior Buehler cute?" someone asked.

Junior is a wooly monkey named official greeter for the conference. He lives with Patricia Buehler of Berkeley. She spelled her name politely, but said "Most important, this is junior."

"My grandchildren think he is wonderful. I am the only grandmother they know who has anything like junior.

The one-day convention which attracted a tight knit group of simian owners from Northern California, was for the purpose of helping form a Southern California chapter of Simian Association.

While the people soberly talked monkey business the simians amused themselves as best they could.

One woman tenderly bounced her hairy charge on one knee.

Another took her simian into the corridor and, with it clinging to her like a baby being burped, walked back and forth.

On a table was a display of the kinds of foods monkeys and apes like to eat. It wasn't the kind of stuff that a dog or cat can be persuaded is good. It consisted of cans of choice yams, water chestnuts, sliced papaya, hearts of palm, kadota figs and strawberries. Fresh frozen melon balls also were displayed.

What causes you to keep monkeys, George Ohlayer of San Francisco, a typical Simian Association member was asked.

"It is a challenge to one's ability to understand these guys," he said. "It is a great experience to learn how to get along with them."

His monkey yawned.

At the podium, the speaker said, "Simians need companionship."

A voice from the rear called, "I don't think you should ever buy just one monkey."

"No," the speaker agreed "If you have a Rhesus monkey, the only thing that can get through to him is another Rhesus."

The gibbon curled his lip.

Democrats Face Voting for Montoya or Montoya

SANTA FE, N. M. (AP)—Democrats voting in New Mexico's primary election Tuesday are going to have to do some brushing up on the alphabet the night before.

Seeking re-nomination for United States representative, position 1, is U. S. Rep. Joseph M. Montoya. He has drawn as one of his two primary opponents an Albuquerque salesman by the name of Joseph E. Montoya.

To add to the confusion, Joseph E. Montoya drew the top position on the ballot, the spot many voters check off when they are in doubt.

State law requires that in the case of a similarity of names, the occupation and county of residence of the candidates be listed on the ballot.

The New Mexico attorney general ruled Congressman Montoya should be listed as: "Joseph M. Montoya, U. S. representative, Sandoval County." His opponent, the attorney general said, should be listed as: "Joseph E. Montoya, salesman, Bernalillo County."

JOSEPH E. MONTOYA

JOSEPH M. MONTOYA

Joseph E. Montoya's attorney appealed to the New Mexico Supreme Court to force the secretary of state to list Congressman Montoya as "Jose Manuel Montoya, attorney, Santa Fe County."

Attorney Dale Dilts argued that Rep. Montoya's true name was Jose Manuel Montoya and offered an old voter's registration certificate as evidence.

Reuther Urges Car Price Cut

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—Labor leader Walter P. Reuther said Saturday the profits of General Motors and Ford are so "exorbitant" they should immediately cut prices on new cars in line with President Kennedy's economic stabilization formula.

Reuther said the two giant automakers could slash new car prices by $225 to $275 and still earn as much as the average U. S. manufacturing corporation.

• • • •

THE UAW president said that "enormous" profits of GM and Ford in 1961 and greater-than-average gains in productivity in the industry call for price reductions under guideposts issued by Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers.

He said in a report prepared for the UAW's 18th convention that failure to lower car prices also would lead to increased unemployment among UAW members and spur inflation.

• • • •

"THE POWER of these corporations to maintain prices even in the face of declines in demand has been a prime factor in the increase in the general price level in recent years," he said.

AWARD WINNER

Novelist Jessamyn West (right), chats with Mrs. Richard Nixon at California Press Women's convention at the Pacific Club Saturday night just before Mrs. Nixon, whose husband is Miss West's cousin, presented Miss West with the Golden Flame award during the banquet which capped Saturday's events.

Lawyer Speaks to News Women

Sound health of a government is as important to a nation as the health of an individual, attorney Loyd Wright told the California Press Women (CPW) Saturday night at their state convention banquet at the Pacific Coast Club.

Wright, a candidate for Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate urged members of the organization "to alert the public when a government shows signs of over-indulgence and extravagances.

• • • •

"WOMEN OF the press have the power to feed the public ideas that will nourish a sound government," Wright said.

More than 100 persons attended the three day convention for women representatives from newspapers, radio and television.

During the banquet, Miss Jessamyn West, author-journalist from Napa, was awarded the eighth annual Golden Flame award for her book, "Friendly Persuasion." The award was made by Mrs. Richard Nixon.

Other guests included Lt Gov. and Mrs. Glenn M. Anderson.

Anderson delivered the opening address. Disk jockey Bob Crane was master of ceremonies.

• • • •

THE NEWLY elected CPW president, Ruth Gomes, of the Hanford Sentinel will be installed today during the concluding meeting, a Sunday brunch.

Mildred Flanary of The Independent, Press-Telegram and Carrie Lou Sutherland, of the Anaheim Bulletin were co-chairmen of the event.

Miss West is the wife of Dr. H. M. McPherson, superintendent of Napa Valley city schools. She is a first cousin of former Vice President Nixon and holds a doctor's degree. She has taught at Notre Dame, Mills College, Napa College, Stanford, Pomona College and Redlands University.

DR. BRANDT said Chambers used a .22 caliber automatic pistol. There were no signs of struggle.

In the little girls' room, toys and coloring books were scattered on the floor where they had been left after play.

El Cajon Child Chokes on Peanut

EL CAJON (UPI)—Melvin Shaw, 2, choked to death Saturday when a peanut he was eating lodged in his windpipe.

Melvin's father George Shaw administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation when the child turned blue and collapsed in their trailer home, but he was pronounced dead on arrival at a valley hospital.

poses remain the same."

Wilson said in Austin that the returns were "disappointing." Cox claimed a decisive victory in the Republican primary.

The list of candidates was one of the largest in Texas history. Voters nominated, in addition to governor, candidates for all other major state offices, 23 congressional seats and hundreds of county offices.

They also indicated — though not by overwhelming majorities — in non-binding referendums that they do not want legal betting on horse races in Texas, but would like to see the $1.75 poll tax abolished as a prerequisite to voting.

Joe Pool of Dallas lead a biterly fought race for congressman-at-large, with Wooddow Wilson Bean, a former El Paso county judge, running second.

• • • •

BEAN ADMITTED in the last days of his campaign that he has not filed a Federal income tax report in the last 10 years. Many of his campaign supporters deserted him.

Walker, 52, campaigned almost entirely on the issue of communism.

He charged that the President intends to turn over the U.S. armed forces to the United Nations. He said if that happened and he were governor, he would personally take over all armed forces and military materiel in Texas.

Two Pickups Hit Headon; Six Killed

GALLUP, N. M. (UPI)—A pickup truck whipped around a slow-moving truck, sped down a hill in the wrong lane and crashed squarely into another pickup truck Saturday. Six persons, including a baby, were killed and two persons were badly injured.

Four of the dead were from Fort Defiance Ariz. One was from Window Rock, Ariz., and the other was from Gallup.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Mich. Governor to Battle Romney

DETROIT (UPI)—The battle lines were drawn Saturday night for what promises to be Michigan's bitterest gubernatorial battle in recent history when Democratic Gov. John B. Swainson announced for re-election and declared war on Michigan's GOP—headed by former automaker George Romney.

A record Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner crowd which brought out 3,500 Democratic party faithfuls was on hand to praise Swainson's first term in office, cheer his decision to seek re-election and predict a smashing victory at the polls in November.

The governor, a 36-year-old war veteran who lost both legs in a mine explosion in World War II, said, "On the basis of my record . . . and on the program and platform of the Democratic party . . . I intend to run for re-election as governor in 1962."

WILLIAM C. BATTLE
Served in War with JFK

New Ambassador

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy plans to appoint a wartime comrade, William C. Battle, 41, Charlottesville, Va., lawyer, as new U.S. ambassador to Australia, informed sources reported Saturday.

Battle, who directed the Kennedy-for-president campaign in Virginia in 1960, served with Kennedy in the Navy during World War II. Battle commanded a PT boat in the Pacific in the same squadron as Kennedy. The Australian ambassador post has been vacant since the resignation last fall of William J. Sebald, an Eisenhower administration appointee.

Quake Damages Fontana Store

PASADENA (UPI)—Two separate earthquakes rumbled through Southern California Saturday causing isolated damage in nearby Fontana.

The temblors were recorded about one hour apart by seismologists at the California Institute of Technology. The first quake at 6:10 a.m., was "small," according to seismologists, but caused isolated damage in Fontana where the ceiling of a furniture store collapsed.

The second temblor, at 7:17 a.m., also felt in San Diego, El Centro and Palm Springs areas, was described as "moderate." Seismologists said it recorded a magnitude of 3.4 on seismographs compared with the first quake which registered 2 on the Richter scale.

400 SAO Suspects Captured

ALGIERS (UPI)—French authorities announced Saturday security forces had arrested 400 Secret Army Organization (SAO) suspects in a massive search of a single quarter of Algiers.

The suspects were arrested in the Champ de Manoeuvre quarter during the 48 hours the area was sealed off by barbed wire barricades and subjected to house-to-house searches. The drive was part of French commander-in-chief Gen Michel Fourquet's plan to crush the European terrorist organization in a systematic hunt for terrorists and their weapons.

Salinger Leaves for Europe

NEW YORK (AP)—Pierre Salinger, President Kennedy's press secretary, left by plane Saturday night on a two-week European trip, including a five- or six-day stay in Russia at the personal invitation of Premier Khrushchev's son-in-law.

Mahoney to Get Ghana Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Mahoney, a Phoenix, Ariz., attorney, will be appointed U.S. ambassador to Ghana, a government official said Saturday night. The present ambassador, Francis H. Russell, has been hospitalized in Washington for about a month and there have been reports that he did not plan to return to Ghana.

95 Slain in Katanga

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—The Central Congo government said Saturday night its troops have clashed with Katangese gendarmes in northern Katanga. The statement came several hours after the Congolese press agency reported heavy fighting had taken place in two villages Wednesday and Katangese troops had slain 95 civilian prisoners.

Space Closes In on Russ Orbiter

SEATTLE (UPI)—Gherman Titov, Soviet hero who has soloed in space, was caught in a crush of earthbound humanity Saturday at the Seattle World's Fair.

This was the biggest day of attendance at the fair since its opening two weeks ago and more than 50,000 persons were on the 74-acre grounds.

• • • •

MORE THAN 10,000 of them were Campfire Girls from every state in the union.

Titov arrived here Saturday from Washington, D.C. after a stopover in Chicago where he said, "It would be splendid if the United States and Russia could go to the moon together."

The smiling, curly-haired cosmonaut was followed by large crowds everywhere. At one point he stopped abruptly, and in the best style of an American political candidate, tweeked the cheeks of a pretty one-year-old girl in a stroller.

• • • •

THE INFANT, Elizabeth Ulrich, took the attention wide-eyed and bewildered, and her mother, Mrs. Alvin Ulrich of Seattle, was flabbergasted.

"My goodness, that was the Russian astronaut," the red-haired, freckle-faced mother exclaimed as Titov resumed his brisk tour of the fair.

The cosmonaut left a colored pictured of himself in the baby's lap.

Midway in the afternoon Titov had a news conference in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration building on the fairgrounds where an array of American rocketry and missiles is on display.

At the same time, a group of more than 600 "peace walkers" paraded outside the grounds with signs proclaiming "end nuclear testing. No more tests. Peace is the only soldier. World's fairs not world wars."

• • • •

KENNETH Kirkpatrick, Seattle, peace education secretary for the American Friends Service Committee, sponsor of the walk, said the fact that the demonstration took place while Titov was at the fair was "pure coincidence."

"We had planned this walk for opening day (April 21) but decided to hold it two weeks later," Kirkpatrick said. "And that decision was made before we knew Titov would be here today. But we hope he sees our signs because we would like him to know that we do have peace organizations in this country."

LAUNCHING THIS WEEK

Satellite Put Under Wraps

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The flashing light geodetic satellite declassified last week after a bitter security tussle, apparently was back under wraps Saturday.

The Air Force summoned reporters to a conference where project officials were to brief them on the satellite, nicknamed Anna, which is scheduled for launching from the Cape this week.

But 15 minutes after the news briefing was to start, only reporters had shown up. Then an Air Force spokesman appeared to announce that the Defense Department had decided to call off the pre-launch briefing. No explanation was given.

• • • •

SATELLITE LAUNCHINGS at the Pacific Missile Range have been classified in recent months, but this is the first time one has been cloaked at Cape Canaveral. The type of booster rocket was not even announced, although it is generally known that a two-stage Thor-Able-Star has been assigned the task.

Only information available is a technical fact sheet released April 27 in Washington at the meeting of the International Committee of Space Reseach. Very few details about the satellite or mission were released.

It is known the satellite carries a high-intensity light which will flash at various intervals in an experiment to obtain more accurate maps of the world. By giving scientists a known point in space to be photographed against a background of stars, the flashing beacon will permit better measurements of the earth's surface.

• • • •

THE READING of the ANNA (for Army, Navy, NASA and Air Force) paper at the international space meeting was a victory for scientists who pleaded their case before congress for declassification of the project.

Scientists like Dr. James Van Allen of the University of Iowa and Dr. Fred Whipple of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory contended that to effectively map the world with a geodetic satellite a great number of countries must be permitted to make observations. They said results should be made available to the worldwide scientific community.

Certain Defense Department officials argued the satellite has military implications and in 1960 succeeded in classifying it. NASA withdrew from the program at this time.

• • • •

THE DEFENSE officials said worldwide dissemination of data from ANNA would permit Russia to aim its missiles more accurately at United States targets. It also would help U.S. military planners more effectively pinpoint targets in Russia.

The scientists argued that the precise location and distance to targets in America already is well known with sufficient accuracy. They pointed out the true value of ANNA would be in determining accurately the shape of the earth and the position of islands and other remote areas of the globe.

Under this persuasion, Defense Secretary McNamara declassified ANNA last month.

West Berlin Honors Clay

BERLIN (UPI) — Retired Gen. Lucius D. Clay, hero of the Berlin blockade, Saturday was made an honorary West Berlin citizen, the first foreigner and the ninth man to receive the honor.

Clay, in a short speech to the West Berlin city council, repeated President Kennedy's pledge of American "determination to keep our troops here until there is a single city and a reunified Germany."

Bonelli Fete Slated

County Supervisor Frank G. Bonelli will be honored Monday night at a meeting of Elks Lodge 888, 4101 E. Willow St. Bonelli, scheduled to speak at 7:30 p.m., will be presented with a plaque in recognition of service to Long Beach.

BIG CLEANUP

Tallest Building Gets Bath

NEW YORK (AP)—A crew of 30 men Monday will tackle the biggest spring cleaning job ever undertaken.

They are going to scrub the Empire State Building. They don't expect to finish for six months.

It will be the first face cleaning for the 102-story landmark, the world's tallest building, since it was completed in 1931.

They have to wash and waterproof (3,000 gallons of coating) a half-million square feet of limestone, scrub and paint (250 gallons) the metal frames of 6,500 windows — the panes are washed twice a month —and polish the 8-inch-wide ornamental strips of stainless steel which stretch the height of the 1,472-foot-tall building.

The workmen will start at the 86th floor on the north and west sides and work down to the sixth-floor setback. Then they'll switch to the south and east sides.

Big Sand Pile Traps Little Boy

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Eight-year-old Rickie Paul Dowell found what every child dreams about—a sand pile 30 feet high.

But the mound of sand was a death trap for Rickie. His body was recovered from beneath the sand Saturday after a nightlong search.

Blind Man Leaves for Meeting

In only two years since he was blinded by an accident, Ed Meier, of 2932 Silverwood Drive, Los Alamitos, has learned to read Braille and get around by himself so well that now he's headed for a convention.

He left early this morning for Yosemite National Park for a three-day chemical company convention starting Monday.

Meier, 33, represents six nationally-circulated trade magazines. The chemical company staging the convention publishes one of them. Meier also serves the speakers' bureau for the Braille Institute.

Meier will head for San Francisco after the convention to make several business calls before returning home May 15. His "chauffeur" and companion on the trip will be Verle Bisbee, a railroad employe.

Prisoners Set to Be 'Stars' on Police TV

NEW YORK (AP)—A new type of television program is being started by the New York City police department, beginning Wednesday, and is said to be the first of its kind.

The daily lineup of suspected criminals at police headquarters in Manhattan will be televised to other key police stations in each of the city's five boroughs.

Such lineups are held to see if detectives recognize suspects wanted in crimes other than the particular cases in which they have been detained.

Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy said televising of the lineups would permit at least 10 times as many detectives to view suspects as now are able to do so.

3 County Worker Health Plans Urged

L. AT Los Angeles Bureau

A committee headed by Dr. Orville W. Cole of Long Beach has recommended three hospital-medical plans for Los Angeles County employes and has proposed the county contribute $5 per month toward the premium of each participant.

The three plans are (1) a world-wide indemnity insurance plan, (2) a non-profit service plan to be underwritten by either Blue Shield or Blue Cross or both, and (3) an independent or comprehensive group practice (closed panel) medical plan.

Dr. Cole's committee was appointed by the board of supervisors to review recommendations of a 15-member committee, which was made up of county employes, employe organization officers and county department heads.

Dr. Cole's committee recommendations, which will go before the supervisors Tuesday, made no mention of overall cost. Earlier estimates on the 15-member committee plan, however, were $2.2 million per year.

The Cole committee said federal government and California state government insurance programs allow the three types of plans which it is recommending.

"At present," the report said, "about 35 per cent of Los Angeles County employes who carry such insurance are covered by indemnity plans, 35 per cent by service plans, and 30 per cent by closed-panel plans."

Dr. Cole said Los Angeles City recently decided to contribute $5 per employe and a study of other California counties and cities indicates that a $5 contribution by Los Angeles County would be in "reasonable conformity."

Japan Climb Craze Takes 160 Lives

TOKYO (AP)—The climbing craze has given Japan a new national record—160 killed and 277 injured—in mountain mishaps in 1961, a record which police say probably will be bettered this year.

Japanese National Police reported Saturday the 1961 death toll was an increase of 62 per cent over the previous year.

Climbing is a popular and sometimes frantic recreation in this mountain-studded nation. Weekend crowds are so big there are lineups on some slopes.

Both died when the Prowse car slammed into a station wagon driven by Rudolph Vastlik, 37, of Yorba Linda. He is in Anaheim Memorial Hospital, where physicians said his condition is "fairly good."

Tax-Rate Hike Fought

U.P.I. Los Angeles Bureau

Elimination of 500 of the recommended 2,043 new Los Angeles County employes for 1962-63 will be asked by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn to combat a proposed 12-cent increase in the county tax rate.

This would bring a net saving of about $2.5 million next year, Hahn said.

The 2,043 employes recommended in the record-shattering preliminary budget of $624,221,008 would require about $10.4 million in salaries and retirement benefits next year, Hahn said.

Mundt Says Someone 'Lying' in Estes Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., Saturday said "somebody is obviously lying" among Agriculture Department employes involved in the investigation of Billie Sol Estes, indicted Texas financier.

Mundt is ranking Republican on the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee which is studying the tangled Estes case. Mundt scored agriculture Department officials for calling a news conference Friday on the Estes affair.

Calling this "a sort of kangaroo court atmosphere," Mundt said in a statement:

"All that is apparent from the reports of Friday's bizarre confrontations arranged for the press by the Department of Agriculture leadership is that somebody is obviously lying.

"What we need and what should be produced is a careful investigation of all the factors and all the personnel involved. Witnesses must be brought before an appropriate tribunal of Congress and asked direct questions producing testimony under oath where the rules of perjury apply."

Estes, 37-year-old Pecos Democrat, is under state and federal fraud indictments charging he raised millions by obtaining mortgages on nonexistent fertilizer tanks. He also has stored millions of bushels of grain for the government and was a major cotton raiser.

Mundt said Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate investigations group, "now has at least 10 trained investigators and government Accounting Office accountants working on this case at the Texas end of the line and in Washington.

"Depositions are being taken. More (investigators) will be assigned to it as needed."

At the Agriculture Department's news conference Friday, N. Battle Hales, an employe recently transferred to a new job, said agriculture stabilization and conservation officials gave Estes "the equivalent of favoritism" on some matters. This was denied by Horace Godfrey, the administrator of the agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and by other officials.

ISLAND TALES SPINNER

Michener in Congress Race

PIPERSVILLE, Pa. (UPI)—A woman telephoned Bucks County Democratic headquarters in nearby Doylestown the other day with the breathless announcement that an "imposter" had just rung her doorbell claiming he was James A. Michener.

She sounded more disappointed than surprised, as if she had expected a bearded bard with a kimono. Instead, she and scores of other Bucks and Lehigh County residents are being gradually exposed to a mild-mannered, scholarly man who hopes to win a seat in Congress next November and spared no effort looking for votes.

Michener, the 55-year-old prolific spinner of island tales, announced early this year he would run for Congress as a Democrat in Pennsylvania's sprawling, heavily Republican 8th district. Since then, he has been up and down the district knocking on doors, shaking hands and appearing at ladies aid meetings, coffee klatches and luncheons.

During a recent two-hour interview, Michener's quiet, hilltop house here, its walls lined with abstract paintings, seemed a modern art gallery suddenly converted into a campaign headquarters.

The phone rang with regularity. A pile of campaign papers was stacked on a table in the living room. And Michener talked enthusiastically about the race ahead.

"I'm starting at a dreadful disadvantage, you know," he said as he thumbed through a fat appointment book filled with dates for appearances before organizations which never could have afforded his lecture fee.

"I'm actually 26,000 votes behind to start with and I can't catch up soon enough. But I'm not overawed. There are some compensating factors in my favor."

Michener is running unopposed in the May 15 primary as the unity choice of a heretofore badly divided Democratic Party in the two counties. In November, he will face three-term incumbent Republican Rep. S. Curtin of Morrisville, who won by a 26,424 landslide in 1960.

Michener is now dividing his time between the campaign and a succession of trips to New York to work on the libretto for a new musical, "Tahiti," scheduled to open on Broadway next season. He also is working on a novel about Mexico, "Festival," but won't get it finished by the scheduled fall publication date.

He has nothing planned except politics after that. He admits his writing "will suffer" if he is elected, but added: "There's no reason a man cannot serve in many capacities."

1 of Each 14 Women Divorced or Parted

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—About one in every 14 American women either was divorced or separated from her husband at the time of the 1960 census, a federal satistician reported Saturday.

The best record for togetherness was on the farm and the suburbs ranked next.

An analysis of 1960 marital data was made public here by Dr. Paul C. Glick, chief of the social statistics branch of the Census Bureau, in a paper prepared for the annual meeting of the Population Association of America.

Among all women who either were or had been married; in 1960, 43 per 1,000 were divorced and 31 per 1,000 were separated. The total marriage disruption ratio for women thus was 74 per 1,000.

For white women, the disruption ratio was 60 per 1,000 and for nonwhites 204.

The ratio for white women ranged from the 50's per 1,000 in the North and South to 84 in the West. For nonwhite women the range was from 158 in the West to 241 in the Northwest.

The highest disruption ratio for white women — 91 per 1,000 — was registered in large cities. The low was 31 per 1,000 on farms. The corresponding ratios for nonwhite women were 240 and 105.

YMCA BUILDS FOR YOUTH

Typical of the 12,000 young people who take part in YMCA activities here, Cheryl Bronn and Bruce Barrett, both 16, remind one and all that the Long Beach YMCA's "Buildings for Youth" fund drive will be held May 10-29. Campaign goal is $1.196 million. Funds will be used for a community YMCA center in Los Altos, a gymnasium for the Lakewood Y and to complete the renovation and expansion of the North Long Beach and Downtown YMCA branches.

2,000 Young Anglers Will Vie for Prizes

By P-T Los Angeles Bureau

More than 2,000 young anglers, 15 years of age and under, are expected to take part in the annual fishing derby next Saturday at 7 a.m. at Legg Fishing Lake in the Whittier Narrows Recreation Area.

Awards will be presented, starting at 11:30 a.m., to the boy or girl catching the largest trout, catfish, bass and bluegill.

• • • •

THE ANNUAL derby is cosponsored by the Monterey Park Optimist Club and the Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation.

Legg Fishing Lake is now divided into the upper, or north lake, for trout, and the lower, or south lake, for warm-water fish.

Each youngster must bring his own fishing gear. He may use any type of pole and his choice of bait.

Adults may fish at the lake during the contest, but will not be eligible for prizes. All anglers 16 years of age or older must have state fishing licenses and must use artificial lures.

• • • •

AT PRESENT, Legg Lake is operating on a winter schedule and is open only on Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays. Starting May 30, it will begin its summer schedule of daily fishing from an hour before sunrise to an hour after sunset. This continues through Sept. 15.

Further information may be obtained from Jack Bell, Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation, 155 W. Washington Blvd., Los Angeles 15.

Set Chess Program on May 19

By P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Chess players from all over Los Angeles County are invited to participate in a program of competition and demonstrations Saturday, May 19, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. in South San Gabriel.

The occasion is the annual "Paul Morphy Day," honoring the American chess champion and unofficial world champion of 1857-59.

It will be held in the Garvey Memorial Recreation Center gymnasium, 7933 E. Emerson Place, South San Gabriel.

Volton Kovacs, Hungarian International chessmaster and second-place winner in the recent U.S. Chess Open, will play five simultaneous games, blindfolded.

HARRY BOROCHOW, international chessmaster, and Irvine Rivise, Steiner Chess Club champion, will play tandem against spectators. Each player will make alternate moves.

Other lectures on chess, a North-South match involving teams competing for the California championship, a rapid transit tournament, and the annual Yank-Rebel match, open to all who attend, will be other program highlights.

The program is cosponsored by the Southern California Chess League and the Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation.

Mrs. JFK to Christen Atomic Sub

GROTON, Conn. (UPI) — The Navy will open a new frontier when Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy christens the nuclear-powered Polaris submarine Lafayette here Tuesday.

The Lafayette is the biggest submarine ever to be built. She is the first of a new class of subs, with the capability of firing rockets from 2,500 to 3,000 miles while concealed under the surface.

Two earlier types of Polaris submarines, of the George Washington and Ethan Allen class, have a missile range of 1,200 to 1,800 miles.

• • • •

THE NEW dimension to the undersea fleet will be added when Mrs. Kennedy intones the traditional "I christen thee USS Lafayette," and bastes a bottle of domestic champagne against the prow as the 425-foot 7,000-ton ship starts gliding down the ways into the Thames River.

The ceremony will take place at the yards of the Electric Boat division of General Dynamics Corp., where eight years ago the wife of another President of the United States, Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, sponsored the world's first nuclear submarine, Nautilus.

ELIZABETH

Queen Carries Crown Jewels in Handbag

LONDON (UPI) — The crown jewels, Britain's greatest treasure, sometimes get a rather cavalier treatment from Queen Elizabeth herself.

Sir Charles Wheeler, a leading sculptor and president of the Royal Academy, said the queen came to his London studio six times recently to sit for a bust.

Each time, he said, she brought her priceless diamond tiara in her handbag, and each time, she came alone, except for her chauffeur.

Sir Charles completed three bronze busts of the queen during the six sittings.

Intensive Freeway Research Plan Pressed

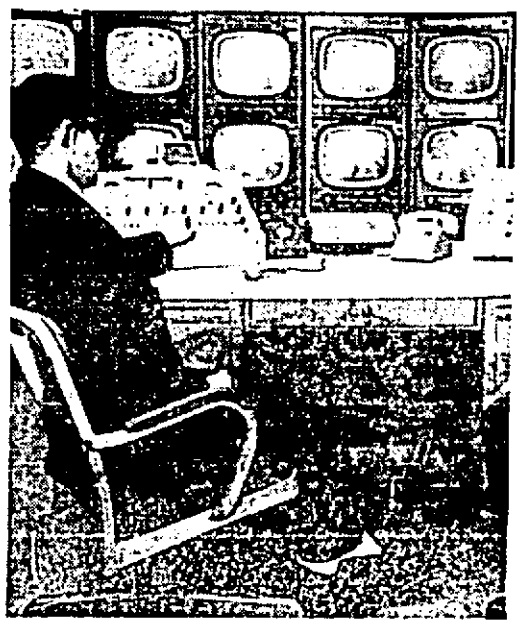

By BEN PHLEGAR

DETROIT (AP) — When I drive to work Monday morning I'll appear on television 14 times.

From a master control panel a man watching my progress will tell me by means of lighted signs whether the freeway lane in which I'm traveling is clear ahead, or blocked.

At two points I'll be counted by automatic equipment so sensitive it will know whether I'm driving a car or a truck, will record my speed, note the lane I'm in and furnish future observers with the total number of cars which used that lane in the past hour and their average speed. It will also note the average space between my car, the one ahead of me and the one behind.

All of this is a part of the most intensive research program ever devised for travel on urban freeways. The aim — to move more cars more efficiently over existing freeways, and to provide statistical reference materials for designers of future highways.

—Associated Press Wirephoto

HIGHWAY CANDID CAMERA

Traffic control engineer monitors television screens reflecting freeway traffic conditions in the Detroit area in a $400,000 research project jointly undertaken by the U.S., State of Michigan, Wayne County and Detroit highway officials.

Officially this is the John C. Lodge Freeway Traffic Surveillance and Control Research Project, a $400,000 joint venture of the Michigan State Highway Department, Wayne County Road Commission, Detroit's Department of Streets and Traffic and the United States Bureau of Public Roads. The federal government is putting up 75 per cent of the money.

The project covers 3.2 miles of the Lodge Freeway in midtown Detroit, main auto commuting route for the thousands who live in the northwestern section of the city and its northern suburbs.

In a normal weekday 150,000 cars cover the stretch, counting both directions. This is more than the total number of cars in such states as Delaware, Nevada, Vermont or Wyoming.

The result: Traffic jams, accidents, more jams, dented fenders, short tempers, frayed nerves.

Frank DeRose Jr. of the Michigan highway department, who is serving as project engineer, says "We don't like those jams and slow-downs any more than you do. You're taking up valuable space."

Valuable is an understatement since portions of the Detroit freeway system cost $16.5 million per mile to build. That breaks down to $3,125 for each foot of six-lane highway or $520.83 for each foot of a single lane. Since a standard car occupies at least 17½ feet, that space is equal to $9,114.52.

Such fantastic costs are a major reason why the highway department, and traffic engineers the nation over, are vitally interested in any control system which offers hope of moving more cars over existing roadways.

Fourteen closed-circuit television cameras, mounted on overhead bridges 500 to 1,600 feet apart, scan the 3.2-mile section. Each is equipped with a standard and telephoto lens which can be changed at the touch of a button from the master control center. Each camera also can be swung from left to right so that 96 per cent of the entire stretch is "on camera."

Each camera covers all six lanes and is faced north, a mounting necessitated by the desire to avoid direct sunlight on the lens.

At the control center, midway along the route, a visitor accustomed to raucous commercials on his home TV screen is immediately impressed by the sight of 14 21-inch screens totally quiet. The only steady sound in the room is the click-click of the automatic traffic counters.

Pictures are sharp and license tags can be read clearly, but DeRose says no effort will be made to use the screens for traffic enforcement. "In fact," he said, "in the rush hours we'd rather the police stayed out of there.

The control desk is connected directly by telephone to the Police Department, however, so that accidents or stalled vehicles can be reported.

DeRose says experience shows a trained observer can scan the screens for three hours, then must be relieved. "It's amazing how his efficiency drops if he tries four hours," he said. "And the job is easier when the freeway is busy. Action makes it interesting."

If the observer spots an accident or developing congestion, he informs the supervisor. He, in turn, pushes a button which lights red "X" signs over the lane involved, warning drivers in that lane to merge into adjacent lanes as soon as possible.

The supervisor also decides whether to reduce the over-all speed. The normal limit is 55 miles per hour. He can flash either 40 or 25 m.p.h.

If other lanes begin to jam he can close them and in extreme emergencies can close the entire freeway and direct traffic, by means of flashing arrows, to the nearest exits.

One of the research projects to be undertaken in connection with the system will be to determine whether the automatic sensing equipment, which counts the cars and density of traffic, could be used to anticipate tie-ups.

State Official Warns Against Changing Children's Milk Diet

By BEN ZINSER

A state health official has warned against changing children's dietary patterns because of fear of radioactive fallout from the current testing of nuclear weapons.

Dr. Harold M. Erickson, Berkeley, deputy state health director, said that a child's health could be seriously affected by such a move.

He disclosed that unqualified persons in California have been urging, through letters and leaflets, the curtailment of milk consumption during the eight days following the detonation of every nuclear device in the current Pacific test series.

"Decisions of this kind should be made only by qualified physicians and public health authorities," Dr. Erickson said.

* * * *

HE SAID these individuals apparently are concerned about the concentration of radioactive iodine in milk. The principle route of entry into the body by this radioactive element in fallout is through fresh foods, particularly milk.

In the past the quantities of radioiodine found in milk in California during nuclear testing have been far below those which would indicate countermeasures, he said.

Dr. Erickson said the State Health Department will keep the public fully informed and will continue to sample food, water, milk and air for radioactivity.

There is no reason to believe the current test series will require countermeasures, he said.

Tunnel May Link Port, Terminal Island

TWO POSSIBLE SOLUTIONS to the Terminal Island pontoon bridge traffic situation are shown in this artist's drawing. One envisages a high-level bridge similar to one now being built across the main channel in Los Angeles Harbor. A more likely answer is construction of a 3,450-foot underground tube costing $15 million.

Beachcombing

with MALCOLM EPLEY

IF YOU'RE pondering a trip to Tijuana, proceed with caution.

That's the warning word from the best sources that way. Conditions in the border town have deterioriated seriously since the abandonment of a recent reform program. Crime and sin are rampant, law enforcement is lax, and peculiar, and it's no place for a stranger to be wandering around aimlessly at night.

Visitors seeking the seamy side are finding it in abundance down there, some disastrously. A recent murder victim was a U.S. citizen, with lots of cash in his pocket, who got into a taxicab and asked where he could get dope.

There are still many tourist attractions down there, such as jai lai, the races, the shops, and, if you like them, the bull fights. But those who plan to go would be wise to check with tourist bureaus and to know exactly what they are doing.

An informant who knows the whole situation extremely well tells this dept. that the best way to induce a clean-up of the border town is to give it the economic squeeze through reduced visitation from this side of the border. If a reform is necessary to keep the U.S. dollars rolling in, it will come.

READ these words: "Promoting Juvenile Decency." Did you, at least momentarily, think you had read: "Promoting Juvenile Delinquency"?

Misreading the motto of the Boys' Clubs of Long Beach, Inc.—"Promoting Juvenile Decency"—has occurred with phenomenal frequency here since the motto began appearing in public print.

Just this week, some one sent me a wrapper from a chocolate bar being sold by the Boys Clubbers to finance camping trips. The motto was on it and the sender appended a note indicating he had misread it. A telephone call confirmed that he had. He could hardly believe it when I told him how the motto actually read on the very paper he had sent me.

Some years ago I received a report from a reliable observer that the "delinquency" motto had appeared on the marquee of a theater building used by the clubs. I used his erroneous report and found it necessary to make amends. He, like many other, had simply read it wrong.

Why is that? The only explanation seems to be that people have become accustomed to connecting the two words—juvenile and delinquency—to the point that they see them even when they aren't there.

The implication in this analysis is disturbing. If many people tend to make the words juvenile and delinquent synonomous, it's no wonder that the vast majority of decent youngsters are getting highly resentful. But if they do, relate the words, why? It's something to kick around a little.

BILL PHILLIPS, who writes in the Banning Record, takes umbrage at a little note in this dept. the other day reporting that a sign on the Banning railroad depot reads: "Hello, Goodbye." He wants to know what the sign on the Long Beach rail depot says and then laughs uproariously because he thinks we have no station. He makes a lot out of that, sure he has me cornered.

But Bro. Phillips doesn't know everything. We do have a rail depot—at least one. It's on E. Anaheim St., where the P.E. line crosses that street. It has the typical extended window, platform, outdoor waiting area, etc.

Now this station long since has been more or less out of business, but I imagine it's about as active, passenger-wise, as the Banning station.

Sections of Tube Would Be Precast

A construction technique tried less than a dozen times in history probably will be used to build the proposed $15 million tunnel connecting Terminal Island and Long Beach Harbor.

The method, first applied in 1928, is to precast concrete tunnel sections on the surface and drop them into place in a trench dug out of the channel floor.

This approach eliminates the use of "sandhogs"—tunnel workers who dig in pressure chambers or behind facing plates, a hazardous if adventurous operation which has cost many lives and injuries over the years.

ENGINEERING ESTIMATES are that the Terminal Island tube would be 3,450-feet long and would be placed near the present pontoon bridge, probably two connected tubes, each four or six lanes wide.

The concrete culverts would be covered with a five-foot layer of rock and would contain a ventilation system, a necessary appendage to vehicular tunnels because of exhaust gases.

The project cannot be started before mid-1964, when subsidence in the area is expected to be completely halted.

ALTHOUGH A HIGH-LEVEL suspension bridge and a lift-type bridge also have been proposed as replacements for the pontoon bridge, both city and harbor engineering experts favor a tunnel.

A tunnel, they point out, would probably cost less and would not require as much land area as the bridge.

A high-rise bridge would need a 175-foot clearance above the channel and would need approaches from Gate 5 of the Navy Base and from the middle of the Ocean Avenue Bridge.

A TUBE USING THE precast method is being built under the Oakland Inner Harbor between Oakland and Alameda. It is scheduled to be completed this fall.

The underwater portion of this 2-lane tube is 2,400 feet and consists of 12 separate reinforced concrete segments, each 200 feet long with an outside diameter of 17-feet. The tube shell is 30 inches thick and each segment has a submerged displacement of 7,200 tons.

The underwater portion of the Terminal Island tube would be approximately one-fourth as long, perhaps requiring three of the monster concrete segments.

BELLS OF MRS. MAERKI

Unique Collection Is Hobby Feature

Mrs. Charles Maerki, of 399 Gold Star Homes, has bells that jingle, jangle, tinkle — 225 of them — and they'll be on display at the annual Recreation Department Hobby Show in Municipal Auditorium, noon to 10 p.m. Thursday through Sunday.

"My bells tell me a great deal about the strange customs of other lands," she said.

• • • •

"BELLS in foreign countries tell folk the time of day, call them to dinner, school, church, fires, weddings, funerals, Christenings. There are bells on boats, buses, trains; bells on cows, sheep and elephants.

"In Assam, in preparation for a holy day feast, a 'holy oxen' bell is fastened to an ear of the animal. There are beggars' bells and even a widow's bell," she said. "I have one and it has a truly mournful sound."

• • • •

MRS. MAERKI'S bells come in a variety of material — brass, clay and glass and she now is collecting ceramic bells. They also come in various shapes —people, birds and animals.

Her hobby is one her entire family enjoys.

"First thing the youngsters say when they come for a visit is, 'Got any new bells, Grandma?'"

SHE WON'T GET LARYNGITIS

Marlene Practices Silent Art of Pantomime

MARLENE . . . Pantomime Artist

By ROBERT WILCOX

Marlene's lips have launched a thousand phases but she'll never be troubled by laryngitis.

The attractive 18-year-old practices the ancient, silent art of pantomime.

Her lip movements synchronized with the recorded voice of a famous songstress. Marlene's gestures, grimaces and glances have entertained thousands of servicemen at the Long Beach USO where she started appearing at 14.

• • • •

MISS SILVERSTEIN also earns pin money by professional appearances before club groups and at private parties.

Her material is borrowed but there's one thing the 5-foot-2 City College freshman wants to make clear.

"I don't like being somebody else," she says. "That's me up there. I sell the song."

HER ROUTINES vary from Mary Martin to Lena Horne to Julie Wilson. They also range from sedate to saucy.

While she "sings," her mischievious face runs the gamut from surprise to scorn to satisfaction. Her audiences — particularly her favorites, the servicemen—love it.

Although the lyric soprano is taking vocal lessons, strangely Marlene thinks singing is for the birds.

• • • •

"PEOPLE have told me there's no future in pantomine," she says. "But I have no confidence when I'm singing. That's when I'm REALLY someone else."

Marlene, who lives at 3338 Gondar Ave. and who started synchronizing her lips to "Pink Shampoo" when she was 12, has now turned full force to acting.

She's a drama major at college, already has appeared in three productions and hopes for a Broadway career. She plays a leading role in the LBCC drama, "The Glass Menagerie," to be presented May 18 and 19.

• • • •

BUT THE brown-haired coed's first love remains her pantomimes which she has perfected to an extent that she is often asked: "Was that really a record?"

It takes her only about three hours before a mirror to learn a new song. Then she warms up for about 15 minutes before a performance.

Only once has she heard from one of her "ghosts." A cousin mentioned Marlene's mimicry of Julie Wilson to Miss Wilson in New York. Julie, some of whose numbers are not for children, appeared startled. "Isn't she a little young?" the singer asked.

New Ordinance to Reduce Building Permit Red Tape

By GEORGE WEEKS

Time-consuming red tape in getting the city's permission to construct a building will be sharply reduced this week.

A new ordinance streamlining the regulations for issuance of permits will become effective Friday. It was adopted a month ago after years of preparation by the City Building Department.

One result will be the elimination of sub-permits on new construction for roofing, plastering, masonry, tile and refrigeration.

• • • •

LONG BEACH in recent years has been the only city in the United States requiring masonry, tile and roofing subpermits, according to City Superintendent of Building Edward M. O'Connor.

At the same time building permit fees will be revised to conform generally with the Uniform Building Code accepted in the industry. Finance officials predict a 24 per cent increase in over-all revenues.

The minimum building permit fee, now $2, will be advanced to $3.

However, in some instances the total cost to the builder will be less. As an example, the permit and checking fees for a typical $15,000 dwelling will cost $72. Under the old system, with the sub-permit fees added, the cost has been $74.50.

• • • •

ON THE OTHER hand, some of the smaller permits for improvements such as additions will cost more. The new charge for a typical $2,000 addition will be $13.50, against $12 at present. Processing of the smaller permits has been the principal cause of the department's annual operating deficit.

Despite the elimination of sub-permits, there will be no slackening of the city's current inspection procedures, O'Connor said. The main saving to the department will come from simplification of paper work.

Under the new regulations, permits will no longer be required for 14 items. The list of exemptions includes most structures placed on public streets, alleys and sidewalks; buildings owned by governmental agencies; work done by city employes on city-owned or leased buildings; waterfront and marine structures seaward of bulkhead lines within the Alamitos Bay Marina area.

• • • •

OTHER EXEMPTIONS include small masonry planter boxes; fences less than three feet in height; unroofed walks, driveways and slabs; pools not over two feet deep where there is no electrical or plumbing installation, and numerous items of painting, ceramic tile, roofing and plaster patching.

All permits will expire at the end of 90 days if construction work is not started. They also will expire if work is suspended or abandoned for 90 days.

Active permits may be transferred for a $2 fee. The same rule applies to renewal of expired permits.

O'Connor said summaries of the new regulations will be distributed to 500 contractors, engineers and architects.

City Marks National Police Week May 14

Long Beach Police will hold open house in the Public Safety Building, 400 W. Broadway, May 14 through May 18 as they observe National Police Week recently proclaimed by President John F. Kennedy.

Police Chief William J. Mooney said tours of the building would be conducted twice daily Monday through Friday. The tours will begin in the lobby at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Chief Mooney said displays in the lobby would be open around the clock.

The displays will include pictures of the police department in action, a display from the motorcycle division, a large display of police badges from this country and foreign countries and a display of various types of guns used in police work.

U.S. Missile Force, Maturing, Aid Says

This is the year of the big payoff in the intercontinental ballistic missile defense of America, according to a top Air Force general.

"Before the year is ended, we will have put six operational Titan I ballistic missile squadrons in the hands of the Strategic Air Command," Maj. Gen. Thomas P. Gerrity said in a recent speech.

Gerrity, commander of the Air Force Systems Command's Ballistic Systems Division, pointed out that Atlas missiles are already operational in six completed squadrons, to be followed this year by six more.

• • • •

ALSO THIS year, the first solid propellant Minuteman ICBMs are scheduled to go into their underground sentry boxes now being built in Montana, he said.

"We are actually very lose to attaining our programmeed force of 129 operational Atlas launchers in 13 squadrons, 114 Titan launchers in 12 squadrons and 800 Minutemen missiles in 16 squadrons," Gerrity said.

"We have attained a deployed and combat-ready force which represents a whole new dimension of defense," the Air Force spokesman said.

"These are weapons equipped to deter or to strike back today, not tomorrow," he said. "They constitute an in-being military reality which cannot be denied or discounted. Ballistic missiles spell deterrence with a capital "D"—here and now."

• • • •

SPEED with which the nation has become armed with these weapons represents a tremendous feat, Gerrity said.

For example, he cited the construction trades, accustomed to doing work on a massive scale, for blending that capability with a never-before-required talent for precision, such as that required in meeting tolerances of thousandths of an inch in making missile silos 16 stories high.

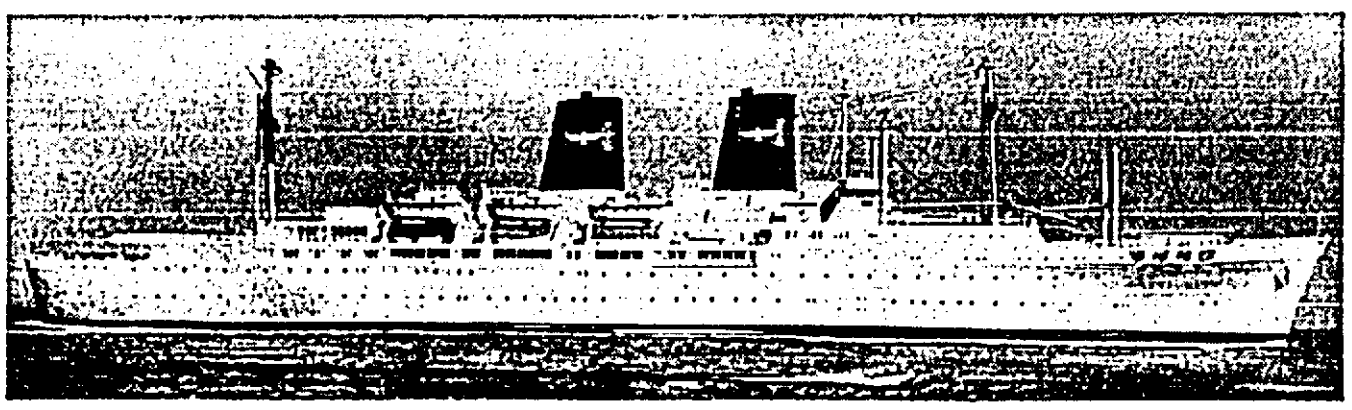

• • • •

ALL ORIGINAL specifications established in 1954 for the Atlas ICBM were surpassed by the missile when it became operational in 1959, the general said.

These requirements called for the Atlas to have 10 times the gross weight of the German V-2 and 33 times its range. Accuracy had to be increased 20 times and warhead yield by one million times.

$10 Million Remodeling Job on Liner President Roosevelt

SS PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IS NEW QUEEN OF AMERICAN PRESIDENT LINES' FLEET

By LOU JOBST
Marine Editor

A familiar maritime figure returns to Los Angeles Friday with a new face, a $10 million uplift.

She is the 21,000-ton ocean liner SS President Roosevelt, new queen of American President Lines transpacific fleet.

Although folks won't recognize her in her new dress she is the former SS Leilani, a gal who fell on hard luck and bad times as a Hawaiian cruise ship.

DURING that unhappy interlude she had been the troopship, LaGuardia, and her previous owners, after a hasty and incomplete refurbish job, sailed her from the East Coast to Los Angeles in a combination maiden voyage and shakedown cruise.

Before she reached Panama passengers were leaving her in droves, complaining the crew was surly, accomodations were poor and that some had suffered food poisoning.

As the Leilani she re-

--And Then There Were 7

WITH THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS of Cubans pouring out of their native land into the United States to escape the tyranny and starvation of the Castro regime, the Communists naturally must do what they can to recoup their propaganda losses. Recently, therefore, they printed a story in the Cuban Communist organ, Bohemia, telling about eight Americans who poured out of this country into Cuba.

In a brief introduction to thumb-nail sketches of the Americans in question, the article said:

". . . They have lived 'inside the monster,' which is not their country but the monstrous socio-economical system built in it by the spirit of greed in the dominent class, and they don't want to continue to live in it. Their merit is exceptional, and they have decided to break nation ties in order to disprove the imperialist propaganda. They have turned their backs to the printed falsification of Yankee imperialism, to the reactionary inquest of the CIA and the FBI. . . ."

CURIOUS TO KNOW more about these "exceptional" Americans, we dropped a letter to Mr. J. Edgar Hoover requesting any information he might have. He was most obliging.

One of the persons featured in the Bohemia article is a Gloria Ann Gerhardt. She is quoted as saying: "I have come to Cuba because I consider that the government of Fidel Castro is an example of honesty and a defender of the people."

According to the FBI, Gloria Ann Gerhardt resided at Apartment 5H, 1700 York Ave., New York, N. Y., from approximately April, 1960, until April, 1961. It was determined that due to the undesirable conduct, on the part of Gloria Ann Gerhardt, in that she was frequently visited by numerous male visitors and held loud, boisterous parties, the management of the building requested her to vacate the premises. Upon leaving this residence, she then moved to another building in New York City where she earned the reputation of a person with very loose morals who entertained men of all races indiscreetly at all hours of the day and night. Prior to leaving this residence, she was frequently observed wearing "Hands Off Cuba" and "Fair Play for Cuba" buttons on her coat. It remains a mystery where she found time for political activity in addition to her other pursuits.

THEN THERE IS Robert F. Williams, formerly of Monroe, N. C., who told the editors of Bohemia that he went to Cuba to escape "intense persecution from American authorities who insisted on blocking his brave struggle for the rights of the Negro population of the United States."

According to the FBI, the "Charlotte Observor" carried a news item on June 9, 1959, reporting that this defender of Negro rights was under suspension by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's board of directors. Williams, who had been president of the Union County North Carolina branch of the organization, earned his suspension because of an attitude of violence and belligerence.

The following statement was released on Sept. 8, 1961:

"Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy today announced the nationwide distribution by the FBI of a quarter million wanted notices on Robert Franklin Williams, aged 36, a highly dangerous alleged kidnaper.

"FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover stated that Williams, who has been diagnosed as a schizophrenic, has loudly advocated and threatened violence and has allegedly possessed a large quanity of firearms, is charged with kidnaping a Marshville, North Carolina, man and wife on August 27, 1961. . . .

"Anyone having information concerning Williams' whereabouts should immediately contact the nearest FBI office."

BUT PERHAPS the most interesting case is that of Robert Bruce Taber, formerly of New York and Ohio, whom Bohemia describes as a journalist and a popular defender and participant of the Cuban revolution.

The FBI adds some other information: Taber was received at the Ohio State Reformatory, Mansfield, Ohio, on Sept. 27, 1939. He was sent there from Hancock County, Ohio, on charges of robbery, kidnaping and operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent. On Nov. 22, 1949, Taber was paroled.

Taber came prominently into the news in 1961 when Dr. Charles A. Santos-Buch identified him at a hearing of the U. S. Senate Internal Security Subcommittee as a co-organizer of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee. Santos-Buch also testified that he and Taber obtained $3,500 from the Cuban government to pay for the committee's advertisements.

Here is the climax of the story. Taber, who fled 15 months ago to Cuba to take "political asylum" after the subcommittee had sought to subpoena him, this month slipped quietly back to the United States. Bohemia, please note: The number is now seven.

U.S. Grain May Be Reaching Red China by Way of Paris

WASHINGTON—Whether the United States has been sending U. S. wheat to Red China, indirectly, through a French firm, is now being investigated in the Agriculture Department.

Also under investigation is whether surplus government grain may have gone indirectly to Red China under Public Law 480.

The company being scrutinized is Louis Dreyfus of New York, which is owned in turn by Louis Dreyfus Co. of France. The Dreyfus Company in Paris is the largest shipper of wheat to Red China, while the Dreyfus Company of New York is the third largest shipper of U. S. surplus grain under Public Law 480.

PEARSON

What both Congress and Secretary of Agriculture Freeman want to know is whether U. S. surplus grain (1) has gone through devious channels to Red China; or (2) has relieved the grain shortage in such a way as to permit other countries to sell to Red China.

Freeman is interested because the shipments to Dreyfus of New York were made not by him but by his predecessor, Ezra Taft Benson, who between 1954 and 1961, OK'd shipments of $391,000,000 worth of surplus grain to Dreyfus of New York.

Shipments under PL 480 are supposed to be handled on a charity, nonprofit basis. Church organizations, CARE, and government groups handle the surplus. However, the books of Dreyfus of New York, being a private organization, are not open to inspection. This column queried eight Agriculture Department officials to ask the amount of Dreyfus profits, but got no answer.

Meanwhile, Dreyfus of Paris has been combing the grain bins of the world outside the United States, to relieve the acute grain shortage in Red China. Canada, Australia, France have all exhusted their supplies. The only source left is the United States.

Congressman L. H. Fountain of North Carolina, digging into the possibility of indirect U. S. grain shipments to Red China, called in Raymond Ioanes, of the Foreign Agriculture Service, and Rulon Gibb, a top official of agriculture's Commodity Credit Corp.

"The United States government does not encourage other countries to trade with China," Ioanes told the congressman. "We discourage them to the extent we can. But I think we recognize that they (Dreyfus) make their own foreign policy."

"But since the owners of Louis Dreyfus in Paris are probably not U. S. citizens," reminded James Naughton, committee counsel, "I guess there is no reason we could expect them to shape their policies out of loyalty to the United States."

• • • •

IOANES — "The Paris company?"

Naughton — "Yes, which controls the United States company."

Ioanes—"I think I have given you the best answer I can. We would take action if the American firm was involved in any way."

Naughton — "It is controlled by the same people who control the Paris firm. They own it. . . . What procedures do you have to insure that only U. S. firms are permitted to participate in export transactions under Title I of Public Law 480? What is your definition of a U. S. firm?"

Gibb—"It is taken from regulations."

The investigators still haven't found the answer on whether Red China is getting U. S. grain indirectly.

Reaction in Washington to Linus Pauling: What Crust!

WASHINGTON—It took Dr. Linus Pauling of Caltech to give peace picketing here a shot in the arm, but more than likely the cure will not be permanent.

Picketing the White House has, in other words, fallen on evil days. There is no snap to it. It becomes less of a curiosity. It is plain dull. People simply aren't paying any attention.

BILL SUMNER

Probably it is because there are so many tourists in town waiting in line for things, but 10 or 50 or even 100 or so extra bodies strolling the sidewalks don't seem to create the impression they did during the past winter.

There were the real pickets. Neither rain nor snow nor sleet kept them from their appointed rounds. And, in fact, they seemed less solemn. Cheeks were rosy. Breath came in steam and steps were lighter.

But last week when Dr. Pauling hit the bricks the weather was steamy and the pickets were sodden. Wretched, I would say, if dedicated. And when he picked up a sign and began marching with a group of mothers organized to protest nuclear testing the pace picked up. There was, at least, publicity.

His appearance in the picket line was considered a bit unusual here. There have been pickets who have invaded either the White House or Bobby Kennedy's office to sit and demand recognition for one reason or another. But Dr. Pauling was invited for dinner with the President, along with other Nobel winners and his conduct, depending on your turn of mind, was considered either quaint or reprehensible. But unusual in either case. And the Daily News led off an editorial on the subject with this sentence:

"What crust!"

That, alas, was the preponderant reaction here, although the society reporters of the Post and the Star made quite a social lion of the man.

One account had him the first man on the dance floor, guiding Mrs. Pauling through a hot Latin number. The other had him leading it off, but with another partner and dancing to a waltz.

But back to the point.

Some weeks back Pauling sent a telegram to the President urging him not to resume testing. Mr. Kennedy would go down in history as our most immoral President if he did. It was a short message, but the point was clear about Dr. Pauling's feelings about the President if the order was given.

The order to test was, of course, forthcoming. We are blasting away. To protest this Dr. Pauling picketed. Then, somehow, he managed to enjoy the President's hospitality.

• • • •

HUGELY, AND with exuberance, if, again, we can believe the society reporters. They were unanimous on this point. But what are we of the masses to decide about Dr. Pauling's various stands?

First, we heard, down almost to the last decimal, how many children are to die aborted, how many are to be malformed, how many are to be otherwise retarded because of these tests. And Dr. Pauling says we don't need them in any case because we are far ahead of the Russians. How does he know?

One must, on one hand, question this scientist's scientific method. One then must ask how he can possibly accept the shake of, to him, a bloody hand.

BOB HOUSER

Mrs. Becker Heads DRIVE, Teamsters' Political Group

JAMES R. HOFFA, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said in Los Angeles Wednesday that the nation's press will never give him a clean bill of health so long as he persists in his militant fight for the rights of his workers.

HOUSER

In an interview, I asked Hoffa if in view of his repeated references to a hostile press, hostile editorials and hostile cartoons, he felt that the "truth' as he saw it would come to light and he would be vindicated.

"If I quit this fight I would be vindicated overnight," he said. "In fact, some newspapers have already taken a different position. When steel was forced to roll back its $6 price hike, some of them remembered my repeated warnings about police state methods and began saying in their editorials that Hoffa was right."

Occasion for Hoffa's talk was the launching of the Southern California Teamsters Joint Council 42 DRIVE Committee for political action. DRIVE stands for Democratic Republican, Independent Voters Education.

A Long Beach woman, Mrs. Henry J. (Adrienne) Becker, 528 W. 10th St., has been namd president of DRIVE's auxiliary for the Joint Council, made up of some 120,000 members, third largest in the nation.

HOFFA SAID unfriendly congressmen have resulted in the labor movement—despite greater numbers—losing election after election. Labor people have become afraid of investigations, afraid of the TV camera, "laborers are losing their confidence in their leaders and politicians are having a field day. The National Association of Manufacturers held a recent private, confidential meeting to discuss how to sell to the American people an anti-monopoly law on unions."

DRIVE and DRIVE alone is the answer, Hoffa said. An indication of those congressmen thought to be unfriendly to labor in California was given in a mimeographed sheet passed to some 1,000 dinner guests in the Ambassador Hotel. Graded on seven roll call votes in the first session of the 87th Congress, all 14 Republican congressmen voted "wrong" on most of them. Ten voted "wrong" on all of them.

MRS. BECKER'S job requires that she coordinate Teamster wives in a program to register voters—Democrats, Republicans and Independents—and get them to vote. This program is well along and council headquarters has file cards on many thousands of its members, showing party affiliation and whether they are registered to vote.

Screening committees will review candidates and make their findings available to the membership. DRIVE notes that its sole basis for judging candidates is: "Which will best serve the interests of his community and his nation and have the welfare of the working man and woman always in mind."

DRIVE HQ in Washington is prepared to supply screening committees with detailed information on voting records of legislators and analyses of candidates who have no records.

The L. A. meeting was the 15th in a nationwide series of dinners honoring Jo Hoffa, Jimmy's wife. Mrs. Hoffa presented the DRIVE council charter to Mrs. Becker. Mrs. Becker made a presentation of a unique, battery-driven Aztec clock to Mrs. Hoffa.

Guest speaker was State Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee since 1947.

Mayor Sam Yorty's special assistant, Joe Quinn, welcomed the Teamsters, noting "a lot of similarities between Hoffa and Yorty—who makes more headlines? who is more controversial? yet, who does a better job?"

Value Freedom? 'Take Action Now'

EDITOR:

A movement is currently forming in the United States to abolish the House Committee on Un-American Activities (H.U.A.C.)

The attack is being spearheaded by "front organizations" with the Communist party behind the scenes pulling the strings. Active in the movement is an oldtimer, Alger Hiss, recently released from prison. His participation is understandable because it was H.U.A.C. that exposed him.

• • • •

SINCE THE House committee stands as a formidable obstacle to the advance of communism in America, the assault upon it will be vigorous. The first move will be to get the committee's appropriation cut. Thus — limited and weakened—it will be a set up for complete liquidation later on. A corollary to this will be an attempt to dismantle the FBI. Impossible, you say? Well, it happened in Germany. When the investigating committees of the Reichstag were dismantled, Hitler immediately rose to power.

The Communists are applying this method now for they know that with the watch dogs of the people gone, infiltration and subversion can proceed unimpeded.

• • • •

THE COMMUNIST party, U.S.A. has requested its members — and countless friends and dupes—to flood Congress with letters demanding the abolition of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

If you value your freedom, take action now. Let us swamp Congress with letters — not only insisting that the committee be sustained, but that its powers be increased.

If this bastion of our liberty falls—we've all had it.

Let Those Who Have Ears Hear!

EDITOR:

There has been much discussion lately in the political news and letters to the Editor. Please let me add my little bit.

Several persons have pointed out in these letters that there has been considerable infiltration by the Communists and other left wingers to such an extent as to enable them to extract many pro-Communist, peace-at-any-price, better-red-than-dead, etc., resolutions from the Democratic clubs in California, in general, and in Northern California in particular. To these voices I wish to add mine, with a few quotes from an HCUA hearing in May, 1960, on the Northern California District of the Communist Party, from the testimony of Karl Prussion, former Communist for 26 years.

"The Communist Party at that time fell upon a great political opportunity, and they began to infiltrate the California Democratic Clubs in that area . . . There is indication that there has been similar infiltration throughout the State of California."

"I recall back in 1956, at the Fresno Convention of the California Democratic Council, there were approximately five Communists from the area who went to the Fresno Convention."

This is testimony that cannot be lightly brushed aside. Those who have ears, let them hear!

Let's Be Grateful for Doctors

EDITOR:

In response to a recently published letter from Robert Griffiths, M.D., I would like to add a further consideration. Personally I am a little tired of reading nothing except criticism of the American Medical Association, criticism often based upon misunderstanding. We should all bear in mind the thought that "as a chain is only as strong as its weakest link" so any organization is as strong as its weakest member. Of course in a group you have many opinions and it is only natural that some one will be displeased by any eventual decision. We should be very grateful for the services our doctors perform.

MIRROR OF BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

Johnny Gillette Tire Co.'s Retreads Called Safest and Most Economical

Engaged in some form of the automobile business since a mere youth, Johnny Gillette learned at an early age that good tires are as important as a good motor in the car—perhaps even more important as a safety factor.

For that reason Johnny today heads one of the largest tire firms in the Southland and has the most modern retreading plant in the area.

The Johnny Gillette Tire Co., 3910 Cherry Ave., only recently modernized the recapping plant, at a cost of $60,000 for new moulds, but now offers a product, Hi-Speed Retreads which are fully waranted, the finest industry guarantee.

Proven greater safety and economy at high speeds at no extra cost are assured patrons by Gillette who is a stickler for the code of ethical practices adopted by leading tire dealers and retreaders.

Safe and Economical

"Our new HI-Speed is unquestionably the safest and most economical retread ever produced, says Johnny. "The simple secret is in the world's newest, most advanced equipment and best of all, it costs the patrons no more.

"The Hi-Speed retreads are dual contoured and grip the road uniformly all across the width of the tread face, promoting longer, more uniform wear and greater traction. Under the old conventional retreads a flexing action takes place because of the heavy shoulders. The tires wear too fast and traction at high speeds is reduced."

All Johnny Gillette Hi-Speed retreads are approved by The Retreading Institute and bear the TRI seal certifying the tire is a sound casing with superior craftsmanship, top materials and quality production having gone into the retreading.

Knows Value of Safe Tires

Great Care Exercised

A visit to the Gillette facilities will enlighten motorists on the care Gillette employes use in servicing, checking and mounting tires.

Retreading is just a portion of the business, but is growing into a big business in its own.

In new tires the company handles U.S. Royals, Gillettes and Michelin lines. The latter are for trucks and sports cars. There is one ply of steel, instead of cord in those casings.

Gillette, soon after opening his new facilities, became one of the first tire firms to put in brakes and wheel service and later added mufflers and tail pipes. These departments have grown rapidly with the firm.

From Humble Start

When the firm opened nine years ago it started in a small shed which was a mere office, while the buildings were being erected.

"You have heard of Pepper Tree mechanics?" asked Johnny. "Well, we were Eucalyptus Tree tire dealers for the boys took the cars to one of their homes and serviced them.

"That first month, though, we did $18,000 in business."

Last year the firm did over $1,500,000 and already is off for another record year in 1962. There were five employes when the company opened. Today there are 43. There are two retail locations, one in Garden Grove and one in El Segundo, besides the main plant.

Of the original five employes, four are still on the job. Two of them are now part owners, Duane Hanzlicek, the office manager, and Don Rystrom, the shop superintendant.

Miss Fairlene Martin received her diploma on Friday night over seven years ago and reported for work the next morning and is the bookkeeper today.

Johnny Works Floor

Many of the other employes have been with Gillette since soon after the plant opened. Johnny will be found on the floor conferring with customers most of the time. Even when business requires him to be in his office he sits in full view of all patrons and will leave a conference to rush out and greet an old customer returning for tires or service.

While we appreciate, greatly, the continual growth of new business," says Johnny, "there is great satisfaction in seeing customers come back year after year."

Gillette is past president of the Tire Dealers and Retreaders Association of Southern California; member of the National Tire Dealers and Retreaders since he entered the business; a district director of the national association.

Inspection Important

"The biggest problem in tire retreading today is the unscrupulous dealer who will retread any carcass.

"The key to providing retreads that will give the wear and service is in the inspection. The carcass must be good if any good retread is produced."

How safe does Johnny Gillette think his retreads are?

"Well," he replied, "I have retreads on my daughter's car. That should answer the question.

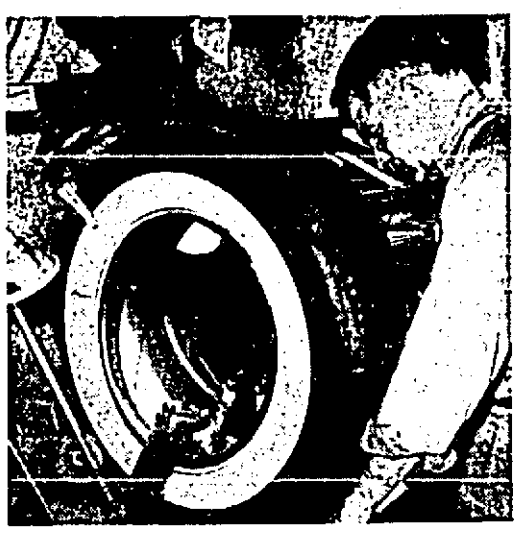

NEW AND old type o recaps are illustrated here. At the left is the contour retread offered by Johnny Gillette showing how the tire grips the paving under high speed. At the right is the old type where only the edges held the paving.

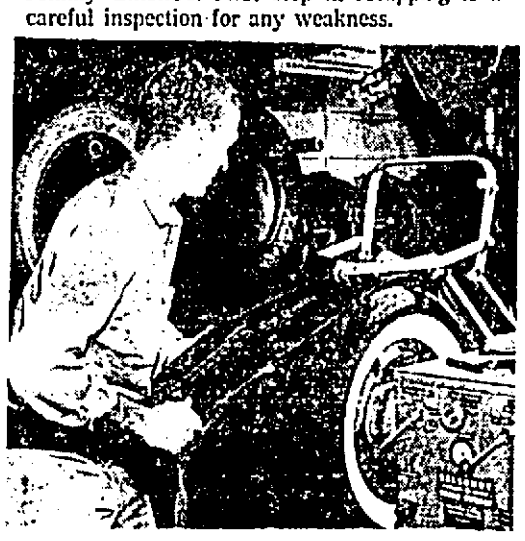

FIRST OFFICE of the Johnny Gillette Tire Co. was this tin shed, used while construction of the main buildings was under way.

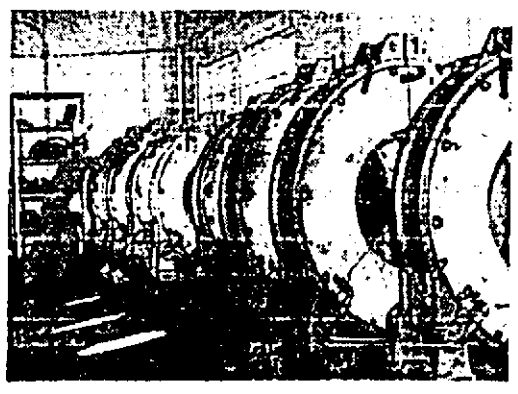

Quality Control in Recaps

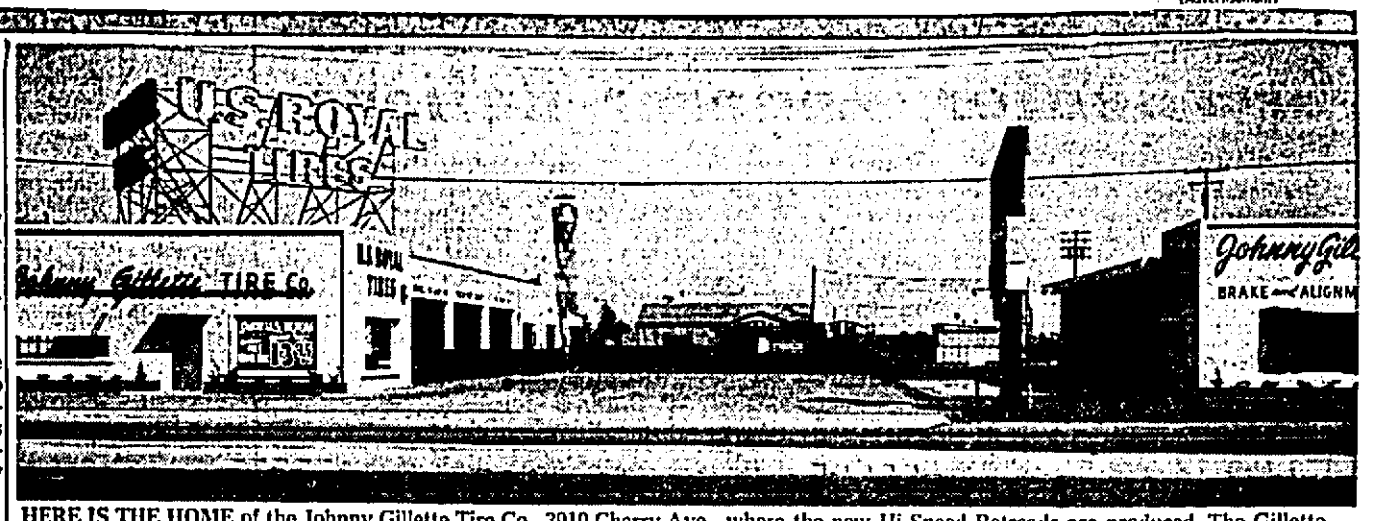

ONLY PERFECT casings are used for recapping at Johnny Gillette's. First step in recapping is a careful inspection for any weakness.

TREAD IS applied hydraulically and centered perfectly on the inflated tire. Each tire is automatically centered after a perfect bond between casing and tread is assured.

CURING CALLS for steam at 60 pounds per square inch developing 302 degrees. Then pressure is applied at 135 pounds per square inch. When thoroughly cured and taken from the mold the tire goes through another detailed inspection to pass perfection.

HERE IS THE HOME of the Johnny Gillette Tire Co., 3910 Cherry Ave., where the new Hi-Speed Retreads are produced. The Gillette Co. is one of the largest tire firms in Southern California offering the finest in both new and recapped tires and other services such as wheel balancing, mufflers and exhaust pipes. Gillette says that while "price is important, quality plus price is unbeatable."

HERESY UTTERED

Actors Most Important People in Theater, Lederer Believes

By GEORGE ERES

The internationally famous actor who started his career in the theater by uttering these immortal lines—"Sir, the horses are saddled." — uttered some heresy at Long Beach State College Saturday.

Francis Lederer, now a Hollywood director, told the SRO luncheon audience at the Council of Living Theater's Drama Day he was ready to be shot for his belief that actors are the most important people in the theater.

• • • •

"WRITERS have more and more to say about a play; they make all sorts of demands. Directors tend to treat actors as though they were puppets they take out of a trunk and put back after a performance.

"Actors are more important than either writers or directors," he said. "I believe that the theater could get along without either writers and directors — but not without actors."

Lederer said he spoke the lines "sir, the horses are ready" for many years.

"After that, for many years, I said, 'sir, the car is ready.'" There is no fast way to "stardom," just constant practice, he said.

• • • •

LEDERER was the principal speaker at COLT's all-day panel and workshop session on theater in Long Beach.

Lederer took a few pot shots at theaters which stress success rather than the fundamental aim of theater—"to inform people about themselves."

"There is too much stress on 'entertainment' in theater," he said, urging that people in the theater never forget the goal should be the elevation of standards by presenting material which reflected the basic motivations of people.

Dr. W. David Sievers, of LBSC, president of COLT, was presented with the COLT award for being the person who contributed most to little theater in Long Beach during the year.

• • • •

KEYNOTE speaker at the morning session was Pat Brown, field director for the Ford Foundation Theater Communications Group, who urged use of professionals in little theaters to help raise standards.

Her viewpoint was contested by Director Larry Johns of Community Playhouse who held that the community little theaters should remain amateur.

Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, president of LBSC, welcomed the audience.

Panelists discussing the theater in Long Beach included Duane George, city recreation department; William Melchior, Long Beach Unified School District; William Boyd, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce; Robert C. Wylder, Independent, Press-Telegram critic; Patterson Greene, Los Angeles critic, and Tillie Weil, representing the playgoer.

COLT member organizations sponsoring the event were Community Playhouse, Magnolia Theater, Civic Light Opera, whose manager Harvey Waggoner discussed problems of staging musical comedy, Children's Theater, Jewish Community Center, City College's Liberal Arts and Business & Technology divisions, State College's Drama department and the Independent, Press-Telegram.

Father of Six Sent to Prison

SANTA ANA — The father of six children was sentenced Friday to state prison on conviction of possession of heroin and marijuana.

Superior Court Judge Kenneth Morrison ordered Manuel Silva Orosco, 39, of 6251 Van Buren St., Atwood, to 1 to 10 years in state prison.

Officers claimed during Orosco's trial they found 42 caps of heroin and a pound of marijuana in his possession when he was arrested Oct. 21, 1961.

The Roosevelt is probably as luxurious as any liner in the U.S.-Orient trade.

NEW TYPE stabilizers and a stabilizing tank system were installed to eliminate any roll, the latest radar navigational equipment was put aboard along with twin-screw propulsion and five 500 kw turbine driven generators.

Her eight-deck high innards were torn out, everything from table cloths to towel racks was replaced. One-hundred and eighty-six staterooms were built and individually decorated as were five lounges, a glass-enclosed sun deck, movie theatre, dining rooms, playroom-nursery, lido and game decks.

ONE OF the most extensive wine cellars, 125 different labels, was put aboard.

The 622-foot ship has accomodations for 450 passengers. She will leave Los Angeles at 4 p.m. Saturday for Honolulu, Japan, Hong Kong, Manila for return via Japan and the Hawaiian Islands.

She will be docked at Berth 154 in Wilmington while in Los Angeles Harbor.

New 'Golden Promise' by Sears gives your tired, let-down face a quick 'lift'!

Amazing protein discovery gives your face a fresh, younger look... a glow that lasts for hours!

Proved safe and effective in controlled clinical studies!

NEW YORK, N. Y. (Special). At last, a safe way has been found to remove dried out surface skin and activate the skin's own moisture glands. It is a remarkable discovery called Golden Promise. In just twenty minutes, it gives tired skin a fresh, younger look—a glow that lasts for hours; brings striking beauty benefits with just a few treatments by helping dry skin tap in on the body's natural moisture supply.

Clinical studies bring dramatic results!

In controlled clinical studies, the Golden Promise formula was proved safe and remarkably effective. The supervising physician reported dramatic results in case after case. Rough, dry skin looked smooth and moist. Dull, sallow color changed to a radiant glow. Even circles under eyes were less evident.

Akin to the protein of your skin!

Golden Promise is not an ordinary "moisturizer." It is a natural vegetable protein—akin to the protein of your skin. When applied, it tightens gently—exerting osmotic pressure to pull moisture into skin cells and speed up local circulation. When rinsed away, dried out surface skin is gently lifted off—uncovering the smoother, firmer, younger looking skin beneath.

Deep-cleans—activates moisture!

Smooth Golden Promise on your face and throat—tonight! Feel it tingle! Feel it tighten! In twenty minutes, rinse! See how smooth and radiant your skin can look! Clear, too. Because Golden Promise deep-cleans as it activates skin moisture. Even loosens stubborn blackheads.

Use Golden Promise before important dates to look your radiant best! Use it once a week and see an amazing change take place! Ask our Beauty Consultant for Golden Promise Facial Masque today! Or order it by coupon now! You must be thrilled—or money back.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Some Coldness Remains Between JFK, Business

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy tried this week to thaw the freeze between his administration and business but the coldness remains.

He addressed the U. S. Chamber of Commerce in his first appearance before a business group since he forced the steel industry to reverse itself on a price increase.

And, during the week, a recommendation was made that would give the President greater powers to head off strikes. He also received a recommendation of a 10.2 cents an hour wage raise for 450,000 railroad workers.

• • • •

KENNEDY TOLD the U. S. Chamber that the government doesn't want to determine individual prices for individual products. But he spoke of the need for business to follow "responsible" pricing policies. He didn't go into details on how this should be done.

"To restore profits to an adequate level, to maintain an adequate level of employment, we must restore the economy to full activity," Kennedy said. "Our primary challenge is not how to divide the pie but how to enlarge it.

The reaction from the business man audience was far from spectacular.

Richard Wagner, retiring president of the chamber, followed with an address in which he said that business leadership must make certain that "both business and labor will remain free to make their decisions without government intervention."

• • • •

HE SAID THE steel price battle led many people "to believe that inflationary pressures in this country are created by business and its so-called greedy desire for profit."

"Nothing could be further from the truth," he declared, contending that profits are inadequate because "too much is siphoned off" for government spending and excessive wages.

President Kennedy's committee on labor-management policy recommended that the government be given more power to deal with industrial conflicts which threaten the nation's health or safety.

Under the proposal, the President, without going to court for an injunction, could declare a national emergency and order resumption of work for 80 days.

The proposal for a wage increase for nonoperating railroad employes was submitted to the President by an emergency board.

• • • •

THE 11 UNIONS involved had asked for a 35 cents an hour boost. Their members now average about $2.48 an hour. The railroads had demanded a 20 per cent cut for some categories and no increases for the others.

The board said its recommendation for pay hikes is within range of guidelines suggested by the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

The recommendation is not binding on either side.

The automobile industry produced evidence this week that it was riding higher than any other industry.

Combined first quarter profit of the five automakers totaled $509.25 million, compared with $238 million a year earlier. Only Studebaker was in the red with a $2.6 million loss.

• • • •

FORD, THE LAST company to report, earned $127.7 million, up 67 per cent from the 1961 first quarter, on a record $1,999,700,000 in sales.

Automobile production eased off to an estimated 147,000 passenger cars this week after hitting the year's top level of 153,614 last week.

Carmakers scheduled production of about 660,000 vehicles this month, the highest for the month since 1955, when 724,000 were built, and far above the 542,300 turned out in May 1961.

The value line investment survey, in its semi-annual appraisal of the industry, predicted 6.5 million domestic cars will be sold this year, second only to 1955.

Steel production faltered again, falling last week below 2 million tons for the first time in eight months. This meant that that industry's operating rate was down to 65 per cent from 71 per cent the week before and 80.3 per cent at the end of March.

• • • •

IT WAS ESTIMATED that before orders pick up, big users would have to work off 4 to 5 million tons stockpiled as a hedge against a strike.

Consumers' inclination to buy more goods was evident in the March rise of outstanding instalment credit by $269 million over the $236 million increase in February. This was the biggest jump since last November.

Total business sales attained a record high in March, the Commerce Department reported. Combined sales of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers totaled $65.3 billion, a gain of 1 per cent over February.

NEW ORDERS received by manufacturers in March declined to $32.8 billion from $33.1 billion in February, a drop of 1 per cent.

Briefly around the business scene: the American scheduled airline industry lost $36.8 million in 1961 although its revenues exceeded $3 billion for the first time . . . Goodyear Tire Rubber Co. plans to spend $100 million this year for new plant, expansion and modernization . . . seventy-two companies increased dividends in March, compared with 49 a year earlier . . . the New York Stock Exchange will mark its 170th birthday May 17 . . . heavy construction contracts in the first four months of this year totaled $7.1 billion, a gain of 6 per cent over the like period of 1961.

Electricians Return Some to 8-Hour Day

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Electrical Union which last January won a basic 5-hour workday has agreed to let some of its members work eight hours a day at straight pay, the Wall Street Journal has reported.

The special group of workers will also receive a far lower hourly rate than other members of Local 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL-CIO), the Journal said.

They will work on modernization of wiring, chiefly on rent-controlled buildings where owners hesitate to spend much money on such work because of the limited rent increases they can expect.

Urges Bolivia Seek Promised Rudd Aid

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Juan Lechin, Bolivia's leftist vice president has urged the government to send a mission to Moscow to ascertain if Russia can fulfill aid promises it has made to Bolivia.

Lechin, a Troskyite sympathizer, said this impoverished mountain nation is grateful for U. S. aid which has helped keep the country going but said Bolivia should accept credits from any nation willing to offer them.

CANDIDATE OFF DATE

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—If Iowa educators do what Republican Gov. Norman Erbe urges them to do, he's going to miss a lot of votes in the June primary election.

A political advertisement placed by the Erbe for Governor Committee in the May issue of Midland School's, official publication of the Iowa State Education Association, urges readers to "vote June 5."

The primary election is on Monday, June 4.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Hindenburg Disaster Marked the End of an Era

By SID MOODY

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP)—In the darkening twilight, the dirigible loomed above the pine barrens like a vast cloud.

It ghosted toward the strange tower majestically, serenely. The witnesses of its doom were close at hand. They would write its epitaph.

Louis Lochner, who flew on the Hindenburg on its maiden Atlantic crossing, said travel on a dirigible was like being held aloft by the angels. But on May 6, 1937, 25 years ago, the angels lost their grip and the Hindenburg crashed in flames, a pyre for 36 persons and a romantic era of flight.

The disaster stunned a world not yet accustomed to the sight of a torn airliner crumpled in the streets of a great city, an oily seat cushion bobbing on an ocean swell.

• • • •

AMONG the 36 persons who died on the Hindenburg were 13 paying passengers, the first to be killed on a commercial dirigible. They were also the last, a milestone and a tombstone.

The dirigibles had made astonishing trips of endurance—crossing the North Pole, flying around the world on only four stops, soaring aloft with five planes tucked inside.

Proponents felt—those yet alive still feel—the accidents were an inevitable consequence in an infant technology. Safety was improving all the time.

The horror of the Hindenburg pictures seared the public memory with an indelible vision of dirigibles.

• • • •

THIRTY-SIX passengers had boarded the Hindenburg at Frankfurt on May 3, 1937. It was the first of 18 trips planned that year for the Hindenburg by her owners, the Zeppelin Transport Co.

For their $400 fare, the travelers were getting not only a luxurious two or three days aloft but a unique experience. Meals were cooked on board by a continental chef from a larder of lobsters, fowl and roasts. The wine list covered a page. There was a lounge and a bar and 70 staterooms.

On B deck there was a shower replenished by water distilled from the air. Charles E. Rosendahl, commander of the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N.J., where the Hindenburg landed, remembered the spray was "more like a seltzer bottle than the shower at the 'Y,'" but it was a sumptuous advance in air travel.

• • • •

ALTHOUGH hydrogen enabled the Hindenburg to lift 16½ more tons, the Germans would have preferred to use helium gas. Helium was a rare gas in that it didn't burn, rarer still in that it was found in commercially feasible amounts in but one country in the world, the United States.

The Hindenburg took off routinely with Capt. Max Pruss, a veteran of airships, in command. Capt. Ernst Lehmann, who had commanded the Hindenburg the year before, was along as an adviser. He hadn't wanted to come. His son had died a few days before. But he thought he might have a chance to go to Washington and talk to authorities about helium.

There has never been anything to match travel on an airship. The four diesel engines were so far aft the passengers could scarcely hear them. There was hardly any motion as the huge ship, a sixth of a mile long, floated over the ocean. In fair weather, the big windows were left open.

THE HINDENBURG was due at Lakehurst the morning of the 6th, but because headwinds made her arrival uncertain, Rosendahl radioed Pruss to come in that evening rather than keep customs officials and the landing crew waiting all day.

There was a faint drizzle when the Hindenburg finally approached the field about 7 p.m. Waiting were 92 sailors and civilians of the 138-member ground crew.

Near the tower, the ship's crewmen threw down the mooring lines. Lt. Raymond Tyler, chief mooring officer, remembered dust rising from the coils as they hit the wet earth.

No one is sure who saw it first.

Perhaps it was two crewmen inside the ship who heard a whump and looked up to see a bright flash in No. 4 gas cell near the tail. A woman thought the flash she saw was the setting sun finally breaking through clouds.

"WHAT IS IT?" said Pruss in the control gondola. He thought a landing line had snapped.

As soon as he saw the flames Rosendahl knew. "It spelled the doom of the ship."

The unforgettable photographs tell the story better than words.

Thirteen passengers died. So did 22 of the 61-man crew and one of the ground crewmen.

Pruss escaped, then ran back to help his crewmates and was badly burned. Lehmann, seared over much of his body, staggered away mumbling "I don't understand, I don't understand."

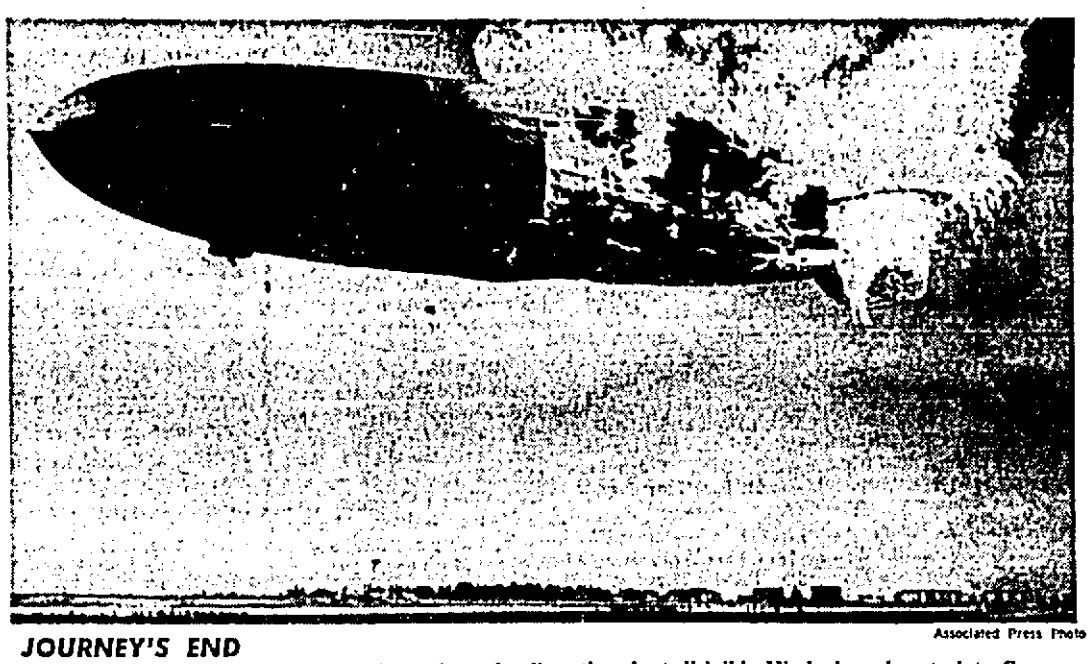

When he first heard the news Hugo Eckener, the great German dirigible pioneer, said, "It must be sabotage." So did Lehmann the day he died. Rosendahl, now a retired vice admiral, still thinks so. A. A. Hoehling has just written a book called "Who Destroyed the Hindenburg?" that uses circumstantial evidence to point to a crewman who may have planted a fire device under Communist prodding.

• • • •

THE U.S. Commerce Department, after lengthy hearings, said most probably it was static electricity built up in the airship from the thunderstorms, its landing ropes, dry at first (remember the dust when they hit) became moist in the drizzle and capable of conducting the latent charge in the airship.

In any case it happened and, as Eckener told Lochner when Lochner was the AP correspondent in Berlin, "It is over."

Of the few left who think it needn't be, Rosendahl stands out. He lives in Toms River, N.J., not far from the base, amongst souvenirs of an age in which he played a leading role. A blob of molten metal from the Hindenburg is in a bookcase.

JOURNEY'S END

With her mooring lines already down for a landing, the giant dirigible Hindenberg bursts into flames at Lakehurst, N.J., May 6, 1937. Three days earlier it had left Germany on its first luxury trip of the season. The liner's Nazi symbol is visible through the flames.

Skips Union Meets for Church; Fined

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mrs. Mary Ellen Benson, who skipped Sunday morning union meetings to attend church services, has agreed to pay a $5 fine assessed by the union.

Mrs. Benson agreed to pay the fine and court costs of $5.40 after a pre-trial conference. The suit was brought by Local 356 of the United Papermakers and Paperworkers Union, which said its bylaws provided that any member missing three out of five meetings must be fined.

"Miracle Glasses" Erase Years from Appearance

Most people postpone the adoption of two-range glasses (bifocals) as long as possible because they know that the conspicuous lens-segment divisions make them look older than their years. Bifocals have become the trademark of the over-forty, and many consider them to be a disadvantage in business and social life. According to Dr. J. M. Soss, optometrist in Long Beach for 32 years, excellent two-range vision may be enjoyed with glasses that are free from unsightly dividing lines. These modern bifocals — Blended Lenses — assure better vision, too, because the eyes do not jump or see double when shifted from one lens power to another. Dr. Soss suggests that bifocal wearers drop in at his ground floor offices at 37 Pine Avenue and see how amazingly their appearance will be improved by Blended Lenses. There is no obligation, of course. Not expensive; easy terms. Open Friday evenings and all day Saturdays. Phones HE 5-6219; HE 6-6739. Offices in Torrance and Wilmington.

Period of Slight Thaw Seen in Cold War

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Every so often in the cold war—whether by accident or design — there is a period of slight thaw. Such was last week.

In Viet Nam, the Communists released two American soldiers—Sgts. Francis Quinn of Niagara Falls, N.Y. and George E. Groom, of St. Joseph, Mo.—whom they had captured more than three weeks ago.

Halfway across the world, Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov visited New York and Washington, talked with President Kennedy, and expressed hope that one day Russians and Americans would travel in the same space ship.

The White House announced that Press Secretary Pierre Salinger would visit Moscow this month to discuss information programs. Such a trip had been planned before, but was called off because Soviet-American tensions were too great.

• • • •

TAKEN SINGLY, none of these small incidents meant much. They took on significance only when thrown up against the larger picture of East-West relations and the Soviet-American search for some kind of a tension-easing agreement in Berlin.

President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan agreed in Washington talks last weekend that this search should go on. In a final communique, the two men also expressed willingness to meet with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev "whenever there is an indication that such meetings would serve the interests of peace and understanding."

They agreed not to seek such a summit conference for the time being because there is little prospect it would produce useful results since despite such incidents as the freeing of the sergeants in Viet Nam and Titov's trip, the cold war still is going on.

• • • •

FOREIGN ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met in Athens, Greece, to discuss ways to strengthen the alliance. They were told by Secretary of State Dean Rusk that "it is true that there may be the appearance of some slight improvement in the international scene—and even this much is welcome. But it is a long way from the appearance to the reality, and the reality is not even in sight."

Even as Quinn and Groom were set loose in Viet Nam, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced he would make a personal inspection trip to the embattled country to see what U.S. aid is doing to help stop the Communist guerrilla offensive.

And as Titov roamed through New York and Washington—and got lost in the Baltimore suburbs enroute to a steel plant—he spoke familiar Soviet propaganda lines. Instead of space he concentrated on the need to disarm.

The United States, meanwhile, pursued its nuclear testing in the Pacific by firing off its biggest shot of the current series. U. S. officials also said they had evidence the Soviets were about to resume atmospheric blasts.

Personalities were in the news. At Edwards Air Force Base in California, test pilot Joe Walker made a record flight in the X15, climbing 48 miles into space. In Washington, Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr Jr. resigned to become president of the University of Indiana. In Hollywood, Jayne Mansfield said she would file for divorce from her husband, Mickey Hargitay, then changed her mind and announced a reconciliation.

• • • •

DURING THE Senate civil rights debate, Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said Chief Justice Earl Warren "decides for the Communists" whenever there is a clear-cut decision between them and the Supreme Court. Other senators defended Warren, calling Eastland's remarks "vicious." In Little Rock, Ark., Gov. Orval E. Faubus said he would seek a fifth two-year term, rescinding an earlier statement that he would not run for re-election.

President Kennedy was active last week, Tuesday, he appeared before the Chamber of Commerce annual meeting here to defend his administration against charges it is "anti-business." He said he honed the recent steel price crisis marked a turning point in the relations of government and business, and said he did not want to take on the "added burden" of having to set prices.

Wednesday he met with leaders of the American Medical Association to discuss his controversial program of medical care to the aged under Social Security, which the AMA opposes. The meeting failed to resolve differences, and Kennedy said he intended to continue to try to get the bill passed.

Friday the President flew to New Orleans for a major speech in support of his legislative program to reduce trade barriers so the United States can compete effectively with the European Common Market. This country, he said, must "trade or fade."

Vicious Circles Troubling India

NEW DELHI (AP) — A new lineup in India's cabinet is wrestling with the same old economic problems of shortages in power, transport and foreign exchange.

The shortages are hindering Indian industrialization. They make more distant the day when the 417 million persons of India can rise much above the present average annual income of $70 each.

The economy is caught in two vicious circles that connect on the key element of power.

The shortage of power, primarily electricity, hampers production of coal. The output of high grade coal is particularly affected. The shortage of good coal restricts the railways that carry almost all of India's heavy freight. Inability of the railways to deliver enough coal restricts production of power, most of which is coal-generated electricity.

There are other factors in this first vicious circle. One is the lack of adequate railway capacity. There has been a running feud between the coal producers, who blame the railways for failing to carry away what the mines raise, and the railways that say they are moving all the coal expected of them.

• • • •

THE SECOND vicious circle begins with the power shortage's effect on industries. They cannot get enough electricity. Many industries have to run at half-throttle. This under-utilitization of capacity raises costs per unit.

Higher unit costs price Indian products out of world markets. This cuts foreign exchange earnings. The shortage of foreign exchange hinders importation of the heavy equipment needed to produce more power and generally modernize industry, completing the circle.

• • • •

EXTRA complications in this second vicious circle include the high price levels in India's domestic market. The market is protected by import restrictions designed to save foreign exchange. The government also limits the number of producers of any given product, raising demand.

Domestic producers would rather cater to this high-price demand that compete abroad, where their prices would be out of line. The domestic market does not force rationalization on producers that would make it possible for them to sell in foreign markets.

Where Are the Exits?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Aviation Administrator Najeeb E. Halaby said he has asked the airlines to include the location and operation of emergency exits in their "welcome aboard" announcements.

Dental Care For O.A.S. Pensioners

Complete information about dental care benefits available to pensioners in this county is available at the Dr. Cowen Dental Offices.

There is no obligation for this service, and personal visits to the office can be made at any time, without advance appointment.

Dr. Cowen points out that the current expanded O.A.S. dental care program provides for 2 different procedures, depending on the type of dental work needed.

"We can provide immediate service, on the very first visit, for those who need X-ray dental examination, or repair or adjustment of their old dental plates," Dr. Cowen points out. "The O.A.S. Identification Card must be presented."

"If new dental plates are needed, the O.A.S. rules require that an authorization be obtained from the Department of Social Welfare, and our staff is at the service of the pensioner for assistance in filling out the application and taking care of the details."

General health is often directly related to the condition of the dental plates, Dr. Cowen added. Plates that are loose, or have teeth missing, can be a handicap to the balanced chewing power that permits the wearer to obtain the healthful nutrition value from the food he eats.

Japanese Invasion of Kiska a Strange Adventure

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles recalling people and places, campaigns and catastrophies of World War II. Subsequent articles will appear at intervals of approximately two weeks.)

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

The strange Alaskan adventure of the Japanese ended May 30, 1943, when overwhelming American forces stormed ashore on bleak Kiska Island — only to find that the Japanese had taken the hint and fled.

For what purpose the Japanese had ever occupied the island in the first place, back in June of 1942, nobody — not even the Japanese high command — seemed to know.

Officially, the original purpose was announced as a "diversion" to prevent the Americans from making a full defense of Midway, which was attacked that month. The "diversion" resulted in a strange little war of its own, separated by thousands of miles from the strategic centers of the conflict.

• • • •

WHILE Japanese planes were bombing Dutch Harbor June 3, 1942, a "task force" of about 3,000 Japanese soldiers, marines and labor gang members was quietly set ashore on the islands of Attu, Agattu and Kiska.

From the northwest tip of Alaska a large group of small islands descends in a curving arc toward the shore of Siberia.

A little group at the westward end is called the Near Islands, and includes Attu and Agattu. Next comes a group inappropriately called the Rat Islands, since rats could hardly survive the climate, and this includes Kiska Island.

• • • •

THE AMERICANS had stationed 12 Navy weather observers on these islands and they constituted the "defense."

But the Japanese, soon smarting under a crushing defeat at Midway, found some consolation in holding at least a tiny bit of the American continent. The "invasion" served to bolster morale, perhaps, except for the men who were stationed on the rocks.

In the United States, the seizure of the three islands stirred a ripple of alarm, enough to bring the Navy to the attack. A navy and air force task unit started pasting the three islands with monotonous regularity, and with scarcely any opposition. Having garrisoned these lonely outposts, the Japanese could barely supply them.

• • • •

HOWEVER, face was face, so the Japanese sent some naval forces of their own into action. Promptly they lost six destroyers and 24 small commercial vessels.

The defense of the rock called Agattu was scarcely spirited. When the Americans moved closer by establishing bases in the Andreanoff Islands, halfway between Dutch Harbor and Kiska, the Japanese "retaliated" by abandoning frozen Agattu.

• • • •

ON JAN. 12, 1943, the United States moved this icy episode to its conclusion. The first step, taken that day, was the occupation of lonely Amchitka Island, just 70 miles from Kiska.

The second step was a direct counter-invasion of Attu, launched May 11.

The battle was pitched when it began, and it lasted 19 days. It produced one of the United States' war heroes.

• • • •

HE WAS Pvt. Joe P. Martinez of Taos, New Mexico, of Company K, 32nd Infantry, 7th Infantry Division, a foot soldier with the courage of a lion.

His platoon had tried, and tried again to oust the Japanese from a key position high in the snow-covered rocks between East Arm Holtz Bay and Chichagof Harbor. On May 26 a reinforced battalion attempted the uphill attack. Halfway, it met murderous fire, and the attack stopped.

Here was the critical moment, and here was the man for the job.

• • • •

WHILE others burrowed in the snow and rocks, Joe Martinez grabbed an automatic rifle and jumped to his feet. Others followed. The plain private, often using hand grenades, drove the Japs from position to position, behind him came hundreds of Americans.

When the hill was over-run and captured, the Americans found themselves under attack from rocks that jutted 150 feet above them, across a snow-filled pass. The indefatiguable New Mexican led the attack again, on and up.

Amazed Americans lost count of the enemy posts he destroyed by grenade or Browning automatic rifle. Finally he reached the top of the pass.

• • • •

WITH victory in sight, the plain private found just one more enemy-held trench — and there he also found death, but with the capture of the heights and pass, the enemy was defeated.

For his heroism, Pvt. Martinez, one of the greatest fighting men of World War II, received the Congressional Medal of Honor — posthumously.

• • • •

NOW THE Americans turned their attention to Kiska, by now little more than a pinprick in their national pride. They prepared for it, however, as if it were the invasion of Japan.

Planes and warships attacked Kiska again and again, with furious firepower. Rocks and snow flew so thick that attacking planes could no longer distinguish the shape or outline of the land mass.

On Aug. 15, a combined task force of American and Canadian troops charged ashore. The debris they found there was incredible, but there was no sign of the Japanese. They had slipped away sometime during the bombardments.

• • • •

THE STRANGE "invasion" by the Japanese had, indeed, hurt the American national pride, and perhaps boosted the morale of the Japs at home. As a military maneuver, however, it seemed about the most useless action of World War II.

From these fragmentary "bases" the Japanese were unable to mount even nuisance attacks upon the United States. As observation posts, the Japanese study the weather.

The Aleutians were, indeed, a strange place for a boy from New Mexico to win a hero's medal for dislodging Japanese from snowbanks.

Advisory Panel Urges Long-Term Plan on County Hospital Facilities

By P-T Los Angeles Bureau

A long-term master plan, looking ahead to the year 2000, should be developed for Los Angeles County hospital facilities, an advisory commission will report Tuesday to the Board of Supervisors.

Such a plan "is long past due," according to Mrs. Joseph H. Stout Jr., chairman of the Los Angeles County Hospital Advisory Commission.

As an immediate step, the commission recommends an amendment to the county charter to permit contracts with any accredited hospital in the county to care for indigent patients.

Such contracts would be negotiated, the commission said "when such care is desiorus and advantageous to the county."

Contracts with private hospitals "will solve any patient load problem that would develop in the next several years," the commission said. They also would be valuable in the event of "a great catastrophe," said the report.

• • • •

MRS. STOUT'S report said, however, a master plan must be established to cover both the use of private hospital facilities and construction of new county hospitals.

Costs to the taxpayer for the care of the county's indigent sick are "of such consequence" that they call for a "long, hard look" to the future, the report said.

"We believe no shorter view should be taken than to the end of the present century," Mrs. Stout wrote.

Neglect of such a plan, she said, "has led to practices of expansion that are not in the best interests of the public."

The commission report says that from "an economic standpoint," newly built county hospitals of modern design and proper facilities will bring a standard of care and efficiency which "in the long run, will offset the original basic higher cost per bed as compared to rehabilitating old hospital facilities."

Adenauer, Clay Will Meet in West Berlin

BONN (UPI) — Chancellor Konrad Adenhauer will discuss Berlin with Gen. Lucius D. Clay and the Western commandants when he visits West Berlin this week.

Clay postponed his return to the United States to be in Berlin for Adenauer's visit. The retired general is returning to private business after serving as President Kennedy's personal Berlin representative.

Egypt Asks Britain for Financial Help

LONDON (AP)—Egypt is reported to have asked Britain for financial aid to stabilize the Egyptian pound and avert an acute balance of payments crisis.

Liz, in Wig, Has Lunch With Father

ROME (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton lunched Saturday in an Appian Way restaurant—at separate tables.

The actress was with her father, Francis Taylor, a London art dealer, and his wife. The film star's dark hair was covered with a blonde wig like the one she wore two days ago on a date with Burton.

Burton came to the same restaurant with a group of friends. They ate across the room at another table.

The Welsh actor walked over to Miss Taylor's table and was introduced to the elder Taylors. Burton returned to his table after a brief conversation with the Taylors.

Ex-Track Bums Bat Past About

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Suddenly I felt like I wasn't needed . . .

Shelley Winters and John Ireland, sweethearts once, were evidently starting a new romance right before my eyes, in spite of me.

It was 11:30 Saturday night. I'd dropped in at Shelley's dressing room at the Royale, by appointment, to ask her a few simple questions about how was everything going in "Night of the Iguana" between herself and her leading man Patrick O'Neal?

"Hi!" said this fellow sitting there, lounging back in an ante-room, waiting for Madame to get dressed in her own larger room just beyond.

"DID YOU know" — said Shelley, suddenly appearing before us in an attractive, sexy reddish robe — "that John and I went together for four years? Was that before or after Vittorio?" she asked John, referring to her once-upon-a-time husband Vittorio Gassman. "I guess it was before.

SHELLEY

"The trouble is, John's always engaged or I'm always married," she said. "Are you engaged now, John?"

John didn't think he was that he could remember.

"You ought to marry me sometime, John," she said. "I always pay my husbands alimony."

Tennessee Williams could have done a new scene for "Iguana" hearing them relive their romance which I gather was a very important point in both their lives.

"We were all tennis bums in California," Shelley said. "And we played horses. We used to get our unemployment insurance money and go right to the track."

• • • •

"DO YOU remember" — John asked Shelley — "that Saturday when you had $2 for the weekend and I had about $20? And you got a tip on a horse from somebody?"

"From somebody! It was Franchot Tone. He knows about Method horses!"

"Paid about 93 to 1," Ireland exclaimed. "I can still remember leaving the night club where we spent most of the money."

• • • •

THEY LAUGHED, and talked about personal things. "How old's your oldest now?" Shelley asked . . . "Eighteen," John said . . . "EIGHTEEN!" Shelley said . . . "And how's that friend of yours you always talked about, who didn't like to work?"

"Didn't LIKE to work!" shot back John. "He didn't know whether he liked to . . . he never tried it."

And here they were again . . . John across the street . . . right across 45th St. in the "Infidel Ceasar" at the Music Box. And Shelley was up to her bosom in two forthcoming movies, "Lolita," and "The Chapman Report."

"DID YOU have any hesitance about taking over the Bette Davis part in "Iguana" inasmuch as she'd already created it?" I wondered.

"That's a kooky robe you've got on," John told her. "That's about the kookiest robe I ever saw you wear."

"Pardon me . . . 'Iguana,' " I said.

Honest I think Shelley'd have preferred talking about the kooky robe.

"Well, you see, it's such a great part. And Tennessee wrote a lot of new things for me. Changed the end around entirely."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Taffy Tuttle says she has no time to look for her ideal man: "I'm too busy looking for a husband."

HARDLY A CRUSHED LOTUS BLOSSOM

France Nuyen Rare Blend of Career Girl, Practicality and Detachment

FRANCE NUYEN
Career Girl

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A myopic press agent once described France Nuyen, the exotic Eurasian who is hitting the bigtime in movies, as a "crushed lotus blossom."

It's hard to regard France as a crushed anything these days.

She's rare blend of French practicality, oriental detachment and American career girl independence, who:

Has rare beauty, but a weight problem (remember the furor after she was bounced from the lead in the film "The World of Suzie Wong" for excess avoirdupois?);

Was calm and poised entertaining 20,000 men, but scared before 75 matrons.

Has high principles, which she's reluctant to discuss, and a high number of boy friends, about whom she's similarly reticent.

• • • •

FRANCE, AT 23, has lived a lot but she's still more shy than sophisticated.

Take the way she handled a couple of recent appearances, the first before 75 women at a hospital benefit luncheon.

"I like to help good causes in my spare time," she says. "But what do you do before a bunch of women?

"When I went to Seattle a few weeks ago to appear before 20,000 servicemen, I had a similar problem.

• • • •

I DON'T sing or dance. All I know is one song I learned six years ago—half the lyrics I remember in Chinese, the other half in Japanese.

"So I told the men, that's all I knew and they laughed and applauded and I sang the song for them. They didn't mind not understanding the words.

"But I was terrified about performing for the ladies. Some of them are rich and bored. I was afraid they'd sit on their hands.

• • • •

"FIRST I talked to them about how much they were doing for people who couldn't afford care and I told them not to just go to luncheons, but to see for themselves how they're helping people.

"Then I read them 10 or 11 of my love poems."

She writes them in a spiral notebook in her spare time.

"At the end, they applauded. I felt wonderful."

It's not difficult to understand why France, at first blush, would worry about meeting the ladies. She looks like a lot of them would like to.

• • • •

SMALL, fine-boned, she wears her thick, hip-length dark hair coiled at the nape of her neck. She doesn't really need the dust of powder and touch of pale lip rouge she wears.

France is shy about revealing who she's dating lately.

But she'll admit to an assortment of young actors, businessmen, doctors and lawyers whose company she enjoys because they're "intelligent and well-educated, people I can learn from. By knowing such men I can make up for some of the education I missed."

• • • •

AN ONLY child, France was brought up by her French mother in Marseilles, while her Chinese chef father was at seas during World War II.

France became a photographer's model in Cannes, London and New York, traveling with her mother, when in 1957 she landed the role of Liat, the young Polynesian girl in the film "South Pacific."

She could barely speak English then. But now she talks in a soft, precise English—with Gallic gestures—that's easy to turn on and difficult to interrupt.

Her mother is in New York and her father back at sea. So she lives alone in a small, one-bedroom apartment "just outside Beverly Hills. It's too expensive for me to live in Beverly Hills. Besides, it's quiet here and there's a nice older couple next door who don't bother me, but sort of keep watch over me."

• • • •

FOR A luncheon interview she wore a box-jacketed shocking pink suit trimmed with black braid and gold buttons, something that might have come from Chanel's Parisian atelier.

It didn't, she said, and whispered the name of a department store that specializes in copies of Couturier models.

It was the kind of confidence you might expect from an American career girl—or a French housewife watching her francs—or a Chinese girl in Hong Kong, haggling with shopkeepers.

Humble Pie for Van Johnson

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Van Johnson, once a top movie star whose career faded to near eclipse, is making a comeback after deciding that acting is more profitable than tennis and swimming.

"I was playing tennis or swimming in Palm Springs," admitted Johnson, citing reasons for his career trouble. "I was becoming a tennis bum."

"I don't blame anybody but myself. I wouldn't read a script if the picture didn't have a foreign location."

• • • •

JOHNSON is back in Hollywood after 18 months in London where he appeared in "Music Man" on stage. He's now doing the show at the Ambassador Hotel's famed Cocoanut Grove.

"Going to London was the greatest experience of my life," said Johnson. "It's proven to me that I can get up on stage and do a show. I've always been afraid to get up in front of an audience.

"A man once said you should face the thing you fear the most. To me that was a live audience."

• • • •

FOR JOHNSON "Music Man" was a chance to get back on top. Van tours with the show this summer and is set to appear in a play, "Come On Strong," in the Fall. The bushy haired actor also plans to appear in a movie based on the play.

"I think my career goes in another direction now, towards the stage," he said while sitting in the living room of his Biltmore Hotel suite.

"After 85 pictures and 15 years at Metro Goldwyn Mayer Studios, work became like a family. All those years at M.G.M. I was wrapped in cotton batting and protected. I finally decided to get out of my cocoon and face the world."

• • • •

WHILE critical of his leisurely living, Johnson also slapped at his pictures.

"I used to do so much stuff just to pay the rent," he said. "In the last couple of years, before 'Music Man,' I did some pictures that were mediocre garbage.

"Everybody thinks I was in a lot of musical pictures, I was, but never had a chance to sing or dance, except for one, 'Till the Clouds Roll By.' I was in musicals but never a part of them."

• • • •

BEFORE going to London for his comeback start, Van said he refused television series which later became hits, with somebody else playing the lead role.

"I eat humble pie," he said with a smile. "I turned down a lot of television series. In a couple of years I'll listen to some television offers again. I'd like to come back here and have a crack at an offbeat series idea.

"The way things are today, an actor has to have irons in all fires, movies, theaters, television and nightclubs," Johnson said.

It's been a long time since 1945 when Van was ranked among filmland's top ten money makers. But he's determined to catch up for all those years spent on tennis courts and in swimming pools.

Tryouts Set for Off-Bdwy. Play

Tryouts for the Off-Broadway Theater's forthcoming production, "The Count of Clerambard," by Marcel Ayme, will be held at 2 p.m. May 13 in the theater, 211 Live Ave.

Ronan Hogue will direct the comedy. The cast calls for seven males and seven females.

Dallas Pastor Dies

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Rev. Albert Ott, 65, widely-known Assembly of God minister and pastor of Bethel Temple here for 25 years, died Saturday following a heart attack.

Japanese Girls Entering Race

Applications for the Miss Harbor contest are being accepted, Frank Sugiyama, Long Beach Harbor District Chapter President of the Japanese-American Citizens League said Saturday.

Miss Harbor also will be titled Miss Port of Long Beach, sponsors said, and will represent the port at the International Beauty Congress.

Deadline for entrants—who must be of Japanese parentage — is May 12, Sugiyama said.

AUTO HI-FI

Costs More Than Mitchum's Car

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the beauties of making big money as a movie star is that you can indulge your likes.

Robert Mitchum recently installed a six channel hi-fidelity system in his sports car.

"It cost more than the car but, to me, it's worth every penny of it," says Mitchum. "Beats listening to five commercials between each record on regular radio."

BELINSKY THROWS NO-HITTER

By ROSS NEWHAN

Robert (Bo) Belinsky, with a touch of revenge and courage in his heart and a spoonful of mustard and English on his fastball and screwball, achieved with his arm what he could never do with his mouth Saturday night.

Before 15,886 tense, roaring fans the Angels' Bobo hurled the first no-hit, no-run game in the history of Southern California major league baseball and in doing so reserved a line in the record books for himself as he knew he eventually would.

• • • •

THE FINAL score over Baltimore was 2-0, and represented Belinsky's fourth straight victory, the Angels' third straight, the Seraphs' second shutout and third complete game. And so Bo himself noted, it made the second "first" for the billiards master from Trenton. He also scored the Angels' first Chavez Ravine victory.

If such a thing is possible, it was easy. "I've seen six or seven of these things," said veteran Tom Morgan in the jubilant Angel clubhouse, "and this was the easiest of them all."

Although struggling with his control over the early going, Belinsky picked up steam and confidence as he rolled along, retiring the last 10 men in order. He faced 34 Orioles, walking four, hitting two and fanning nine—a season high for the Angels.

• • • •

HE WAS IN trouble in the second and fourth innings, but worked himself out of both jams with cool bravado. In the second Bo hit Jim Gentile and walked Gus Triandos, but then struck out Ron Hansen to end that threat.

Belinsky continued his bravado performance in the seventh and eighth innings, retiring the side in order in each. As he went to the mound to pitch the ninth the crowd, second largest of the season, responded with a mighty ovation.

• • • •

THE FIRST batter in the cardiac frame was Brandt and he went down on three straight strikes. Now Triandos was the hitter, or swinger, and after two strikes, he grounded to Joe Koppe who fired perfectly to first. Nicholson, already a strikeout victim twice, was next, and after one ball and one strike, he popped to Torres as the Angels stormed

HOW THEY LOOKED AS DECIDEDLY WON DECISIVELY

Overhead view shows Decidedly crossing Kentucky Derby wire a two and one-quarter length victor over Roman Line, with favored Ridan another neck to the rear. Crowd numbered over 100,000 for 88th mint julep classic.

Pays $19 Before 100,000

By JOHN CHANDLER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Greycoated Decidedly, a California colt trained by Argentinian Horatio Luro, pulled away from the leaders in the final sixteenth of a mile Saturday and won the 88th Kentucky Derby by clipping a full second off Whirlaway's 1941 track record.

Jockey Bill Hartack, who has been having his troubles in the big races, piloted the winner—a husky son of the 1954 Derby hero, Determine—to a 2¼-length victory over Roman Line.

Ridan, the heavy favorite of a screaming throng estimated at better than 100,000, finished third in a rousing windup to the $162,150 classic.

• • • •

ONLY necks separated Roman Line, Ridan and the fourth horse, British-bred Sir Ribot, an invader from the West Coast like the winner.

Decidedly, owned by the El Peco Ranch of George A. Pope Jr., of Madera, Calif., smashed home in 2:00 2/5 for the gruelling mile and one-quarter. This was the fastest Derby since the famous run for the roses was inaugurated in 1885 and it smashed the 2:01 2/5 clocking which has stood since Calumet Farm's famed Whirlaway routed 10 rivals and won by eight lengths 21 years ago.

Roman Line, owned by T. A. Grissom of Detroit and ridden by Jimmy Combest, was a great surprise as he was appearing in his fourth race in two weeks. He won at Keeneland April 16, was third behind Ridan and Decidedly in the Blue Grass Stakes April 26, and last Tuesday demolished his competition by winning the Derby Trial Stakes by six lengths over a sloppy track here at Churchill Downs.

• • • •

RIDAN is owned by Mrs. Moody Jolley of Miami Springs, Fla., E. H. Woods of Birmingham, Ala., and J. L. Greer of Knoxville, Tenn. He was ridden by Manuel Ycaza, the fiery Panamanian.

Ridan became the favorite Friday when Sir Gaylord, the big colt from Virginia, broke a bone in his ankle and was withdrawn in a dramatic pre-Derby castastrophe.

The winner, who was third choice in the betting, returned $19.40, $8.20 and $4.20 for the biggest Derby payoff since Dark Star upset the mighty Native Dancer in 1953 and returned $51.80 straight.

• • • •

ROMAN LINE, a 25-1 shot, paid $19.20 and $7.60. Ridan was $3 to show.

It was the third Derby victory for Hartack, which equalled another record. Eddie Arcaro retired with five Derby winners but only three other jockeys had won three of the classics. They were Isaac Murphy with a trip in the last century, and the famous Earle Sande.

The victory in the 15-horse even was worth $119,650 to the owners of Decidedly.

Arnie by 1 in Finals of Vegas Golf

By JERRY WYNN
L. P-T Staff Writer

LAS VEGAS — A desert hawk is on the wing today — preying on birdies and scenting $11,000 in silver dollars.

Incomparable Arnold Palmer, who plays golf with a passion usually reserved for young lovers, is the stalking hawk as the $58,000 Tournament of Champions advances into the payoff final round at the Desert Inn.

SANDERS CASPER

The bronzed-like Atlas from Latrobe, Pa., took over his accustomed position at the top of the field Saturday with a back nine charge of three birdies for a three-under par 69 and a 54-hole total of 208.

While many of the front-runners wilted under the 96-degree heat of the third round, Palmer still has three strong contenders for the title in today's nationally-televised showdown duel in the desert sun.

• • • •

BOUNCY Billy Casper, who played with Palmer Saturday and is paired with him again today, is but one stroke off the pace and shares second place at 209 with surprising veteran Earl Stewart, a Dallas club pro. Doug Sanders, the comic swinger

KRCA (4), 1:30 p.m.

with ants in his stance, is alone in third place at 210. All three shot 69.

Young Phil Rodgers, four strokes off the pace at 212, is the only other player given a chance to threaten Palmer.

Falling out of contention Saturday were second round co-leaders Doug Ford and Cary Middlecoff. Ford shot 74 for 213, Middlecoff an astronautical 80, fueled by two double bogeys and one triple bogey for 219. Defending champion Sam Snead carded his second straight 75 for 220.

Palmer, who had scrambled for his life through much of the first two rounds, was in keen form Saturday.

• • • •

"I PLAYED much better today," he said. "I hit the rough only a few times and had several chances for birdies. I drove the ball very well."

Followed by his usual massive gallery, dubbed Arnie's Army, Palmer played the front nine in even par 36. He three-putted from 30 feet to bogey the fourth hole and sank a six-footer to birdie the fifth.

Coming home, he made his move with three birdies on the first four holes. He came out of deep rough with a wedge shot three feet from the pin on the par five 10th and sank putts of 10 and 12 feet to clip par on the 12th and 13th. He made a strong par on the 18th when, after driving into the rough and hitting his approach into a trap, he blasted out and sank a five foot putt.

"I'd really like to win this

Important Win for Me, Chants Hartack

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Derby roses have no special fragrance for the hard-bitten Bill Hartack, but revenge is sweet indeed.

"This was a very important Derby to me," said the unsmiling Hartack after his third victorious Derby ride.

But just to make it plain this was no new Hartack speaking, he said, "There were some very personal reasons involved. I had a lot of confidence in Ridan when I was riding him last winter; thought he was a great horse. He had a lot of problems, but he was improving—just when I was taken off him."

He added with a touch of more than his usual bitterness, "winning the Derby and beating Ridan were both important."

Hartack credited his own suggestion that Decidedly run in blinkers with being a major factor in Decidedly's record-smashing Derby run.

"He wasn't picked to win, but I thought I found out something about him the first time I rode him," the 28-year-old jockey said.

"He had a habit of ducking and shying. I wanted Mr. Luro to put blinkers on him for the Blue Grass, but the horse is a little spooky and he was afraid they would upset him. But we tried them out, and he ran straight and true. I believe they helped him to win."

Dodgers' Camilli New All-America Candidate

By GEORGE LEDERER
L. P-T Staff Writer

PITTSBURGH — Last year Doug Camilli earned the label of the all-America out. This spring he was the all-America holdout. Today he's the Dodgers' choice as all-America, period!

With regular catcher John Roseboro injured and Norm Sherry in a batting slump, manager Walter Alston Saturday gave Camilli his first chance as a starter and Camilli made the most of his promotion.

Camilli's bases-loaded single in the second inning gave Don Drysdale all the runs he needed to subdue the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Dodgers, however, certainly in need of the practice, didn't let up until they had trounced the Bucs, 10-1.

• • • •

CAMILLI, who entered with a 1.000 batting average, finally had it reduced to .714. He maintained his perfect record with a two-run, inside-the-park homer in the third inning, then grounded into a double play and popped up.

Going into his fifth game of the season this afternoon Camilli already has surpassed his hit and RBI totals in 13 games last year. He had only four hits in 30 chances (.133) and four RBI last year.

Camilli had his troubles even at Spokane (.250) and Omaha (.042) in 1961, yet had the nerve to ask for a $5,000 raise this spring. When he didn't get it, he was a holdout until the second week of the exhibition season.

General manager Buzzie Bavasi was kind enough to consent to a $1,000 raise at the time, but is certain to give Camilli another boost if he can maintain only a third of his current average.

Fastest-Ever '500' Clocking by Jones

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Parnelli Jones continued his drive to turn the first 150 mph lap at the Indianapolis Speedway Saturday with an unofficial timing of 149.7, best ever recorded here.

The stopwatch clocking, however, won't go into the books because the speedway's electronic timer wasn't in use.

The 28-year-old Torrance, Calif., driver set his unofficial mark in his Agajanian Special moments before the first serious accident since the track opened a week ago for practice.

Jimmy Daywalt, 37-year-old veteran driver from Indianapolis, lost control coming out of the southwest turn and skidded broadside about 600 feet before hitting the wall tail first.

Daywalt jumped out and escaped with minor wrist burns.

Water in L. B. Arena

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . If you're worried about drinking fountains in the new Long Beach Arena, relax. Manager Win Hanssen, cognizant of the "oversight" at Chavez Ravine, hastens to inform the nervous public that he will have 16 faucets in his new baby. Eight spouts will be on the first floor and eight on the second level. Concessionaire Lauren Proctor hastens to add that doesn't mean EVERYONE has to drink water. There'll be a commodity called soda pop around, too.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . Long Beach's new Arena was the subject of much comment among writers covering the Tourney of Champions golf classic at Las Vegas the past few days. Editors and writers from San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Phoenix and many Texas cities were astonished to learn that our soon-to-be-completed Arena would seat 14,500 spectators. For some strange reason they all thought the West's most modern all-purpose structure would accommodate about 8,000 people.

. . . Comment: Long Beach's Arena can be a tourist attraction almost comparable to Chavez Ravine. The building already has caught the fancy of "foreign" newsmen—and that's a major step toward attracting the general public. When the press OUTSIDE your own bailiwick gets on the bandwagon, the public relations job for any enterprise within a place like our Arena is halfway to the victory point.

. . . Las Vegas made an $800,000 bid for the Patterson-Liston fight, but don't count on the gypsy affair landing in Slot Machine Village. Jim Healy, the KLAC radio man, sounded the right note when he said the heavyweight go would NOT be carded in Vegas. Reason: Casino City won't consider handling the match until its slow season in November or December. Patterson, the man calling the shots, wants to defend his title in the usual month of September. Las Vegas is booked solid for attractions of every conceivable nature until November, so the city isn't going to make concessions before that month to anything—even a world heavyweight championship title brawl!

JOHNNY OLSZEWSKI doesn't have much time these days to handle his nightly radio show because he's on location with a Walt Disney Studio picture group. The show is none-the-less a success because of pinch-hitting efforts of Jerome Hall, the mild-mannered combination newsman-broadcaster. John's picture, by the way, is a sequel to Fred MacMurray's very funny "Absent Minded Professor." As you might expect, it's the story of an absent-minded football coach. (No, Clyde, John is NOT the coach.)

. . . Incidentally, if the sequel proves as successful as the original, Johnny-O might wind up in a TV series with MacMurray this coming fall. (How he's going to find time for line plunges with the Detroit Lions, his radio show and the possible TV series is a very pleasant worry for the fullback. Even Ralph Houk's worries aren't that delightful.)

. . . Another Long Beach picture man, Bob Lemon, was given a fat compliment a few days ago by Dick Donovan, the tremendous Cleveland pitcher who invaded Chavez Ravine recently. "I learned how to pitch by watching Lemon," claimed Donovan. I think he was one of the classic pitchers of this era. If every pitcher watched the successful ones who depend on the same kind of pitches as themselves, there'd be more good pitchers in this game."

JOE RODGERS, as indestructible as Gibraltar, insists he has another crackerjack Nitehawk softball club this season. The Long Beachers, who wrapped up as many world championships as the Yankees, found the going a little rough in Western Congress play last season, but claims he will plug the holes before this campaign gets very far along. Two solid hitters, outfielder Paul Peterson and catcher Cort Van Dyk, have been added. (But won't things seem strange without old reliable Stan White behind the log?)

. . . J. Howard McWilliams, formerly of Annapolis but now residing at 110 Via Di Roma Walk here, got a nice writeup in an Eastern paper over his non-stop attempts to establish the sport of lacrosse in California. J. Howard's efforts already have started clubs at USC, UCLA, San Diego and Arizona, while an Orange County team is in the formation stage. Anyone interested in this rough sort, played incessantly by American Indians, may contact McWilliams. (Don't look at me, J. Howard. I'll help, but not play. I've had this balding scalp too long to want to lose it now.)

Record for Musial, Victory for Redlegs

CINCINNATI (AP)—Veteran Wally Post rammed a bases-loaded single to center in the ninth Saturday — good for a run and an 8-7 Cincinnati victory over St. Louis.

Leo Cardenas wrapped it up in the ninth with a one-out single, a steal of second and third before Post's deciding blow.

Cardenas had picked on the first pitch of the first inning for a double, starting a five-run Redleg rally that routed starter Ray Sadecki.

Frank Robinson's double drove in three of the Reds' runs, and a sacrifice fly plus a single added two more.

St. Louis had finally caught up, 7-7, in the eighth inning when Minnie Minoso singled in Bill White, who had doubled.

It was a notable day for veteran outfielder Stan Musial, who played seven innings of his 2,755th game for the Cards, tying Honus Wagner's National League game mark. Musial scored twice and collected two hits.

FORGET HOME RUN RECORD--WAGNER

'I'll Settle for 'Glove' Award'

By ROSS NEWHAN

Leon Wagner, the thinking man's hitter, was talking about his fielding.

"You know," said the Angels' Atlas, "you can have the home run records. I'll take that "Golden Glove" award anytime."

For a man who once had the reputation of carrying an iron claw in the outfield, the statement was somewhat surprising.

"I know all about those blasts. They were made by sportswriters who never had seen me. When they did they said I wasn't so bad after all.

"I've had to fight a tendency to relax in the outfield. You can't do that. You ease up for a split second and man that ball is over your head. I think now, however, I can make all the plays the average outfielder does. I'm sure I've convinced Rigney of that. At least he doesn't talk to me anymore about it. Now, if I'm going to become a better than average outfielder it's all up to me."

In his quest for the "Golden Glove" Wagner made six errors on 205 chances last year. That's not bad considering Mickey Mantle made the same number and such classy glove men as Lennie Green and Jackie Brandt committed more.

"Man I'd really love to go a season without any errors. I've always hit home runs now that my fielding is coming around I feel more like a complete player. Why if I continue to improve in a couple more years I may be a super star."

It's not the glove which will keep Wagner in Cadillacs, however,—and Leon is well aware of that. Off to a tremendous start at the plate, Wagner has done some serious thinking about hitting.

WAGNER

With constant prodding from manager Bill Rigney, the results have been most profitable for Leon and the Angels. After 8 games Wagner had compiled a .300 batting average and his muscular 6-1 frame had powered nine home runs. Heading into Saturday night's contest with Baltimore, the 28-year old San Franciscan had belted homers in the Angels' last three games and seven of the last eight. It was not until the Yankees' 37th game on May 28 last year that Roger Maris hit his ninth.

Wagner has always hit homers (51 at Danville, 29 at St. Cloud), but not until last year when he moved into the Wrigley Field band box and socked 28 has he been abel to hit with consistency in the majors.

"Leon has had two basic faults" says Rigney,. Wagner's tutor for two years at San Francisco. "He doesn't bear down against the so-so left hander. I mean that against a pitcher like Ford or Podres he takes a good stance and is an aggressive hitter. But against a southpaw of less ability he eases up. His second fault is that he swings at too many bad pitches. When he makes up his mind thou shall not pass, brother, that's all. If he can ever overcome these faults, and I've seen much improvement, then there's no reason he can't hit 40 home runs every year."

Wagner realized early this spring that if he wanted 10 to 12 additional homers he would have to "hang in" against all southpaws.

"There is a natural instinct for a lefthander to pull away from a southpaw," said Wagner, who belted only one homer off wrong side pitching last year but has hit three already this season.

"With me it's never been a question of courage. I'm not afraid of standing in there. It's been more a mental block and now I think I have it cracked.

• • • •

"I'VE BECOME a much more aggressive hitter against southpaws. I'm exercising the baseball I've stored in the back of my mind. I look for different pitches in certain spots and if they come I make up my mind to do everything right when I swing.

"My main purpose now is to just get a good cut at the ball. I'm not trying for home runs. Of course it's harder for me to hit homers off lefties. In most cases I have to hit their pitch. They can make a mistake against me whereas a righthander can't.

"I would say, though, the big reason I'm hitting with more consistency is that I've trained myself from eight years experience to hit the hanging pitch. Basically I'm taking advantage of a pitcher's mistake, especially when the count is in my favor. Take guys like Ted Williams and Stan Musial, when they got the count to three and one you could bet they'd get a hit."

• • • •

WAGNER DOES not entirely agree with Rigney's opinion that he swings at bad pitches.

Wagner enjoys playing in Chavez Ravine. The distant fences do not bother him. Last year he hit a ball 473 feet into Avalon Blvd. and last week at Detroit he tagged one which would have reached Canada had it not run into the facade of the third deck 92 feet above terra firma.

And where else besides the spaciousness of O'Malley's Gardens would Wagner have a better chance to win that "Golden Glove."

Wow! Phils Run Streak to Five

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies extended their winning streak to five games — their longest since 1960—Saturday by taking a 2-1 decision over the New York Mets before 7,993 at Connie Mack Stadium.

Cal McLish, the Phillies' 36-year-old curve ball expert, posted his third win of the campaign with help from reliever Jack Baldschun in the eighth.

Jacke Davis, a rookie outfielder with a tricky first name, broke up a tight pitching battle between McLish and southpaw Al Jackson with a run-scoring single in the seventh inning.

Cubs' Barrage of Homers Ends Giants' Streak at 10

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two home runs by Billy Williams and another by Ernie Banks carried the Chicago Cubs to a 12-8 victory Saturday and broke the San Francisco Giants' 10-game winning streak.

Williams belted his first home run in the third inning and climaxed a three-run Chicago rally in the seventh when he hit his ninth homer of the season with a man on base.

The blow put the Cubs in front to stay at 11-8.—Banks led off the eighth with his sixth home run of the season.

The Cubs wrapped five pitchers for 18 hits, tagging Jim Duffalo with the loss. Chicago used four pitchers in the free-hitting game.

Willie Mays' ninth homer gave the Giants a 3-1 lead in the third. The Cubs quickly tied the score for the first time with Williams' leadoff homer, a triple by George Altman and Andre Rodgers' single.

The Giants scored three runs in the fifth, including two on Willie McCovey's triple. The Cubs also scored three times on three singles, a wild pitch and a walk.

Yanks' Newcomer Sparks 7-6 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Joe Pepitone's first major league homer with a man on base capped a five-run New York Yankee spurt in the eighth inning Saturday for a 7-6 victory over Washington.

Yogi Berra's three-run homer accounted for the other runs of the big inning attack against Bennie Daniels and loser Marty Kutyna. Berra's blow off the right field pole came off Daniels after Tom Tresh and Mickey Mantle singled.

When Daniels walked Johnny Blanchard, and Phil Linz ran for him, Manager Mickey Vernon brought in Kutyna. Pepitone, playing first base instead of Moose Skowron against a right-handed pitcher, hit the relief man's first pitch into the right field bleachers.

40 PROTEST YANKS BREED 'GUTTER RATS'

NEW YORK (AP)—Approximately 40 pickets marched in front of the main gate of Yankee Stadium Saturday, protesting an agreement between the baseball club and the city for use of a portion of a nearby playground as a parking lot.

There were about 12 adults and 30 youngsters, both boys and girls, in the picket line. They carried such banners as "Yankees Go Home," "Playgrounds Si, Yankees No," and "Gutter Ball Means Gutter Rats."

Under the arrangements one baseball diamond in Maccombs Dam Park would be black-topped by the Yankees at a cost of $100,000 and used as a parking lot. It would remain city property and would be available for playground purposes when not used by Yankee fans.

Indians, Athletics in Standoff

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Athletics rocketed 21 hits Saturday night in drubbing Cleveland, 18-6, in the first game of a doubleheader, then fizzled before the six-hit pitching of Jim Perry as the Indians came back with a 5-2 victory.

Perry had a four-hit shutout going into the ninth inning and after shortstop Woody Held dropped a throw at second for an error, the A's scored twice. Perry was relieved first by Bob Allen and then Barry Latman for the final two outs.

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Lee Stange, backed by the homers of Rich Rollins and Bernie Allen, went the distance in his first major league start Saturday to lead the Minnesota Twins past the Detroit Tigers, 7-2.

Stange paced the Minnesota rookie delegation by surviving a shaky start. He won his first game against no losses. Stange retired 20 men in a row before Bill Bruton doubled with two out in the eighth.

Rollins and Allen hit two-run homers off Detroit starter Jim Bunning. Rollins, who also had a pair of singles, hit his sixth round tripper in the first. Allen connected for his third homer in the third.

LITTLER

By JERRY WYNN

LAS VEGAS—In this land of gin and honey, gentleman Gene Littler fits as poorly as a dime in a dollar slot machine.

But there isn't a golfer ever to play in the 10 years of the Tournament of Champions more popular and successful than the 31-year-old star from San Diego. No other player has won the title more than once. He has won three times.

Success and the years have not tampered with the charm of Gene Littler. He still is very much the same good-looking, unassuming all-American boy prototype who began an outstanding pro career more than eight years ago.

Does golf offer as much of a challenge to you now, Gene, as it did when you first turned pro?

"I've kept much the same attitude now as then. I play as well as I can, and try to win some money. That's not to say that I don't want to win. I just don't try to tear the flag off the pin."

Would you consider yourself a wiser golfer now?

"Yes, I know more about the mechanics of the golf swing, and I hope I'm a smarter player. I don't get excited when I don't play as well as I once did. I know now that there will be weeks when things just won't go well. I don't fight it."

What has been your greatest victory?

"The U.S. Open last year. It is the tournament to win as far as prestige goes. It was at Oakland Hills near Detroit, one of the few really tough courses, and I had four of my best rounds there."

To what do you contribute your success in the Tournament of Champions?

It's always been a mystery to me, but I suppose putting is the main reason. The first year I won, I played really well. The other two, I just putted well. I set a putting record each year."

Do you feel that a golfer who abstains from the night life stands a better chance to win?

"Yes, here and everywhere else. It isn't for me. My wife puts me to bed early. But all golfers are individuals. Some can take it, and some can't."

Do you gamble when you are here?

"Virtually none. I may lose a few bucks, but I have no weakness for gambling. I play for a few dollars on the course sometimes, but I don't consider that real gambling either."

Would you like to see the Desert Inn Calcutta restored?

"I don't care one way or the other, but I would just as soon have no gambling in the tournament. People hound you on the course because they have a couple of bucks bet on you. It's no fun to hear people say, 'C'mon, get going, I got a wad of bills on you'."

What do you think of Jackie Burke's refusal to play because of the gambling?

"I wouldn't want to comment on that. I don't know his thinking."

Why has Arnold Palmer become so dominant a player?

"He's the best driver on the tour and a phenomenal putter. That and his aggressiveness."

You have won the National Amateur and National Open. Do you have other goals left in golf?

"Yes, I'd like to win all the major titles, especially the Masters. I played very well in the Masters this year, but putted terribly. (Ed. note: Littler missed four fairways in four rounds; champion Palmer missed eight in one round.)

Why is it that San Diego has produced so many fine golfers?

"It's probably because of the year-round climate and opportunity to play. We have a wonderful junior program and Bill Casper, Phil Rodgers, Mickey Wright and myself all are products of the program."

San Diego and all of Southern California (toss in Las Vegas) can well be proud of gentleman Gene Littler.

Davis Blazes 1:53.4; Poly Spikers Romp

By DOUG IVES

Steel-legged George Davis of Millikan, running on a track he didn't like, blazed to a 1:53.4 half-mile to lead a record romp in the Moore League track and field championships on the sun-baked Poly High cinders Saturday.

Eleven marks were shattered and two were tied in the greatest record-busting in Moore League history, but the one which will stand the test of time should be Davis'.

The stocky Ram clipped 1.6 off the existing standard, which is not only the best in the CIF this year but the finest in the nation.

• • • •

DAVIS, improving with each race, finally got the push he needed to break the barrier. Jordan's Mutt and Jeff duo of small George Janquart and tall Al Ormiston were the boys who pressed Davis to the finish line.

Janquart finished in 1:54.6 and Ormiston in 1:54.8, both under the league record. Their times are the third and fourth best in Southern California this season.

Davis, who admitted he didn't like to run at Poly, led all the way and kicked strongly at the end. He was overcome by exhaustion and collapsed seconds after breaking the tape. He revived quickly.

• • • •

DAVIS NEEDED his tremendous feat to steal the spotlight from John Yancy of Wilson. The muscular Bruin broadjumped a record 24-1 and recorded an amazing series of 23-2¾, 23-8½, 23-10½, 24-1, 24-0 and 23-8½.

Buoyed by this effort, Yancy shocked Millikan's Paul Reynolds by winning the low hurdles in 19.2. Reynolds, however, tied a league record of 14.5 in the highs.

Downey's Bob Goodson set the other varsity record, winning the mile in an excellent 4:22.3.

Potential record-breaking in the 100 and 440 never materialized, at least not in varsity. But Jordan's Tom Brosnahan tied the Bee 100 standard of 10.0 and bettered his own 220 mark set last week by whipping 21.4.

• • • •

POLY'S James Miles grabbed off the lion's share of records in Bees, setting three. He toured the high hurdles in 8.8, the lows in 12.8 and broad jumped 22-7¾. He also ran on Poly's record (1:06.4) 660 relay squad.

Jordan's Fred Bristow (3:15.5) in the 1320, Poly's Ronnie Myers (21-10) in the broad jump and Lakewood's John Williams and Poly's Roy Anderson (5-8) in the high jump set Cee records.

Poly totaled 156½ points and qualified more men in each division than any other school.

LBSC, Diablos Split

Bob Lancaster pitched a masterful seven-hitter as Long Beach State College ripped Los Angeles State, 8-4, in the opener but the Diablos came back to nab the second game, 7-2, in a CCAA doubleheader Saturday on LASC's diamond.

The 49ers exploded for five runs in the sixth inning of the opener to clinch the three-game series. Long Beach now stands 8-7 in conference standings and 15-15-1 for the year.

L. A., which ranked fifth in the national college poll this week, remains second in the league with a 12-6 mark and 29-12 on the season.

Coach Dick Clegg's third-place club, winners of eight of their last 11 league outings, host Fresno State in a crucial three-game series this weekend. The Bulldogs have lost but one conference game this year.

It Follows SCript for 30th Time

Bruce Munn, Brian Polkinghorne and Kevin Hogan scored double victories Saturday and led Southern California to its 30th consecutive dual track meet win over crosstown rival UCLA, 86-45, in the Coliseum.

Munn won both sprints, Polkinghorne took the high and low hurdles and Hogan tied for first in the quarter and half-mile runs.

Munn breezed to a first place in the 100 in 9.7 and returned to take the 220 in 21.2 around a curve. Polkinghorne edged teammate Rex Cawley in the high hurdles in 14.3 and won the 220-yard lows in an easy 24 seconds flat.

Hogan hit the finish line at the exact instant teammate Ted Doll flashed across in the timed in 47.9. Then, running the 880 for the first time, Hogan tied USC's Warren Farlow in 1:50.8.

OUTSTANDING performances were turned in by Trojans Mel Hein Jr. and Mike Flanagan, who tied for first in the pole vault with meet record heights of 14 feet 11¾ inches.

Depth Earns 49ers First Track Crown

By JOHN CASH

Long Beach State's track and field forces staged their greatest team effort of the year Saturday to walk off with their first California Collegiate Athletic Assn. cinder title in the championship meet at Los Angeles State College.

It was truly a team effort as the 49er spikers accumulated points in all but one event to garner a total of 64, 13½ greater than second-place Los Angeles State with 50½.

The 49ers crossed the finish line first in four races—mile, high and low hurdles, and relay—but it was depth that gave Long Beach top honors.

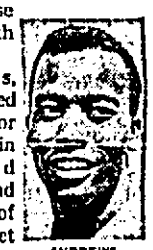

TAYLOR

Fresno, which figured to give the 49ers a fight for the title, finished a disappointing third with 40½, while San Diego ended fourth with 34.

The best race of the day was, as expected, the milo run.

Long Beach's Darryl Taylor, Bob Standen of L.A. State and Fresno's Spike Biggers staged a grueling battle with Taylor winning with a strong stretch kick in 4:16.7, which equalled his best previous clocking.

Dazzling Dee Andrews was a double winner in the hurdles with teammate Gary Patterson a close second in both races.

ANDREWS

Andrews, however, failed to qualify for the finals in the broad jump. He had two leaps of over 24 feet but both were declared fouls.

The only meet record was established by Fresno's Don Schaefer in the pole vault.

Schaefer catapulted 14-6 to break the 14-4½ mark set by Fred Barnes of Fresno in 1953.

Long Beach's mile relay team breezed past the field to win in 3:19.5.

• • • •

DAVE SHIRLEY led off with a 50.4 quarter to give the 49ers a substantial margin, Doug Hall ran 50.6, Patterson 50.4 and Jim Richardson a sizzling 48.5 to hold off an LASC threat in the final yards.

Hawks Rip Vista, 3-0

By RAY CUNNINGHAM

VISTA—With Jack Randall striking out 17 batters, the Long Beach Nitehawks blanked Vista 3-0 in their Western Softball Congress opener Saturday night.

Randall allowed only three hits and walked none. Although the Hawks committed four errors, he was never in serious trouble.

Roger Hull doubled home Clint Herron, who had singled, with Long Beach's first run in the fifth. The Hawks finished their scoring in the eighth when Larry Silvas walked and Cleo Goyette pounded a long homer down the left-field line.

Long Beach plays San Pedro at Daniels Field in San Pedro tonight at 8:15 in what should be one of the season's better games.

McCalla Runs 8:52.7

STANFORD (AP) — Loose-striding Harry McCalla, a Stanford sophomore, ran the third fastest two-mile in the nation this year, an 8:52.7 clocking in a dual meet Saturday won by Stanford over California, 68½-42½.

The Indians set three school records while winning 13 of the 15 individual events.

Stanford had two double winners, Steve Cortright taking both hurdles (14.7, 24.3) and Phil Lamoreaux taking the 100 and 220-yard dashes (9.9, 21.7).

Belinsky Pitches No-Hitter, 2-0

the field and the crowd rose to its feet for an ovation which shook the concrete castle.

In the fourth, with one out, the Seraphs' southpaw walked Gentile and Jackie Brandt and then watched third baseman Felix Torres bobble Triandos' cinch double play ball to load the bases.

Again Bo rose to the occasion, striking out $115,000 bonus baby Dave Nicholson and forcing Hansen to fly to Albie Pearson in center. That was the closest Baltimore came to a run. The closest it came to a hit occurred in the sixth when Brandt drove Pearson back to the warning track in left centerfield to haul in his 390 foot fly.

• • • •

THE NINTH inning was all Belinsky. As the crowd shook the concrete castle with each pitch, Bo brilliantly struck out Brandt, forced Triandos to roll to shortstop Joe Koppe and got Nicholson on a foul pop to Torres. It took 10 pitches.

"The way he was throwing at the end he might have gone a couple more innings," said catcher Bobby Rodgers, credited by manager Bill Rigney with a "superlative" job.

"Considering he was behind so many hitters at the start, it was a tough way to throw a no-hitter," said Rodgers. "He had great stuff all the way. I never hesitated calling on either his fast ball or screwball when he fell behind."

Surprisingly, the man who had just thrown the American League's first no-hitter since Hoyt Wilhelm, who watched this one, did it against the Yankees on September 20 of 1958, was, for a moment, at a loss for words.

"I never dreamed I would throw a no-hitter," said Bo as Angel owners Gene Autry, Joseph Thomas and Leonard Firestone took turns pumping the handsome 25-year-old's hand. "I have trouble pitching shutouts. I've just got to wonder what's going to happen next."

It's been a spectacular year for Belinsky, a $25,000 draftee this winter from the Baltimore organization. Bo once went to spring training with the Orioles. That was in 1959 and he didn't get much of a chance to show his wares. The only thing to him was: "Maybe I'll see you again sometime."

When Bo reported to Palm Springs there was a fiery salary dispute with general manager Fred Haney. Bo signed for $6,000 which becomes $7,000 on May 10. Will he now ask for a raise?

"I hate to push fate. If I ask for a raise I'm liable to start pitching poorly. If Mr. Haney asks me nicely I'll accept one."

While on the mound, Bo did not seem disturbed by the mounting pressure. "I started thinking about it in the sixth inning, but I didn't get cautious. In fact I started throwing harder. I wanted to get to the ninth inning as fast as I could because I knew that's what the fans wanted. They were enjoying it as much as I was. This thing's good for me and the team. It couldn't have happened to a nicer team (Baltimore)."

Losing pitcher Steve Barber, a former teammate of Bo's, was among those congratulating the Angel hero. He yielded single runs in the first and second after which the Angels collected only four hits.

Rigney, after using 53 pitchers in 14 games, commented: "It must be the first time in a close game that I haven't had anyone warming up. He pitched a wonderful game."

He certainly did!

ANGEL ANGLES: General manager Fred Haney announced that Ken Hunt will be placed on the disabled list next week ... the outfielder was released from Daniel Freeman hospital Saturday morning with his arm in a sling ... Dr. Robert Woods, who placed the shoulder back in its socket Friday night, said Hunt will be out for a minimum of eight weeks ... he indicated an operation may be necessary and in cases of this type recurrent dislocations are sometimes very frequent.

Albie Pearson carried an eight-game hitting streak into Saturday night's contest ... During the streak he raised his batting average from .294 to .311 ... Pearson batted .309 against the Orioles last year.

Felix Torres, given a starting chance prior to the May 10 cutdown, has virtually taken the third base job away from Eddie Yost with some snappy fielding and hitting ...

Alamitos Championship to Pokey

Pin Placements No. 1 Complaint

LAS VEGAS—The ego of professional golfers is such that they never admit to shooting poor golf. Something also contributes to a bad round.

There is always the caddy and the weather to blame it on, the rough perhaps was too tall, the gallery was unruly and noisy, etc.

But nine out of 10 times, the pros will blame a poor round on the pin placement. That is their No. 1 gripe.

One of the most important parts of tournament golf is placing the pins. Each round finds the cup in a new location on the green. The pin sets separate the men from the boys and there is no doubt but what the result of every tournament is affected by the placements.

In fact, a pin placement decided the 1959 Tournament of Champions here at the Desert Inn Country Club. That was the year burly Mike Souchak won it by two strokes over Art Wall.

ART WALL
Putted Well, but . . .

On the final day, Wall, one of the exceptionally good putters on the tour along with Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, Gene Littler and Jerry Barber, was the only one in position to take a run at Souchak.

As they came to the 14th hole, Wall was only one stroke behind Mike, but at that point he four-putted to knock himself out.

Howard Capps, golf director at the Desert Inn and former PGA tournament chief, recalls that he had a "real good" pin set at the top of a slope on the slick 14th green. "Wall was too aggressive on the first putt, lipped the cup and ran past," Capps recalls. "Then he was too desperate on the second and third putts. In fact, I thought he made four very good putts . . . but only one dropped.

"That is one of the classic examples where a pin set has decided a major tournament."

CAPPS PREFERS TO MAKE HIS own pin placements for the Tournament of Champions. In fact, it is only one of three events on the tour which handles its own pin sets. The other two are the Masters and U.S. Open. Joe Black of the PGA makes the placements in all other tourneys.

Capps explains that the reason for wanting to set his own pins is the fact that "for 51 weeks of the year, the Desert Inn is a resort course. Thus, to bring it up to championship conditions we let the rough grow, stretch it out to its fullest length by setting back the tees . . . and most important, using corner pin sets.

"Each round we put the pin in a different corner of the green, but never closer to the edge of the green than 14 fet. On the PGA, the cups can be placed as close as 12 feet of th edge."

Black reveals that the most important thing about setting the pins is to make sure they are not unfair.

"After all, we are trying to sell good golf. We put them in tough locations, yes, but we try to make sure that the players don't have to worry about subtle or 'dirty' breaks. We attempt to place the cups on a surface where there isn't a quick or tricky break."

JOE ALSO POINTS OUT THAT the courses are set up so the best players have the best chances. He puts the pins where players have to execute their finest shots in order to get into the touch pin placements. He also strives to keep a course near the same toughness each day through the pin sets.

Capps and Black concur on how to map out their pin placements. They set six easy placements with gentle breaks; six medium with fairly flat putting surface, and six "interesting" greens that range from hard to difficult with all pin placements in tough locations.

During practice rounds and pro-amateur events, pins are usually placed in the center of the greens. Corner pin sets are saved for the real championship play. That's why you see much lower scoring on the whole in pro-amateur events. Most courses also will use center pin sets for daily play.

If the average amateur golfers played the corner pin sets the professionals do day in and day out, their handicaps would soar.

WHY ARE CORNER PIN SETS more difficult? Because it cuts down the margin of error. On a center pin set, you can miss a shot at least two ways and still be on the green. On a corner pin set, you can miss a shot only one way and still manage to reach the putting surface.

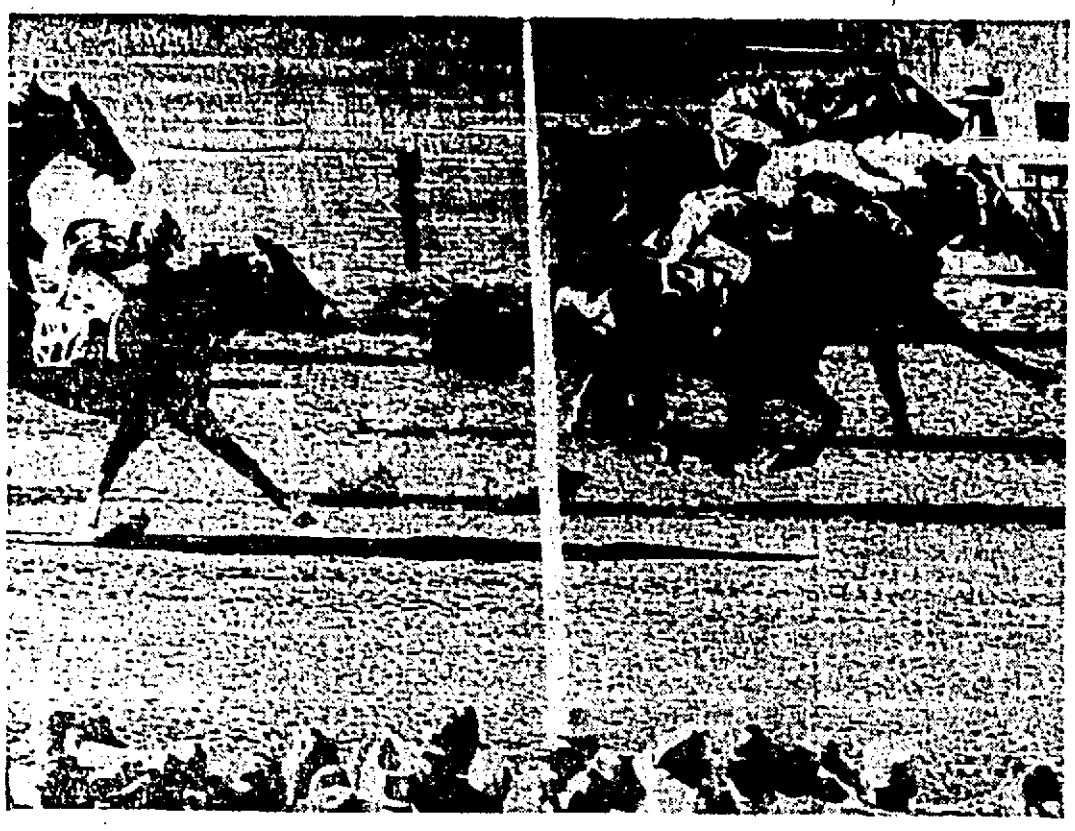

Weather conditions, of course, are taken into consideration when the pin placements are made. For instance, wind always plays a big role at the Tournament of Champions here.

And if there is a threat of rain, pins are placed in high spots so the cups will not be flooded in the event of showers.

Television also influences pin sets today. Placements are made on certain holes where cameras are stationed so that the best picture can be obtained.

The players themselves rarely go out and look at the pin sets, but most of them send their caddies over the course in the morning to check the placements and diagram the greens.

It's important to know just where the cups are located!

POKEY POKES A HEAD IN FRONT
Pokey Bar (5) gets head in front of Alamitos Bar (6) at wire to win Los Alamitos Quarter Horse Championship Saturday. On rail, finishing a nose behind Alamitos Bar, is No Butt.

Ties Own Record With Jump at Wire

By MAC McGUIRE

Hugh Huntley's great Pokey Bar snatched away the $25,000 Los Alamitos Championship from Western Stables' Alamitos Bar right at the wire and tied his own world record for 440 yards Saturday before 10,097 fans at Los Alamitos Race Course.

For most of the race it appeared that erratic and third choice Alamitos Bar had the winner's $13,750 share in his saddle bags, but the huge strides of the strapping Pokey Bar steadily closed the gap and he got up in the last jump to win by a nose.

• • • •

FOR HIS 21.6 second victory, Pokey Bar paid $3.20, $2.40 and $2.40. Alamitos Bar paid $3.00 and $2.80 and Guy Purinton's No Butt paid $4.40 to show. Second-favored Fly Straw was fourth.

The gallant victory of Pokey Bar hiked his already record-earnings to $146,547.

Alamitos Bar broke out flying on top and for most of the race it appeared that he was going to end his long career as bridesmaid to Pokey Bar.

Even No Butt and Fly Straw had the edge on Pokey Bar at the beginning and No Butt made a fighting drive from the rail at Alamitos Bar, but the dainty mare just could not hold on.

After the race, jockey Kenneth Chapman said he and Pokey Bar were at least a length behind Alamitos Bar at the halfway mark. "I didn't even see No Butt, I was watching Alamitos Bar."

But once Pokey Bar settled into his easy, ground-eating stride, he quickly caught Straw Fly, then passed the flying No Butt. Alamitos Bar, however, seemed to have too much of a lead. But Pokey Bar kept gaining and finally jumped up and got him at the last instant.

Chapman said the inappropriately named Pokey ran his usual pace and could not fault his start.

"Alamitos Bar broke more alertly than usual and got a good jump on us. He had at least a length lead on us about halfway down the track."

• • • •

JUST LAST week, Alamitos Bar fell on his nose two jumps out of the gate to give Fly Straw the edge she needed to cop the Chicago V. Stakes.

Two weeks ago, Pokey Bar set the present 440-yard record, breaking the 21.7 mark set in 1960 by Vandy's Flash.

Pap, who won this event last year, was a late scratch when his ankle filled following a Friday work.

The final two days of racing will be held Monday, when the fabulous Derussa seeks her fifth straight victory at this meeting in the Newport-Balboa Purse, and Tuesday, when Tiny Charger and Jete Deck fight it out for the $10,000 juvenile championship for 2-year-olds.

ing in the Preakness and the Belmont "if he feels like it," Pope said.

"It's up to the horse—and the trainer, of course."

Pope said he expected to win the Derby "but not so convincingly. I never thought he would set a record."

He described Decidedly as a "generous horse—ask him and he gives it to you."

Decidedly's daddy, Determine, won the 1951 Derby but did not race in either the Preakness or Belmont.

The $150,000-added Preakness will be run in two weeks at Pimlico and the Belmont, a $125,000 added race like the Derby, will be run June 9 at Belmont in New York.

First Entry Received for Lions Regatta

World record-setter Kelly Schroeder of San Diego Saturday became the first to enter the Belmont Shore Lions Club 14th annual All-Inboard Memorial Day Speedboat Regatta.

The meet will be staged May 30 at Marine Stadium, said general chairman Charles H. Boone. Schroeder is the only driver to hold both the world kilo mark and the world's five-mile competition record in the same class, the 135 cubic inch hydroplanes.

Merry Ruler Winner of Carter 'Cap

NEW YORK (UPI)—Merry Ruler, under a brilliant ride by Johnny Sellers, overtook the front-running Hitting Away in the stretch Saturday and won the $59,300 Carter Handicap before 46,194 fans at Aqueduct.

It was the second straight stretch-running triumph for Merry Ruler, who paid $15.20, $6.70 and $4.60 and was timed in 1:22 flat to equal the track record held by Rare Rice.

SAN BRUNO (UP) — Royal Grounded stayed unbeaten and won his first stakes race by running away from an outclassed field in Tanforan's featured $12,150 San Bruno Stakes.

It was the second win in as many outings for the 2-year-old brown colt. Royal Grounded paid $3.40, $3.00 and $2.80 for his four and one-quarter length victory in the five-furlong dash. The time was 1:00 2/5.

The Tanforan daily double, from Inver Hawk ($62.40) to Jean Goyo ($59.40) paid $2,963, a record for the track. Thirty $2 tickets were sold on the combination. The daily double a week ago paid $2,253.20.

BOSTON (UP) — The largest $2 payoff in the history of North American racing occurred at Suffolk Downs when a lone, unidentified bettor tabbed the twin double for a $56,677.40 return. The ticket is still uncashed.

A TRULY NOBLE FOOTBALL EXPERIMENT

Writers Coach Trojans for a Day

By JEROME HALL

One of the truly noble football experiments will be performed at the USC Varsity-Alumni game to be played in the Coliseum two weeks from today.

Sports writers are going to take over all the coaching duties for both teams.

Maybe it won't be the best coached game ever seen, but it's sure to be the MOST coached.

The Trojan varsity, currently in the middle of its four-week spring training session, will oppose a USC alumni team that includes a couple of dozen professional players plus most of last year's senior players.

It's a formidable team, better than the one that last year beat the varsity 33-6.

This year the USC coaching staff will take seats in the grandstand and the typewriter authorities will take over direction on the field. John McKay and his assistants won't even have so much as the power of a suggestion in this game.

"That proves we've got guts," says McKay, who is in his third year as Trojan head coach. Since he has two years remaining on his current contract, he figures the writers can't hurt him too much.

Coaches of the varsity squad will be Paul Zimmeran, Jack Disney, Mel Durslag, Jerome Hall, Tom Kelley and Al Wolf.

The coaching crew for the alumni team will be George T. Davis, Bud Furillo, Tom Harmon, Hank Hollingworth, Jim Murray and Sid Ziff.

Since the alumni team won by four touchdowns last year, the varsity has been given the stronger coaching staff, obviously.

UCLA WHIPS KILMER-LED ALUMNI, 18-6

The UCLA varsity football team closed its 20-day spring practice Saturday by defeating an alumni team headed by Bill Kilmer, 18-6.

Sophomore quarterback Carl Jones opened the scoring for the varsity by climaxing a 45-yard drive with a two-yard plunge for a touchdown.

Quarterback Rob Smith then passed nine yards to end Mel Profit for a touchdown.

The third score of the second period was by the Alumni with Kilmer rushing 11 yards for a touchdown.

The final touchdown came in the last second of the game when sophomore quarterback Larry Zeno passed 11 yards to Profit.

ALL-STARS ALL

tournament," Palmer commented, "because I've played so poorly here in the past."

His best finish in six previous attempts was a tie for fifth place.

If anyone has anything to do about Palmer not winning today, it should be Casper.

Still wearing a sweater to heat a sore back, the San Diego star was even with Palmer through 17 holes Saturday, but bogied the 18th by spraying shots into the rough twice. It was his only bogey.

• • • •

CASPER had ripped off four straight birdies from the 13th through 16th holes on putts of 4, 15, 5 and 18 feet—a charge more accustomed to the likes of his playing partner.

Did playing with Palmer affect you in any way, Casper was asked.

"No, I play my own game," he shot back. "It makes no difference who I play with, as long as I'm playing well."

Stewart, who is here for the first time since 1954, has the largest rooting section of any player. Ninety members of his Oak Cliff Club in Dallas flew up in private aircraft to cheer for him. He had five birdies Saturday, including a 30-footer for the second hole.

Sanders played even with par through 12 holes, but then spurted with birdies on the next three holes to fashion his 69.

• • • •

THE DAY'S best rounds of 68 were posted by Jay Hebert and Tommy Jacobs. For the second straight day, three-time champion Gene Littler had five birdies but could only score 71.

Palmer is a 4-5 favorite to win today, with Casper at 2-1, Stewart 3-1 and Sanders 5-1. At any odds, the best bet is Palmer.

Tork Wins Vault, But Only at 15-8

Pole vaulter Dave Tork Saturday failed in his attempt to clear the 16-foot mark for the third time during a triangular track and field meet at Camp Pendleton Marine Base.

Tork, a lieutenant stationed here, cleared 15 feet, 8 inches but missed all tries at 16-1.

Last week Tork vaulted higher than any man in history when he soared over 16 feet, 2 inches at the Mt. San Antonio Relays. He cleared 16-¾ Friday night in a meet at Sunnyvale.

'Gades Lose, Vikings Tied for Lead Again

Long Beach City College's baseball team moved back into a tie for first place Saturday without lifting a bat.

Bakersfield lost to El Camino 7-5. Both the Vikes and 'Gades stand 8-4 in Metro play with two games remaining. San Diego tripped Harbor, 2-1, in other action.

ANOTHER PROMOTER QUITS

Is Boxing Dead in Long Beach?

By FRANK HARVEY

Boxing, which has been on-again, off-again in Long Beach during the last four years, is off-again.

Major Don Taylor, the third Long Beach promoter in as many years, has tossed in the sponge and turned in his license to the State Athletic Commission.

Taylor said Saturday that while he felt certain that boxing could be promoted successfully here, or in Orange County, there are too many headaches involved for him to continue at this time.

The fact that the three promoters failed here is understandable to boxing men, who point out that none of the three had prior professional boxing experience, that they tried to promote independently, and that none of them were financially able to promote a really major fight.

However, we feel that all three did stage attractive fights despite the fact that none of them were able to procure "name" fighters with the exception of Leon Black, who brought in Joey Glambra and Gaspar Ortega.

With the withdrawal of Taylor from the local boxing scene, a group of former Long Beach and Wilmington promoters are considering organizing to promote fights either in Long Beach, or one of the nearby areas.

SUGAR RAMOS, undisputed No. 1 featherweight contender, is an early 3-1 favorite over Danny Valdez for their Olympic Auditorium fight Friday night.

The bout is carded as a 12-rounder, with the winner ticketed for a crack at Davey Moore's featherweight crown.

Last year Moore disposed of Valdez in less than a round in a title bout at the Olympic.

Monday night, promoter Jimmy Lennon stages an attractive card at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium.

Welterweights Al Grant and Tony Norriega are carded for the top half of the double eight-round main event, with featherweights Luis Perez and Frankie Castanada holding down the lower portion. A six, and two four-round bouts also are on tap.

Amateur boxing is scheduled to start at the Pasadena Arena Wednesday night when Canto Robledo stages his first simon-pure show.

PCL UMPIRE LOSES GEAR, ISSUES SOS

PORTLAND (UP)—Veteran Pacific Coast League baseball umpire Pat Orr is hoping somebody in Portland will return his baseball gear, along with two suits and a suitcase.

He lost the articles just before leaving Portland for San Diego Thursday night. They apparently fell out of the trunk of a car.

Orr sent word he would be in San Diego for 10 days. He added:

"And please send the gear C.O.D. I need it for my work."

'Cycle Obstacle Race at Ascot

National TT champion Dick Dorresteyn of San Pablo and Dick Hammer of Lakewood will go to the post as co-favorites in tonight's motorcycle steeplechase race at Ascot Park, though Dorresteyn has had the best of it so far this year.

It'll be the first under-the-arc race of the year over the 10-foot obstacle jump and around the infield lakes. A field of 116 rides from up and down the West Coast will be on hand.

Dorresteyn has won three of four main events this year, including the big 100-lap Jimmie Phillips last time out. Hammer, however, won seven of his eight main events last year at night.

Artesia's Jack Simmons, the only other rider to beat Dorresteyn this year, also will be on hand along with Clark White, Eddie Kretz, Skip Van Leeuwen and Jack O'Brien.

Races in novice, amateur and expert classes will be held. First race goes at 8:30 p.m., qualifying at 7.

singles, a double, a triple and a home run for 11 total bases. He has driven in seven runs, won the 16-inning game against the Cubs, tied Friday's game and contributed generously to Saturday's victory.

Drysdale, winning his fourth game with a neat five-hitter, again helped himself with two hits that maintained his average at .500. He doubled home two runs as the Dodgers sent 10 men to the plate in a five-run second inning and singled infield in the eighth.

Drysdale retired 18 batters in a row between a single by pitcher Bob Veale in the third and a double by Dick Groat in the ninth. Groat's hit was misjudged by left fielder Tommy Davis and led to the Pirate run. Groat scored on Dick Stuart's single.

• • • •

DAVIS HAD done his share to help Drysdale by collecting four of the Dodgers' 15 hits, including his sixth home run. It was his first in the last 11 games.

The Dodgers, who entered with a team average of .208 against the Bucs, last amassed 15 hits in a nine-inning game on April 16. A revised lineup, featuring Camilli and the promotion of Willie Davis to the No. 3 position, brought the Dodgers out of their slump.

Willie chipped in with three hits and stole his fifth base. Wally Moon, batting .234 for the year, but only .161 in the last 10 games, was benched in favor of Ron Fairly. Fairly had only one opportunity to hit and was called out on strikes. However, he walked three times and also sacrificed.

• • • •

THE DODGERS knocked out loser Tom Sturdivant (1-2) in the second inning and continued their attack against Veale and Wilmer Mizell. Hits by Snider and T. Davis and an intentional walk to Fairly preceded Camilli's first hit, good for two runs.

Drysdale followed with a two-run double to KO Sturdivant and Jim Gilliam singled home another run against Veale.

Sandy Koufax (4-2) is the Dodger starter in this afternoon's deciding game of the series. He will oppose Vern Law, making his first start since last July 2. Law, a 20-game winner in 1960, had a sore arm and a 3-4 record last year.

State's Outstanding Sportsmen Honored

REDDING — Donald Welch, 15-year-old sophomore at Weed High School, and Clarence E. Wilson, 61, of Castro Valley, who has devoted a quarter of a century to conservation of California's fish and wildlife, were honored here Friday night by the outdoor writers of California and the Shasta-Cascade Wonderland Assn. of Northern California.

This was the eighth annual award banquet of the SCWA. It was the fifth time that a youngster had been picked to receive honors with a man, and, once again, it was a privilege to do honor to a boy who already ... done so much for the outdoors. But that's the way ... work in this country.

Donald is a First Class Scout, the son of Louie and Jean Welch, and has been a top-notch camper for three years. His prime hobby is the care and study of California's song birds. He holds BSA merit badges in swimming, life-saving, forestry and marksmanship, plays football, basketball and is a member of the Weed High School track team.

CLARENCE WILSON
... Senior Sportsman

PRINCIPAL ROBERT W. PURCELL, of Weed High, said in submitting the winner's name:

"In the process of selection of a deserving individual for any award of recognition, it is proper that the possible candidate truly merits the honor of such recognition, if the award is to accomplish its intended purpose.

"A sincere active interest and participation in the outdoors, sporting activities and conservation is a personal trait that needs to be cultivated and promoted. Certainly, your junior sportsmans' award tends to foster that end, for which your organization is to be commended."

Other recipients of the SCWA junior awards have been Bobby Stathem, Redding, 1958; Charles Causley, McCloud, 1959; Dan Murdock, Dunsmuir, 1960, and Mike Auman, Weed, 1961.

DONALD WELCH
Junior Sportsman

There is much more to the junior award than just being sports-minded. Each of the boys selected has been carefully screened, and each recipient has had some special talent for the outdoors, all of which marks him as a true sportsman of the future.

IN THE CASE OF WILSON, it was a screening by the outdoor writers of California, all of whom are well qualified to pick out men who are outstanding for their work in the forests, on the lakes and streams and in conservation work.

Wilson has been particularly successful in causing the opening of reservoirs to sportfishing that otherwise might have remained closed forever. He joined other sportsmen in promoting the passage of legislation outlawing commercial fishing in inland areas of California.

He is secretary of the Hayward Sportsman's Club, a delegate from that group to the Associated Sportsmen of California, Inc., a member of the executive committee on public reservoirs, secretary of the advisory committee on public fishing and has the same position on the Pardee Reservoir fishing.

In connection with Pardee, he did much to cause the opening of that lake to the public in 1959.

Other recipients of the award have been Henry Clineschmidt, Redding, 1955; Dr. Paul R. Needham, Berkeley, 1956; Don Hunter, San Francisco, 1957; Albert B. McKee, Pasadena, 1958; Ray Welch, Fort Bragg, 1959; Orien W. Todd Jr., San Diego, 1960, and Father John McGoldrick, Willows, 1961.

THE SCWA ALWAYS MAKES the state's outdoor writers feel at home in this beautiful country, even though the stay is short. We arrive on Friday afternoon, attend an official dinner, sleep for three or four hours and then attempt a bit of fishing on Saturday. We fly to our respective homes on Sunday.

This year I'm stretching the time as far as is possible. Instead of fishing on Lake Shasta, one of the finest in the state, I'm touring the new Trinity Lake, formed back of Trinity Dam and destined to become as large as Shasta. There's room for argument there, but it's going to be a beautiful lake just the same.

We'll have an outdoor steak barbecue at Kamloops Kamp for the Saturday-evening blueplate special and then take a show-me trip with the U. S. Forest Service this morning.

I've had these show-me trips before. Usually a U. S. Forestry expert spins you through some of the most interesting country in the area and leaves you breathless and exhausted when you arrive at the airport to catch your plane.

Fifth across the line last year was Keith Lister's Chorlita of the San Diego Yacht Club.

Fast Construction Methods On Douglas Plant

Every Floor Is Poured at Ground Level

Hydraulic Jacks Lift Floor Sections Into Place

READY FOR WALLS

Lift-slab concrete construction methods were used for the floors of the new engineering and product development building at the Douglas Aircraft Co., plant here. The pre-poured pillars support 24 roof and floor sections 100 by 140 feet each. Each slab weighed 1,250,000 pounds and required 10 hours to jack each of the 10-inch concrete and steel slabs into position. In the background at the left is the new nine-story headquarters building also under construction in the $7,000,000 expansion program.—(Staff Photos by Sundquist.)

Rising Building Costs Termed Threat to Economy of Nation

WASHINGTON — Leonard L. Frank, president of the National Association of Home Builders, says the home building industry is seriously concerned with the problem of rising costs, which it is "seeking constantly to hold down."

As an instance of rising costs, Frank referred to the recent contract of Local 3 of the Electricians' Union in New York City which set a 25-hour work-week with a 56-cent hourly wage increase and said it has "caused particular alarm." He continued:

"A spiral of exorbitant wage increases in all the building trades might be set off. Construction costs could soar.

• • • •

"THE HOME building industry and the entire economy — building trades labor along with them—will suffer acutely if the continual demands for higher wages without corresponding productivity, do not cease."

The Long Island builder said that "the sum and substance of most of the difficulties encountered by builders rests in costs." He said all costs continue to grow—the cost of labor, of materials, of land and its development, of overhead, of taxes and the cost of money.

"The NAHB," he said, "has been only too keenly aware of this price spiral affecting its builder members. It is constantly seeking to hold down costs.

"It conducts a great deal of research at its laboratory in Rockville, Md., near Washington, D. C., where new building materials and methods of construction are developed and tested. Manufacturers of materials and equipment cooperate with us closely in these enterprises."

• • • •

"THE GOAL, of course, is to produce homes with better value for the owner and better value for the underlying mortgage," he said.

"We try continually to improve the quality of design and construction, create more livability, lessen the cost of maintenance and provide greater resale value."

Frank pointed out that the home building industry has produced more than 20 million dwelling units in the last 15 years and in doing so has added close to 150 billion dollars to the national wealth.

Highway Projects Called 'Too Big'

Renewed effort is being undertaken to reduce the basic size of California state highway construction projects to enable a larger number of construction firms to bid on the jobs and thereby reduce the most as a result of greater competition, according to H. E. Witt, president of the Engineering and Grading Contractors Association.

Smaller contracts, he said, would generally increase the speed of job completion schedules and would also spread the purchase of job materials and supplies among a larger number of vendors, thereby benefiting a greater number of California businessmen.

THIS ORGANIZATION, which is made up of grading, paving, excavating and bridge-building contractors throughout California, launched the program to seek reductions of the size of state highway contracts last year. Although 94 per cent of the unit state contracts let to bid are under $2½ million, the remaining six per cent still represents a much greater dollar volume.

Contracts in multi-million dollar size reduce the number of potential bidders since only a few firms are large enough to handle such contracts. It is the EGCA contention that if these large contracts are broken down into smaller segments, a larger number of bidders will participate, with an increased probability that lower bids will be received by the state and provide the public with more highway per dollar, and with less time for job completion schedules.

Construction of a 25,000 square foot headquarters building and manufacturing plant for the Tavart Co., manufacturer of garage door hardware and fiberglass screening, is under way in Paramount.

The biulding, in the new Garfield Industrial Center at Garfield Ave. and Alondra Blvd. in Paramount, is scheduled for completion by June 1.

General contractor for the concrete, tilt-up structure is John A. Alexander Co., Huntington Park, and the architect is Shelly-Montierth and Zamboni, Long Beach.

• • • •

THE PLANT is being built by Garfield Industrial Center Co. to Tavart's specifications and the company will lease it with an option to buy, according to S. Glenn Varley, Tavart president.

Life Agents Selected on Honor Roll

Eight Long Beach life insurance representatives and three more in the area are listed in the 1962 roster of the Million Dollar Round Table of the National Association of Life Underwriters. Every member of the 1962 Round Table must have sold at least a million dollars of life insurance in 1961 or else have met the even stricter requirements for Life membership by his sales in prior years. Fewer than 1 per cent of the word's life insurance agents are Round Table members.

The Long Beach representatives are C. C. Bateman of American National Insurance Co.; Richard C. Johnson of Equitable Life of Iowa; Sultan Z. Kuatza and Raleigh A. Parker of New York Life; Claude H. Murrell of Mutual of New York; Heller Stahl of American Mutual; Lawrence A. Whitesides, CLU, of Connecticut General Life, and John T. Wolf of National Life of Vermont.

The other area qualifiers are John W. Allen of Equitable Life of Iowa, Rossmoor; Benjamin V. Bellmore of American Mutual, Westminster, and Charles S. Nelson of United Services Life, Palos Verdes Estates.

SEWARD, Alaska (UPI) — Spencer D. Burt, who escaped from the city jail here recently, found himself back in custody because he picked the wrong person to ask for a ride.

NOTES OF BUSINESS

Market Explosion Seen in Southland

An executive of the world's largest tire company predicts the Southern California area will far outstrip the national average in the years ahead as a growing market for replacement tires and service.

By 1975, according to Vice President O. E. Miles of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., the population of the Long Beach-Los Angeles metropolitan area will grow some 45 per cent, compared to a 27 per cent increase in the United States.

Speaking before the Southern California Tire Dealers and Retreaders Association, Miles said the Long Beach-Los Angeles area will have an increase of more than 4.5 million people and a metropolitan market of 10 million persons in the next 13 years. This is comparable, he said, to adding the city populations of Detroit, Baltimore, Washington, Boston and San Francisco to the present market.

Citing these figures to show that Southern California is the fastest growing area in the country, Miles said "it represents a market 'explosion' in every sense of the word." He spoke at the convention in Los Angeles.

Armour Heads Low-Cost Housing Planning Group

Heading the Low Price Housing Study Committee of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties will be Larry Armour, Anaheim home builder, according to Merrill Butler Jr., HBA president.

The HBA will build a demonstration low price housing development this year. These homes will sell in the $10,000 price range with payments of approximately $75 a month, including principle, interest and insurance. From 20 to 40 single family homes will be built, with a dozen or more HBA builder members participating.

"Our objective is to demonstrate that individual home builders can produce a low price home for the family earning $5,000 or less a year in this high-priced home market," said Armour.

• • • •

"IF THE LOCAL governing bodies in control of zoning, codes and other regulatory devices will work with us, this necessary job of low-price housing can be done. Their help is needed to permit our home builders to produce homes without the restrictive regulations which are unnecessary in most cases and which in effect increase the cost of the home. Particularly do the zoning regulating lot sizes need to be re-evaluated."

Armour, secretary of the HBA, and a member of its board of directors, is co-owner of Park Village Homes. The firm has built more than 1,000 homes since it was launched in 1954 in Orange County, mainly in Anaheim, Fullerton, and Buena Park, under the Park Village name.

Fullerton Firm Adds Division

The attractive modern kitchens in Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes feature built-in range and oven and natural finish cabinets.

Homes by Hunsaker Appeal to Buyers

According to Richard C. Hunsaker, president of S. V. The fact that Huntington Beach Sunshine homes offer popular West Coast architectural planning, built-ins, and modern materials designed for lifetime satisfaction are important reasons for buyer preference he adds.

Huntington Beach Sunshine homes have unusually attractive exteriors, characterized by wide overhangs serving both as artistic and utilitarian purpose, and offer the home buyer plenty of living area with three and four bedrooms, two full baths, family room, and large two-car garage.

Last Golden West Home Unit Already Under Construction

Construction is getting underway on the eighth and last unit at Golden West Estates in Huntington Beach, announced Jim McCarthy, vice-president of the McCarthy Co., co-builders with the Sant Construction Co.

"As we have before, we'd like to invite homebuyers to inspect every step of the construction process. We encourage everyone to talk to our skilled workmen, ask questions, and check things for themselves," McCarthy said.

"Since we've run out of land, the new eighth unit must be our last at Golden West. To buy more land, we'd have to pay some $5,000 an acre more than we paid years ago for our present land. That's about $1,500 more per lot—a cost which would make it impossible to offer homes like these at current low prices."

• • • •

GOLDEN WEST homes are offered in a choice of 22 different exteriors, including Colonial, Spanish, Provincial, Monterey Ranch, Contemporary and Hawaiian. Among the plans is a double-patio design, with an enclosed entrance-way court and a second patio designed for fresh-air meals and secluded poolside relaxation.

Priced from $17,500, Golden West homes are offered with new 35-year, 5½% FHA terms, as well as conventional terms and VA no-down-payment terms. FHA down payments are from $800, while conventional down payments are from $695. A lay-away plan permits buyers to reserve their home with a $100 deposit while they build up to their down payment.

• • • •

FEATURES INCLUDE: Breakfast bar, natural ash cabinets, wide-and-high sliding glass doors, forced-air heating, extra-large stall showers, Wilson-Art sink tops with coved splashes, large service area, exhaust fan in kitchen and baths, center entry halls.

From Long Beach, the homes may be reached via Seventh Street east to Golden West Street, then right to furnished models.

Top Awards for Safety

The nation's highest awards for professional safe driving by the National Safety Council were presented 40 drivers of Pacific Motor Trucking in Santa Ana and Long Beach Harbor areas recently at a luncheon meeting at Knott's Berry Farm.

Top national safety awards for 14 years of accident-free driving were presented James C. Reeves and John V. Mercado.

Drivers attending were included in the 1,248 Pacific Motor Trucking Company drivers throughout the system who will or have received such safe driving awards for 1961. The total awards add up to 5,377 years of safe driving in the six western states in which P.M.T. operates.

DONATE STATION SITE

SUCCESS STORY

GW GW GW

THE GOLDEN WEST SAGA is a story of overwhelming public response. To date, SEVEN FULL UNITS have virtually sold out...EIGHTH AND LAST UNIT NOW SELLING! Why such outstanding popularity? Not because these homes are cheaply priced...they aren't. Not because they're expensively priced...they certainly aren't. Why, then? Because Golden West offers you, the buyer, more solid value for your money than any other home at any other price.

BONANZA! Golden West offers you 1963 value at yesterday's low prices! Wide choice of custom-varied exteriors...beautiful double-patio models...wood-paneled living rooms...large garages with rear "boat doors." Sales up to 25 homes in one weekend give proof of superior value!

YOUR FINAL OPPORTUNITY...THE "LAST FRONTIER" AT GOLDEN WEST! You must buy now...while the new eighth unit lasts. When it's gone, our supply of land will be exhausted. Buying the same land today would cost us $5,000 more per acre...about $1,500 more per lot! Thus we can offer no more of these value-packed homes at current low prices. This is your last opportunity to get your land at yesterday's low costs...to gain a huge potential resale profit...and to enjoy life at beautiful Golden West Estates!

Dividends Available

Twenty-three million dollars is still available to pay dividends to some 210,000 Korea veterans who hold "RS" term insurance policies, according to Mort Webster, manager of VA's Southern California Regional Office.

This special dividend, Webster pointed out, is available only to those veterans who still hold policies with the prefix "RS" in front of their policy number. No other government life insurance policyholders are eligible.

THE "RS" policyholder cannot be paid this dividend unless he takes one of the following two actions:

1. Exchange his "RS" term insurance policy for a term policy that (a) will generally cost him only one-third of what he is now paying; and (b) the new policy cannot be renewed as term insurance after age 50—but it can be converted to a low cost permanent plan insurance policy at any time before the insured reaches age 50.

2. Convert his policy to a low cost permanent plan insurance policy now.

If the "RS" policyholder takes either of the above actions before Sept. 14, 1963, he will receive his special dividend. These dividends average about $100, depending upon the age of the policyholder and the length of time he has held his policy.

A DEVELOPMENT OF GEORGE M. HOLSTEIN & SONS

Wide Selection of Customized Homes Available in Del Cerro

A wide choice of plans and customized selections are available this week at George M. Holstein and Sons' Del Cerro community in Tustin, with the pioneer building firm offering a pre-selection in their newest unit.

With occupancy set for late summer, buyers purchasing in the new group of three and four bedroom homes will have choice of colors, tile, entry material, paneling, fireplace design, cabinet finish, appliance color, carpet type and color, and many other custom like details.

• • • •

PRICED FROM $23,400, the developer pointed out that the custom details available to the particular buyer were in many ways the same kind of choices usually reserved for much more expensive homes. The pre-selection also gives buyer a chance to sell a current home in many cases, the developers explained.

The initial Del Cerro unit sold rapidly and pre-sales in the new group are already well under way, but the selection is still ideal for almost every plan, Holstein declared.

• • • •

ALONG WITH the choice area, custom details, and tasteful Del Cerro designs, the development also offers some of the Tustin area's most liberal terms. Several homes in the initial unit are offered as low as a total $995 down payment.

To reach Del Cerro from the Long Beach area, drive East on 17th St. to Santa Ana then take the San Diego Freeway South. The Freeway on-ramp is just east of Main St. off of 17th St. in Santa Ana. Stay on the Freeway south to the Red Hill turnoff then take Red Hill North (left) about one mile to Del Cerro.

A DEL CERRO HOME
Choice of several cabinet finishes, tile, flooring, light fixtures, fireplace design and many other custom details are available in the current unit of the Del Cerro homes on Red Hill Avenue in Tustin. The homes are priced from $23,400 with presale program allowing buyers to customize home with late summer move-in date.

To Raze Hollywood Normandie Village

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Normandie Village, a Sunset Strip landmark where Hollywood stars of a bygone era worked and played, is about to be demolished to make way for a modern hotel.

The village, a complex of garden type apartments, was built in the early 1920s and many of Hollywood's big names made their homes here before and after their names were big.

Those were the days when movies were silent and moviemakers' parties were noisy.

• • • •

THE ORNATE stuccoed walls of the place — French provincial in architecture — were used for exterior shots in many movies. The Casbah scenes from "Algiers" were filmed here. And it was a convenient and suitable location for movies made after World War II on the French underground and in spy pictures with a European locale.

Names of world famous figures associated with the place at one time or another include: Richard Dix, Billie Dove, Jimmy Stewart, Jean Hersholt, Paul Muni, Myrna Loy, Clara Bow, Joseph Schildkraut, Edgar Rice Burroughs, P. G. Wodehouse, Henry Fonda and Michele Morgan.

The gardens will be swept clear of their lush foliage—with only a towering palm tree spared.

After demolition of the landmark, construction will begin on a $9 million, 20-story hotel—the Hollywood Thunderbird. The 600-room hotel is scheduled for opening in 1963.

Terrace View Sites in Huntington Hills

Consensus of home-buying families at Huntington Hills, "Ocean view" community in smog-free Huntington Hills lists terraced view sites, Sea breezes and the very favorable financing as "plus" attractions of the handsome, luxuriously appointed residences, W. D. McCaffrey, of Sale Co., reports.

Veterans, he explained, have a total "move-in" of just $8S and for non-veterans there is choice of good conventional loans of the new, low 35-year FHA financing, and full prices are from $17,500. Homes are ready for occupancy, including two fine "specials" — these, the two spacious homes that are complete with pool and patio and boast a full price of $20,990 each.

Huntington Hills presents a diverse choice of attractive exteriors and the plans are designed with three and four bedrooms, two baths, a convenient multi-purpose family room and a big two-car garage.

• • • •

FOCAL POINT of interest for the distaff members of home buying families, McCaffrey said, is the kitchen. Each is planned for pleasant efficiency, and equipped with built-in gas wall oven and range, cabinets of natural ash, double compartment sinks with disposer and single handle swing spout faucet. Added convenience, a built-in ash cabinet inside the house that is designed for washer and dryer.

From Long Beach, Huntington Hills is reached by driving south on Pacific Coast Highway (U.S. 101) to Huntington Beach. Then go left on Beach Blvd. (Highway 39) and drive two miles to the community.

Admiral Sales in Sharp Gain

CHICAGO — Consolidated net sales of Admiral Corp. in the first quarter were $49,135,496, 16 per cent higher than the $42,432,930 reported last year, it was announced today by Vincent Barreca, president.

Consolidated earnings before taxes were $1,187,956, compared with $302,910 in the comparable quarter of 1961.

Barreca said that television movement continued strong during the quarter, with color receivers being backordered for the entire period. Appliance sales were considerably higher in the quarter with refrigerators setting the pace.

Find Fewer Delinquent Home Loans

CHICAGO — Delinquency rates on home mortgages for the first quarter of 1962 show a "substantial reduction" according to the latest national survey of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America. The survey analyzes almost 2,600,000 mortgage loans on one to four-family units from 400 MBA member firms to determine the percentage of delinquent payments past due at least one month, as well as the percentage of loans in foreclosure as of March 31, 1962.

This latest survey shows decreases from prior quarter delinquency figures for all three types of loans.

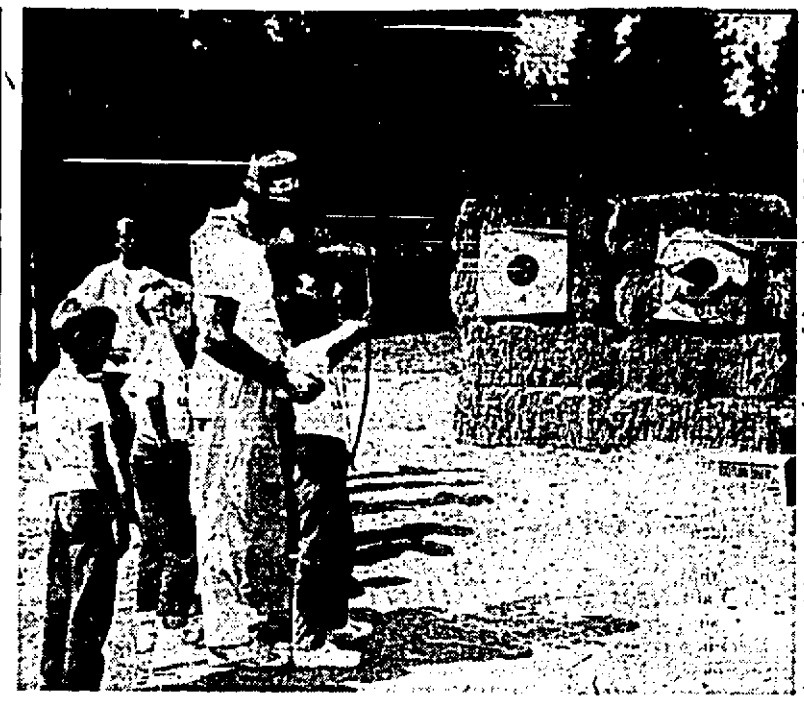

Delinquencies fell from a high of 94,744 as of Dec. 31, to 75,010 as of March 31 (a delinquency percentage drop from 3.10 to 2.68). Of this 2.68% delinquency ratio, less than one-half of 1% of all mortgage loans were over 60 days delinquent (.48%), and less than one-third of 1% were more than 90 days delinquent (.29%).

Directing Bank Training Program

Appointment of Creighton Lacey-Baker, 3121 Woodruff Ave., to assistant cashier, management development division, was announced by Security First National Bank.

In his new post, he will assist the branches in Orange County in establishing training programs.

A native of Long Beach, Lacey-Baker attended Long Beach Woodrow Wilson High School and graduated from Long Beach State College with a B.S. degree in business administration.

THESE YOUTHS FORTUNATE
Unlike these fortunate youngsters whose parents could afford to pay for their week's camping and fun at the YMCA's Camp Oakes, there are hundreds of boys and girls in the Long Beach area dependent upon the Community Welfare Council's campership drive for money for their fees.

Ask Help to Send Many Needy Youngsters to Mountains Camp

As part of the observance this week of American Camp Week an appeal for camperships for needy boys and girls living in the Long Beach-Lakewood area has been issued by Carl Bartlett, Community Welfare Council campership chairman.

Eight youth organizations maintaining mountain camps plan to share funds collected by the Council committee to pay camp fees for deserving children.

Citing examples of boys and girls worthy of help, Bartlett told of the only son of a mother who is mentally retarded; the boy lives with two uncles, both of whom are ill.

• • • •

"THIS YOUNGSTER, alert and bright, desperately needs the companionship of others his own age," Bartlett reports.

He said that the majority of the children come from broken homes, and may be further handicapped by having mothers who are either mentally or physically ill.

Through the Welfare Council's plea for campership last spring, over a hundred youngsters were enabled to enjoy at least one or two weeks in the mountains.

The average fee that Community Chest agencies charge for a week in camp for them is supplemented in some cases with partial payments by relatives of the children, Bartlett explained, but many must depend entirely upon the generosity of the organizations and individuals contributing to the fund.

• • • •

"FOR INSTANCE, in a family of nine children where the father is out of the home there is scarcely sufficient money for food and shelter and none for recreational advantages," he continued. "Particularly in need of a change in this family is the 11 year old boy who misses having a father around to teach him how to play."

He tells of another situation where there are five children and the 14 year old son has had to assume all the responsibilities of being the "man of the house."

"If his father couldn't take it and deserted them, you can imagine what it is doing to the youngster," the committee chairman remarked. "He should have a chance to be a kid again for at least a week."

Careful screening goes into all requests made for camperships. Names and circumstances are submitted by social workers and juvenile authorities for consideration.

• • • •

KNOWING THAT there are enough funds to take care of all that wish to go and could benefit, special pains are taken that only those most urgently in need of the experience are selected.

LAW IN THE NEWS

Even After Death, Contract May Bind

You cannot get out of a contract just because you made a bad deal or because you changed your mind. Tough luck will not get you off the hook, unless you cover it in the contract.

A builder agreed to build a home for a certain price. Then his costs skyrocketed due to unexpected increases in labor and material costs. Could he get out of his contract? No. Unless the contract says what is to be done if there are unexpected costs, the contract is binding and the law will hold the builder to it. From the builder's standpoint, a good contract would provide that, in case of increased costs, the buyer would pay them.

• • • •

SUPPOSE YOU AGREE to sell 100 steers which you own for a certain price, and hoof and mouth disease kills off most of them. Scarcity may boost the cattle price. Since you can buy steers, even at ski-high prices, you will either have to do so and perform the contract, or pay the buyer damages for your failure to perform.

Things which the law says the parties should have thought about, such as increased costs or strikes, are no excuse for not going ahead with the contract unless the contract says that it is an excuse. An exception to this rule is where performance is prevented by an irresistible, superhuman cause—as where the grape crop which was sold failed because of unusual heat.

The law itself — without anything being said about it in the contract—excuses you from carrying out your contract if the law forbids the thing called for in the contract—for example, a building in violation of a zoning law.

• • • •

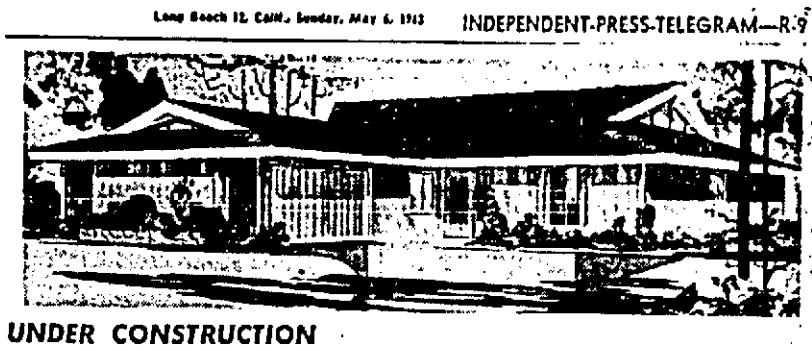

WHERE THE VERY THING contracted for is destroyed, as when the house to be sold burns down, the law excuses performance.

Contrary to popular opinion, death will not excuse performance, unless the contract calls for the personal services of the decedent, such as those of an author, actor, or lawyer.

And so the law will enforce most agreements against the estate of the decedent. This is true even if the contract calls for the payment of money over a long period of time, as in the case of a lease. The result may well be to impoverish the decedent's family. A good lease provision, from the lessee's standpoint, would be one giving his estate the right to cancel in the event of his death.

Where fraud exists, the innocent party who entered into the contract can, on learning of the fraud, cancel the contract and be excused from performing his part of the agreement.

Historic Ranch Land Offered for Homes

Beamish announced this prime coastal ranch land is now available for the first time for outright ownership.

Rancho Carrillo is 8 miles east of San Juan Capistrano —just off the Ortega Hwy. (74). At an elevation of 2200 feet in the Cleveland National Forest, it has a fine all-year-round climate, out of the coastal fog zone, but still cooled by ocean breezes.

Legal Aid: Justice for All

Schulein: "Even the Poor Can Afford the Very Best"

Zimmerman: "Free Counsel Protects the Penniless"

By MARY NETH

The lawyer's sympathetic interest was too much for the distraught young woman.

She burst into tears.

Legal Aid Attorney Robert Zimmerman reached into his desk drawer for the tissues he keeps for such emergencies, waited for his client to compose herself, then went ahead with the interview.

Her problem? No means to support her two small children. Her husband had left for another state. She had no money for child care and so, could not look for work. Evicted from her apartment for non-payment of rent, she and her off-spring had spent the night in the park.

Was there something the attorney could do?

There was. He filed a complaint to force the out-of-state husband to provide for his children. He called the landlord and finding the eviction illegal, arranged for the young woman to re-enter the apartment on a temporary basis. Then, he sent her to a welfare agency for immediate aid.

Cost to the client: $2 registration fee. That's the way the Legal Aid Foundation works.

LEGAL AID means justice for all: For the elderly pensioner, the unwed mother, the unemployed, the infirm—anyone lacking the where-with-all to pay for legal counsel.

Domestic relations (child support and custody, annulment, adoption, separate maintenance) make up 60 per cent of the cases. The rest of the work load takes in money claims, tenant's rights, installment contracts and garnishements.

In fact, the foundation handles all types of cases but the criminal. Those are turned over to the public defender.

How is it done? The organization, set up locally six years ago as a non-profit corporation, is supported by the Long Beach Bar Association—with no help from either taxpayer or community agencies.

The office itself at 115 Pine Ave., suite 512, is far from pretentious, but serves its purposes. There clients are cleared by the receptionist, then seen on a first-come, first-served basis, which sometimes can add up to a lot of waiting room reading.

But, everyone is seen.

And those who qualify get the best legal representation money can buy—at no cost.

DEALING OUT the advice and fighting the court battles are two of Long Beach's busiest and most dedicated young attorneys.

Chief Counsel Zimmerman and his associate, Sidney Schulein, handle about 200 new cases a month, besides keeping on top of those already on file.

"Often, however, just a telephone call will do the trick," says Zimmerman. "In border-line cases of legality the bully-type plaintiff usually yields as soon as we enter the picture."

A Stanford Law graduate, 27-year-old Zimmerman came to Legal Aid directly following admission to the bar in 1960.

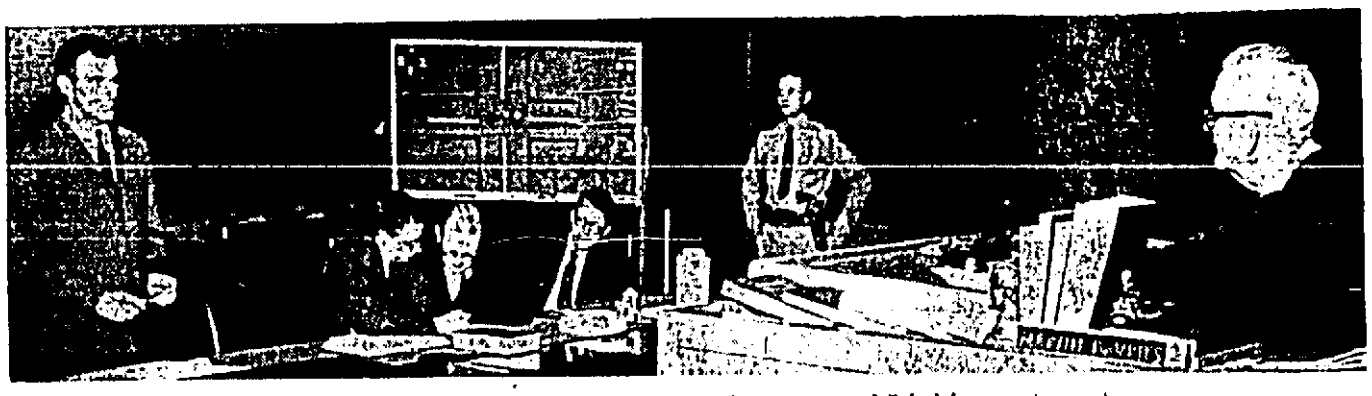

He entered the profession because he "believes in justice, likes to deal with people and thought it would give him the best chance to use his talents." He hopes to go into practice for himself someday, meantime likens his Legal Aid work to an "internship." "The work is harder and more repetitious than encountered in a regular practice," he explains. "But, for a young law-

Blackwell Needles the Pin-Ups

By MARY ELLIS
I. P-T Fashion Editor

Needles and pins are the favorite weapons of Hollywood's actor-turned-designer Mr. Blackwell—especially when it comes to sticking them in overdressed (or underdressed) pin-up girls.

With a tongue as sharp as his workroom shears, he recently proclaimed his second annual list of the cinema capital's Ten Worst-Dressed Women.

The bosomy ones: Sophia Loren, Jayne Mansfield, Marilyn Monroe and Diana Dors.

Also named: Zsa Zsa Gabor, Lucille Ball, Connie Stevens, Kathy Nolan, Shirley MacLaine and Debbie Reynolds.

LEADING THE LIST is queen-of-the-international-set Zsa Zsa, of whom he says: "She reminds me of a car covered with a nylon parachute."

Miss Loren he dismisses with: "Off screen she is still the Italian shop girl she so often portrays."

As for Mansfield: "Her plunging neckline has become a bare midriff problem."

And about Marilyn: "In private life she is a road show version of her screen personality."

Of England's voluptuous Miss Dors: "Nothing stylewise can be salvaged from this girl, so why bother?"

PROVING HE doesn't love Lucy: "Miss Ball's motto must be, 'if you can't wear it, carry it.'"

Connie Stevens? "Away from the studio she wears anything she can get her hands on, and it shows."

He accuses Kathy Nolan of looking like a "hill billy wife."

About Miss MacLaine: "She looks as if everyone she knows has given her something to wear."

As for Debbie: "She simply can't project the sex she tries for in her clothes. They make her look silly."

After a Fashion

IN AN EXCLUSIVE I. P.-T. interview, this maverick of the fashion world, who grew up in the New York slum area known as Hell's Kitchen, explained why he presumes to build fires under movietown's glamor queens.

His words: "My motto is to encourage women to dress UP to themselves. I merely let the 'ouches' fall where they will."

Did he have repurcussions from last year's worst-dressed list?

"Press agents threatened suits, also to punch me in the nose."

Result: He goes on undaunted, seemingly unconcerned about offending a prospective customer loaded with residuals and oil wells or who, figuratively speaking, has pink champagne in her swimming pool

RICHARD BLACKWELL was born in the slums of New York, went on to movie stardom as one of the original Dead End Kids. While trying for other, more mature, parts, he designed ladies' check-book covers and belts, later returned to show biz as a personal manager. His flair for design emerged when he whipped up a gown for a client. The next day, newspaper notices were for the gown, not the singer's talents. It was then Mr. Blackwell, together with his partner, Robert L. Spencer, opened a small showroom which, in a few short years, has catapulted into one of California's leading fashion houses.

'DISCOVER YOURSELF'

You CAN Be Lovely, Desirable - - You Really CAN

By WILMA HASTINGS

You are a wonderful person, absolutely fabulous!

You CAN be lovely — you CAN be desirable — you CAN be charming and make others feel wonderful just by being near them.

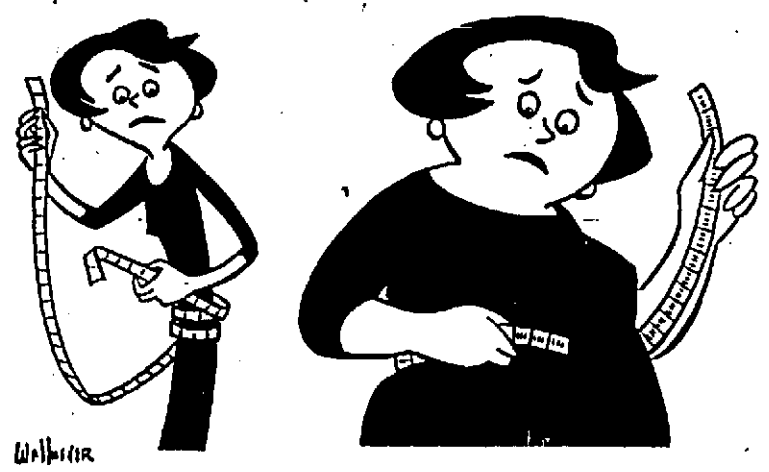

But ARE you? Are you as feminine and attractive as you could be?

Just look at yourself and be honest. Are you pleased with the person you see in the mirror? Few of us are completely satisfied — and when our families and friends try to reassure us about our shortcomings, it doesn't really help because we KNOW the shortcomings exist and we must meet them in mortal combat, not try to excuse them or deny their existence.

We must overcome our shortcomings in three ways — by making the most of our actual persons, by dressing appropriately and by giving our personalities full sway.

But remember, before we get into the mechanics of discovering the true you, this material is for ALL women and girls, not just teen-agers. WHY? Because it's NEVER too late to be lovely!

I'll tell you how to stand and walk, sit properly, and get in and out of a car gracefully. Ever see a baboon in motion? Don't laugh — chances are the baboon is right and you are wrong, that's why I teach the "baboon walk."

• • • •

I'LL TELL you how to style your hair and care for it correctly, how to apply your make-up and what make-up you should apply, how to select the right colors in make-up and apparel. Moving into clothing, I'll show you how you should dress right from the skin out! And we'll talk a good bit about your personality, too, because this is so important.

Did you ever walk along a beach and pick up a beautiful sea shell? Wasn't it exquisite? It was the "fine feathers" of some sea creature — and it remained beautiful.

But it is utterly devoid of personality, therefore it is merely an ornament instead of the vital thing it should be with the beauty it possesses.

None of us wants to be like a sea shell, beautiful but merely decorative. That is why it is necessary to accent the personality work so heavily.

There are three things necessary for self-improvement — getting started, an open mind and constant application of the suggestions offered. YOU are the only person who can help you in this work. I can give you the material — but how you apply it is up to you!

• • • •

NOW, let's get started. Put on a blouse and pair of shorts. On a piece of paper record the date you started and your measurements — bust, waist, upper hip, lower hip, thigh, calf, ankle, height and weight. Put this away in your files — you're going to see some dramatic changes.

My standard is that a girl five feet tall should weigh 100 pounds, providing that she has a normal bone structure. Five pounds should be added for each inch above five feet, and five pounds should be subtracted for each inch below five feet.

Proportion is important in measurements. There should be 10 inches difference between the bust and waist and 10 inches difference between the waist and lower hip. Thighs are another matter, and a great deal depends on body structure and firmness of flesh, too. But, generally, a girl five feet, six inches tall should have a thigh measurement of 21 inches maximum, while a girl five feet four should have a 19-20-inch thigh.

• • • •

NOW THAT you have determined what your weight should be, let's consider overweight, which is much more common than underweight. Overweight is a matter of pounds, so it is possible for a girl to be the correct weight and yet have big thighs, legs or hips. This calls for normalizing the flesh so you will lose inches, not pounds.

But with overweight, do not be foolish and go for "crash" diets and violent exercise. These can kill you. The answer is good diet and systematic exercise. In my booklet I provide a complete seven-day diet, but for the purpose of illustration, let me give you just a sample one-day diet here:

BREAKFAST: ½ grapefruit, 1 soft-cooked egg, 1 slice whole wheat toast, ½ square of butter, 1 cup black coffee.

LUNCH: 1 cup broth, medium serving roast beef, ½ cup new cabbage, 1 slice tomato, 1 sliced orange, 1 glass skim milk, 1 slice whole wheat bread, ½ square of butter.

DINNER: Medium serving lean cold ham, ½ cup green beans, 5 or 6 celery or carrot sticks, 2 halves water-packed pears, 1 glass skim milk, 1 slice whole wheat bread, ½ square of butter, 1 cup tea with lemon.

Underweight is not as serious as overweight as long as the general health is good. Usually time will correct this condition.

But this is important — overweight or underweight, please be tranquil when you eat. Avoid disturbances. Also avoid eating at your desk, if possible. Get a change of scenery. But if you MUST eat at your desk, then get a change of pace—read a magazine or chat with friends — but NOT about work. This will do wonders for your digestion and your mental well-being.

In tomorrow's article I'm going to tell you about "The Great Lady Look and Walk", and give you a simple exercise to improve your posture, which is what 90 per cent of us need!

Star Spangled Soroptimist Party to Greet Soon-to-Be U.S. Citizens

One is a young man from Hungary and one is a matron from Red China. What have they in common? Both are living in Long Beach and each is well on the way to becoming an American citizen.

Their preparation: Completion of a course in citizenship through Adult Division, Long Beach City College.

To celebrate: A "New Citizens" party Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Whaley Park Clubhouse, 5260 Atherton Ave.

The star-spangled event is the fifth annual such party given by Soroptimist Club of Long Beach. In all, 520 invitations have been sent to those who've completed and who are still taking the course. Quite an increase in guests when compared with the mere 20 attending that first get-together back in 1956.

Siegfried C. Ringwald, assitant dean of West Adult Center, will preside. George Geiger, assistant superintendent of Long Beach Elementary Schools and Louis Cook, dean of City College Adult Division, will present certificates to the 200 graduates.

• • • •

THE PROGRAM will include Introduction by Darlene Capouch, president of Soroptimists, community singing and speeches by two students (Angela Wolfron, Mexico and Willie Kraan, Holland), on 'What American Citizenship Means to Me."

Thirty-nine countries will be represented. The largest number of citizens-to-be are from Great Britain with West Germany a close second. Also, and not to be forgotten, party-goers: 10 Hungarian freedom fighters who participated in the revolution, November 1955 and one Thailander.

Perhaps the happiest celebrant will be Ernoe J. Szegfue, a Hungarian who has had a first hand look at satellite statehood from behind concentration camp barbed wire in Yugoslavia.

Following escape to Salsburg, Austria, he waited-out a four year U. S. quota and now is a maintenance man at Memorial Hospital studying industrial electronics on the side.

Among the other modern-day immigrants: interns, housewives, dishwashers, doctors, lawyers and teachers.

CITIZENS-TO-BE . . . Ernoe Szegfue of Hungary and Yuk Lee Fong of China proudly compare citizenship certificates—their first step toward naturalization. He escaped Hungary via Yugoslavian term in concentration camp, came to U. S. on quota from Austria in 1955. She left Red China in 1953; still receives mail from daughter who is not allowed to join her. Both will attend "New Citizens" party given by Soroptimists Wednesday.

Party Invitation

Sunday Get-Together Club will host a card party, open to the public, Wednesday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Garden Room, Third Street and Alamitos Avenue. Refreshments will be served.

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Iola Masterson • I, P-T Women's Editor

IN MEXICO CITY well dressed women are never supposed to wear hats. But when Pat and Dr. Walter Gilkey were there recently Pat ignored the Mexican fashion rule, wore a lavish red petaled affair.

So one day, with her war-bonnet firmly in place, she and Walt set out. They wanted to visit an old church. To get there they had to walk through a courtyard which was being torn up for repairs.

As they picked their way through the yard they casually noticed that the workers were playing some kind of throw and catch game. Suddenly, whap! One of the pitchers missed his mark and hit Pat's head and hat, knocking both quite askew.

The kicker of this story is, it wasn't a ball which bounced off her bright beanie but a human skull! What the workers were doing was digging up an ancient graveyard, probably of Aztec origin. They were tossing bones of all kinds to be stacked row on row in readiness for re-burial somewhere else.

Instead of horror the whole incident struck Gilkeys and workers, alike, as hilarious. Guess from now on Pat can call her chapeaux her skull cap.

MANY LEGAL eagle types at Apple Valley Steak House Tuesday p.m. Most of them were un-winding after winding up duties on annual Law Day. Dining together, for instance, were Georgia and Blaine Simons, Glenda and Earl Barnes and Legia and Sterling Clayton.

Also noted were Betty and "Tennessee Johnny" Calhoun and Virginia and Charles Dickie, the latter not legal. Meaning not of the bar set. Hmmm. Doesn't come out quite right, whichever way you say it.

IN PALM Springs trying to diagnose what's wrong with their golf games are the Long Beach Medical Golfers Association, a group of medics who have banded together in self defense of their game, no doubt. Among those who went down for a tournament at Tamarisk are Liz and Bob Barmeyer, Joan and Greg Hoskins, Bonnie and Dan O'Toole, Joan and Bill Eddy, Charlotte an Paul Smith and Ann and Jack Lynn.

All I have to add is, "Physician, cure thy slice."

HERE'S A social note you can call musical. Lillian Crawford, chairman of the just-getting-organized Women's Guild of the new Community Music Theater, is having a coffee reception Wednesday for the charter membership.

Assisting her tend doorbell and coffee cups will be Myrtle Murphy, Mareta Hart, Peg Akers and Doris Wood.

They'll jump in, with batons flying, to aid and abet the group's first production of "Music Man" in June.

"IT FLOATS" triumphed Jan and John Miller when they launched their sleek new 36-foot cruiser, Aloha Mele (love song), Wednesday. Of course, they rather suspected that it would all along having been overseers of its construction from the beginning. They designed and did most of the interior themselves, incidentally.

A launching calls for a party and a party they had. A few of those who boarded were Sue and Ross Elliott, Mary and John Holmes, Mac and Peg McColloch and Nan and Lee McColloch, Bill Williams, Pat and Ray Olerts, Dr. Bill Scott and Phyllis Kronenberg.

TIGER TRAP!

Oh, oh, Lady Lions almost have a tiger by the tail. At least they have him well in sights. Also in their sights—All-City Lady Lions Safari Tuesday, 7 p.m. Hunters (from left): Mmes. Arthur Lescher, Frank Hardesty, Dale Bartholomew, Ray Strande, O. A. Syverson, W. W. Slater.

Tea to Honor Foundation Benefactors

—Staff Photo

THEY MEAN IT . . . Mrs. O. A. Warner and Mrs. Millard Nichols express appreciation for contributions to Exceptional Children's Foundation. Tea honoring local clubs, churches and individuals who have supported work for mentally retarded children will be given by foundation Friday from noon to 3 p.m. at 4519 E. Stearns St.

Exceptional children shouldn't be the exception when it comes to education.

The Exceptional Children's Foundation, Inc., of Long Beach, is seeing that these youngsters have that chance—with classes keyed to the needs of the mentally retarded child.

Friday the foundation will honor churches, fraternities, sororities, men's and women's service clubs who have helped (through contributions) to make this possible.

The event will be the group's 11th annual reciprocity tea from noon to 3 p.m. at 4519 E. Stearns St.

Exceptional Children's Foundation was organized here in 1951. In 1955 it moved to its own building constructed by AFL building trades with labor donated by union members. Then, when the city of Long Beach donated $25,000, work shops for older boys and girls were added.

• • • •

APPROXIMATELY 90 students are enrolled at the present time. The nursery class is open for the young mentally retarded who need training in personal habits and socialization.

The kindergarten class is for the young child who is able to take simple direction for short periods of time. Intermediate and primary classes are for children capable of doing craft and some academic work.

In the two senior classes the children are at various levels of development. There individual instruction is most important.

One afternoon a week senior students bowl and senior girls attend a homemaking class at the YWCA. A teen-dance is held once a month and swimming instruction is available for all age groups during the summer in Jewish Community Center. Boys 12 and over participate in an active Boy Scout Troop.

During Friday's tea the children will be in their classes to demonstrate the type of work they do.

Chairmen for the tea are Mmes. O. A. Warner, Gordon Warnock, John Castle, Gertrude Anderson, Glen McKee and George Papadakis.

Polls Compare Art Tastes

By ELISE EMERY
Art Page Editor

How does the art preference of laymen compare with that of professional artists?

In a practical effort to find out, Long Beach Art Association has just conducted simultaneous polls—one a "People's Choice" in which non-professionals balloted, the other "Selectors' Choice" directed to association members.

For comparison and as a sort of control, artist Lucille Brown Greene was asked to make a selection of her choice from the paintings shown in the association's Villa Riviera Gallery March 26 to April 29.

Popular voting gave first place to Mrs. Alyce Sanders' portrait, "Mexican Boy;" second to Edward Rugels' "French Nurse;" third to Audre Hutchins' "Morning Mist."

• • • •

CONCLUDES gallery director Marie Bucher: "Since these pictures all come within the classification of traditional expressionism, it thus appears that the Long Beach public leans toward discipline in art, respects literal reproduction of anatomy and nature and would be counted among the hordes who look with wonder at the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel or the walls of the Reichsmusee and marvel at their reality."

• • • •

WINNERS in the second category were Dr. Eugene C. Wallin, first, "Locomotive Wheels;" Lee Beck, second, "Foggy Harbor;" and Robert J. Adams, third, "Lyric for a Garden." All are classed as modified, transitional or tentative abstract.

Says Mrs. Bucher: "While the ballot results indicate that the professional artists tend to be more progressive than the public, it is apparent that our local artists have not abandoned self-discipline for non-objectivism and are not likely to drive cars back and forth in pools of paint and hope to be discovered as creators of a new school of art."

• • • •

YOU CAN judge the winning paintings for yourself. They will hang in the gallery until May 28. Winners will receive awards during a reception today from 3 to 5 p.m.

Also on display is a one-man show by Wallin, who has been association president since 1960; paintings by Dr. Charles Thompson, Evelyn Carpenter, Orva Dillingham, Lucille Brown Greene and Marlyn Prior; and ceramics by Dr. Robert Ramsey.

• • • •

NEW EXHIBITS opening today at Long Beach Museum of Art, in addition to the LBAA Juried Show, are a review of the first exhibit in the Arts of Southern California series, "Architecture;" and "Arms and Armor of Old Japan." Master work of the month is a Yoroi composite suit of armor, 16th century Japanese, from the collection of Robert E. Wright.

A reception is scheduled from 2 to 4 p.m. today; exhibits will be on view through May 27.

• • • •

OILS, watercolors and caseins by Jean Lee, Long Beach artist, will be on display through May 31 at Dana Branch Library. Hours are noon to 9 p.m., weekdays except Fridays; 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Saturdays.

"AUCTION of the Month" painting at Jewish Community Center, 2601 Grand Ave., is by Connor Everts, winner of many prize awards. It will hang in the center lobby until May 15 and bids will be accepted.

The first painting, featured last month, "The Vendor," by Paul Blaine, was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. David Ruderman.

'SELECTOR' VS. 'PEOPLE'
Dr. Eugene Wallin won first place with "Locomotive Wheels" in the Selectors' Choice poll conducted by Long Beach Art Association. Mrs. Alyce Sanders received first in the comparative People's Choice balloting for her painting, "Mexican Boy."

Musical Arts

Romara Olson, dramatic soprano, will sing a varied program for Musical Arts Club members and guests Tuesday at noon in the Wilton Hotel. Louise Agal will accompany. Miss Olson is soloist at First Baptist Church and has sung for many Long Beach organizations and with LBCC Schola Cantorum.

Clayton Barrie, president, will conduct the business session.

KNUT NYSTEDT ADDS TALENTS TO FESTIVAL

By RACHEL MORTON
L-P-T Music Critic

Knut Nystedt (pronounced Nee-sted) lately arrived from Norway, has been making quite a stir at Long Beach State College this past week as composer, lecturer and adjudicator in the Long Beach Music Festival. He is also an organist of repute and has appeared as guest conductor of the Oslo Philharmonic Orchestra.

I found him a charming, sensitive man, in his 40s—quite alien in personality to the harsh music he sometimes writes. I protested that, after hearing some of his lovely chorale works, his composition, "The Seven Seals" seemed quite a wide departure.

"The chorale works you heard," he informed me, "were written years ago. My change in style came after I had spent a summer at Tanglewood studying composition under Aaron Copland."

"That explains everything," I laughed.

• • • •

"WELL," protested Nystedt, "you wouldn't want to be driving an old model car, would you?"

"No, and neither would I want to drive the latest model car upside down," I retaliated.

That put us on a happy footing.

Knut Nystedt was a boy soprano and for three years he toured Norway as soloist with a boys' choir. He heard music from the time he was a toddler, as his father loved to play violin in string quartets in their home. When he entered the Oslo Conservatory he made the organ his major study. He also studied composition and conducting. He was the first Norwegian after the war to win a scholarship for study in America. At Tanglewood he joined the International Society of Contemporary Music.

• • • •

IN 1960 Nystedt brought 35 Norwegian singers to America for 20 concerts in 28 days, which he conducted. The final one was given in Carnegie Hall, New York, with great success. They are planning a return visit in 1964.

When I asked him to tell me something about Norway his face lighted up with joyous enthusiasm. Oslo has 400,000 inhabitants. It now has a permanent opera, thanks to the famous singer, Kirsten Flagstadt, who organized and directed the first opera company a few years ago. She is now in retirement in Norway and sings only upon occasion for charity.

• • • •

NYSTEDT loves to take his family—a wife, two daughters, 15 and 17 years of age, and a boy of 9 years—for skiing in Northern Norway in the winter. But he does not want to live there.

"For six months there is no sun at all," he told me, "and then one day the sun appears for two minutes. That day there is great celebration with fireworks, dancing, festival music and general rejoicing."

He then told me that for the next six months the sun never sets. "It is very strange," said he, "but when there is continuous sunshine one rarely sleeps—and three or four hours seem sufficient rest."

His three weeks stay in our country will terminate excitingly for him when he joins the Prime Minister of Norway at a luncheon given in their honor by President and Mrs. Kennedy at the White House on May 9.

Quality, Stature in LBAA Juried Show

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The Annual Juried Show of Long Beach Art Association, along with other exhibits at the Long Beach Museum of Art, opens today with a reception at 2 p.m. Don Laviere Turner of the USC Art Faculty selected 49 from the 162 works submitted.

Despite rumors that the juror made some surprising choices, the collection of drawings, watercolors, oils, and two sculptures is excellent—sophistocated, highly competent, often touched with flashes of brilliance.

Both sculptures are figurative and have the quality of classic serenity. Ed Rugels' "Chaucer's Monk" in grey fiberglas and mosaic is stylized except for the aged face and hands. Jentano Shimo's "Fellow Student" is a subtley contoured head.

• • • •

"WE ARE EACH of Us Alone," an oil by Marie Harris, suggests many shades of meaning. Vivid pasted papers with a pattern of black make Jim Green's "Inter Alia" bold and exciting.

Excellent style in Bob Click's drawing, "Seated Women," conveys a sense of ambiguity. "Eros" by Pjete Lindstrom exploits the use of high color and mastery of the painter's brush. The same qualities in an oil by Robert Adams are employed in small panes of color. Grace Dimmick uses quick, vivid strokes of mingled color in the dancing "Solo Turn."

• • • •

GLENN CAVALLI'S watercolor, "Oil Wells," is a scene glimpsed through the base of a familiar local structure; his watercolor in overlays of muted tones is most successful. A free use of pure tones in the same medium is Meleita Artin's "Floral Arrangement." Vesta E. Carton's "5½ Pears" sparkles with amazing light from a close range of red browns. Calligraphic economy of black and sepia on an expanse of white space mark Joyce Ullstrup's wash drawing.

The association reflects free enterprise at its best. The artists do not flavor their works with the methods and styles of their colleagues. The mutually stimulating competition results in better quality and stature each year in this show.

IN 'ZOO STORY'
Ken Kennerson (left) and Ed Young discuss the merits of their respective ways of life—the secure vs. the unsecure—in the "Zoo Story" which, along with "The Sandbox," currently is showing at 8:30 Friday and Saturday nights at the Off-Broadway theater, 211 Lime Ave.

'Crucible' to Open at Horseshoe

"The Crucible," Arthur Miller's intense and symbolic drama of the witchcraft hysteria in old Salem, opens at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Horseshoe Theater, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

The admission-free Long Beach City College Business and Technology Division production, directed by Herbert Caesar, continues Friday and Saturday nights.

Central roles are taken by John Solbes and Elenor Hunden as a young farm couple falsely accused of witchcraft and by Carole DeDera as the malicious servant girl, Abigal Adams.

• • • •

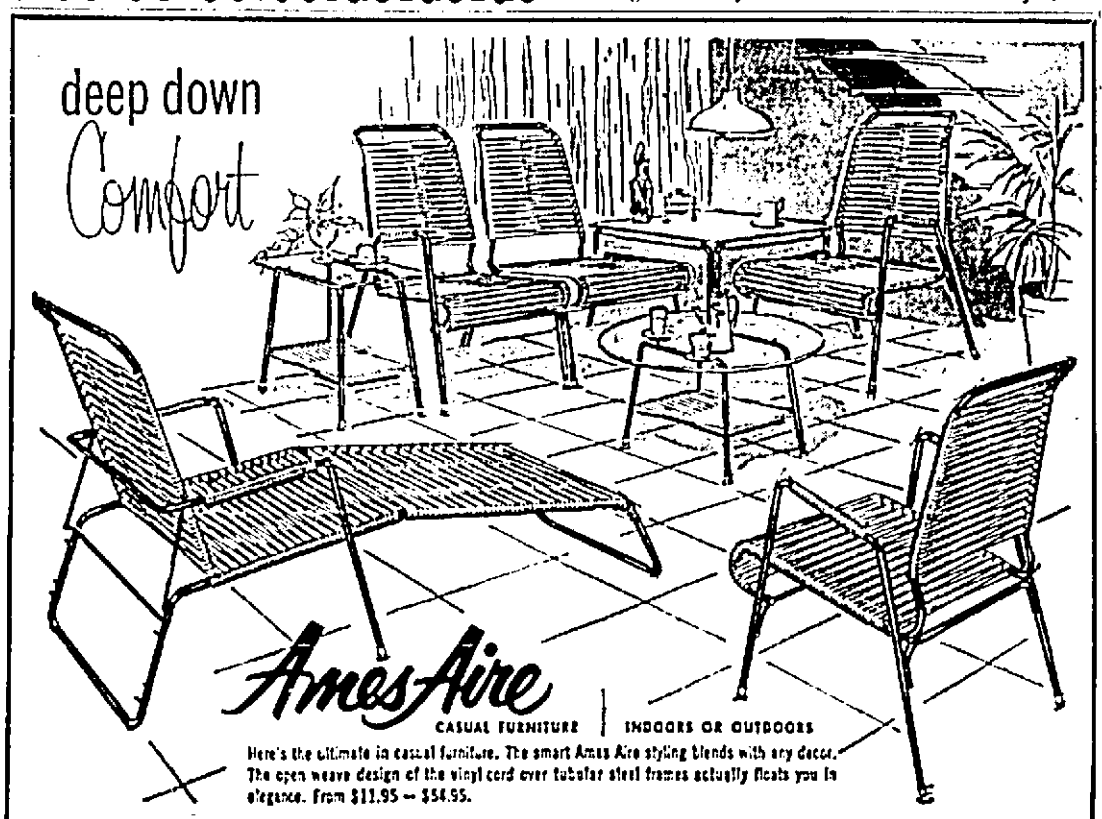

BEFORE the final curtain, Abigail and other sensation-seeking children of the town have caused 19 innocent men and women to be sent to the gallows for alleged possession by the Devil. The tale of bigotry and deceit reaches its almost unbearable climax during the trial scene.

Other leading roles are played by John Nasheim, John Edmiston and Jim Contis.

On Stage---

CHAPEL THEATER, 4164 Pacific Coast Highway, Torrance, "Gigi," 8:30 p.m. Friday, Saturday, Sunday.
COMMUNITY PLAYHOUSE, 5021 E. Anaheim St., "Third Best Sport," 7:45 p.m. Thursdays; 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.
CORINTHIAN THEATER, (Odeum Hall), 835 Locust Ave., "Damn Yankees," 8:30 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays, Saturdays.
MAGNOLIA THEATER, 2400 Magnolia Ave., "One in a Lifetime," 8 p.m. Thursday and Sunday; 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.
OFF-BROADWAY THEATER, 211 Lime Ave., "The Sandbox" and "The Zoo Story," 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Sunday Showcase, 8 p.m. Three original one-act plays.

BUSY BUNCH, THESE STATE SORORITY GALS

From the sororities at Long Beach State College, these bits of information:

Zeta Tau Alpha points with pride to Judy Brown, president elect of Associated Women Students, and to Princesses Nancy Spessard (Phi Kappa Tau) and Nyla Stanley (Kappa Sigma).

At Delta Zeta's recent Rose Formal, Len Alfieri (Sigma Pi) was named DZ Man-of-the-Year; and sorority awards were as follows: Marsha Maddox, outstanding pledge; Jeannie Miettunen, outstanding active; Sharon McMahan, Maureen Kramer, and Lynne Winnik, Order-of-the-Rose (outstanding activities); Colleen Logan, DZ president-elect, best scholarship; and Gloria Puckett, past president, a plaque for service and loyalty to Delta Zeta.

Delta Gammas distributed about 50 handmade stuffed animals at Easter to children in the DG school for visually handicapped in Los Angeles . . . Teri Taylor is Phi Kappa Tau fraternity's Dream Girl . . . and Jackie Dole Jagerson was honored at Delta Gamma Founders Day luncheon by being named outstanding member for the year.

Gamma Phi Beta's first-ever Orchid Ball was held last Saturday in the Ambassador Hotel. Joining in the historic occasion were chapters from USC and UCLA. At a pre-party at the home of Margi Miller, the GPB members presented their dates with gold key rings.

• • • •

HERE'S WHAT'S happening in Phi Beta, national professional fraternity for women in speech, drama, and music:

The membership roster totals 23 following the initiation of nine pledges: Marcia Frederick, Carol Dahl, Donna Johnson, Charlene Galley, Cecilia DeMeneces, Carol McCoy, Annette Davidson, Charlotte Greenwood, and Judy Miller . . . all feminine roles in next week's four-day run of MacBeth are played by PBs; you will need a program to tell which witch is which, however . . . Saturday the chapter participated in the golden anniversary Founders Day ceremonies at the Ambassador in Los Angeles; afterwards, it was over to Charlotte Greenwood's in Manhattan Beach for a beach party . . . Phi Betas are working on a play, written by Joyce Pierce, which will be staged this summer for the Veterans Administration hospital . . . new officers in the group are Josie Mancuso, president, and Jackie Victor, Anita McKay, Janeice McConnell, Georgie Hicks, and Sue Gallagher.

East-West Club presents an unusual Japanese movie this evening at 5:30 and 7:30 in the Little Theater, "Storm on the Silvery Peaks," which stars — you would never guess — Toni Sailer, Austrian Olympic ski champion. Anyway, the film is a mixture of top ski thrills, tantalizing camera techniques, and, as E-W prexy Al Rinehart terms it, "that good Japanese photography." Admission is $1, and proceeds go towards the club's scholarship fund.

WHY GROW OLD?

Results of Diet Should Be Evident Very Soon

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Those of you who started following "Why Grow Old's?" 9-Day Reducing Diet last Tuesday probably are beginning to feel and look better. However, you are only about halfway to the goal of a loss of from five to 10 pounds. Just stay in there for another few days! If you think your results should be better by now, remember, people lose weight at varying speeds.

Reducing has been taken out of the three-ring circus and put on a sound basis.

Today's good slimming diet is WELL-BALANCED, and often gives you more vitamins, minerals and proteins than the fair-to-average diet provides. Many women find that they have increased energy as they lose pounds.

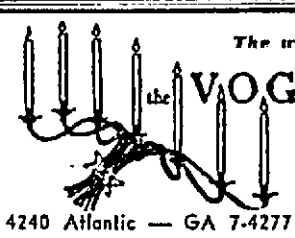

The menus for Monday:

BREAKFAST
One-half grapefruit
One boiled egg
One thin dry slice of whole wheat toast
Black coffee

LUNCHEON
Chicken sandwich (no butter—thin slices of whole wheat bread)
Sliced tomatoes or canned tomatoes
One glass skimmed milk

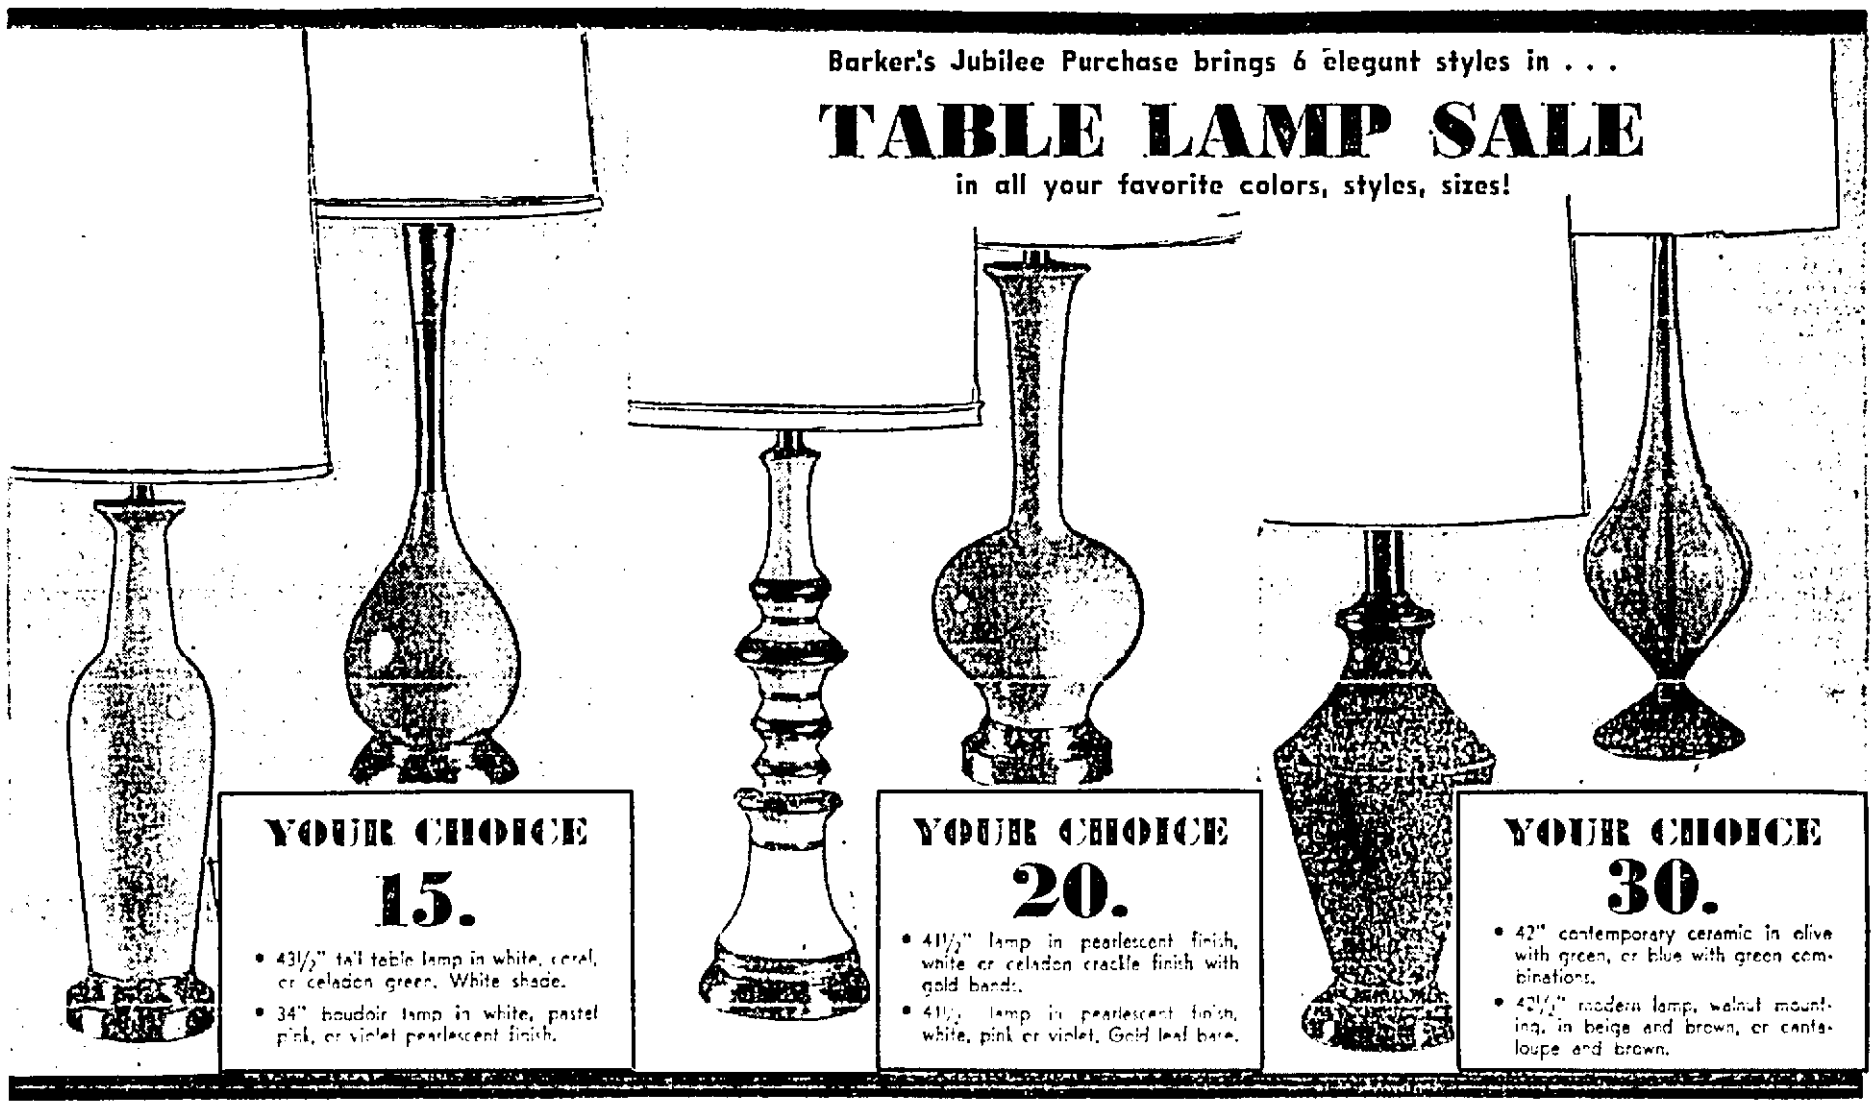

DINNER
Minute steak or chops
Salad of shredded cabbage and carrots
One-half cup spinach-greens or broccoli
One-half grapefruit
One glass skimmed milk

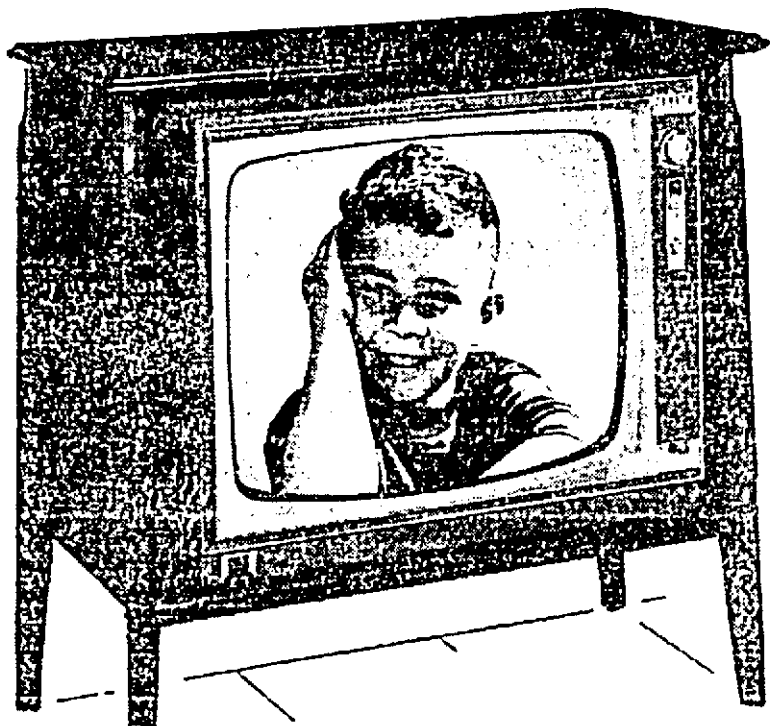

IF YOU have missed some of the menus which have been published in your newspaper this week, or would like to have my complete 9-Day Reducing Diet which gives you a loss of from five to 10 pounds in a convenient booklet, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Talk to Friends—Pop, Too

DEAR ABBY: All my friends are either 16 or 17. I like my friends and want to keep them as friends, but here is my problem: My father wears a hair piece and when he walks by my friends, they say "bow wow" and "meow" and make fun of his hair piece. My father never says anything to them because he is too embarrassed. Abby, how can I tell my friends to quit making fun of my father?—BOTHERED

ABBY

DEAR BOTHERED: Tell them that their sense of humor is off, and they are being cruel. They will understand if you approach them seriously. P. S. your father should take a long look at his hair piece.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor borrowed our vaporizer and she never returned it. When we needed it, I had to go to her house and get it. She said, "Oh, I'm sorry you had to come after it. I guess I should have returned it." Then her husband turned to me and piped up. "There is no reason for us to have returned it. You KNEW where the vaporizer was and it is just as safe at our house as it is at yours!" Can you imagine anyone so inconsiderate and stupid? How can we refuse to lend things without giving our neighbors the impression that we are selfish?—NOT SELFISH

DEAR NOTSELFISH: Not all neighbors are as inconsiderate and ignorant as the husband of your friend. But a good rule is: "Neither a borrower nor a lender be."

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: Many of your men readers, including myself, must agree with the prospective bridegroom who prefers twin beds. Women would be surprised to know how many men would rather sleep alone but who won't admit it for fear of being ridiculed. I think two people sleeping in one bed is the most stupid of all marriage customs. It was understandable in the log cabin days due to lack of space. But in this health-conscious age why should an intelligent adults put up with someone breathing in his face, kicking him in the stomach, arms and legs suddenly flung across his chest, snoring, cold feet and having one side of the bed slanted down because of weight difference? Can you explain it?—PENSI

DEAR PENSI: I haven't seen any surveys on how many married couples sleep apart and, if so, whose idea it was. But I would guess that as many women prefer solo slumber as men. As for cold feet, flying arms and legs and snoring, it's the little woman who takes the beating.

• • • •

For a personal (unpublished) reply to your problem, send Abby a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Shop Is Talent Storehouse

What good is artistic talent unless it's put to use?

That's the question craft-conscious Ann Lahde asked herself several years ago.

The result: She opened a shop where local people with a knack for making things (from aprons to earrings) could display their work.

Now her small store is a picture of careful clutter with shelves - full of handicrafts from both near and far; shell jewelry from Long Beach; reindeer horn spoons from Lapland.

And for those interested in India, there's a large variety of items from that country brought to Mrs. Lahde by a Hindu friend and a missionary.

Among the shop's multifarious merchandise are the following.

Under $5

Temptingly tatted notes. For those who prefer unusual stationary, handmade cards decorated with water color sketches and raised flowers tatted in pastel shades are real find.

• • • •

Belt beauties from Switzerland come in variety of gay colors. They are handwoven, range in price from $2.50 to $6.50.

Give a belle a bell. Richly decorated brass bells from India add up to gay interior decorating touches. They are engraved in original designs with color added through baked on enamel.

Under $10

Maharaja money for Milady. In India, death of Maharaja makes his personal coins (decorated with his emblem) valueless, as far as monetary transactions are concerned. But, the coinage can add up to big value when fashioned into fine necklaces, etc. Mrs. Lahde has fortune in such Maharaja wealth, which she is having made into unusual pieces of jewelry. She also displays heavy Indian-made silver collar of filigree—you can be sure it can't be duplicated.

Under $25

Anyone for opium? Charming oriental opium holder could be used as dressing table accessory, etc. It's of solid brass, features clever peacock lock, four containers, rests on elephant fashioned legs.

In linen line, shop features Indonesian hand woven materials, $10 for 3 yards; Indian Saris, 1⅓ by 5 yards at $25, and handmade embroidery work for table.

Wool Shrinkage — Excess fullness in the knee of wool slacks can be "shrunk-in" by a simple technique. Place an unfextured wool cloth on the knee and a cotton press cloth on top of this. (Moisten the cloth if you haven't a steam iron.) Continue to press until fullness has disappeared, checking progress as you go. Or ask your cleaner to do this for you.

Personal — When you run into a fabric problem, call me at GA 4-8559 whether or not you are a Foasberg customer. No charge, and I may be able to help.

Blackwell Needles Hollywood Pin-Ups

and lions on the lawn.

Blackwell has set himself up as Hollywood's "controversial designer" and plays his role to the hilt.

"A STAR should be a star at all times," is his credo. "She shouldn't be a slob at the supermarket, then a dream-walking at the premier."

Stating he creates clothes for "self-satisfaction, not money," this rebel-with-a-cause stated:

"I design for my kind of woman, who is smart, wants a little high fashion, doesn't want to spend a fortune on clothes, is looking for a husband or wants to keep the one she has."

About Over-There: "I am not influenced by Paris. I go there for fun, not inspiration. Foreign designers do not understand American women, their way of life —OR their figures."

As to the future of fashion: "I don't think the American woman will give up feminity for space. Even if she is going to the moon, she will want to be well-dressed. After-all, she never knows whom she might meet there."

ALTHOUGH his worst-dressed list includes some of Hollywood's sexiest sirens, Mr. Blackwell stated he isn't against sex appeal.

If he designed for the Mansfield-Monroe-Loran curves, would he exercise camouflage?

"No. I certainly wouldn't hide their charms, but would try to avoid being flamboyant.

"I love Jane Mansfield, think she is a great gal. But I wish she wouldn't show so much. She gives the wrong impression."

Numbered among his own clientele are Lily Pons, Janis Page, Joan Crawford, Barbara Hale, Sandra Dee, Shirley Jones, Terry Moore and Ann Blyth.

WHO DOES he consider best-dressed among the stars? Audrey Hepburn and Dean Martin.

"Audrey dresses with taste and thought," he noted. "And Dean Martin is always in the very best of dress wherever he's seen."

About his own jivey-Ivy mode of dress—high-water pants so slim they just miss being leotards, a slither of a necktie and short-stop jacket:

"I would not recommend my dress for the nation's male population. It's too high fashion."

Answers to other random questions: "I love Liz Taylor's leopard coat . . . Jackie's pillbox should be in a drugstore on a shelf with the pills . . . skirts have gotten too short, will be much lower for fall . . . Bikinis look great on Bardot and if you have the figure wear them."

He predicts demise of the Twist this summer. "Too hot for the fastidious woman," is his simple comment.

What will replace it? "Personally, I like the waltz," said he. "It makes a woman look like a lady."

And that's what Blackwell says.

Aid Lawyers Tell Rewards

yer it offers a chance to know a city—its judges and courtrooms."

Schulein, married and the father of two, had his own practice in Washington for 10 years before coming here.

"I was laid-up in the Long Beach VA Hospital for a year and a half," he says. "When released, I called the Bar Association to check on openings—and they hired me."

Now Schulein handles the majority of in-office cases while Zimmerman represents clients in court.

* * * *

MANY of the persons who enter the office have no real legal problem. "They are merely bewildered, frightened and unsure of their rights," says Schulein, who views such interviews with calm compassion.

Both he and Zimmerman are emphatic about the importance of the work they perform, feel Legal Aid is a necessity.

"Lack of money should not spell inequality," says Zimmerman. "Our clients are often the least able to fight their own cases—the most likely to be taken advantage of."

Though most of Legal Aid counseling deals with serious problems of privation and want, a few cases in the lighter vein occasionally appear.

One of Zimmerman's favorites: The case of the closeted dentures. Seems the plaintiff wanted to go to work. To foil the move, her husband put her false teeth under lock and key.

Zimmerman managed to settle this one out of court. A phone call turned the lock and the lady (plus shining, toothy smile) departed for the office.

* * * *

THE LEGAL AID office also is headquarters for Lawyers' Reference Service, which suggests attorneys for persons who have money to hire private counsel but don't know whom to contact.

Zimmerman and Schulein are aided by a full-time secretary and volunteer workers from Lawyers Wives, who recently contributed money to refurbish the waiting room.

The work doesn't add up to Cadillacs or caviar where the two young attorneys are concerned but it does have its rewards.

"We often hear from clients long after a case is closed," says Schulein. Their most often repeated remarks —"I don't know what I would have done without your help. I didn't know where to turn."

After Hours: Attorney Zimmerman winds-up day—Late at Night—Preparing Case.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Is Cooking 'Computer'

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.-P-T Food Editor

As branch manager of IBM, Long Beach, since August of '61 he's usually guiding the destinies of the IBM 1620 digital computer.

But the appearance of Harley Thronson, today's Chief of the Week, has strictly to do with his ability as a cook. A kitchen range knows nothing of "extra sensory perception," but it's far more challenging than his IBM brain buster.

Thronson was born in Chippewa Falls, Wis. He received his education in that state, graduating from University of Wisconsin in 1942 with a B.A. in accounting.

That same year he joined the Navy and spent World War II seeing action in New Guinea, Dutch Moluccas and the Philippines. A lieutenant, he commanded a P-T boat. HIS boat dodged a bullet too!

• • • •

DISCHARGED in 1946, he joined IBM as a salesman in the Chicago area. After seven years there, and in Madison, Wis., he moved to Endicott, N.Y., where he was instructor in that company's sales training program for two years. Thronson's next stop was Pittsburgh, Pa., where he served as data processing manager.

He again returned to Chicago and served as regional personnel and education manager for three years before coming to Long Beach last August.

A member of Beta Alpha Psi and Pi Kappa Pi fraternities, Thronson is a past president of the Exchange Club, Madison, Wis., and is an associate member of the National Machine Accountants Association. A Long Beach Rotarian, he belongs to El Bekal Shrine, the Pacific Coast Club, the Shrine Club and the Sales & Management Executives Club. Active in the Chamber of Commerce, he's also general chairman of the Dan Beard Council Scout-a-rama for 1962.

Thronson doesn't exactly take-his-sports - sitting-down. Baseball and Spring bring him-to-life with a gusto. It takes two TVs and a radio all going at once, each with a different game, to keep him abreast of what's doing and where.

Married to a Washington University graduate, he and Mrs. Thronson have "weathered" some pretty rough New Year's Days when Washington played Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl.

• • • •

HIS HELPFUL domestic intentions, while sincere, are usually "excused" because of sons, Harley, Jr., 13, Charlie, 11, and Robert, 3½. They

Harley A. Thornson

and their activities are more fun, anyway.

A coffee addict, there's potent magic in his concoctions. One cup, and you're rarin' to go! As a lad in Chippewa, our "chef" worked in "Hamburger Heaven," and today he can hold-his-own with he best in whipping up a hamburger or flipping a hotcake.

His recipe today for Charlie's Beans and Pork Chops, is so named, after his son, who can eat them any time, any place. Thronson guarantees the recipe, too, for while his first venture was a bit unsuccessful, he's made it so often since, that he's mastered the dish to the 'nth degree of perfection.

CHARLIE'S BEANS AND PORK CHOPS

6 man-sized servings
12 rib or center cut pork chops
1 large can (3 lb. 3 oz) baked beans
½ cup tomato catsup
¼ cup molasses
½ tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. instant minced onion

Brown chops in skillet. Season with salt, pepper and season salt. Set chops aside. Pour beans and remaining ingredients into skillet, stir, scraping pork chop drippings from bottom of pan. Into baking dish place layer of pork chops, then beans, then chops, with last layer of beans on top. Add a little water if desire more moisture. Bake 325° for 1 hour, or until chops are well done.

Serve with tossed salad, French bread and a light dessert. This is an excellent main dish for picnics, stags, family gatherings or late-comers, as it can be held for hours by putting a cover on it and turning the oven to "warm."

Oswald Jacoby
'Uppercut' Is Defense

No one has ever constructed a set of par hands without one example of the play called the "Uppercut." Bill Root, who did such a splendid job with this year's intercollegiate tournament, has not gone against this precedent.

The uppercut occurs when a defender ruffs with a moderately high trump and forces declarer to use a really high trump to win the trick.

East and West should arrive at four spades and North and South should defeat the contract. South should cash two hearts and the ace of diamonds, then lead the third heart for North to ruff with the ten spot. This play will establish South's queen of trumps as the setting trick.

	♣ 764

No one vulnerable.

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ♥	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♥ K

• • • •

IT SHOULD be noted that South must cash his ace of diamonds before leading the third heart. Otherwise, East will simply discard his losing diamond and the uppercut will not have worked.

How should South make sure that his partner will ruff with his highest trump? He should lead the queen of hearts after taking the king and continue with a low heart to make his message absolutely plain.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

The Trick's in the Divider

Providing children's rooms with dividers, as pictured here, is a trick that leads to full enjoyment, is conducive to tidiness and is not often found in home planning.

When Architect J. Richard Shelley recently designed a home for his own family at 197 Rivo Alto Canal, the rooms for his children received top consideration. The ingenious use of a plywood partition has proved the key to tidiness in the rooms of both boys.

The room is separated into two parts: the sleeping room and the play area. A plywood partition, painted to match the room, forms the divider. Spaciousness is maintained since the plywood does not quite reach the ceiling.

The bedroom section is carpeted, the play area tiled. Built-in desk and large work area are both functional and attractive. The play area side of the plywood serves as a bulletin board. Scattered toys are not in evidence from the other side of the room.

An adaption of this plywood divider would be workable even in relatively small rooms, since size of either the bedroom or play area is not of major importance. The fact that the room is divided is the trick that outsmarts even the busiest youngster with countless treasures to accommodate.

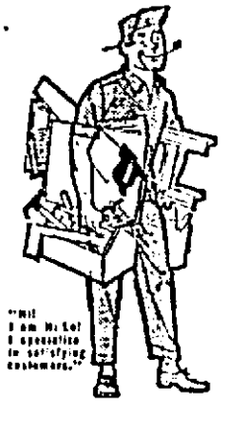

—STELLA GEORGE.

Kitchen Remodeling on a Budget

By Dee Zeiner

Kitchen built-ins can be surfaced with Formica to match or contrast with newly installed hardboard paneling in remodeling and modernizing.

If your kitchen is dark and gloomy, crowded and with no place for informal meals, cramped for working space and storage — if you feel sometimes like kicking out a wall . . . could be you have the solution.

A reputable remodeling specialist can show you how to modernize your outmoded kitchen in a style to fit almost any budget. One of the best places to get one-stop home improvement service, according to Celotex Corporation's remodeling experts, is from your local building materials dealer. He not only can help design your new kitchen and supply all required materials, but in most cases will also arrange for approved contractors and assist with financing.

If your problem is lack of space, you may want to shift an interior wall or remove an exterior wall to add another room.

IF YOU are dissatisfied with the kitchen's appearance, consider some of the modern building materials aimed specifically at dressing up home decor. Two products now gaining increasing popularity for kitchen remodeling are fiberboard acoustical ceiling tile and woodgrain hardboard paneling.

Acoustical ceiling tile absorbs up to 70 percent of the sound striking it, preventing harsh noises from being amplified and considerably softening kitchen clatter.

Acoustical tile is available in a wide range of patterns featuring miniature perforations or deep etch fissures and in diamond white and printed finishes. Costs vary from 18 to 26 cents per square foot.

HARDBOARD paneling is offered in several realistic cherry and walnut woodgrain finishes and can add a breath of luxury for as little as 23 cents per square foot. The paneling, in 16-inch or 4-foot wide panels, features a scuff-resistant factory-applied finish which requires no waxing and can be cleaned with a damp sponge.

Although local prices may vary somewhat, this is what you will get for that $263: acoustical ceiling tile (288 sq. ft.)—$52; woodgrain hardboard paneling (about 420 sq. ft.)—$90; furring for application of ceiling tile and hardboard—$29; asphalt floor tile—$34; birch door with pine jamb, trim and hardware—$28; studs, base plates, cove and base modeling—$30.

If you are operating on an extra tight budget, the cost of your family room can be cut to as little as $198, by selecting decorative non-acoustical ceiling tile, limiting the woodgrain hardboard paneling to one accent wall and using masonry paint on the other walls.

Barbecue Twins

Before you fire up your barbecue for a summer of patio pleasure, don't overlook two newly-revised books from which you may gain tremendous prestige as a host or hostess.

They are the well-known "Sunset Barbecue Book" and its barbecue companion "The Sunset Salad Book" (Lane Book Co., Menlo Park, Calif., $1.95 each).

For down-to-earth techniques and recipes, the barbecue book has never been surpassed. In its 160 pages are 483 tested recipes, illustrated with drawings and 100 photos. It also tells all about "firemanship" which means getting the fire started; shopping for meat, and such forms of barbecuing as broiling on the grill, skewer cooking, roasting on the spit, fire-pit and smoke cooking. Other chapters are on sauces and marinades and barbecue accompaniments.

"Salad Book" contains 301 recipes for a wide variety of delectable salads and salad dressings, making it a "must" for ambitious outdoor chefs.

Remodeling Gives Homes New Glamour

By Jim McCauley

THE BOXY tract home — the mass-produced dwelling that sprawned suburbia and solved Long Beach area's postwar housing problems a decade ago—is disappearing.

It is being glamorized and expanded in a wave of additions and remodelings. Starts on additions now top new-home building in Long Beach area, and the trend is growing.

Even Kilroy wouldn't recognize the transformation that is changing the face of postwar tract homes. After remodeling and additions, many look like custom-built homes.

The latest trend: to add whole second stories. Formalism and traditionalism are staging a comeback. Going in are more brick archways, courtyards, clipped hedges, louvers, shutters, large pots, nice latterns and simple forms.

FAMILY ROOMS, the favorite addition in the 1950s, are giving ground to expansion of more conventional rooms. Dining rooms, shunted to a minor role in most new-home housing plans during the past decade, are becoming increasingly popular.

One contractor said: "The feeling is that when the family is able to eat in a separate room, manners improve and it is conducive to a far better way of life."

Another interesting development in new additions: the indoor-outdoor life has proved too much for some Southlanders. Many families are screening and roofing patio areas. Pools now are subdued to supplement the landscaping—not dominate it.

Also going big, contractors say, are bedroom additions, kitchen renovations for built-ins, extra bathrooms, swimming pools and patios. Many families are using large window areas with open sliding glass doors.

GROWING FAMILIES, rising prices for new homes, available financing for additions and a shortage of good building sites in the Southland all have induced more home owners to expand rather than to seek new housing.

Why stay put and expand rather than move? It often is both more economical and convenient. Often, a comparably good new-home site cannot be found without relocating miles away. THAT means uprooting the family, sometimes increasing commuting costs and financing a new home loan at today's higher interest charges.

FHA short-term home improvement loans are available for 5 per cent discounted—figuring out at about 10 per cent for its true annual rate.

Newest home addition trend is dining room expansion. L. M. Bishop, 1830 Greenbrier Rd., extended the rear of his home by 12 feet to increase the dining area, add a fireplace and make room for a breakfast bar.

EDWARD M. O'CONNOR, Long Beach building superintendent, said some do-it-yourself craftsmen tackle their own addition. But most turn to a contractor—and many use an architect.

One banker cautioned home owners to plan any addition carefully. He urged that a reputable architect be retained and asked to determine whether the planned addition meets FHA specifications. One home owner planned poorly, and he ran into problems on getting a loan commitment when he sold his house later.

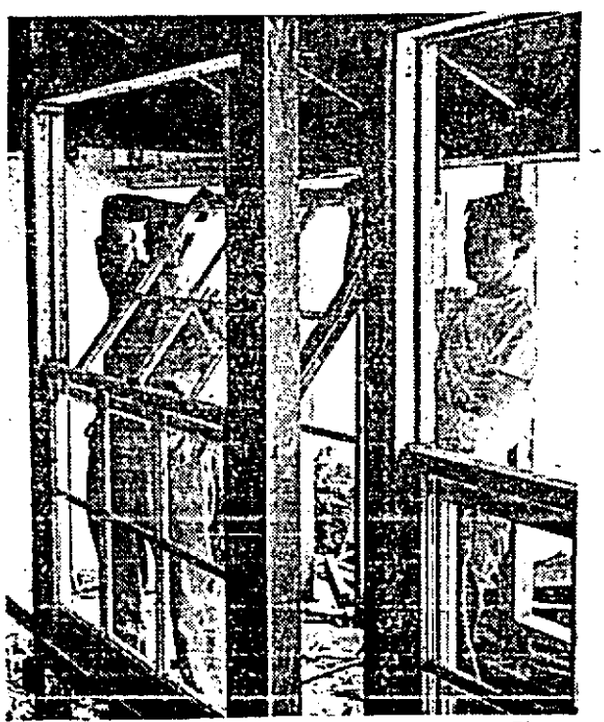

Addition costs vary widely — dependent on many factors. But most range from $11 to $15 a square foot. The cost can be pared slightly if the home owner does the painting.

NEW ACRILIC paints are out now which stick to almost any surface. Gray golds, lavender grays and cool browns with light accents are the latest color trends, according to architect Edward Killingsworth Jr.

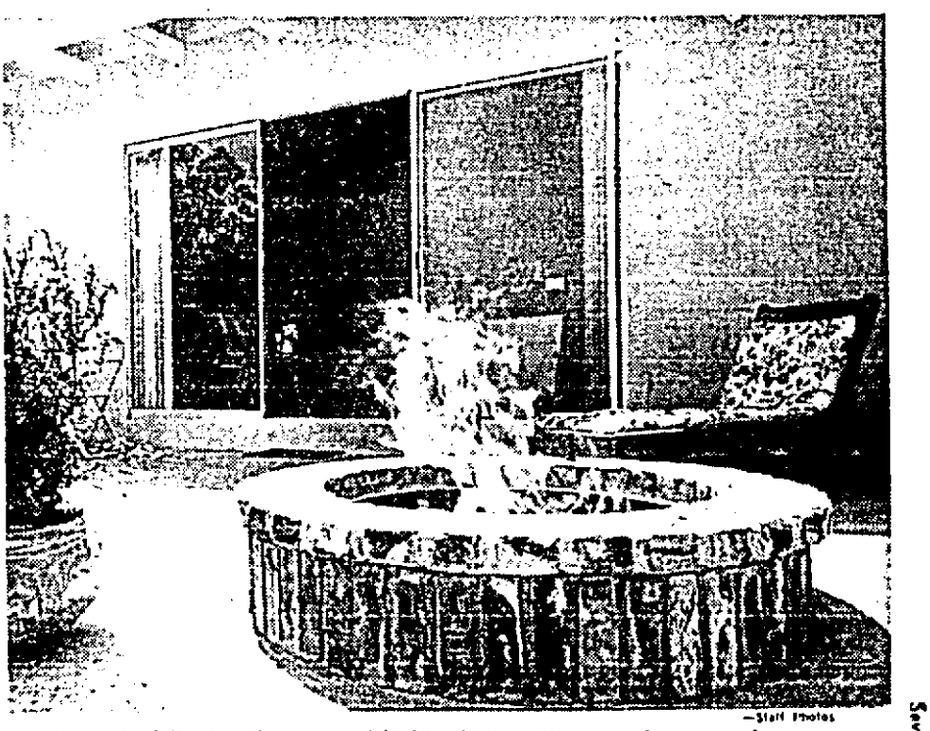

One veteran painter also reported that many Long Beach home owners have scrapped two-tone colors—and the trim is getting the same color paint as the rest of the house.

A vast array of new, exciting materials have bowed on the market in recent years.

Fiber glass panel now simulates shake stone. Tiles, plastics and ceramics also are being used. Other trends: metal doors and windows; insulation board sheeting over roof beams, radiant-heated ceilings, heat pumps and dry wall construction.

Home at 5759 Cedar Ave. looks forward as carpenter Glenn Bruss and son, Don, prepare to expand the dwelling's front.

Warmth of fireplace blaze comes right into this Los Altos home by reason of a new, 16-foot sliding glass door. This $3,500 addition gives modern look to a tract home.

Having a pool is like a year-around vacation, says one owner of such a back-yard play area. Teen-agers take special joy in having pool parties.

Pool? More Families Take the Plunge

By John Ronson

NEW LONG BEACH area families each week are taking the plunge into a back-yard swimming pool. Four hundred pools were built in Long Beach last year and the outlook is for even more in 1962.

Pools, one-time status symbol of only the plushest neighborhoods, now are invading the back yards of many modest homes. So many pools dot the scene that—from the air—Long Beach area resembles resort lake country.

Increasingly, pools have become the center of the family's recreational activity. The swim-pool craze blacks out television sets, keeps teen-agers at home and makes Junior the most popular kid on the block.

"OUR FAMILY recreation costs have dropped substantially since we built a pool 18 months ago," said one Los Altos housewife.

A pool with minimum accessories now costs about the same as a new car. "And the depreciation is much less," added one new pool owner. Easy financing, public beach congestion, and the keep-up-with-the-Joneses pool pressure all have combined to spur the pool-building boom here.

How do you plan to build a pool? There are a multitude of decisions—though for most families the plan-and-dream stage is half the fun.

MOST IMPORTANT decision is selection of the right builder. Pick someone who is reliable and has a good reputation in the community. The Better Business Bureau, the contractors' licensing board or credit agencies may be able to tell you whether your prospective contractor has a sound business record. Most reliable contractors also can obtain a completion bond.

The cost of the pool varies with the size and extras. Pools start at around $2,000 but many of the installations run double that when custom features, accessories and extras are figured in. A $4,000 pool may add about $75 in property taxes annually. You also should figure on $12.50 to $35 a month for chemicals and cleaning.

Another tip: check your home liability insurance to be sure you are covered on swimming-pool mishaps. Sometimes the premium is a few dollars extra with a pool.

EVEN IN THE MILD Southland climate, swimming in unheated pools often is limited to two to four months a year. For year-around swimming, plan on a heating system. The cost of gas for heating water may double your pool operating costs during the more severe winter months.

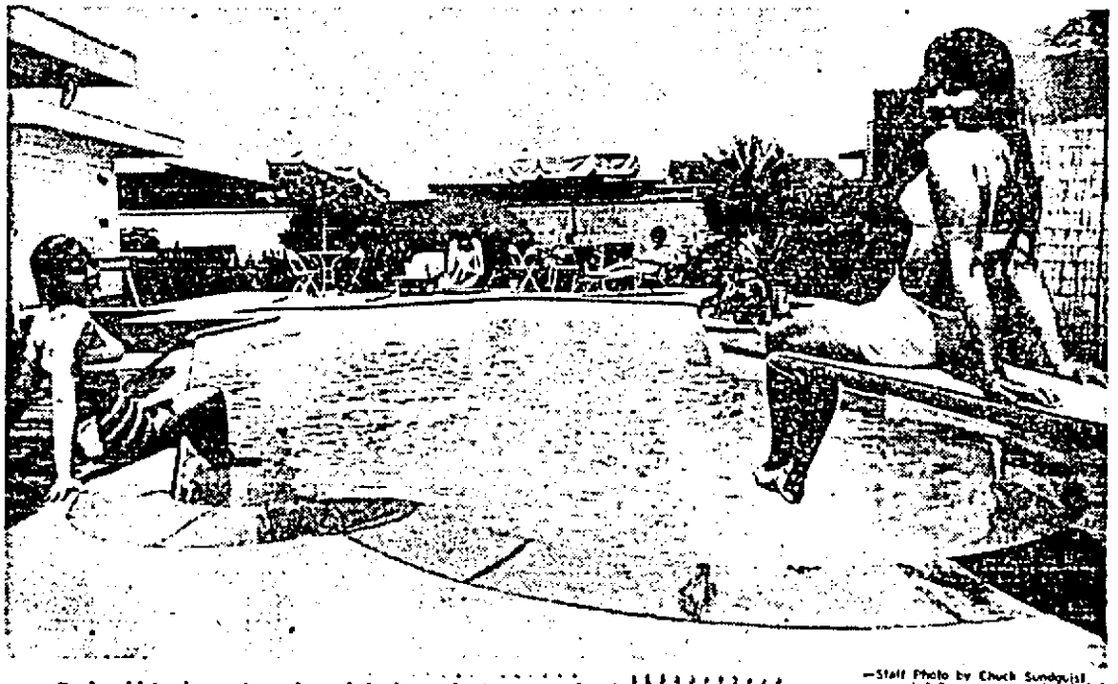

The ideal shape for your pool is the one best adapted to your yard. Consult your architect or pool builder for advice here. The modern trend is away from square corners and rectangular shapes. Most popular pool recently: the kidney-shaped—one of the most picturesque.

Pools also have brought spectacular landscaping effects and an array of new play devices to back yards. Waterfalls, sea horses, floating chairs, water games, shimmering lights, flipper fins, arched pool bridges, islands, miniature boats and rafts are making frequent appearances in the pool paradises of Long Beach back yards.

"It is a perpetual vacation," said one proud new pool owner, a Long Beach school teacher.

Tips to Follow for Pool Safety

1. Allow children to swim only under adult supervision.
2. Keep inflated tube handy to pool.
3. Stay out of pool for one hour after meals.
4. Close gates and maintain fences so wandering tots are excluded.
5. Keep water well-chlorinated to fight growth of algae and bacteria.
6. Illuminate pool for night swimming and to help prevent falls into pool.
7. Run filters so pool water is completely filtered every 24 hours.
8. Cover pool during off-season with plastic or canvas top strong enough to support anyone who falls in.

—Staff Photo by Chuck Sundquist

Pools add to decorative values of the home, having come far from original rectangular shapes. This pool is a happy installation at the Morton Herz home, 1864 Pattiz Ave., where family and friends have unending pleasure.

PERSONALITY — an indefinable factor—is not necessarily inherent in an architecturally well-designed house, as Mr. and Mrs. Richard Steyer, 1292 W. Taper St., have proved in their home.

When the Steyers first moved in, the house was unimaginative in design and ripe for the architectural and decorative changes that the new owners saw as possibilities. The living quarters then consisted of a living room and a separate kitchen. Now the two rooms are merged into one spacious area, made even larger with the end of the room being set out several feet to incorporate a fireplace and a place for sit-down dining.

Kitchen side of new bar installation shows colorful divider and abundance of cupboard, drawer space.

A large bar, placed just off-center at the right rear, separates the living room from the portion of the kitchen that includes the sink and work area and the refrigerator. At the end of the room, next to the fireplace, the stove and cooking accessories (spice shelf, etc.) are blended into the used brick background, assuming a decorative aspect in themselves.

THE CREATIVE talents of both the Steyers are evident in every corner of the room and in many small details that add to comfort or attractiveness. A small couch with a used brick base runs at right angles to the fireplace, with the bricks carried up at one end to form an end table. Twin wing-back maple chairs face the fireplace with a small coffee table on a hand hooked rug in front. Mrs. Steyer made the rug and others like it in the home.

The bar has sit-down space for as many as eight persons. On the kitchen side are regular bar stools with comfortable backs. On the living room side, plow seats mounted on iron legs are decorative and unusual.

Cupboards and drawers are in abundance both above and below the bar. A divider at the end of the bar appears, at first glance, to be circles of brightly hued glass set in a frame. Close inspection reveals that the "glass" is cellophane paper glued on heavy cardboard rings — the latter created from a long roll used to store carpets! Mrs. Steyer originally designed the piece as a gay Christmas decoration, only to find that it served a year-around purpose.

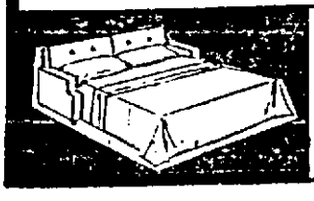

OLD AND treasured small items acquired over the years are hung at random on the wall near the back door. There is an old pincher for hog's nose rings, a rug hooker, a 40-gauge bullet mold, a rug beater, a hand-carved needle holder, an old muffin pan, to name but a few. Nearby on the floor is a milking stool, and close by, an old clothes plunger.

Wool chenille carpeting is used on the living room floor. An upholstered couch faces a slender and graceful maple couch. An old dry sink, now polished and gleaming, acts as a small sideboard in one corner. A row of pitchers in an assortment of sizes and colors are set on a high shelf above the front door and window.

The Early American theme is carried out in the bedrooms, one of which (there are three) is used as a den. In the latter, even the TV is enclosed in an appropriate setting. Embroidered cars, mounted in little frames, line one wall. Even the door is given that added touch with triple tiered curtains instead of a panel.

As mentioned before, this is a home with personality and it extends a warm glow of greeting to the visitor. In miniature it would be a doll's house; in real life it is an enchanting cottage.

Traditional in conception with modern ideas, this handsome two-story house has side-entry attached garage, with family room in the rear. Many features are included.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Best of Past and Present Joined

By Jules Loh

MODERN DAY architects have come up with ranch houses, raised ranch houses and split levels of nearly every conceivable variety. But let's face it, grandad's traditional two-story is tough to beat when you apply the tests of economy, livability and convenience.

House of the Week B-71, an attractive plan for a three-bedroom family, offers the benefits of two-story construction but also features modern housing appearance and ideas.

As architect Herbert C. Struppman put it, "I took the advantages of traditional design, combined them with present needs, and the house just sort of designed itself."

B-71 has 1,130 square feet of living area on the first floor, not counting the 470-square-foot double garage, and 830 square feet in three bedrooms and two baths on the second story. It also has a full basement.

THE FIRST FLOOR design provides excellent "circulation" — something grandfather's two-story concept often lacked.

The front entrance vestibule and hall leading to the living room and kitchen assures privacy as well as convenience for daily living. Any part of the house can be reached without disturbing activities in any other part.

The kitchen is a pleasure for any housewife—a 16x11-3 work center with a sunny dinette corner.

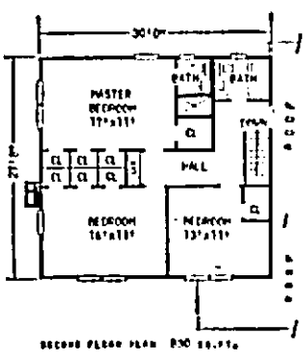

DOWN A STEP is the family room which, like the entire house, is itself a contemporary feature with traditional touches. Focal point of this 11 feet 3 inches by 24 feet 3 inches casual area is a handsome colonial fireplace. But its most practical feature is a lavatory tucked away where it is convenient not only to persons indoors but also to children playing outside who may enter through the garage or rear entrance.

If there was one thing lacking in grandfather's two-story it was adequate storage space and closets. Not so with this house. There are 10 closets in all, including a family-sized linen closet upstairs and a well-placed coat closet in the front vestibule.

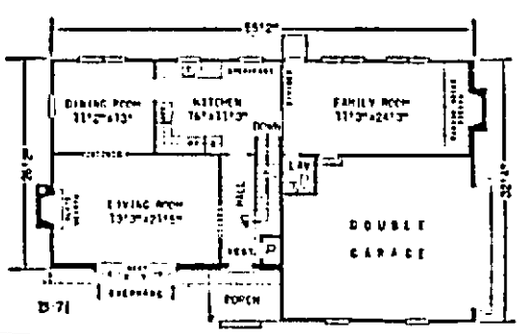

Note the roomy walk-in closet in the master bedroom in addition to the spacious triple closets which also serve as a sound buffer between the two adjoining bedrooms. Other storage opportunities are in the basement and the nearly full-depth alcove in the garage.

ECONOMY of two-story design makes possible some luxury features (such as three baths and two fireplaces) not usually found in a three-bedroom home. And B-71's dimensions—32 feet 4 inches by 55 feet 2 inches—adapt it to a modest sized lot.

Front vestibule and hall provide excellent circulation in this well-set-up home. Note abundance of closets — ten in all — plus storage alcove in the garage, a full basement.

Colonial charm is reflected in this artist's conception of the family room. Fireplace has built-in benches facing across room. A lavatory is offset from the spacious area.

Upstairs there is a minimum of hall space, but more than enough to make good passage possible and to assure the privacy of each of the three large bedrooms.

For gracious living, it would be hard to beat B-71's 13 feet 3 inches by 21 feet 5 inches living room with its formal fireplace and big bow window with built-in seat overlooking the front garden. Wide arches are used from the front entry into the living room and between the living and dining rooms.

The exterior of the house is a handsome combination of shingles and stone veneer in true colonial fashion. But its increased width, resulting from the side-entry garage, provides a dimension of suburban distinction characteristic of modern-day architecture.

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 50 cents and request House of the Week Study Plan, Design B-71.

Lighting Has a New 'Eye-Q'

Chandeliers are making a comeback in the home as an important factor in decor.

YOUR "EYE-Q" is high if you look up—not down. The fashion trend for residential lighting, according to Lightolier, originators of many firsts in the home furnishing field, is to chandeliers. These symbols of elegance now return as a major focal point in today's home.

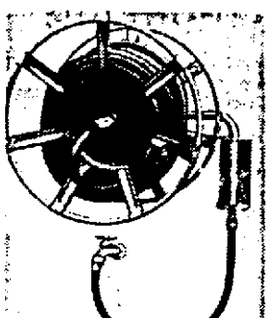

Decorators more and more favor the chandelier as a basic decorative theme for a distinctively designed room.

Luxurious embellishment is the keynote in today's decorative schemes. Elegant and elaborate accessories are used to bring flair to even the most moderately appointed interiors. The use of color too is more vibrant.

TO MEET this decorative trend, Lightolier has introduced a veritable carnival of chandeliers. Pendants and ceiling fixtures now happily combine stylized designs with modern lighting techniques.

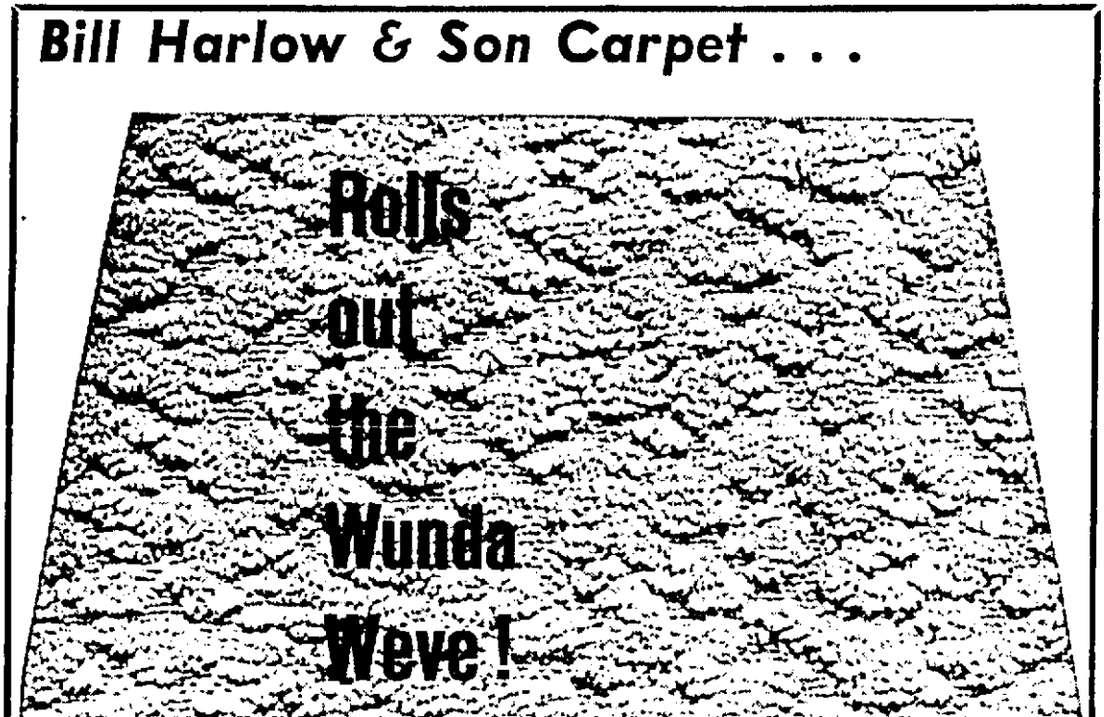

A chandelier in modern terms may be a cluster of individual pendants suspended to give dramatic emphasis as well as excellent illumination to an area. Some of these pendants are boldly scaled, others abound in varicolored glass or plastic, and some are formed of wicker in black.

FOR THOSE whose tastes are frankly on the "champagne level," there are elegant new approaches to crystal chandeliers. These are quite lavish, with the added "plus" of flexible controlled lighting. A light source is concealed within the crystal, and brings out all the brilliance of the sparkling prisms.

Hose reels are time and labor saving, adding to gardening fun. This one swings in and out, reels and unreels without turning water on and off.

Plan a Garden for Pleasure

THE BEAUTY and wholesomeness of garden living has taken America by storm. Today, with the development of smaller houses in communities throughout the country, many home-owners have discovered that one way to extend their houses is by using their outdoor space to full advantage. With the aid of vines, shrubbery and shade trees, they are making the patio a delightful place to dine, entertain and relax.

Nurserymen have many ideas to show how you can plan and plant such an outdoor space this spring, says the American Association of Nurserymen. Good planting plans, among other things, will indicate how the garden living room can be protected from cold or hot winds, whether in fall or the hot summer months. These plantings both increase comfort and lengthen the outdoor season.

In the usually small space of the patio the homeowner can develop a small but beautiful plant world in which it is a thrilling and luxurious experience to get away from it all.

AT LEAST one shade tree is important in the patio not only for coolness, but for the lacy, everchanging patterns of sun and shade that it casts on walls, floor and other plants. The wealth of foliage and flowering plants for the patio, developed in recent years, provides a wide choice.

Flowering plants and vines in baskets and jardinieres or boxes add to the luxurious feeling of the patio, and they can be changed when the choicest flowers are in season.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Looks and works like the real thing; no parts to get out of whack, and many parts can be cut from scrap.

By Bill Meyerriecks

TOYS that last are the ones that are simple. And the simple ones provide youngsters with the most fun.

You'll have to go some to find a toy more simple than this wooden dump truck. Many of the parts can be cut from scrap. It's put together with glue and nails, and it will stay together under the worst kind of treatment.

The youngster can sit on the cab, roll it down the driveway, bury it in sand.

And as long as there's something around to haul and dump, your young engineer won't get tired of it. Like a real dump truck, as the box tilts the tailgate swings open. For spreading jobs, the clever child will soon discover that a block set between box and bed will hold the tilt as the truck rolls. There are no intricate parts to get out of whack.

The truck is big enough to do some man-sized hauling. Length is 26 inches and height is 11 inches. It is scaled to the same size as another Sketchbook wooden toy, the S-54 Steam Shovel, which makes an excellent companion piece and is also available for 50 cents.

The Sketchbook do-it-yourself plan provides full size patterns for parts with curved lines and exact dimensions for all others. Assembly is explained clearly in words and drawings in eight easy steps.

TO OBTAIN, send name and address with 50 cents for Dump Truck Plan S-56 to Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Barnyard Menagerie

NBC-TV's Amy Fields is delighted with her assortment of animal cuties that are easily made from patterns.

EVERY DAY the mailman brings letters from readers who want full size patterns for little animals. Many, it seems, want to use them for lawn ornaments, den mothers for ideas that will help them to keep their cub scouts busy, farmers for their mail boxes, barns and weather vanes, mothers for patterns they can trace and paint on the walls of their children's rooms or paint on children's furniture

To obtain Pattern No. C-3 for making all the animals send $1 in currency, money order or check with name and address to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

And a Studio, Too

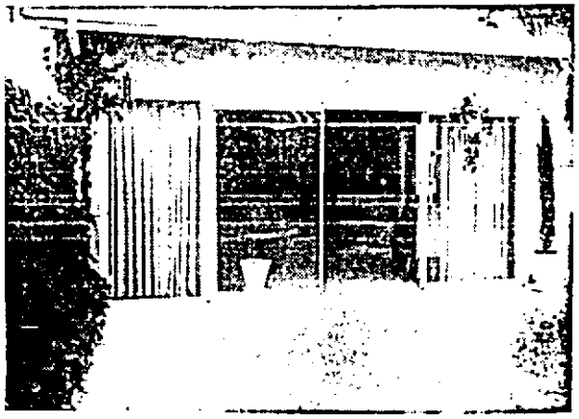

Well designed rumpus room, detached from the Irwin Cohen home, is decorated with Mrs. Cohen's art work.

SEPARATED from the house by a smooth carpet of cement, a detached rumpus room fulfills its purpose in an excellent way at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Cohen, 2753 Radnor St. The multi-purpose room is not only attractive but serves many functions, not the least of which is as an art studio for Mrs. Cohen.

The interior design is simple and well-planned. Cupboards hang from the ceiling to about four feet from the floor the full width of the room. The cupboards themselves are wide and spacious, affording storage space for countless items.

A wide two-piece sectional couch provides plenty of seating, with occasional chairs here and there. A large, round, mosaic coffee table was made by Mrs. Cohen. Her own paintings decorate the walls.

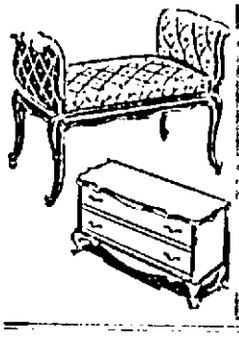

The room is ideal for entertaining, pursuit of hobbies, and everyday family use. Even the view from the large windows is pleasant: the clear, blue water of the family pool.—STELLA GEORGE.

Opening to a concrete deck and overlooking the family pool, this rumpus room provides for many activities.

BEFORE AND AFTER:

Homes Get New Values

BEFORE: House here was due for exterior face-lifting.

AFTER: New values in beauty; fire, weather protection.

By Paul Shoemaker

Treasurer: National Home Improvement Council

THESE DAYS millions of families are discovering how to live better. The secret? Remodeling to have "a new home at the old address." Improving the home has a number of advantages now being discovered in one out of every five households countrywide.

Modernizing gives new comfort, new convenience, new pleasure and, most important of all, increases property value of many out-of-date houses.

Sound, sensible home improvement increases value well beyond the cost of the improvement. For that reason remodeling becomes an investment rather than an expense and is like "putting money in the bank."

MOST FAMILIES have their pet fix-up project. Here's a quick rundown of some of the most popular: A remodeled kitchen is the favorite of homemakers everywhere who want new appliances to relieve the work load. Modern cabinets, lighting, new walls, flooring and ceilings are wanted to provide cheery surroundings in the "household center." New rooms are needed too (from additional baths to converting the attic or basement, to adding on to the present structure).

In addition to these, there are many more popular modernizing projects. Such things as swimming pools, breezeways, new heating and cooling equipment, additional storage space, wall paneling, wall papering and others to fit everyone's budget. All are guaranteed to make the home a better place in which to live.

The great need is to take care of growing families, give proper room for children's activities, for dad and mom to relax at day's end, for the whole family to live together in greater comfort.

EXTERIOR face lifting (and I don't mean adding a TV antenna). Modern, up-to-date families thing of outside remodeling as well as making the home inside more comfortable. Outside fix-up can range from a new paint job to re-siding to turning an old-fashioned porch into a sun room.

Here's important news. Home improvement financing is now readily obtainable at low rates. Improving your home today is as easy as buying a new car or financing a luxury vacation. For example, most homeowners can obtain sums up to $10,000 and repay over 20 years time under a government insured program. You can borrow lesser amounts, of course.

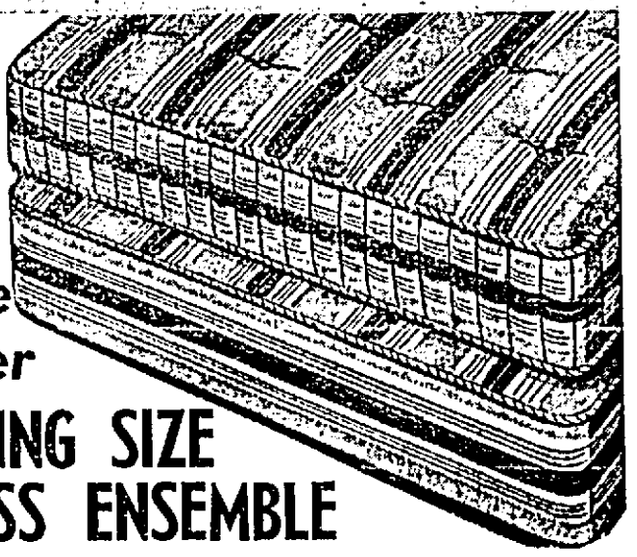

See your local building materials dealer or a finance institution in your community for more information on how you can remodel today, live better right where you are, and pay for the job in convenient monthly installments.

Orderly and efficient is this workshop at San Pedro home of Boynton Hays.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

A Workshop That's All Shop!

THERE IS AN EXTRA room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boynton Hays, 2019 35th St., San Pedro, that many men might envy. It is a work room that serves just that purpose for Boynton—and it is NOT a combination family room, TV room, and/or garage.

As the accompanying picture shows, it is streamlined to the point of excellence. Every saw, hammer and drill has a specific place to be stored. Screws, bolts and nails are stored in easy-to-reach jars. Drawers are marked according to their contents. A window provides plenty of daylight, and the electric lighting is well planned for efficiency. Here the picture tells the story; a dream workshop as well planned as the most modern kitchen.—STELLA GEORGE.

Good Landscaping Has Dual Value

By John Ronson

A WELL DONE landscape can be one of the chief resources of a home property. In addition to its aesthetic or utility purpose, a sound landscape often increases the real estate value of the home.

This is why this spring, 50 million homeowners are expecting to improve their properties with gardening programs ranging in size from a few shrubs to complete landscaping.

Home improvement through landscaping, usually brings a higher price to the homeowner, at time of resale. Well-landscaped homes bring 15 to 20 per cent more in the real estate markets, according to the American Association of Nurserymen.

INDEPENDENT studies show that a minimum of four per cent of the total value of the property invested in landscaping and planting will bring the higher return when and if the property is sold.

A sound requirement is always a basic landscape plan which can be used to guide the planting of the property from year to year. With a basic plan the homeowner does not have to plant all at once unless he wishes to. He can purchase plants piecemeal and when the landscape is finished he will have an artistic planting with excellent design.

Today professional landscape advice is available at modest cost to all homeowners, although just a few decades ago this service was associated only with wealthy persons who desired it for privacy and prestige.

MANY nurserymen now have specialists on their staffs to provide plans, and the emphasis is currently on more relaxed and easy, informal living.

It is more economical for the homeowner, when an experienced landscape nurseryman lays out the basic plan, the landscape nurseryman does not look at a property in terms of so many plants as an amateur is likely to do. He considers the topography of the land and the planting in terms of artistic design that will fit well in its surroundings, providing plenty of space for garden living or privacy, or whatever else may be desired in addition to the foundation planting or lawn.

All homeowners, no matter how small their properties may be, can have good, effective landscaping.

GOOD landscaping makes the house look attractive from the street; unifying house and land by use of trees and shrubs to provide a pleasing "lived-in" look to the house. . . . Sound landscaping includes a garden or outdoor living area, or patio planted for outdoor recreation, dining and entertaining.

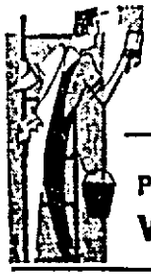

Proper landscaping includes trees and shrubs that supply adequate shade and privacy to the living area. Where homes are exposed to cold winds in winter, proper planting of windbreaks offer more comfort on the property and lower fuel bills. . . . A well-planted property provides plenty of cut flowers for use inside the house.

The homeowner can achieve unlimited advantages from his land. The exterior of his home can be as lovely, as comfortable and as valuable as he makes it.

Good landscaping need not be confined to luxury homes. Beauty at minimum cost, minimum care is easily gained.

Use Pails of Steel

OUTSIDE gardening work requires strong, durable containers. Many containers that can be used indoors are not sturdy enough to carry dirt, seeds and soil additives.

Galvanized steel pails are recommended for outside use because they are rugged and versatile. These pails are made with leakproof seams, and have zinc coating to prevent rust and corrosion.

Durable zinc coating on all steel pails prevents scratching, and the pails can be used for any gardening chore after poisonous chemicals are carried if they are washed out thoroughly. Crevices in other types of containers often harbor poisonous chemicals that later contaminate plant food or seed.

Home handymen also find galvanized steel pails just the right size for mixing cement or paint for small repair jobs around the house. Twin pail sets are ideal since they have twice the capacity and are easy to carry.

Mama's New Convertible

By Eileen Heil

Hobbies can add to home clutter, but this little cabinet with code flags is an interesting storage compartment.

HOBBIES can be wonderfully rewarding but the clutter incidental to most of them can be pretty hard for your family to bear. When the hobby that was designed to keep you out of your family's hair threatens to drive them from the house something must be done. That was the situation at my house recently.

What I needed was some sort of filing system. A regular office type wouldn't do for I wanted something that wouldn't look out of place in the living room. A local department store had a shelf that was the perfect solution.

My filing system is basically a set of black metal shelves 36 inches wide by 39 inches tall and contains 9 cardboard boxes. The cardboard containers come in bright shades and make a most attractive unit. Any handy person could make a similar one by starting with a set of metal shelves and making wooden boxes to fit.

At the library, I looked up symbols for words in Chinese such as health, good luck, happiness and painted these on the little boxes. These made the cabinet more decorative and now that my files are more orderly they are more useful to my family as well as myself.

THE CHINESE symbols were chosen for their decorative value, not as an indication as to the contents of the boxes, and this produced some amusing results.

"Mama," said my grade schooler bustling in from school, "do you have any material on Father Serra?"

I glanced at the boxes with their varied symbols. "Father Serra," I mused, "that would be California history. Look under 'Happiness.'"

THE LITTLE cabinet can have multiple face lifts for different decorative effects. With adhesive backed coverings, spray paints and even wallpaper, I can see it have more lives than the proverbial cat.

"Hey, what's in the box marked with the red flag," asked a visiting sailor one day. "Does it hold a copy of Tropic of Cancer?"

"Tropic of Cancer! Isn't that the book that was banned?" said Jan. "I don't know what you mean; that's mama's new convertible; her filing system." She pulled out a box and reversed it to show the Chinese symbol on the back.

"It isn't only a letter," the sailor said, "that red flag in Navy code stands for a whole phrase, 'I am loading or unloading explosives.'"

I'm glad he didn't ask what was in "S" or "T." After the bragging my family has been doing about Mama being so well organized these days, I'd hate to have them know "S" and "T" stands for Stuff and Things.

DEADEND areas in homes are useful for storage, but, of course, only organized storage will do.

Such spots include the end of a hallway, or one of the sides; under the stairs, over the kitchen cabinets, between kitchen cabinets, under the kitchen sink and bathroom lavatory, over the flush tank in the bathroom, over the washer or dryer, under laundry stationary tubs and similar locations.

Organized storage can be supplied readily in any of these areas by building cabinets that have handy sliding doors and convenient Peg-Board backs for hanging a variety of items on hooks or shelves.

SIMPLE lumber frameworks, fastened by means of corrugated metal fasteners, are the basis for cabinets anyone can build. These then are covered with rich-looking but low-cost Masonite, hardboards, now available in woodgrained finishes as well as unfinished.

Sliding doors are a cinch with quarter-inch hardboard, as no framing is required and they operate in metal or wood channels. They conserve space, too.

Where it is desirable to have adjustable shelves, line the cabinet ends with Peg-Board panels and support wooden shelves on metal hooks that fit into the perforations.

Family Room Is A Modern Need

Complete with built-in stereo, TV, comfortable reading area and space for hobbies and work, this is an ideal family room. Floor is of custom designed sheet vinyl.

By O. N. Rene

HARDLY a family hasn't been faced with the need for more living space at one time or another. With the trend toward more informal living, one of the first areas to be considered in a home improvement project is a family room.

There seems to be three main influences behind the growth of family rooms: a trend to more informal living and more leisure time; a widespread interest in home renovation and expansion, and the desire for more family centered activities in the home.

Whatever the reason, family rooms are more popular today than ever, and the theme of "Don't Move—Improve" seems to be gaining more and more supporters.

For homemakers who are considering how they might acquire a room, here are a few basic suggestions offered by Armstrong Cork Company's Bureau of Interior Design that will help during the planning stages:

1. Make the family room for the entire family — not just a game room for the children or a watch-the-game-on-television room for Dad. Each member of the family should have a say in how it is to be furnished, to ensure that in includes something of interest to all.

2. Since the floor and walls will be the largest areas in the room, start with them when decorating. It's now possible to get an almost unlimited number of effects in embossed linoleum, sheet and vinyl tile, and other smooth-surface floorings. A wide variety of colors and designs are also available in vinyl wall covering material. These floors and wall surface materials are exceptionally durable and easy to clean. Most stains will wipe off with a damp cloth.

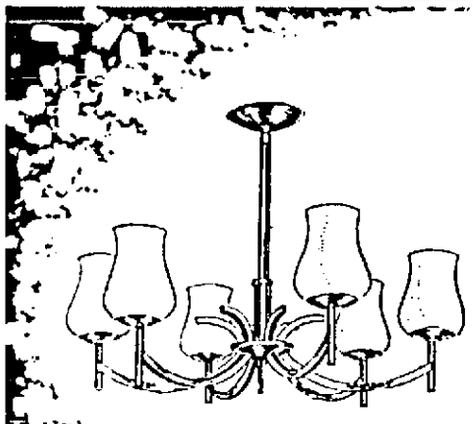

3 Provide for sufficient storage space. Books, games and other household articles tend to accumulate in the family room, and it's wise to have covered cupboards to stow them in.

4. To keep the noise of family fun from spreading to other parts of the house, install an acoustical ceiling in the family room. Acoustical tiles, which are a bright, decorative addition, absorb up to 75 per cent of the sound waves that strike them.

5. Don't overlook the do-it-yourself possibilities. This can save money and will give the whole family a sense of creative accomplishment. Both resilient flooring tiles and acoustical ceilings lend themselves to installation by the home handman.

6. Next to comfort, make easy maintenance the chief consideration in selecting furnishings for the family room. Fortunately, today it's possible to choose from a wide variety of furniture, flooring and wall covering materials that are easy to keep clean.

7. Plan the family room carefully beforehand; decide on color scheme, furiture, and equipment before the work actually begins. The advice of friends and professional decorators may be helpful. What counts most though is the opinion of the people who will be using the room. Here's an opportunity for every member of the family to cooperate in designing a room that will give many years of pleasure for all.

Dual Purpose Divider

Patio privacy and display of potted plants are offered by this arrangement of easily assembled materials.

NO NEED FOR A tract house to be a dreary place in which to live. With a little imagination and a few dollars wisely spent, the patio and garden can be made into a delightful spot.

One home owner wanted two things: a little privacy and a setting for his potted geraniums (see illustration). The flat stones at the base of the divider, the barrels and the post were painted white. In pleasing contrast are the post, the tree limbs that form the trellis background, shelves of unfinished plank and flower pots in natural colors. An old-fashioned lantern makes a garden light that is practical and harmonizes with the rustic setting. The bright blooming plants and the leafy foliage of the climbing rose make this a screen of beauty for utility and privacy.—BERTHA BLANCHARD.

Small areas, such as this space under a stairway, can be converted easily into a powder room or extra bath.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Budgetwise Bathroom

BUDGET - CONSCIOUS householders seeking to add a second bath will be interested in three basic plans suggested by a home improvement expert. No increase in existing floor space is required.

Hal Workman, home improvement director of Marsh Wall Products, suggests these three plans.

1. Utilize the end of a hall plus the corners of two adjacent bedrooms, with doors opening to both bedrooms. This arrangement is popular with families having two or more teenagers.

2. Build a mud room with a space-saving corner lavatory off the kitchen or the utility room. A homemaker with smaller children will appreciate this arrangement, Workman says, because it enables her to clean up the tots before they get into the house.

3. Install a powder room, or half bath, under the stairs leading to the second floor. Families that entertain often need a powder room for guests, and this is one arrangement that works well.

"In each of these plans," Workman points out, "the convenience of a second bath is gained without adding costly floor space."

When planning a bath, Workman urges homeowners to choose wall and ceiling paneling that is both decorative and practical. Ideal for bathrooms is Marlite paneling, whose washable plastic surface makes it practical for busy homes.

"THE SURFACE on this paneling resembles that on a refrigerator," Workman explains, "and it is just as easy to damp-wipe clean. Hard use, stains and high humidity conditions will not mar its baked surface."

Marlite comes in 4x8-foot panels, 16-inch by 8-foot planks and 16-inch square blocks. The large panels can be used in tub and shower areas. Easy-to-handle blocks are effective as an accent wall, but also are widely used for bathroom ceilings.

Lumber dealers have the paneling, which comes in plain colors, high-fidelity woodgrains and eye-catching patterns. Economical to use, the washable paneling never needs painting or refinishing. It can be put up right over old walls and ceilings.

Repair Old Ceiling

Spring is the ideal time to attend to those unsightly cracked or stained ceilings. Rather than go through all the mess of an old-fashioned patch-up job, though, try covering the old surface with an attractive new acoustical tile ceiling that won't crack, chip or peel.

Acoustical tile can be cemented in place with a special tile adhesive or stapled to wood furring strips, depending on the condition of the existing ceiling.

You Ask We Answer

By Hanlin

Q. How far can flying squirrels fly? S. G.

A. Flying squirrels can glide through the air up to distances of 80 yards or more, but the ordinary flight is usually only 50 to 60 feet. Flying squirrels do not actually fly, but glide through the air by means of loose folds of skin which connect their front and back legs and act as wings when the legs are extended.

Q. At what temperature is water too cold for swimming? D. F.

A. When the water is 68 degrees Fahrenheit or above, the body can generate enough heat to balance that lost through the skin surface. Below 68 degrees, more heat escapes than can be replaced, and the water is uncomfortably cold for swimming. In 40 degree water, wartime records of ship sinkings show, about half of the survivors die within an hour. Ideal swimming temperature of water is from 74° to 78° F.

Q. Why are stock prices quoted in fractions of one-eighth of a dollar, rather than one-tenth? T. D.

A. This question is asked so frequently that the Stock Exchange has done considerable research on the subject—but apparently no one knows when or where the custom started of expressing share price fluctuations in eighths. The origin may go back to the Spanish dollar—"pieces of eight" — which were in wide circulation in the colonies in the 1700s. Early merchants used these in trade, and the New York Exchange may simply have adopted a familiar, long-existing custom of quoting prices in "pieces of eight." A researcher has also found that early stock brokers on the Exchange charged a commission of ¼ per cent—further evidence that this fraction was one common in business.

Q. How many men who held the office of vice president of the United States were subsequently elected to the presidency? P. D.

A. Six: John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Martin Van Buren Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge and Harry Truman.

Gold Knobs and Marble Tubs

By Irwin Frank
Associated Press Writer

GOLD DOOR KNOBS and bath tubs carved from solid blocks of Italian marble—these are the little extras that make a house a home to Texas millionaires.

For $150,000, give or take $15,000 or $25,000, Ben H. Rosenthal of Dallas manages to put these colorful touches in homes he builds for the wealthy of Texas and occasionally elsewhere.

Of course, some men are pressed for money, so Rosenthal skips the marble tub and a few other niceties and holds the price to $100,000. He won't go any lower.

His biggest job is now underway in Beverly Hills, Calif., where he's building a $350,000 home for a movie star whose name he doesn't know.

"I'm dealing with their agent."

THE HOUSE for a man and wife and their two children, will have five bedrooms and seven bathrooms, a playroom, family room, breakfast room, kitchen, utility room, library-study, dining room, living room, butler's pantry, a wine cellar, heated pool, and a three-car Cadillac lounge.

Inside the house will be such items as gold doorknobs, gold plumbing fixtures, and walls and floors made of white, black and brown Italian marble. The tub in the master bathroom will, of course, be carved from a block of marble in Italy.

Behind the house will be a 22x52-foot heated pool.

Rosenthal is a retired Dallas millionaire who sold his meat packing plant to George A. Hormel Co. in 1954.

Rosenthal is a slightly heavy, partly bald, healthy-looking 54-year-old father of two and grandfather of five. Half the day he keeps a long, unlit cigar stuck in the right side of his mouth.

He sees nothing unusual in driving through Dallas with the air conditioning unit of his Cadillac running full blast—and all the windows in the car down.

"I like fresh air and the unit still keeps me cool enough.

Before and after he sold his packing plant Rosenthal built homes.

"I found I was dealing with people who were formerly bricklayers, carpenters, and concrete men.

"These men wouldn't hire a decorator, which I insist on," he says. He does most of the design on the homes he builds.

Rosenthal, who says, "I have imagination," uses an architect and a designer on his homes. He finishes the interiors with paints, wallpapers, and art objects picked up in trips to Europe and tours of Japan.

"I build every house as if I personally were going to live in it," Rosenthal says.

"I turn down lots of jobs in the $100,000 price range because people want to skimp on things."

Some of the wants:

ROSENTHAL had to put a store-type soda fountain in one $110,000 house. In another an eight-stool bar, complete with ice maker, is hidden by a wooden wall eight-feet wide that slides into the attic.

"When the minister comes, press a button and zip—no bar, just a nice wooden wall like the other walls in the house," he says.

Rosenthal does not think the homes are too expensive.

"After all, when a lot costs $45,000 you've got to put a good house on it."

As rich as the people are who buy his homes, Rosenthal sighs, "I've never met a man who didn't care about money. I know they exist, but I've never met them.

"I've never had the lush customers who would just let me go and do whatever I wanted to. It would only cost an additional 15 or 20 per cent." But he did have a man who took his decorator to New York for 10 days to furnish a Rosenthal house.

Rosenthal works on a simple business basis: He'll build a house for $100,000 or more for anyone at cost plus 12.5 per cent. Rosenthal says of the average home:

"THE GREATEST mistake in homes now being built is the quality of materials. The foundation, the lumber, the plumbing, the wiring—it's all the cheapest they (the builders) can get by with. No quality is put into the framing," Rosenthal says.

"I build homes because I love what I'm doing. I haven't built a house that can't be sold today at a profit by the person who bought it from me."

Rosenthal thinks that certain areas of California offer the best chances of building really expensive homes.

"We're still selling land by the acre in Dallas," he says, "while out there they sell it by the square foot. The higher the land the more expensive the homes will be."

Simplified installation procedures make re-doing a living room with hardboard panels an easy project.

Paneling Gains New Beauty

By L. H. Selz

RESEARCH has now developed factory-finished hardboard paneling that can give any room, regardless of its present condition, a glamorous background for any decor of the homemaker's choice.

This transformation can be made with do-it-yourself or professional help. Panels, in beautiful woodgrain finishes, go right over existing walls, if they're true, or over furring strips. Since they are factory-finished, no decorating is required.

Masonite Corporation's million-dollar-a-year research program has come up with fully tested woodgrained hardboard panels in both walnut and cherry woods. Both are authentic, high-fidelity reproductions that even experts have trouble telling from wood.

UNLIKE wood panels, the hardboard woodgrains are highly scuff and wear resistant. Marks wipe off easily with a damp cloth. To detect the difference between Masonite panels and wood, try the thumbnail test. No mark will be left on the hardboard, which is dense and resistant to abuse.

The homemaker has a range of color selections chosen by the noted color consultant, Faber Birren. In the walnut line, ready for any furnishings whether traditional, contemporary or mixed, are a light toned Glacier, medium Tawny and darker Sable. Colors in cherry wood are Natura, Frosted and Honeytone.

BECAUSE OF their moderate cost, woodgrained hardboard panels can give a rich-appearing, durable and easily maintained background for any room on even a modest home improvement budget.

Lumber dealers can help families plan home improvements. Especially qualified are Design-Service-Counsel dealers, who have the know-how, training and service, including the preparation of color renderings according to the owner's wishes.

A Chip Off the Old West

At least, the "Durango Kid" tried to keep the spirit of the Old West alive—!

For years, the "Kid," whose real name is Ronald Echols, operated the Frontier Firearms Co. in Tombstone, Ariz.

Nobody, just nobody, it was claimed, knew more about guns than he did.

The "Kid's" career ran into a snag when he was sentenced to three years imprisonment for advertising and accepting remittances for firearms which he did not possess.

Echols served 18 months for mail fraud in 1956, and then started activities again in 1960.

With his knowledge of firearms he was able to entice and subsequently defraud persons who were attracted by his authoritative advertisements and apparently low prices, said the gendarmes.

True to the Old West characters he tried to emulate, he jumped bail and crossed the border to Guadalajara, Mexico, only to be charged by Mexican police with smuggling guns across the line.

He was returned to the United States authorities for sentencing under the Mail Fraud Statutes.

But residents and tourists in Tombstone miss the "Durango Kid."

They're Quicker Than You Think!

By Suzanne Armstrong

Simplicity adds to beauty of modern area rugs you can hook for yourself or friends from materials at home.

HAVE YOU noticed how many newly decorated rooms these days feature an area rug? How the rugs provide a bright and interesting accent? Well, now that these little rugs are back in style, why not make one to suit your own home, your own taste and color scheme? Or, perhaps, make one to give to a special friend?

Modern or traditional in style, hooked area rugs are fun and easy to make and because they're small they take very little time to do.

Next to the wonderful feeling that you've created something both handsome and useful, one of the nicest things about rug hooking is that you can pick it up or put it down as you feel like it.

EQUIPMENT needs are few. About the only thing you have to buy to start hooking is the hooking needle and these are quite inexpensive. You'll also need material to hook through (burlap or other coarse fabric), a wooden frame (a good-sized picture frame works well), and fabrics dyed the colors of your choice.

Fortunately for the beginner, the simplest patterns usually make the most effective rugs and some imperfections and a little unevenness only add to the finished rug's handmade uniqueness.

As a first step, collect the unused fabrics about the house — the too-good-to-throw-away faded curtains, the worn blanket, the outgrown or outmoded clothes—even the stockings that have run. It is impossible to give an accurate estimate of the amount of fabric required for a given size of rug. Differences in fabric weaves will cause wide variations. The safest estimate is "more than you think." However, these figures will serve as a rough guide. For a rug 28x40 inches, five pounds of dry materials; for a rug 40x40 inches, about eight pounds.

Most rugs are made all of wool or all of cotton fabrics, but a little silk or nylon can be used for highlighting the design. Suit the size of your rug to the amount of material you have or beg from friends and neighbors enough to make the size of rug you want. Rummage sales are another good source of fabric supply.

RIP SEAMS, separate linings, remove bindings. Wash everything thoroughly using fabric softener (NuSoft) in the final rinse to make the fabric soft and springy and much easier to work.

Having taken inventory of your fabric supply, the next step is to plan the rug. Even if you claim there isn't an artistic bone in your body, do make your own rug design. Inspiration for color and pattern can come from anywhere—from seed catalogues to Junior's geometry book.

Draw the design on the burlap with wax crayons to guide you in color as well as shape, allowing three inches extra of burlap all around to hem back when you are finished.

Attach your burlap to the frame by tacking it tautly or by lacing it to cloth wrapped around the frame. Care should be taken to assure that the burlap corners are square and true.

Now, sort your fabric pieces according to color. You may be able to use some pieces in the colors they are, but you will probably need to dye some in order to carry out your planned design. With all purpose dye (Rit), you can achieve the colors of your choice no matter what the fabric.

If your pattern calls for varying shades of a color, as would be natural for green leaves, just vary the time different pieces of fabric are left in the dye bath. Many women feel that this "creative dyeing" is a large part of the fun of rug making.

ON THE other hand, for large solid areas of color, as for a background, the easiest way to dye your fabrics is in the washing machine, following the directions in the package, of course.

The instructions that come with the hooking needle will tell you how to use it and also how to cut the fabric in strips to prepare it for that kind of needle. Nevertheless there is a lot of variation here, too. Heavy materials, such as woolens, are often cut as narrow as ¼ inch; thinner materials may be cut wider than ½ inch. Obviously, it's best not to cut all your materials at the beginning; so that you can experiment until you find the most satisfactory width of strip for your burlap and hook.

Now—go ahead and hook! It is usually best to work from the outside of the rug to the inside, at least until the border is finished. Outline patterns in the design with a row of hooking before filling the centers. Background spaces come last.

At the end of a strip, or when you wish to change colors, bring the end of the strip to the right side of the rug and cut it off short. Left on the underside, loose ends are likely to pull out and leave a gap in the pattern.

ALL WOOLEN rugs or rugs made of non-fraying knit fabrics are often sheared. Loops should be drawn higher for this—at least half an inch. For woolen rugs each loop should be cut individually, while in other fabrics the "pile" may be trimmed off evenly with shears.

For embossed effects, shear parts of the rug but not other parts, or draw the loops higher in the design area than in the background area.

With the hooking completed, remove from frame and turn edges under and hem tightly to the back. For extra softness and a pretty finish, many women like to fit in a smooth lining before hemming. Carpet binding also makes a neat finish and is particularly good for circular or oval rugs.

The final finishing touch is to lay the rug face down where it will be walked on as frequently as possible. This flattens the loops and fits them more securely into the meshes of the backing.

Blood-Clot Studies Conflict

By Ben Zinser

Independent, Press-Telegram Medical Science Writer

EVIDENCE that heart patients benefit from anti-clotting drugs appears to be growing weaker, says an editorial in the British Medical Journal.

In fact, risks of treatment can be greater than those of not using the drugs, the journal contends.

The only certain indication for their use following heart attack, says the journal, is appearance of certain complications: clot in a vein or clot in a lung.

In milder cases of heart disease "no harm is likely to result from their omission," the editorial continues.

Meanwhile, conflicting studies continue to appear in medical journals. Some reports say the drugs help, others contend they don't.

TOKYO doctors are experimenting with ultrasonic devices as a means of diagnosis of cancer and gallstones.

A pulsed ultrasonic wave is radiated through human tissue. The wave is reflected by any object that has a different acoustic nature, such as cancer tissue or a gallstone.

Echoes are amplified and displayed on a cathode ray screen.

The doctors, reporting in the Western Journal of Surgery, Obstetrics and Gynecology, say the technique is more accurate in the detection of gallstones than is the X-ray method.

They also are using ultrasound to detect breast tumors.

A NEW antihistamine drug now undergoing tests has been able to control a variety of allergic disorders, report two Minneapolis physicians in Annals of Allergy.

The drug is cinnarizine, trade-named Mitronal.

Drs. Lloyd S. Nelson and Albert V. Stoesser say the drug works rapidly and that many patients experience relief within a half hour.

Unpleasant side effects are infrequent, they say.

The drug is especially effective for nasal allergy of the unseasonal variety, and in children with allergies.

Tests of the drug continue.

A RARE CASE in which a girl was born with two noses is reported in Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery.

Each nose had two distinct nostrils and nasal cavities.

A series of operations was begun on the girl when she was 4 years old. The child, now 5, has a single nose with a fairly normal contour.

Dr. John B. Erich of the Mayo Clinic, who reported the case, says there has been only one other case like it recorded in medical literature. The first patient, also a girl, underwent surgery for the condition almost 40 years ago. The first case was reported in the Proceedings of the Royal Society of Medicine.

A NEW anti-fatigue drug called Spartase has been able to boost energy and strength of a majority of a group of 84 housewives afflicted with chronic tiredness.

The drug, a tablet, is able, in most cases, to relieve fatigue within 5 to 10 days, says Dr. Palma E. Formica, Old Bridge, N. J., in a report in Current Therapeutic Research.

Six weeks of medication is required on the average, he says.

BOYS WHO eat wild, unripe persimmons while on hunting trips sometimes develop symptoms resembling those of peptic ulcer or stomach cancer, a research team reports in Missouri Medicine.

What happens is that the swallowed persimmon rolls up into a food ball. In most patients surgery is necessary to remove it, the report says.

Fireplaces Are Prefabbed, Too

Prefabricated fireplaces are interesting and may be installed in remodeling with little fuss or mess.

FIREPLACES have, since the colonial period, been traditional in the American home. The comfort and enjoyment of an open fire, without the high cost of masonry, is now possible through the development of prefabricated fireplaces.

These unique fireplaces, designed to satisfy every budget and style preference, make this American tradition a reality for every home or summer cottage.

Prefabricated fireplaces offer versatility and are exciting additions to home remodeling plans. At a fraction of the cost of a masonry fireplace, they can be used as the focal point in a room.

THERE'S a fireplace for every remodeling scheme, from the rustic camp setting to the modern contemporary decor. They add a decorative touch to satisfy even the most discriminating homeowner.

There is a rising trend in installations of fireplaces in new homes. Although accurate statistics are not available, this trend has also been evident in installations in older homes. While "do-it-yourself" has become a popular household word, the factory-built fireplace for home remodeling is becoming one of the most popular means of adding an unusual touch of charm to a room. Any handyman can install a prefabricated fireplace in from just a few hours to less than a day.

For example, the popular prefabricated Uni-Built Fireplace is now available in five decorator designed models. Low cost and modern styling are features of each new model.

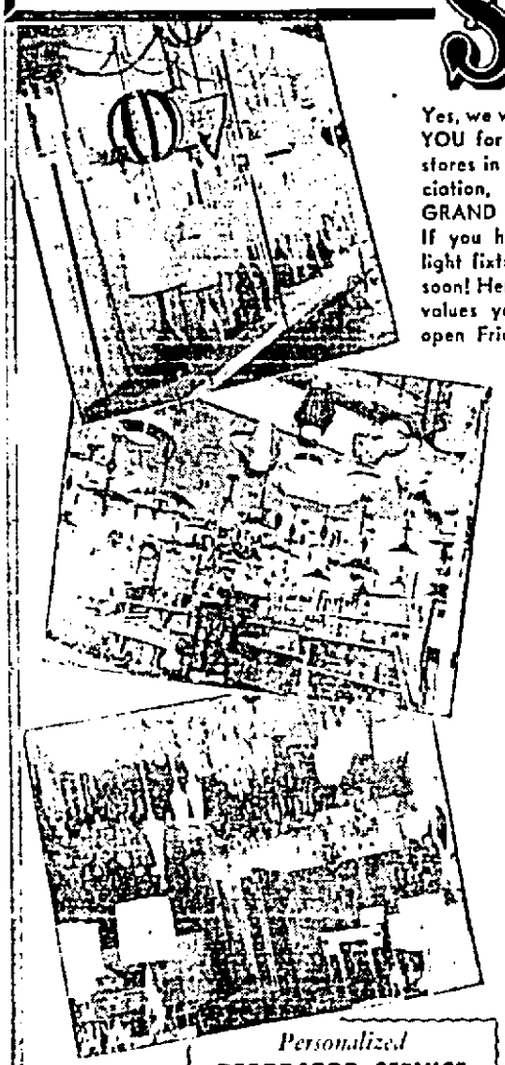

SEVERAL of these beautifully styled and functional fireplaces are finished in vitreous enamel with a selection of decorator colors. Other models are prime coated and can be painted any color to accent or harmonize with the room decor.

Fire Safety Stressed

CARELESSNESS still is the number one cause of destructive home fires.

Studies conducted by fire prevention authorities show that 75 per cent of home fires could be avoided if people would follow a few simple rules of fire safety.

Children who play with matches and adults who are careless with cigarettes and matches cause nearly one third of all home fires. Parents should first eliminate their own careless habits, as good example is essential in teaching safety practices to children.

ELECTRICAL fires often are caused by placing pennies in the fuse box, overloading circuits and using defective wire. An amateur electrician usually is behind these mistakes. Have experts do all major electrical work.

Good housekeeping is another key factor in preventing home fires. Spontaneous combustion often occurs in piles of rubbish. Even if a fire does not start in old papers or wood scraps stored in the basement, this material may feed flames and turn a small fire into a major blaze.

Fire safety officials urge homeowners to keep all rubbish in covered galvanized steel containers until garbage collectors arrive. Steel cans are fireproof and their close-fitting covers protect the contents.

USING flammable liquids in the home invites destructive fire. A small spark can cause an explosion. Keep gasoline and other flammable liquids in galvanized steel fuel cans which have spouts and filler caps to prevent fumes from leaking.

Make every week "Fire Prevention Week" at your house.

Tin Snips from Scissors

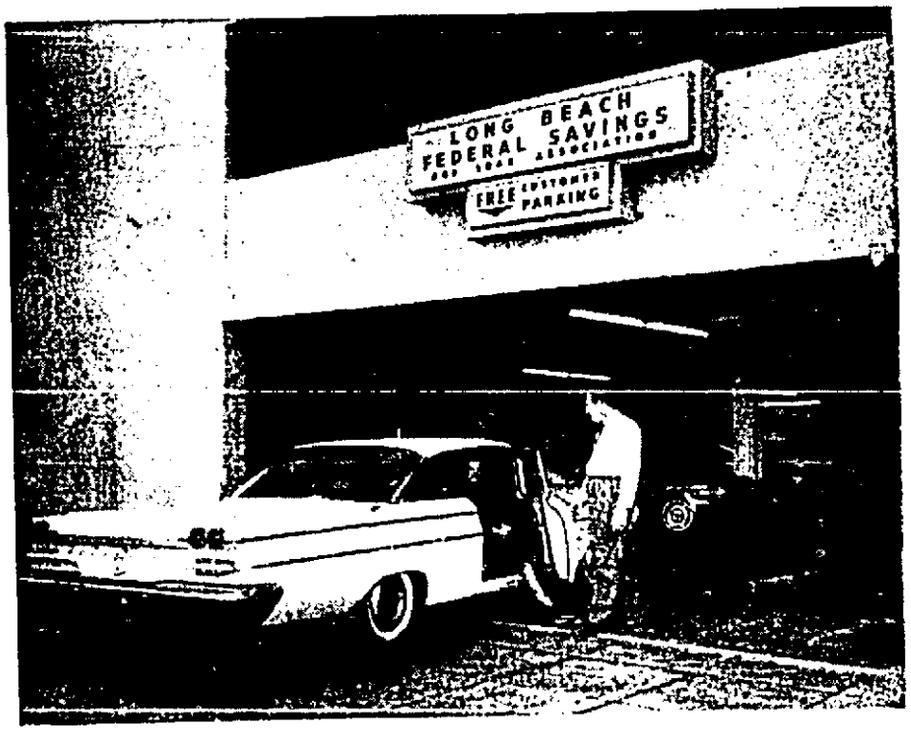

HANDY, light duty, sheet metal cutting shears (see photo) can be quickly made from ordinary household scissors which may have been discarded because of a broken blade. To make the shears, shorten the blades by grinding them down until there is just an inch or two remaining. The short blades and long handle of course means extra leverage, thus providing a cutting tool that will trim heavy gasket material and thin sheet metal easily with minimum finger pressure. It is light in weight and can be easily carried and stored in a small kit.

Tile installations can cover ceiling cracks, but furring strips may be need if area is in bad condition.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

There's a Cure for Ceiling Ills

By Penn Lancaster

PATCHING UP a cracked ceiling has yet to be listed among the most popular of household projects—and for good reason! It's tedious, messy work, and at best, provides only a temporary solution to the problem.

Many a do-it-yourselfer has spent long hours perched on top of a ladder scraping, patching and sanding an unsightly ceiling—amidst clouds of plaster dust—only to have ceiling cracks develop somewhere else in the room later on.

No wonder homeowners try to put off this gruesome task as long as possible!

Fortunately, though, there's an easy and economical way to avoid all the fuss and bother of ceiling repair. Many homeowners are now applying new types of ceiling tile right over cracked, broken or stained ceilings to conceal the unsightly finish and give the room a permanent, well-groomed look.

TILE CEILINGS today needn't be limited to attics and basement game rooms, say a leading acoustical tile manufacturer, the Armstrong Cork Co. There are tile patterns on the market designed to complement any room decorating scheme, many in beautiful pastel colors with intriguing new surface textures.

Installation techniques, too, have been perfected to the point where anyone who's the least bit handy can put up a new tile ceiling in not much more time than it would take to patch up the old one, Armstrong points out.

If the original ceiling is badly cracked or broken, it is advisable first to nail up a framework of wood furring strips, then staple the new ceiling in place—tile by tile—to the strips. When the existing ceiling is in reasonably good condition, however, the tiles can be cemented up without the use of furring strips.

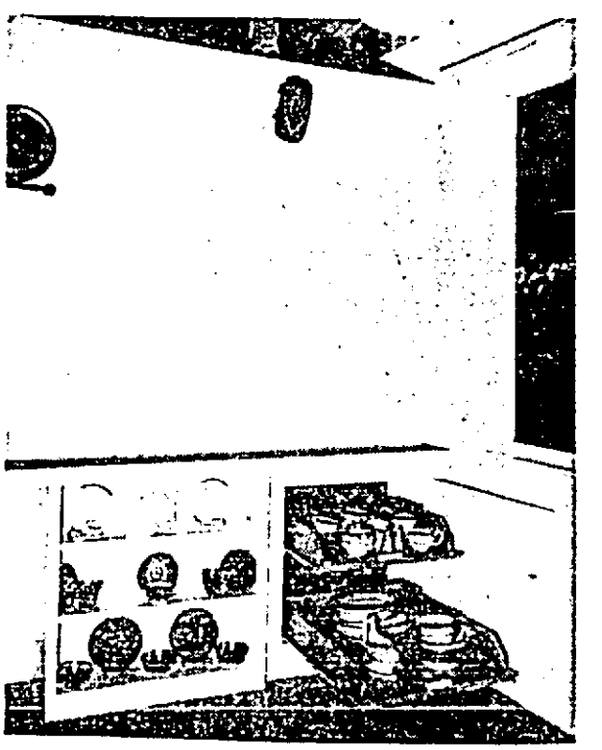

PROBABLY the most popular variety of ceiling tile for home use is the acoustical type. This attractive, versatile material is equipped with tiny sound-absorbent perforations or fissures to help subdue irritating household noise. Plain white and pre-decorated tiles are also available for areas of the home where noise isn't a problem.

As far as cost is concerned, the better grades of ceiling tile run between 20 and 40 cents a square foot, depending on the type and design selected.

Lumber and building materials dealers usually carry a complete line of ceiling tiles and related installation supplies. Most dealers can also furnish or recommend a professional installation service, if desired.

Pull-Outs Solve Problem

A SMALL, hard-to-reach cupboard in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Ward, 11661 Puryear St., is serving a very useful purpose. Ward made two large pull-out drawers to fit in the cupboard, big enough to hold a complete set of best china. The drawers pull out far enough to make the china easy to reach. Because the cupboard is closed, the china is dust free and always ready for instant use. Too there is absolutely no fear of breakage in a safe, hidden away such as this.—STELLA GEORGE.

Hard-to-reach cupboard posed a problem that was solved by installing large pull-out drawers to store the china.

California's Oldest Courthouse

By Earline Gladstone

Mariposa County courthouse was one of California's earliest seats of justice. Building, completed in 1854, is still used.

MARIPOSA County courthouse is one of the state's most interesting historical buildings. It stands in the town of Mariposa, located in the southern portion of the Mother Lode country. It is said to be California's oldest seat of justice still in use. On week days the ancient but well-preserved building is a bee-hive of activity.

The original building consisted of what is now the front half and was completed in 1854. It was built from lumber cut from the nearby forests. The framework was held together by mortised joints and wooden pegs. The lumber used for finishing the building was planed by hand and nailed with square nails. In 1861 a fireproof vault was added and was later enlarged.

THE ENGLISH-MADE clock in the cupola came around the Horn in an early clipper ship. It has a 267-pound bell. This clock has counted off the hours since the days of the Civil War.

The white frame building stands on a spacious green lawn, enclosed by a wire fence with iron posts. Scattered about under tall cedar trees there are iron benches, uncomfortably reminiscent of another era.

Just in front of the building is a handsome marker made of gold quartz crystals and gold ore topped by a huge quartz crystal. It was erected in 1929 and dedicated to the memory of Mariposa pioneers.

Inside the building there is an interesting display of minerals and ores taken from that vicinity. One small bottle contains the gold nuggets and gravel found in the gizzards of two Mariposa chickens many years ago.

IN PIONEER DAYS cattlemen recorded their brands and ear marks by placing the hot branding iron on a small piece of leather or wood. These samples were filed with the county recorder and became permanent records. Since Mariposa County once consisted of a large portion of California, including a part of what is now Los Angeles County, many of these old brands are in the courthouse files. Many ancient documents and valuable newspapers are kept in the fireproof vault.

On the second floor, the courtroom remains the same as in early days except for electric lighting and a secret stairway which has been taken out. At one time this stairway led from a corner of the courtroom to the office of the district attorney on the first floor. It has been credited with saving at least one man from the hands of those who were waiting to lynch him.

The judge's bench which is still in use is long enough to accommodate three judges although only one uses it these days. It was built for the Court of Sessions which was composed of the county judge and two associate justices. The original tables and chairs and even the hand-planed spectators' benches with their straight, hard backs remain the same.

THIS ROOM WAS the setting for many famous legal controversies and some of the mining questions settled there in pioneer days are the law of the land today. A number of well known and highly respected men have been members of the Mariposa County Bar. Alexander Deering, John M. Corcoran and Joseph J. Trabucco were a few, although there were many others.

The name Mariposa (Butterfly) came from early Spanish explorers who found countless numbers of beautiful butterflies in the Sierra foothills. Since the Mariposa hills yielded such fabulous fortunes it has been said "The wings of the butterflies were gilded with gold." Butterflies, gilded or not, live only a short time. Most of the gold and all of the people who took it from the hills so long ago have been gone for many years, but the old courthouse still stands and serves with dignity.

THE CASE OF THE LUSITANIA:

A Sinking That Set the World at War

Associated Press Photo

When the Lusitania sailed for England on her final voyage during World War I, she and the Americans aboard her were to figure in a major cause of U. S. entry in war.

By Blaine Nels Simons

FORTY-SEVEN years ago tomorrow—May 7, 1915—the gigantic British liner, the Lusitania, steamed slowly through a thick morning fog off the south coast of Ireland. Her port of destination, Liverpool, lay some 400 miles to the north. Aboard the vessel the 1,959 passengers and crew greeted this last day's run with mixed emotions. Most were relieved to know the journey was almost at end.

Many, however, had forebodings of danger, and well they might have for the ship was now in an area which Germany, three months before, had proclaimed a "War Zone" while threatening to sink every enemy-nation ship she found in the area. To date, her submarines had picked off ninety ships in proof that her threat was not a hollow one. To further add to the consternation of some aboard, the German Embassy had, hours before the Lusitania left New York on May 1, inserted an ad in various newspapers reiterating the existence of the war zone and warning all who set sail for Europe did so at their own peril. On May 7, however, few aboard were really worried. The trip had been uneventful. The friendly green shores of Ireland were visible off the port beam as the fog broke by mid-morning. The ship's captain, William Turner, was an old hand at avoiding subs and had assured the passengers that there was nothing to worry about. The Lusitania could out-run any submarine in existence.

At about 11 a.m. began a strange series of events. In contradiction to British Admiralty orders, Capt. Turner headed his ship in towards the coast to better establish his bearings. He had been advised many times during the last 24 hours that subs lurked in this area but he took his chances. About 1:30 p.m. he saw the familiar, rocky cliffs of the Old Head of Kinsale. He now knew where he was but wanted to make certain. A four-point bearing was then ordered taken on the Old Head, a process that would require one hour's time and (contrary to Admiralty orders to run a zig-zag course in this area) to continue in a straight line.

WHILE MOST aboard the big ship were not too pleased by the loss of time the bearing-taking would involve, there was one man in the locality who was delighted by the change of the ship's course. That man was Capt. Walter Scheiger of the German sub U-20. The new course on which the Lusitania had embarked would take her directly by the submerged "unterseeboot." Schweiger readied his torpedomen for action. A few minutes before 2 p.m., the Lusitania crossed his sights, within range. "Fire!" cried Schweiger.

Aboard the hulking liner a few persons reported that they saw the shimmering path of the torpedo as it sped towards the ship. Moments later all aboard felt a deafening crash and were thrown off their feet as the huge vessel dipped sharply to starboard and down at the bow. A second explosion (whether from a torpedo or a boiler blast has never been established) rocked the ship seconds later. The ship began settling fast. Eighteen minutes later the 755 feet and 30,000 tons of the "unsinkable" Lusitania slipped finally and forever beneath the waves of the Irish Sea, carrying more than 1,000 persons — including 128 American

His Glee Club Kicked Him Out

Jerome Hines turned the tables on high school glee club failure to become a top-ranking opera singer.

By Aubrey B. Haines

MORE THAN one youth has been asked to drop out of glee club because he could not carry a tune. What boy did so only to become a noted opera singer? The answer is Jerome Hines, whose prep school days were spent in Los Angeles. His voice has been heard in appearances in Long Beach.

Today Hines' voice is smooth, big, and dark. This helps to enhance his commanding appearance, which is augmented by his basketball player's height of 6 feet, 6½ inches. The son of a Hollywood production manager, Jerome Hines was born in November 1921. Dismissed from high school glee club, he took singing lessons but spent most of his spare time experimenting with a chemistry laboratory on his back porch. "However, when I got my first role at 18 as Bill Bobstay in 'H. M. S. Pinafore'," he recalls, "I knew that I wanted a singing career."

Jerry got a degree in mathematics and chemistry at UCLA. Finding that he was a half-inch too tall for military service, he worked for an oil company during World War II, singing when he had the opportunity. By the time that he received his B. A. degree in 1943, he had already appeared with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra at Hollywood Bowl. Three years later he won the Metropolitan Opera $1,000 Caruso Award and made his debut later that season in "Boris Godounov."

"AT THE beginning," Hines says, "I was usually given medium-sized bass parts, except for Mephistopheles in 'Faust.' As a result I found it difficult to compete with foreign stars for the leading roles, so I began to do some training. I sang the relatively minor roles of Brother Pimen in 'Boris Godounov' and the Grand Inquisitor in 'Don Carlos' in exchange for a share of the bigger roles."

As one of four Boris bassos Hines expected few opportunities to sing the role. He wished to try for a Don Giovanni at the Metropolitan and then devote himself entirely to a role in which no one specialized—Boito's Mefistofele. Today, however, the only relatively small part Jerry still sings is Colline in "La Boheme." He now performs the title role in "Boris Godounov" and King Philip in "Don Carlos." He sang all the Don Giovannis on the spring tour of the Metropolitan in 1959 and again the next fall and winter in New York.

Although his singing career keeps him busy, Hines somehow manages to sandwich a home life in New Jersey between the professional engagements that he and his wife fulfill. His wife, Lucia Evangelista, is a lyric soprano and sings with the New Orleans Opera Company. The couple are parents of three sons: David Jerome, Andrew Peter and John Matthew.

The Sinking of the Lusitania

men, women and children—to their deaths.

THE FREE WORLD was plunged into dismay at the sinking. "In God's name," cried President Wilson, "how could any nation calling itself civilized purpose so horrible a thing!" Most Americans echoed his sentiments. Many mourned the passing of such distinguished figures as Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, writer Charles Frohman and philosopher Elbert Hubbard and of the many children aboard. In the Los Angeles area concern was expressed for the 15 from this county who were aboard. As reports began trickling in from Ireland and London it was learned that most of these had been saved. Most tragic death was probably that of pioneer industrialist-millionaire A. C. Bilicke of Los Angeles. First reported only "missing" he was then declared definitely found alive, yet two days later positively identified as one of the dead.

The sinking of the Lusitania is important to all Americans. Prior to its loss Americans had been allowed to travel without restriction on any ship they chose. Following the Lusitania incident many felt that Americans should be restricted to sailing only on American liners, none of which had been sunk by the Germans. The Government, however, in protesting the loss of American lives to Germany, averred that the United States would protect its citizens no matter what the nationality of the ships on which they sailed and that there would be no restrictions on them. Just how we could protect American sailing on ships over which we had no control was never determined.

NEEDLESS to say, when declaring war some 23 months later much of the cause for entry into the conflict was laid by Wilson to the loss of less than 200 American lives, most of which had resulted from destruction of English ships on which Americans sailed. Such eminent persons as Winston Churchhill and professors Edwin Borchard and Richard Van Alstyne attribute our entry into World War I directly back to the sinking of the Lusitania and the American policy resulting therefrom—that Americans need not stay home nor travel only on American passenger ships.

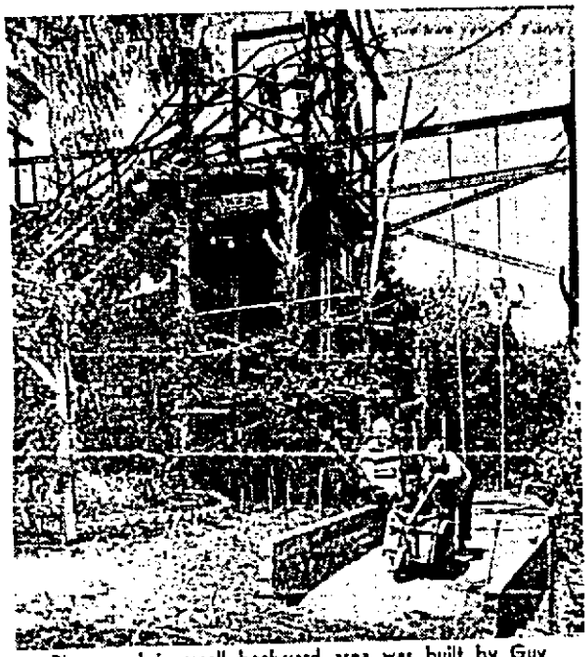

Irish fisherman today report that, at low tide, they can discern the mast-tips of the Lusitania far below them. Deeper yet—unseen and unfound — are entombed the Americans who gambled at sea under a policy of unrestricted travel in time of war. By the time the next war arrived, Americans would be warned not to travel on belligerent ships. For those on the Lusitania, however, the warning came 22 years too late. They believed, somehow, that just being neutral Americans would protect them and the Lusitania is their sepulchure for so believing.

They had bargained in fairy tales, but war bargains in facts.

Small Space, Big Playground

By Eda Johnstone

Playground in small back-yard area was built by Guy Monroe, shown with his grandson, Mike, and a friend.

PLAY AREAS for small children in crowded residential sections is sometimes a baffling problem, especially on long summer days. Where the older boys attend a neighborhood playground, often those aged 4 to 10 are deprived of adequate group activity.

Unrestricted and abandoned play is normal. Pretending at fishing, camping, airplanes, cowboys and Indians, is a normal part of a boy's development, but in crowded residential areas much of this natural urge goes unfulfilled.

This was solved in a West Los Angeles neighborhood when grandfather took a hand. Guy E. Monroe, who is 76, worked alone, two hours a day, the limit of his strength, to build a play area for his grandson, Mike. Here are a "cowboy-and-Indian" area, a workshop, bunkroom for "camping out" and playground all in a 12x20-foot space.

THIS HAPPY playground for Mike and his playmates developed from a load of old cypress trees that had been cut down in a neighboring subdivision to make way for a housing project.

All branches were cut off and the logs peeled. Then Monroe chose the sturdiest for his building. He measured a space back of the garage, 20 feet long and 12 feet wide. The back yard is on a downward slope and therefore the floor was laid four feet above ground. Eight-foot studding was used and all posts were grounded on cement blocks.

Monroe built a shallow stairway to the roof which was made of strong packing box wood nailed across log beams and covered with heavy tar paper. This roof area has proved an ideal spot to dry family laundry. When there is no laundry on the lines, the children often go there to blow soap bubbles, watching them float far out.

THE OUTSIDE of the playhouse is shingled, and again scrap lumber from packing boxes forms the base. The combination bunkroom and workshop is also used for a toy depository, and Mike has learned to keep it neat, clean, and orderly when not in use.

On rainy days the children helped to make animal cutouts under Monroe's supervision. They are made of plywood, and in this way the children learned the proper handling of tools. They papered the walls with magazine cover pictures, all of fun-work to occupy leisure hours.

Monroe built a trap door in the floor and one in the ceiling, reached by a ladder —providing "escape hatches" for boyish imagination to use in such games as submarine, airplane and cops-and-robbers. A 2½-foot runway provides a "pier" for dry-land fishing.

FOR THE playground equipment, 2x4s were extended from the roof for a distance of 8 feet. All uprights are reinforced with two-inch pipe, using scrap fence posts for uprights. Here are a swing, a trapeze, bar, rings, and a rope ladder. A large pepper tree provides shade.

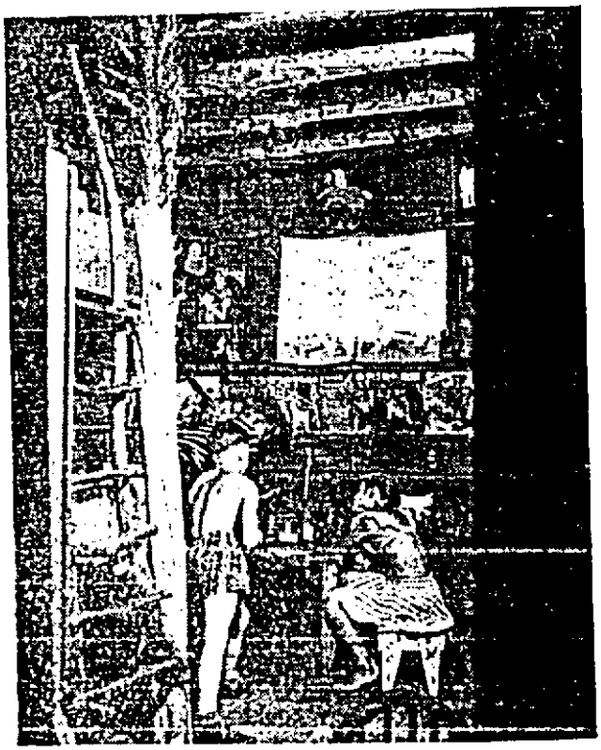

The area is also only 15 feet from the kitchen, permitting Mike's mother to keep unobtrusive supervision of activities.

Tips on Rewiring a Home

By Jack Eden

FOR PROSPECTIVE homeowners and those thinking of having their homes rewired, the American Standards Association has some handy suggestions for planning up-to-date wiring.

Useful planning of electrical circuits and outlets for every room in the house was urged by the ASA sectional committee which developed the American Standard Requirements for Residential Wiring. Sponsored by the Industry Committee on Interior Wiring Design, the sectional committee included representatives from 11 trade organizations and associations in the lighting, electrical, construction, manufacturing, engineering and electronic fields.

Good indications that your home needs rewiring are the rerating of fuse loads, no lights on stairways and entrances, use of octopus outlets and the necessity of groping in the dark to locate light switches.

A thumb-nail rule for determining the number of outlets needed for any room is to divide the total square feet of area by 150, the area specified for each outlet. For example, if a room has 390 square feet of space, you divide by 150 and arrive at an answer of 2.6 or three outlets as the basic minimum for the room.

AS REGARDS outlets, the standard classifies them as lighting, convenience and special-purpose. No special locations are given for lighting or special purpose, but convenience outlets should be 12 inches above the floor line while wall switches should be 48 inches above the same line.

In planning household wiring homeowners should first consider branch circuits to feed electricity safely and efficiently in the house. Branch circuits are needed for all lighting and for convenience outlets; special circuits are needed for the kitchen and for special appliances such as the electric range, clothes dryers-washers, air conditioners, fans and dishwashers.

Homeowners short change themselves by not having a good wiring system. A five per cent voltage loss in a circuit will give the housewife a 10 per cent loss of heat in the clothes dryer, iron or rotisserie and a 17 per cent loss of light from an electric bulb. It means more cooking time, too, on the electric fryer.

Some suggestions for planning household wiring:

1. In the kitchen, good lighting comes first — over the range, sink, counters and tables. The refriperator, if electric, should have an outlet 44 inches from the floor line. Other considerations: convenience outlets for the clock, radio and for lights in under-cabinets; special purpose outlets for a ventilating fan, food waste disposer, toasters, mixers, electric iron and appliances.

2. For the living room, good lighting is the first thought—by ceiling, wall fixtures or portable lamps. Plan lighting outlets, wall-switch controlled, in locations appropriate to the decor. At least five convenience outlets are needed for the average room and should be positioned so that a six-foot cord from any lamp would reach an outlet. Plan outlets for vacuum cleaners or portable appliances, decorative lighting, TV and radio and, if you anticipate an air conditioner, you'll need a special purpose outlet for that.

3. Bedrooms must have good lighting, usually controlled by a wall-switch. If portable lamps are used, convenience outlets should be placed accordingly. And, don't forget outlets for a bedside lamp, radio, clock and likely use of an electric blanket. Special purpose outlets will cover the use of vacuum cleaners, air conditioners and portable heaters; a rule of thumb in planning wiring in the bedroom is to provide enough outlets so that no one circuit will be overburdened by lighting or appliances.

4. In a recreation room, planned wiring will enable the family and guests to enjoy the comforts and activities to the fullest. Wall switches are recommended for general illumination and five convenience outlets would handle the normal electrical needs of a clock, radio, hi-fi, ventilating fan and motion picture and slide projectors. Place the outlets in relation to their intended use, but they shouldn't be further apart than 12 feet for useable wall space.

Other suggestions are provided for halls, stairways, utility rooms, attics, porches, garages, patios and exterior grounds. However, the standard on planning residential wiring emphasizes one point: That planned wiring should be fitted to the particular needs of a house. Modifications in home wiring should be made only when certain electric appliances are not to be used, but always leave room for additional wiring when and if you change your mind.

To obtain copies of the standard, write to ASA, 10 E. 40th St., New York 16, N. Y., and enclose a quarter for the purchase.

Bequest of a Glamour Clown

By Ellen Saunders

A CLOWN who would rather be glamorous than funny has willed his $10,000 wardrobe and a large oil painting of himself to the Los Angeles County Museum.

"Wally, the Glamour Clown," whose costumes have been dazzling onlookers since he made his debut at Disneyland in 1955, spent $1,000 on his latest creation which he wore while appearing in Huntington Park's 1961 Christmas Lane Parade.

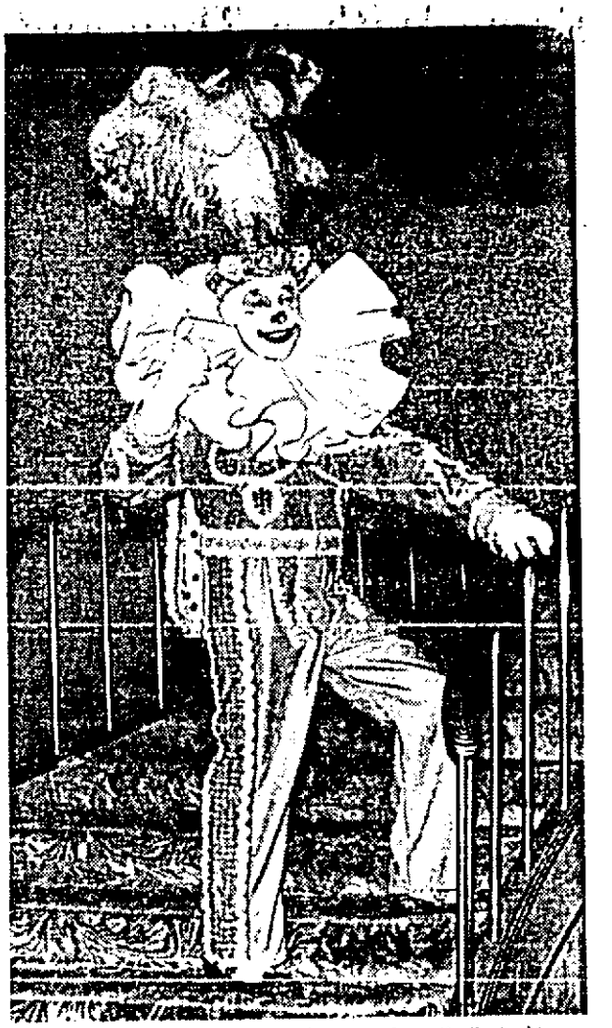

The costume, designed by Wally, consists of form-fitting pants and a red jacket trimmed in blue are decorated pants and a red jacket trimmed in blue are decorated with hundreds of rhinestones. A huge nylon ruff, a crown sparkling with sapphires and topped with ostrich plumes and a white velvet chiffon robe edged with mother of pearl completes the costume.

"I DESIGNED my costumes primarily for children," Wally explains, "but it is the grownups who get the most kick out of them. Particularly the women who like to examine them in detail."

Wally also designed his own glitter glass makeup.

"As far as I know I'm the only individual in the world to apply glitter glass to the skin. It takes me two hours to put it on and another to take it off.

"In show business, people are quick to discover the other guy's secrets so I have patented both my makeup and my costumes."

Wally, the "Glamour Clown," poses dramatically in his lavish costume, an outfit he has bequeathed to museum.

Wally was born in Hartford, Conn., and came to Los Angeles in 1914. He conceived his brain child seven years ago.

"I decided that life was not worth living unless you gave something of yourself to others. Clowns had always fascinated me but at the same time I was repelled by what I considered their ugly and grotesque costumes. It was then I decided to become the world's most beautiful clown.

"FOR TWO months I traveled with Clyde Beatty's circus as an apprentice clown. It was an invaluable experience which stood me in good stead a few years later when I led the Cristiani Bros. circus parade riding on the head of an elephant.

"It took me 14 months to design my first wardrobe and perfect my makeup. My false eyelashes are really different. They are made of plastic and are glued above the eyes."

Television viewers may have seen Wally as a guest star on the Dinah Shore show or Polka Parade.

As for parades in Southern California—you name them, Wally has been in them, along with such stars as Jayne Mansfield, Ida Lupino and Debbie Reynolds.

When Wally isn't being admired in California he is touring the country with his night club act or entertaining crippled children in Shriner's hospitals throughout the United States.

He writes his own material for his act which includes a quartet of beautiful girls.

Game With a Thousand and Forty Fingers

By Mary Louise Lynott

(Member of NOMA)

WHEN more than 100 healthy boys and girls from Long Beach junior and senior high schools put aside a sunny, Saturday afternoon to "go to school" that means a contest. Next Saturday future office workers will gather in the gym of Business and Technology Division, Long Beach City College, to compete in the second annual district-wide typing contest under auspices of Long Beach Chapter of National Office Management Association and directed by Monroe Hubbell, city supervisor of business education, who said about the competition:

"At stake is a game that will be played long after the first astronaut sets foot on the moon—the game of American competition."

IN THIS rivalry between schools, tangible awards are portable typewriters, $50 U.S. Savings Bonds, savings accounts, and large cash awards. But the intangibles are more highly coveted by these young contestants—school with the fastest typing team, typing for ten minutes with no errors, top typist in the show.

Competition will be in two classifications—those with one year of typing; and those with more than one year. Each junior and senior high school may enter a team of four. Highest composite score determines team honors; highest individual score picks speediest typist in the contest. Correcting copy for all tests will be BTD dean of business, Dr. Wiley Garner. He will be assisted by student teachers of Long Beach State College.

Last year there was little room in the gym for parents and spectators, so Dean Patterson of BTD has arranged to set up closed-circuit television coverage in the campus theater.

THIS MAY-TIME test of finger dexterity culminates a year-long program of the education committee. Their other activities include administering NOMA spelling tests—to more than 1,000 students with 431 perfect scores resulting; giving a basic arithmetic test to boys and girls from seven high schools; and the selection of the "Outstanding Business Student of the Year," whose name will be announced by President Herbert Vaughn at "Education Night" in June.

The 1961 winner of this business award was Diane Fitting, 17, a blue-eyed strawberry blonde and a Lakewood High School senior. Selection was on the basis of scholarship, extra-curricular activities, display of business skills, and personality. Awards were a bronze plaque and a $100 cash certificate. Incidental winnings included seven job offers of secretarial positions in government and industry—from which Diane picked Autonetics of Downey. The position carries extra fringe benefits in the form of a partially paid part-time college education after a probationary period.

Tuna Can Don Elaborate Dress

Tuna is presented here in three different main dishes, good for business or club luncheons.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

TUNA by its popular and versatile flavor can go as elaborate as the cook is creative.

Tuna Florentine starts with canned tuna and a basic cheese sauce. The tuna and sauce are turned over cooked spinach and the dish is brought to serving temperature under broiler heat.

In a salad, tuna finds a flavor peer in Louis dressing.

For a main dish with the French air, canned tuna may be heated in a white sauce to which sherry, chopped parsley and ripe olives contribute interest. This tuna combination can be served "as is" or on toast.

Tuna Florentine

1 pound fresh spinach, or 1 package frozen spinach
2 cans (6½ or 7 oz. each) tuna-in-vegetable oil
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups milk
½ cup grated Swiss cheese
½ cup light cream
⅛ teaspoon Tabasco
½ cup bread crumbs
1 tblsp. butter, melted

Cook spinach; drain well and chop fine. Transfer to 2-quart baking dish or casserole. Drain oil from tuna, measure 2 tablespoons into saucepan. Blend in flour and salt. Gradually add milk and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add cheese, cream and Tabasco; stir until cheese is melted. Remove from heat, stir in tuna. Pour creamed tuna mixture over spinach. Toss bread crumbs with melted butter; sprinkle over tuna. Place under broiler heat until crumbs are browned. YIELD: 4 to 6 servings.

Tuna Louis

⅔ cup mayonnaise
2 tblsps. lemon juice
1 teaspoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon Tabasco
⅓ cup chili sauce or catsup
¼ cup chopped pimiento stuffed olives
1 tblsp. minced onion
1 tblsp. capers, optional
1 head lettuce
2 cans (6½ or 7 oz.) tuna-in-vegetable oil, chilled

To make dressing, combine all ingredients except tuna and lettuce; chill. To serve, shred lettuce and pile into salad bowl. Add tuna, then spoon over dressing. Toss before serving. YIELD: 4 servings.

Tuna Sherry

2 cans (6½ or 7 oz. each) tuna-in-vegetable oil
2 tablespoons flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup milk
⅓ cup sherry
1 tablespoon lemon juice
tablespoon chopped parsley
⅓ cup pitted ripe olives

Drain oil from tuna; measure 2 tablespoons into chafing dish or skillet. Blend in flour and salt. Gradually add milk and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add sherry, tuna and lemon juice; heat to serving temperature. Sprinkle with chopped parsley; garnish with ripe olives. YIELD: 4 to 6 servings.

$5 for Your Recipe

WITH THE RETURN of spring, fruit of many kinds return to the produce markets, and with this in mind contest editors awarded the $5 best recipe prize this week to Mrs. Isabelle Langner, 329 E. 57th St., Long Beach 5, for her loquat jam specialty. Mrs. Langner's recipe:

Loquat Jam

6-8 lbs. loquats (ripe but firm)
4 red apples (do not peel)
1 lemon cut in slices
1 pkg. M.C.P. or Sure Jell pectin
½ cup strained lemon juice
6½ cups sugar

Wash and stem and remove seeds from 6-8 pounds loquats, ripe but firm. Add water to just cover fruit that has been cut in quarters. Remove seeds but do not peel 4 red apples, and top with the lemon cut in slices to keep apples from turning dark. Cover, and bring to a boil then simmer about 3 hours.

Let cool slightly then force through a colander and let stand until cool: should be thick. To five cups pulp add the package of pectin, the lemon juice and stir constantly with wooden spoon while it boils for 4 minutes. Then add the 6½ cups of sugar and boil for 3 minutes. Skim. Makes about 10 glasses of jam.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address, to: Recipe Contest Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, Southland Magazine, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give the meaning of BRYSON.—Mrs. D.B., J.B., Long Beach.

D.B., J.B.: BRYSON, a Welsh surname, is the modern result of contracting "Brysson" into Bryson. Brys in Old Welsh meant "Quick, speedy one." Bryson family records include the wedding of Alexander Bryson and Hannah Reed in London in 1790. The Bryson coat-of-arms has an "X" shaped cross between two spur rowels across the center of a red shield. Above the cross is a silver spear head; below it is a gold crescent. John Bryson, an American descendant, was born in Pennsylvania in 1758.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please define DOUGLASS. — C.D., Long Beach.

C.D.: DOUGLASS is a divergent spelling of the name of the Scotch Clan Douglas, used by one family branch. Douglas was a place description of the valley owned by the founder, William de Douglas, who was born about A.D. 1150. Douglas meant "Black water," alluding to a dark, shadowed stream near the family manor house. Sir James Douglas was a famous captain under King Robert the Bruce in the war of Scotch independence from England in 1306. In the 1400s the Douglases were created Marquesses of Queensbury. The clan coat-of-arms has a red heart with an imperial crown on it, placed below two silver stars on a blue band that crosses the top of a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like history on PILCHER.—S.P., Long Beach; R.J., Lakewood.

S.P., R.J.: PILCHER represents an early English maker of "pilches," or "fur gowns and cloaks." Chaucer's 14th century writings state, "After great heat cometh cold; no man cast his pilche away." Descendants of the first Pilchere include Hugh le Pilecher of Cambridge in 1273. The Pilcher coat-of-arms has three interlaced red chevrons on a golden shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have history on MUSGRAVE and MUSGROVE.—Mrs. L.K., M.H., Long Beach.

L.K., M.H.: MUSGRAVE and MUSGROVE were taken by family ancestors from their home village in Westmoreland, England. An ancestor, Roger de Musgrave, is recorded there in 1277. Musgrave and Musgrove were composed of the old English phrase "Mos-graf," meaning "Mossy grove of trees." The original family coat-of-arms was granted at the time of William the Conqueror in the late 11th century, and has six gold rings on a red shield. The family motto, the French "Sans changer," was granted later, and means "Without change."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the origin of MOON.—E.R., Long Beach.

E.R.: MOON was first recorded by the Sire de Mohun, a Norman French military leader under William the Conqueror during the French subjugation of England in 1066. De Mohun was the family estate-name in Normandy, and meant either "Place in the middle of the valley" or "Place of the Thinker." The Sire William de Mohun was granted 57 manors in England by William the Conqueror. Mohun was altered to Mohn and Moon in the 13th century. The ancient Mohun shield is red, emblazoned with a man's arm in an ermine cloak sleeve, holding a silver fleur-de-lis in the hand.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have the origin of McKINNEY. — G.M., Midway City.

G.M.: McKINNEY is from the Irish Gaelic MacCionaoit, with the very old mystical meaning "Sons of the fire-sprung one." The McKinneys were chiefs of a barony in north Monaghan and were followers of Clan O'Connor for centuries. MacCionaoit was modernized to McKinney, McKenney and Kenney in the 1500s. The family coat-of-arms has two narrow black vertical stripes between five red spur rowels formed in an "X" on a silver shield. American ancestors include David McKinney, born in Augusta County, Va., in 1755 and Robert McKinney, a south Pennsylvania land owner in 1740.

Prune Well But Wisely

By Bob Gilmore

Regular pruning is conducive to plant health and growth, but a slashing spree with the pruning shears can be ruinous.

ONE OF THE MOST controversial issues in gardening circles is that of when to prune . . . and how much. Professional gardeners seem to have their own personal beliefs about pruning; and the amateur gardener, unfortunately, thinks that pruning is synonymous with going on a whacking spree with his favorite pair of pruning shears.

There is really nothing very complicated about pruning. In fact, it is one of the most sensible procedures in gardening. Simply stated, pruning consists largely of removing those parts of a plant that are considered superflous. Pruning, when you are through with it, produces certain conditions that benefit both the health and looks of the plant.

REMOVING DEAD or diseased wood is definitely a part of pruning. There should be no argument on this point. Once these members are gotten rid of the plant will look much better and chances of the disease spreading will be minimized.

Pruning encourages new growth and the point to learn here is that this new growth can be developed along the lines you wish. Roses, for example, are usually pruned to an outside bud to encourage laterals to grow in that direction. Pruning to an inside bud would divert new canes toward the center of the plant.

Pruning also produces very definite effects on flower production. Specimens that are pruned back rather heavily, this is especially true of deciduous stock, usually flower with greater force the following season.

Periodic removal of flower heads is also a part of your pruning program. This step aids in maintaining flower production at high level. Allowing seed to form taxes a plant's strength and consumes energy that otherwise would be directed toward producing more bloom.

Generally speaking, plants should be pruned after their flowering period. Shrubs that flowered this summer can be cut back in the fall. Evergreen shrubs in this area react favorably to being pruned at almost any time.

HEDGES SHOULD BE trimmed whenever required to preserve a neat and clean appearance. These specimens often signal the approach of pruning time by losing their natural green coloring and stiffening up somewhat. Prune the plant so it can follow the natural contour lines. This calls for light, rather than heavy pruning.

Hibiscus plants are often ruined by faulty pruning. It is advisable to leave the plants alone for the first four or five years of growth. During this period they seem to hold a fairly compact shape. After this time sensible pruning will be required.

It is best to prune the hibiscus over a period of time. Three separate pruning treatments during the year are recommended. Remove the larger branches back to about one-third of their former length.

ABELIA GRANDIFLORA is another common plant often abused by poor pruning. This ornamental is best pruned during the winter when it tends to go dormant. The grayish-toned stems should be cut back about eight or nine inches from the ground. The new growth will start below this cut. Pruning abelias high up in the plant causes them to become topheavy the following season.

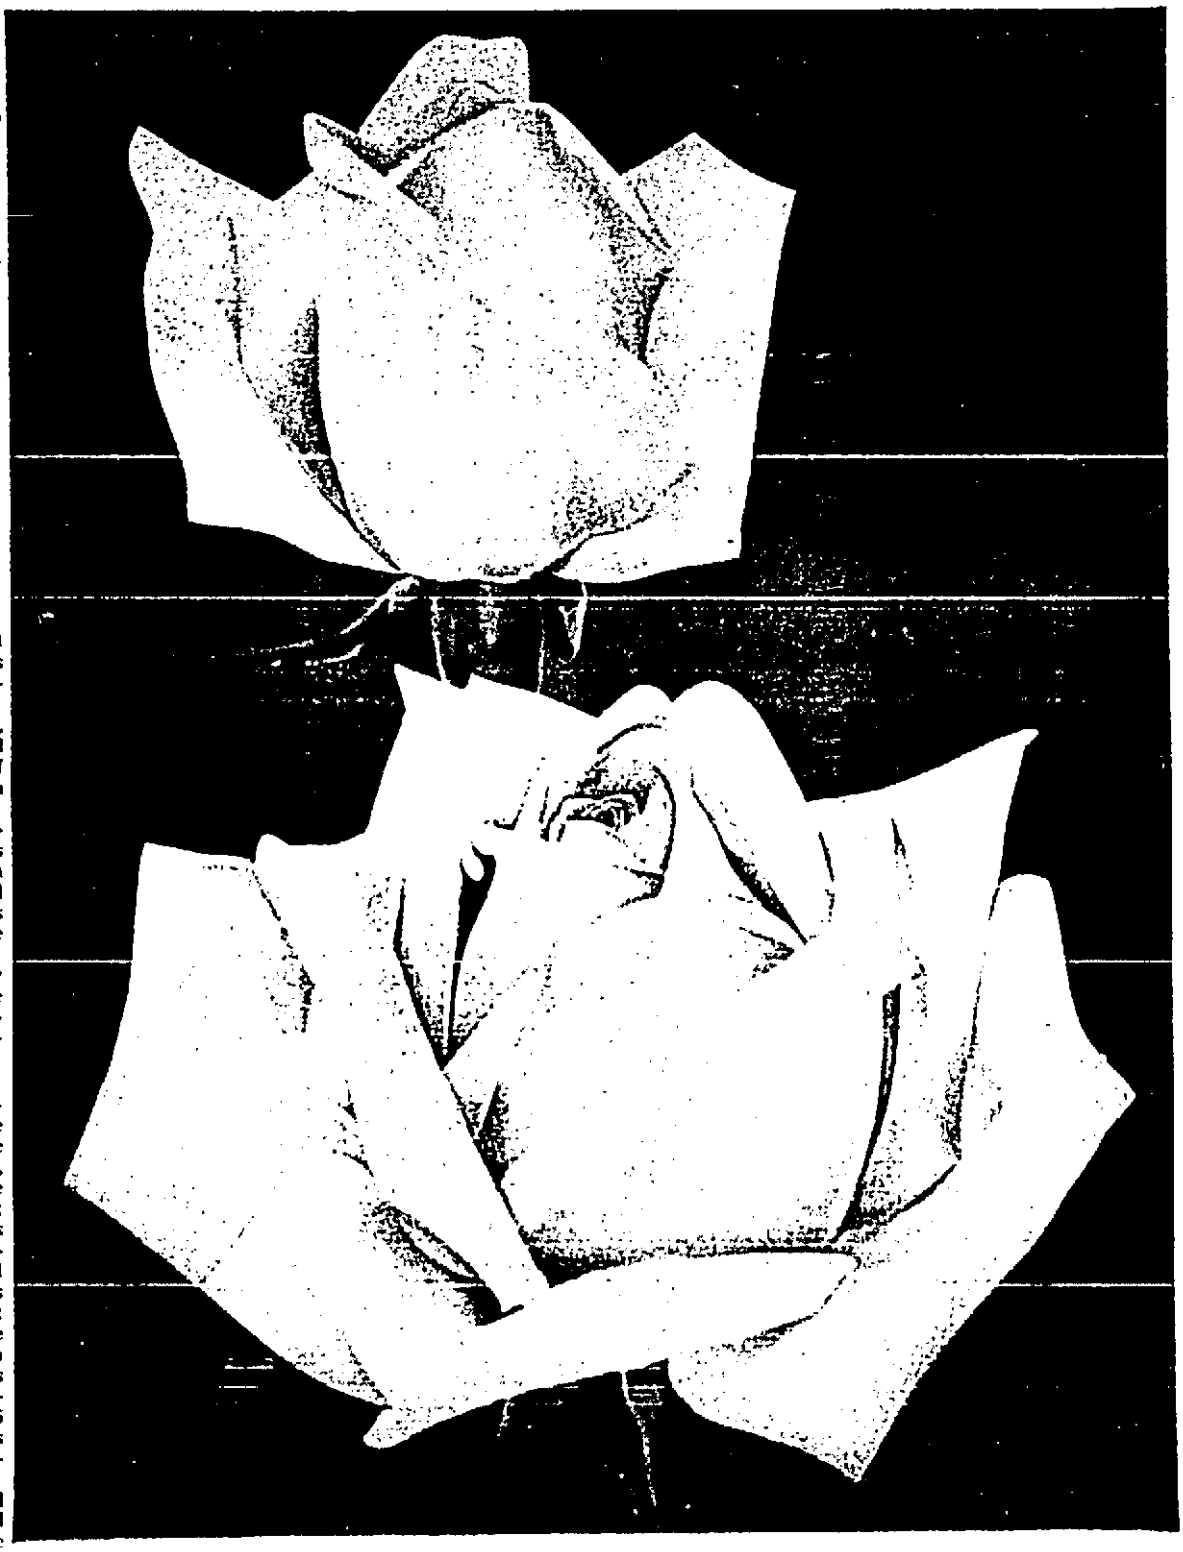

Camellias are more or less self-pruning. Plants that grow excessively in one direction should be shaped up. Otherwise, very little cutting need be done.

Club to Install

Long Beach Garden Club will install the following officers at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday at 208 Linden Ave.: Mrs. Pearl Adams, president; Mrs. Florence Sunn, vice president; Miss Mary Lillibridge, secretary; Mrs. Lillian Hruz, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Blanch Ashby, treasurer. Mrs. Addie Keating will install.

A talk on tropical plants will be given by C. B. (Doc) Houghton, horticultural expert.

1963's Rose Queens

Royal Highness is a truly regal member of the rose family, the first pink hybrid tea rose in eight years to receive All-America selection. Garden showpiece, it also delights exhibitors.

By Harold L. Golden

All America Rose Selections

FOR THE FIRST TIME in eight years a pink hybrid tea rose has been named an All-America Rose Selection.

Royal Highness, a clear light pink, has captured the coveted award and will carry the distinguished honor of 1963 All-America Rose along with another hybrid tea, Tropicana.

The new winner, a perfect reflection of what prize rose should be, is a paragon of the popular hybrid tea class of rose. In every way, Royal Highness is an exhibitor's delight as well as a stunning showpiece in the garden.

Royal Highness' refreshingly new color is entrancing: soft, pristine pure, pink petals made even more appealing by a frosty, sugar-like coating.

LONG, BEAUTIFULLY proportioned buds give only a hint of the majestic loveliness to follow in the fully opened flower. Large blooms, measuring 5 to 5½ inches, are borne individually on long, clean erect stems making cut flowers of this prize rose one of its many magnificent attributes. Blooms are fashioned in the classic tradition; high centers and gracefully turned petals that create the most delightful of rose shapes. Flowers that clothe the bush or dress the home in arrangements are unusually durable, lasting without blemish on the average of 4 to 5 days. From bud to bloom, there is little variation in the subtle, soft color of the flower.

The other rare qualities of Royal Highness also befit its pink-ice kind of beauty. The plant itself is a true reflection of the high standards set for an AARS winner. Its solid, well-rounded bush is generously branched, wearing the most beautiful of foliage. Rich, dark, dense glossy leaves serve as the suitable surrounding for Royal Highness' pink flowers.

The plant, an unusually vigorous, upright and bushy grower of middle height, withstands variations of weather in all sections of the country. Its masses of foliage are extremely disease-resistant. The plant Royal Highness is a fitting companion for the many other All-America remains in constant activity throughout the growing season

Tropicana, an orange-red beauty, has an international background.

NOT THE LEAST among Royal Highness' winning ways is its fragrance, an attribute found all too seldom among recent garden roses.

The result of a cross between Virgo and Peace, Royal Highness boasts a most distinguished heritage. Peace, itself a 1946 All-America Rose Selection, claims the distinction of being the most loved and memorable rose of all time.

Developed by the famous American rose hybridist, Herbert Swim, Rose Selections award winners originated by Swim.

Plants of Royal Highness will be first available for home gardeners in the fall from local nurseries.

THE OTHER All-American selection, Tropicana, is making its debut with the amazing background of 13 international awards. Introduced by the Jackson & Perkins Co. of Newark, N. Y., the Tropicana is a hybrid tea variety.

Developed by the famous German hybridist, Mathias Tantau, Tropicana literally swept the boards when it won 12 awards in nine countries before getting the All-American citation.

This vibrant orange-red beauty—the result of a cross between a Peace seedling and an Alpine Glow seedling—far exceeds its forebears in vigor, hardiness, disease-resistance and brilliance of color.

Its color—brand new in the rose world—is equally remarkable in its intensity, brilliance and durability. There is said to be virtually no change in the hue of each flower from the moment the blossom bursts open until the spent flower drops off cleanly. Furthermore, the blooms are said to withstand the severest weather and will last up to two weeks without blemish.

The 4½ to 5-inch blossoms are produced in unusual abundance since nearly every cane bears several long-stemmed flowers of classical exhibition quality and size.

The plant itself is remarkable. It grows from 3 feet in the more temperate areas to 5 and 6 feet in warmer climates. Each plant is heavily branched and well clothed with the most rugged foliage to be found on any rose. It is perfectly adaptable to all parts of the country, from Minnesota, New York and Maine to California, Texas and Florida.

Tree That Brightens Spring

Flowering peach provides a brilliant display of color in the garden and for cut flowers in the early spring.

By Joe Littlefield

PLANT a flowering peach in your garden or lawn, and you can be sure you'll have lots of color, and branches of flowers to cut for table decoration early each spring. That is, you will have color and flowers, provided you don't prune the trees at the same time you prune your fruiting peach!

The time to prune a flowering peach, or other flowering tree, is at time you cut branches for decoration, or when the tree has finished blooming. If you have such a tree that has not been pruned and it needs shaping, prune it right away. It is even a little late now. Apply a pruning compound to seal the larger cuts to prevent possible excess sap bleeding. Next year, prune it as soon as it is through flowering.

Just because you may have read earlier in year that the time to plant deciduous flowering and fruiting trees is during the winter, don't mistake that is is the only time they can be planted. Many nurseries have flowering peaches and other deciduous flowering trees as well as deciduous fruit trees in containers. These bare-root plants set out earlier, now are well rooted and ready to be set out. They'll continue growing this summer. Late next winter, they'll be blooming for you.

ONE OF THE sweetly fragrant shrubs, gardenias, showing many well developed buds with promise of blooming may drop lots of buds due to a drastic weather change. During temporary warm balmy weather, buds form, and slowly develop. Weather changes to cloudy days, foggy, or cool. Suddenly buds drop: Generally, gardenia buds stay on, develop and bloom, when weather becomes more evenly mild to warm, then hot. As soon as hot weather rolls around they are in high gear for blooming.

Continue fertilizing them with same plant food you feed camellias, azaleas, and rhododendrons.

Should flower buds turn brown or black along flower petal edges the flower still in tight bud, thrips probably are attacking them. One of several sprays containing a good percentage of DDT controls those pests, provided you spray several times. Thrips are the same kind of pests that damage the foliage and blossoms of gladiolus, carnations, roses and many other plants.

Honeysuckle that can be grown like a shrub is favored by many who dislike the tangled mass of vine variety.

A Better Honeysuckle

By Eda Johnstone

ONE OF the oldest plants to be sentimentalized in song and story is the honeysuckle. Whether for its delightful scent or its attractive yellow flowers, it still has a place in many gardens for fence or trellis. But to many, its tangled growth and deciduous habit have made it unpopular.

For those who still would like a honeysuckle, there is one that is a shrub rather than a vine — the Lonicera Chinensia, a variation of the Japonica. If the first shoots are trained on a trellis, and tied, the plant will grow naturally into a rounded mass. The outer growth should be kept pruned. The blossoms are similar, but smaller and of a creamy white color, turning to a deep yellow as they age. Buds are a rich carmine, prominent at the back of the flowers when they open. This colorful effect is unusually attractive against the dark green foliage.

THE HONEYSUCKLE belongs to the Caprifoliaceae family, sometimes referred to as the elder or twinflower. Of its 350 species, there are 12 genera of garden interest, which are grouped under the name of Lonicera, comprising 150 species. This group was named for Adam Lonicer, a 16th century naturalist.

Easily cultivated, the honeysuckle will thrive in almost all localities when started from seeds or cuttings. It requires a fairly moist bed of loamy soil.

Guard Against Wind Damage

Plant protectors are valuable in transplanting, protecting young plants from wind and drying of the soil.

By Walter Finch

IN Southern California windy weather is not restricted to spring or any other particular season. The entire coastal region is subject to what meteorologists call a "prevailing westerly." A wind does not have to be a gale in order to damage plant life. Even the lightest breeze, if persistent enough, will lead to trouble.

Adequate watering is a must during windy weather. Just as clothes dry out more rapidly during windy weather, plants, too, suffer from excessive drying. When more moisture is given off by the plant leaves than is taken in by the roots then the entire plant is damaged. Watering during a wind is somewhat of a problem but it can be solved.

Overhead sprinkling is not desirable at a time when wind currents are moving rapidly. Irrigation will prove more effective as it keeps the water on the ground. Overhead sprinkling throws the water into the air where wind carries it away. So when it's windy keep the water low.

LAWNS CAN best be watered during windy weather by using a canvas hose that is stretched across the surface. The hose is porous and water trickles through it all along its length. This water is not subject to the movement of air as it immediately soaks into the ground. This canvas hose is available in several lengths and may prove one of your most valuable gardening tools.

Constructing irrigation ditches in flower beds will save water in windy weather, also guarantee that the moisture will seep down to the root zone. These furrows need not be deep or wide and water should be allowed to move slowly through them. This allows sufficient time for the moisture to move downward into the soil.

You should consider a windbreak as protection against winds of all velocities. The purpose of such a planting is to either stop or divert the course of the wind away from your property. A very excellent plant for windbreak purpose is the bushy blue gum, known botanically as Eucalyptus globulus compacta. This is a fast-growing plant, attaining a height of from 20 to 30 feet at maurity.

ANOTHER interesting plant that serves well as a windbreak is Pittosporum undulatum. This is an extremely popular ornamental in Southern California, being used in a very large number of landscapes. It may be trained either as a small tree or as a large shrub. It grows from 20 to 30 feet. You can obtain this plant at nurseries in practically any size desired from a one-gallon container up.

Young seedling plants often suffer from the wind and this treatment causes severe setbacks. The plants, being young, are quite tender and sensitive. Frequently they may be uprooted. You can solve this problem by using plant protectors that fit over the individual plant. It is comparable to placing a miniature hot-house over the ornamental to be protected. These protectors are made out of specially treated wax paper that lets sun in but keeps out wind, rain, frost and bugs. They also aid in maintaining a dust mulch on the soil.

Cultivation is also essential during windy weather for it prevents caking of the surface and also aids in maintaining proper soil porosity. Water penetration is always cut down should a crust form on the surface; this can be broken down after each watering by a light cultivation.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . Start feeding tuberous begonias with liquid fish when the tops have about three inches of growth.

Use a weed killer for easy control of weeds in parkways and along a driveway where other plant material won't be affected.

Protect newly planted annuals from the sun with a shingle or some other shade-giving shield.

Lawns may be fed once a month for best results. However, do not exceed the recommended dosage on the package of fertilizer.

Feed fuchsias copiously and water them to promote a vigorous new growth of flowering wood.

By Dorothy Jonson

I always feel that camellias should be disturbed as little as possible during their blooming period. Never sprayed unless some very severe infestation makes it necessary; not fertilized lest the blooms develop too rapidly; only watered by long, slow, deep irrigation sufficiently to keep the soil always slightly moist.

But when they finish blooming they should have every attention to make them comfortable for the long, restful summer ahead. Right now, the soil should have a contribution of soil sulphur, iron and other minerals. They should be fed with a good camellia food. And sprayed thoroughly to provide comfort and freedom from irritating and destructive insects.

The ideal spray for camellias is a light oil emulsion containing nicotine. This is not a heavy spray oil but is composed of light mineral and organic oils to give lasting control of insect life by suffocation, and nicotine which is safe but instant in its killing effect. This is a super fine spray for super fine, tender plants. Use it the moment your camellias finish blooming.

GRADE CARD

A Learning Secret

By Harry Karns
Education Research Associates

ONE OF THE MOST important things any student can learn is the secret of "over-learning."

Over-learning is simply learning in depth. It goes beyond the superficial memory work which prepares the student for tomorrow's classwork but which leaves him in the lurch at next week's examination.

Over-learning helps him retain points longer, gain new insight into the subject, and develop confidence in his knowledge.

But what is the process of over-learning?

It consists of approaching the subject from several different angles—studying it in a different way each time. At one stage, the student learns the facts. Next, he thinks of examples of the principles expressed in the assignment. Next, he compares what he has learned with what he learned in previous assignments.

The difference between a student who studies merely to get by, and a student who studies to learn, may be seen in the manner in which they attack the study of words. One will note what the word looks like and, perhaps, how it is spelled. The other will speak the word aloud, learn to spell it, learn its definition, write it in several sentences, and use it in his conversation. The word becomes his not merely for a day, but for life.

If you want to help your child acquire knowledge in depth and, just incidentally, get better grades, impress on him this advice handed down by educators:

"The time to really start to study is after you have learned everything in the assignment."

YOUNG READERS need to learn to look at the signs which writers and editors erect in books.

Those chapter headings and sub-titles are as important to readers as the signs along the highway are to the motorist.

For example, a history chapter may be entitled "A Nation Divided."

That's the main route.

The sub-titles mark the important stops along the way:

1. The Manufacturing North, and the Agricultural South.
2. Slave States or Free States?
3. States' Rights.
4. Immediate Abolition.

Thus, the book outlines the big points. The student who understands the signs will immediately grasp the pattern of the assignment.

With a little practice, he will be able to discern the pattern even when it has not been set forth typographically.

This ability will prove one of his most valuable aids as he advances through school and college.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Room 403, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

HOME IMPROVEMENT

For More Storage

TO THE LADY of the house, "conquering space" means discovering new storage room —rather than rocketing to the moon.

Now a new plan for a bedroom closet wall deserves the designation of "space maker" say its designers at Weyerhaeuser Company, makers of lumber, plywood and other assorted wood building products.

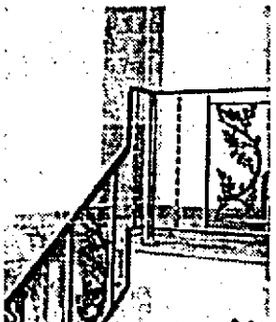

The plan (see illustration) provides twin closets ("his" and "hers" on either side of the head of the bed. It is a neat solution to the otherwise vexing storage problem in many, many homes since most bedrooms have unused space along one wall. Usually, you don't even need to rearrange furniture; other times, moving the bed to another wall makes the addition practical, simple.

CLOSETS require only 2-foot depth, and they can be as wide as the room allows. Even a 2-foot wide closet provides storage for at least a dozen men's suits or two or three times as many dresses. Above and below the clothes on hangers, there's added space for shoes, hats, accessories.

These built-ins are simple with either lumber or plywood. Finished natural or with a light stain, the warmth and beauty of wood adds restful charm and updates the home. Choose a light-colored economical wood such as western hemlock that readily accepts a wide range of stain tones or one of the new prefinished Craftwall hardwood panelings offered in a half-dozen woods and even more finishes.

FOR THE advanced do-it-yourselfer, building a closet wall probably falls into the "moderately easy" category. When built by a professional, the project would go fast, cause little disruption of the home and usually cost only $350-$150 complete, unless there are unusually complicated conditions.

Plans are available free by writing Weyerhaeuser Company, P.O. Box B 103, Tacoma, Washington.

Ornamental wrought iron adds decorator effects to portions of the home that are hard to decorate, as this guard rail does—and a safety factor, too.

CAMERA ANGLES

Make Your Flash Unit Mobile

Holding flash units above and to side of camera or bouncing light are means of improving indoor shots.

By the Shutterbug

FLASH is used far more often than any other type of artificial light source for pictures made around the house. But all too many users of flash units, either bulb or electronic types, don't get anywhere near the full potential from their equipment. Most of them, faced with a picture situation calling for the use of flash, take the time-tested easy way out, leaving their flash gun mounted on the camera as they fire away.

Actually, there's nothing wrong with this approach to flash photography. In some situations, it's the only practical way to get the picture. But constant, unvarying use of straight on-camera flash brings with it a monotonous, unimaginative sameness to all pictures made in this way. Many subjects, particularly people, are often not shown to best advantage by on-camera flash. Here are some techniques and items of equipment that can be used to put new sparkle and life into home flash pictures:

MUCH MORE pleasing effects, particularly in close-ups of people, can be had from direct flash if the flash gun is removed from the camera and held above it and to one side at nearly arm's length. From this position the light will strike the subject downward from one side, giving high light and shadow effect that will bring out the contours, planes, and texture of whatever is being photographed to a much greater degree than is possible with the relatively flat light from a flash unit mounted on the camera. Annoying, unwanted subject shadows will be cast down and to one side, out of camera range, particularly when care is taken to keep the subject from being too close to the background, such as a wall or draperies.

Another form of off-camera flash is bounce flash, so called because the light from the flash gun is not aimed directly at the subject, but is bounced from a ceiling or wall to the subject, where it imparts a soft, almost shadowless effect that is particularly effective when shooting people. Bounce flash, a technique used extensively by professional photographers to simulate or supplement available light, helps preserve a natural feeling in the picture and can be used effectively with color as well as black-and-white films.

WHITE AND gray surfaces work best for shooting color pictures with bounce flash. If a blue ceiling is used, the subject will be given a bluish cast as the light from the flash unit picks up the color of whatever surface it hits. Unless such off-color effects are desired, avoid shooting in rooms with any but neutral-toned ceilings and walls.

Computing proper exposure for bounce flash is not as easy as when direct flash is employed, as the amount of light delivered to the subject by bounce is subject to many variables which no set of guide numbers could be expected to cover. Such factors as ceiling height and tone have a decided effect on exposure results. A relatively low, light-colored ceiling will reflect more light to the subject than would a high, dark one. As a rough guide in an average-sized living room, try opening the lens two stops more than the same shot would take if direct flash were being used.

GOOD BOUNCE flash technique comes with lots of shooting under a wide variety of room conditions.

A coiled-type extension flash cord is a virtual necessity for successful off-camera use of a flash gun.

Dogs Are Hobbies, Too

By Eleanor Avery Price

TO HUNDREDS of people, the Long Beach Recreation Department's annual hobby show, directed by Lois Delano, wouldn't be complete without the exhibit of beautiful Japanese spaniels owned by Mr. and Mrs. Leland Schenck, 35 Savona Walk. Happily, the Schencks both will be there on all four days of this year's event, May 10 through May 13, from 1 to 10 p.m. daily, at Municipal Auditorium.

Theme of year's show is "Hobbies For All Ages." Everyone needs an interest outside himself. As for the Schencks, their lives have been enriched for many years with toy dogs. A visit with them at the hobby show will gladden your day and may even cause you to consider having a dog or two for your own hobby.

If this happens, remember that all members of your family should in some way prepare themselves for dog ownership. All should be willing to share a small amount of time daily with the dog. And above everything else, the hobby of dog-keeping should be a hobby of kindness. In no way should anyone trespass upon the dog's good nature.

KINDNESS toward animals is especially emphasized this week since today starts National Be Kind To Animals Week, instituted annually by the American Humane Association, an organization that serves as a clearing house for hundreds of humane societies throughout the country. We wish there were words poignant enough to cause all animal owners to be good to their pets. Although monetary gifts are needed by our local humane organization, 2150 Cowles St., the society especially asks that you give of things which have no price — tenderness, sympathy, and kindness. And, if possible, come in and adopt a pet.

A few great humanitarians have made it their business to speak up for the rights of animals. G. R. Farnum wrote: "And let us include in the embrace of our love, and, may I add, our compassion as well, that great sub-human kingdom which shares with us the divinely ordained and mysterious gift of life. Thus we shall take the whole living world into our hearts." Also: "Kindness towards all sentient creatures and compassion of suffering in all its forms are the hallmarks of an enlightened community and the badge of a cultured individual."

In the 13th century, Francis of Assisi penned: "They (animals) have the same source as we had. God wishes that we should succor them whenever they require it."

From Harriet Beecher Stowe we read: "We should remember in our dealings with animals that they are a sacred trust to us from our Heavenly Father."

Puppies, Sumi and Ken Toi, are Japanese spaniels, a breed that will be included among dogs at hobby show.

TO PLUTARCH we owe these words: "The obligations of law and equity reach only to mankind, but kindness should be extended to the creatures of every species."

TWO BIG events are set today at North Hollywood Park: Hollywood Dog Obedience Club AKC trial and the annual fun picnic of the Basset Hound Club of Southern California.

TODAY the Scottish Terrier Club of California has its match at Cambria Kennels, 1451 E. McFadden St., Santa Ana.

THE SCHENCKS' Japanese spaniels will appear on the Dorothy Gardner show, KTLA, at 3 p.m. Monday.

ALL-SETTERS INC. fun match is held today at Cheviot Hills.

SAN GABRIEL Cocker Spaniel Club has a puppy match today at Pan American Park, Long Beach.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"Can you tell us about the new railroad line from Chihuahua, Mexico, to the Pacific Coast? What it costs and what you do to get on it?"

THIS IS A twice a week run from Chihuahua below El Paso, Texas, to Los Mochis below Nogales, Arizona. The reason for this line throws me.

—Mexico generally has let its passenger trains run down. The business has gone to buses, cars and planes.

However, it's a great way for people from the Midwest and East to get to the Pacific Coast without the long drive. You wind up on Topolobampo Bay and the fishing is sensational.

The people who know most about this (and can get you tickets, entry cards, car insurance and good advice) are Dan Sanborn's at El Paso, Tex. Address them at 4501 N. Mesa.

First-class fare is about $13 round trip; $7 more for a lower berth. You can ship your car on the same train for $64 and drive onward. (There's a half-price rate if you are in a group and ship more than one car.)

Some real back country that tourists don't see through the Sierre Madre mountains. They've got breech clout, long-hair Indians in these hills. Wonderful trip for kids, I would think.

"... anything about summer schools in Mexico?"

This is becoming a big thing. Cheap and good. There's an American boarding school, Colegio Beverly Hall, at Guadalajara, Jalisco — street address, Vallarta, 1851.

The April issue of "Seventeen" magazine has an article by James Norman on all schools for American summer students in Mexico. (I imagine this is the same man who wrote a "What to Buy and Where to Buy It in Mexico." If so, read the "Seventeen" article because he is absolutely tops in the country.)

CHEF CHARLES DANIEL
..."It isn't the eating..."

He's a Champ Chef

CLAIMS to the title of "The World's Best" in the art of meal preparation can be the subject of considerable debate. The championship is hard to substantiate because it depends somewhat on who is keeping score.

With a touch of pardonable pride, American President Lines offers a candidate.

He is Chef Charles J. Daniel, master of the gleaming galley aboard the SS President Roosevelt, newest and one of the most luxurious passenger ships on the trans-Pacific run to the Orient, which puts in at Los Angeles Harbor at 8 a.m. Friday and departs the following day.

By anyone's standards, his background and the creations from his skillet qualify him for title consideration. But this is the clincher—he is officially an international champion chef.

HIS OFFICIAL TITLE was earned as a member of the first United States team to win the world culinary championship in—of all things—the Olympic Games. Scene of the triumph was Frankfurt, Germany, in 1960.

It's not by idle chance that he became an expert chef. He comes from a Swiss hotel family. Two brothers are presently chefs there and his six sisters are in the restaurant and hotel business in Switzerland.

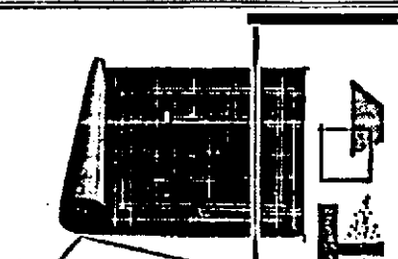

At 17 years of age he became an apprentice in the Swiss program that has produced some of the world's most famous chefs. The exacting training period was followed by years of experience in European cities renowned for food—Stockholm, Geneva, St. Moritz, Montreux, Copenhagen, Amsterdam, Paris and others.

SERVING AS CHEF aboard Dutch passenger liners, he found his way to the United States. U. S. citizenship became his top priority as he practiced his art in some of the best restaurants in New York, Southern California and San Francisco.

In preparation for his assignment to the President Roosevelt, he has served for the past two years on APL's luxury liners SS Presidents Cleveland and Hoover. On the President Roosevelt he is boss of 27 cooks and a kitchen staff of 57 skilled artisans.

Daniel complains his chosen profession involves the constant exposure to temptation in the presence of so much delicious food. Patting his waistline, he voices the universal apology of all who toil in the vineyard of stoves:

"It isn't the eating that puts on the pounds, it's the picking."

There's nearly — something to interest every member of the family — each day in Southland

YOU'RE going to have to bear with us on this one. The paper may blush a little, but it's all for the good of the cause, and Social Responsibility is nothing if not our watchword.

You see, you may well find yourself in the same position we did — back in the hotel after a hard day of looking at cherry blossoms and buying wood-block prints — and decide that a steam bath and massage is just what you need.

Now, the Japanese views on bathing are well enough known not to need much elaboration here. Cleanliness is a veritable mania with them. Like most regular functions, bathing assumes the proportions of a ritual, as in the custom of family style communal bathing.

The steam bath and massage as we know it is not indigenous to Japan but was adopted from the Chinese after the war. We should have been prepared, we suppose, for the Japanese having adapted it to their own traditions. But we weren't as we hied ourselves up to the Miyako Hotel's solarium. Our suspicions began when we noted there was only one entrance, not the usual decorous "men" and "ladies" doors. Inside, a gaggle of wizened old ladies, the attendants, bowed and giggled at us.

WE WERE ushered into a locker room where one of the old ladies motioned us to disrobe and slip into kimonos. Modestly turning our backs on her in the accepted Japanese manner, we managed to pull off this maneuver without too much loss of—ah—face.

With great inhibition we clutched our robes about us, trying to make the mental adjustment of if-you-can't-like-it-join-it, and were led to the steam cabinets. Here we immersed for eight minutes in the false security of the steel surroundings.

Clutching towels about us, we proceeded to the private bathing room. It was an oversized version of a typical Japanese bathroom — a family-sized sunken tub made of wood surrounded by a tile floor where stood two tiny stools.

Divesting ourselves of the last shreds of human dignity, we awaited the next visitation of the crone and the inevitable back (and front) scrub. But when the door opened, what to our wondering eyes should appear but a teen-age girl. She was dressed (we warned you this was going to happen) in a short-sleeved blouse and pink lace-trimmed panties.

As she lathered and tubbed us, and ever since, we have speculated deeply on this costume. Nothing in our travel experience or meager knowledge of Japanese ways could explain it. Was it traditional? Was it merely the most comfortable dress for the hot room? What would Freud have concluded?

SWATHED in towels again and still wondering, we moved on to the massage room where two tables and two more old ladies were ready for us. We were preparing for the last blow to our composure when we noticed that the door to the steam cabinet room was open a crack. Through it we could see the perspiring head of one of our traveling companions emerging from one of the steel traps.

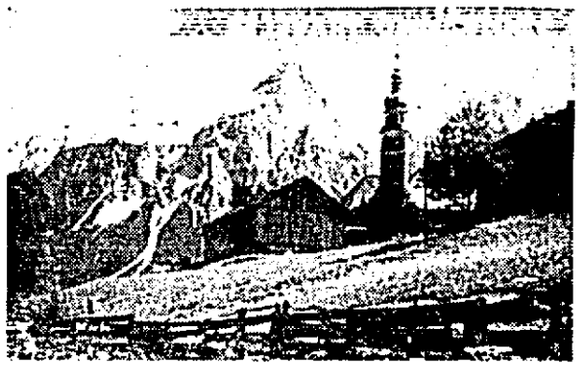

"George!" we cried with mixed dismay and embarrassment. The reddened face of George, the dignified editor of a distinguished Latin American magazine, turned white as his hair. He clanged the cabinet closed around his neck. We clutched the towels around us tighter.

The hags seemed delighted. "Friend!" they declaimed — the only English we heard—and prepared to yank him out of the steam cabinet and into our room for a really jolly three-way friendly massage party.

They were crestfallen when we finally communicated to them that no, no, things were already semi-private enough, thank you, and we only wanted the door closed.

The girls went about their massaging while we, in the usual dress for a massage, made bad jokes to each about Togetherness. The ladies laughed heartily, politely and uncomprehendingly at every word, cackling and bowing as they saw us back into our clothes and out into the world again.

When we saw George in the lobby a while later, he employed the classic Latin gambit for avoiding embarrassment. He pretended we'd never even seen each other upstairs.

NOT FAR FROM the German border is the quaint village of Lermoos, in Austrian Tirol. It is reached after a one and one-half-hour drive from Innsbruck over Fern Pass, a route which tourists find one of the most scenic anywhere. Lermoos boasts four pensions, or hotels, which have complete modern facilities.

Pilots Schooled in New Craft

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent, Press Telegram Travel Editor

LOS ANGELES International Airport is playing an increasingly important role in the affairs of the airlines of the world.

New case in point is extensive training program which Trans World Airlines crew members were given at the airport before being assigned to the airline's Star-Streams, the "new breed" of commercial jetliners which went into service Saturday.

The training program marked the first time that large-scale instruction in new jet equipment has been carried out in Los Angeles. Previously, all training had been given at the TWA training center in Kansas City.

Selected captains, first officers and flight engineers were trained in classroom and cockpit at the airline's huge maintenance facility. Classroom sessions were devoted to study new systems, procedures and equipment. Crews and their instructors then took the giant jets aloft in training flights over the Southland.

The StarStream is TWA's designation for the new Boeing 707-131B jets—with a cruising speed of 630 miles per hour—designed and constructed around the newer, more powerful Pratt and Whitney JT3D-3 turbofan engines. Each engine develops 18,000 pounds of thrust.

IF YOU PLAN to go to Hawaii next month, and are in Honolulu on June 11—we'll, you'll be a mighty lucky person.

That will be Kamehameha Day, a favorite Aloha state holiday, when there'll be a parade with lei-decked horses mounted by flower-crowned princesses. There'll be hula dancers on orchid-plastered floats. The 30 floats will be interspersed with marching bands and Hawaiian music-makers

After the parade, numerous poi luncheons will go on about the town—visitors invited. Public luaus also will give mainland vacationists a chance to feast on fish, poi and roast pig, Hawaiian style.

In addition, holoku balls and special entertainments are scheduled on numerous resort islands.

All of which will be something to remember for a long time to come.

SPEAKING OF Hawaii, Honolulu's new $30 million International Airport complex is scheduled to open July 2. A $5½ million overseas terminal building is located adjacent to the recently opened inter-island airlines facilities.

Eleven foreign and domestic carriers will be serviced at the new complex, which is only 20 minutes from downtown Honolulu.

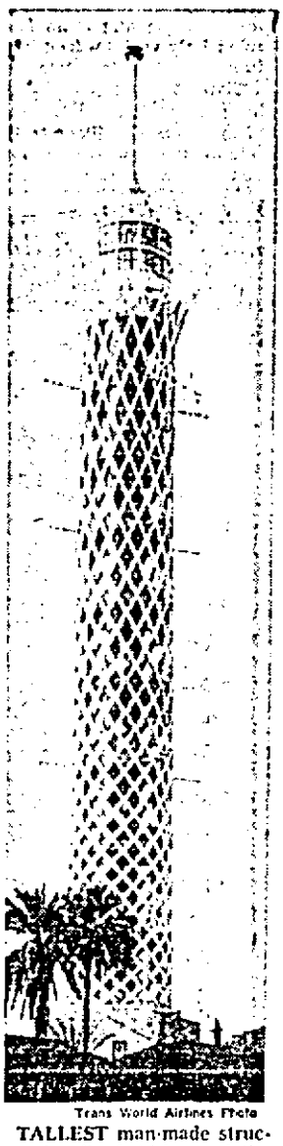

FUN AND PLEASANT sailing. That's the report from vacationists cruising aboard the SS Acapulco, which makes twice-monthly trips between Los Angeles Harbor and the Mexican Riviera city of Acapulco.

There's something doing from 7:30 a.m., when the gong announces breakfast, until 4 a.m. next day. Recreation, entertainment and loafing in the sun are in order. Activities include simulated horse racing or bull fighting lessons, music for those who dance, swimming in two pools, first run movies, bingo, trap shooting off the stern of the vessel, and so on.

The Acapulco is a one-class ship. The continental cuisine is prepared by Italian chefs and folks say it is good!

BIG OAK FLAT Road has been opened in Yosemite National Park with the removal by plows of a snow pack eight to nine feet deep in the Tuolumne Grove and Crane Flat areas, according to National Park Service. This road is the Park extension of SSR 12 which joins U. S. Hwy. 99 at Manteca.

WHEN THE SWANK 131-room Palm Springs SPA Hotel is opened at the height of the desert resort's season next year, the executive director and general manager will be none other than Eddie Davidson. Eddie, nationally known in the hotel management field, will run the new luxury palace in conjunction with his management of the world-famed Palm Springs SPA, a spot well known to so many Long Beach residents.

BOOK REVIEWS

An Admiral Looks at the Schools

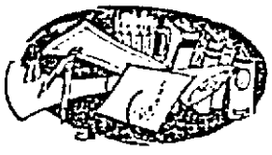

By Vera Williams
Independent Press Telegram Book Editor

AS A sharpshooting but constructive critic of American school procedure, Vice Adm. H. G. Rickover reaches stature comparable to that he attained as the "father of the atomic Navy"—the genius who developed power plants for the submarine Nautilus, the cruiser Long Beach and eight other nuclear warships.

"SWISS SCHOOLS AND OURS: Why Theirs Are Better" (Atlantic-Little, Brown, $3.95) wastes no words, pulls no punches in attacking three favorite Rickover targets:

The school administrator, who usurps functions which Rickover says should be handled by experienced teachers; the "local-needs" doctrine of control of curriculum by local school boards, and the reluctance of American school authorities to borrow and utilize successful educational techniques from other nations, such as Switzerland.

With supreme documentation, he defends career teachers as the heart and hope of American education

He pleads fervently for the elevation, by public recognition and reward of educational achievement, of the American teaching profession to the prestige level it enjoys in nations abroad.

FRANCOISE Mallet-Joris is about the best of France's women novelists; her newly translated "THE FAVORITE" (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, $4.50) is in a new genre—the historical novel.

Here is the story of Louis XIII's mistress, Louise de La Fayette, and of the two powerful factions at the court—those of Cardinal Richelieu and of the feudalists who follow the queen. The novel places Louise between the hammer of the one and the anvil of the other, yet refusing to use her love for the king to influence him. The cardinal's agents trick her into a convent.

Because Mallet-Joris is so gifted, the reader is held to the end by the suspense of the plot and the beauty of the writing.

"FISH, FOWL AND LIMERICKS, With an Added Lyrical Bouquet" (University of Washington Book Store, Seattle) is the latest output of the flying typewriter of Glenn Hughes, founder and for 40 years director of the School of Drama at the University of Washington.

Hughes, who was reared in Long Beach and graduated from Poly High in 1911, has written many books including theater histories, plays and poems.

"FF and L," lighter than most of his work, is marked by gay — and occasionally naughty — limericks. (Hughes suggests that his readers take only a few of them at a time.) There are charming Easter and Christmas poems including a fetching Christmas dialogue. A "Birthday Garland" is made up of poems in the style of Swinburne, Browning, Yeats, Shakespeare, Housman and Eliot.

The volume is dedicated to Hughes' brother, Bert E. Hughes, 1667 Poinsettia St.

BIOGRAPHER Christopher Hibbert pictures Benito Mussolini as a man of puzzling contrasts.

"IL DUCE" (Little, Brown, $6) recounts how Mussolini at one time soundly condemned war as a Socialist editor, then proclaimed war could be Italy's salvation in 1914.

The biography tells how Mussolini was a wild youth who resisted and resented all authority. This same Mussolini was the man who later ruled Italy with an iron hand in a Fascist police state.

The 365-page biography follows Mussolini's life from birth in a small village to the fateful 1945 day when he was shot by Communist partisans.

Concluded Hibbert: "Mussolini, as he himself once said, was not so much a Fascist as a Mussolinist."

"THE LAWLESS SKIES" by Donald Fish (Putnam's, $3.95) is the true story how a gold smuggling ring and other airborne criminal operations were broken up.

The author is the former chief security officer for British Overseas Airways Corporation.

ELLEN BROMFIELD GELD

The daughter of Louis Bromfield — Ellen Bromfield Geld—writes with humor and affection about her eccentric father in "THE HERITAGE" (Harper, $4.50).

Soda Is a Seven-Cent Bargain

Sponging a windshield with baking soda removes bugs that have been squashed there and block driver's view.

WHAT CAN you buy today for seven cents . . . one egg, half a cake of soap, or three and a half aspirin? In spite of soaring prices, however, there's one item that's been able to resist inflation . . . one that can still be bought for just about seven pennies, namely a half pound box of baking soda. Take advantage of the hundreds of practical household uses to be found in this little package and your weekly budget may wind up with a surprising surplus.

For example, it's a first rate dentifrice for both "true" and false teeth. It's the only product aside from salt recommended as a dentifrice in American Dental Association literature . . . only dentrifice in powdered form that's permitted to be exhibited at ADA conventions.

A HALF POUND of it added to a tepid tubful of water and you have a treatment recommended by dermatologists for the relief of dry skin, sunburn, prickly heat, hives and other minor skin irritations, but don't irritate by scrubbing. Since soda is a mild detergent, you'll come clean without the help of a washcloth. Have the water in your tub hot and aching muscles relax.

Soda also makes an excellent cleanser for your tub. Apply it dry with a sponge or brush. Run the water to rinse and, presto, soda dissolves. The gritty bottomed tub, the bane of bathers, becomes a thing of the past.

Soak sore, weary feet in a basin full of soda solution and they pep right up with the rest of you following suit. Insect bites or stings lose their itch or burn when covered with a baking soda paste. And soda is still the standard remedy for the relief of acid indigestion and heartburn.

SINCE BAKING SODA is a pure food product, it's particularly valuable as a household sweetener and cleaner for it can be safely used around food and small fry. Manufacturers of refrigerators and freezers, for example, recommend it for cleaning and refreshing the interior of their units. Manufacturers of non-aluminum coffee-makers do likewise, for soda removes that accumulation of coffee film which is responsible for giving coffee a stale-ish, off flavor. Makers of vacuum bottles and jugs advise filling their products with a soda solution after every using to keep them sweet and clean.

Manufacturers of stainless steelware advise using a soda solution or dry soda applied with a moist sponge for stainless steel surfaces, appliances and flatware. Other surfaces that respond well to a soda and water wash are tile, plastic, porcelain and marble.

Caricature by Bob April
REX WELCH
Hard to Believe

THE BUILDING is still as modern as tomorrow, its graceful curves and smart straight lines making it a landmark on Atlantic Avenue, noticed by everyone who passes. Its interiors have never been more handsome. Its picture windows, tropical plants and split-level dining rooms and banquet rooms are as glamorous as the day they were built.

So perhaps that's why people find it so hard to believe that Welch's, 4401 Atlantic Ave., is now 15 years old. Even the employes, some of whom have been there the entire 15 years, can't believe the restaurant has reached that age. Nor can owner Rex Welch, who had the idea for the restaurant, built it and has had the rich experience of seeing it prosper through its decade and a half of life.

Like a beautiful woman displaying more elegance with each passing year, Welch's has retained charm. It keeps its old patrons while regularly attracting new ones from throughout Long Beach and the surrounding communities. The luncheon and dinner menus have varied only slightly down through the years, offering sea foods and meat entrees of the highest quality, freshly prepared with the emphasis on flavor, fragrance and perfect appearance. Among the tastebud-stimulating dinner entrees are shrimp or crab Newburgs ($2.50); tender, flaky swordfish steak ($2.25); appetizing abalone ($2.50) and such other treasures of the sea as lobster thermidor ($3.50); grilled halibut ($2.25), and fried jumbo shrimps with a spicy sauce ($2.25). Among the beef items are prime ribs of beef au jus with Yorkshire pudding ($3).

The restaurant serves Sunday dinners from 12:30 to 9 p.m. Luncheons are served daily from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., dinners from 5 p.m. on.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

'Ben Casey' Romantic Success

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Two attractively dressed women approached Vincent Edwards after rehearsal for a "Ben Casey" scene.

"We're doctors' wives," said one of them, "and we want you to know we think you're doing a fabulous job."

Edwards, as non-smiling as his TV "Ben Casey" image, replied:

"Thank you."

The other doctor's wife said nothing. She just stood in awe. She appeared lost in that hero-worship type of crush-reverie usually reserved for teenage girls.

It is not a type of middle-age crush-reverie reserved for doctors' wives. In the case of "Ben Casey," resident neuro-surgeon, the hero-worship is catching.

An association of retail merchants from the East and Mid-West recently reported that financial deficits from a blizzardy winter had largely been offset by the sale of one feminine item—a "Ben Casey" blouse.

Most of the purchasers, the association reported, were middle-aged women.

JUST WHAT makes Vincent Edwards romantically click with middle-aged women is more than any mere male can analyze.

Certainly he is not pretty-boy handsome. He looks more like the public image of a hoodlum, than a neuro-surgeon.

In fact, prior to being signed as "Ben Casey," Edwards generally appeared in motion pictures and television productions as a heavy.

His type-casting as a villain made Edwards "feel disgusted, but I never wanted to give up acting."

What makes Edwards romantically click certainly is not love scenes. The only kiss in a TV season's portrayal as the neuro-surgeon has been expended on a thermometer when "Ben Casey" was ill.

In his role, Edwards is generally surly, usually controversial and always authoritative and commanding.

It is perhaps these last two elements—authority and command—that virilely stimulate the middle-aged feminine viewers who send him more

DR. HENNESEY TV WEDS NURSE MARTHA

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Jackie Cooper Explains Viewers Eager for Marriage Vows

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Doctor Hennesey is marrying nurse Martha Hale, and fans of the television show may be asking why.

"I'll tell you why," said Jackie Cooper, who is producer and director as well as "Hennesey" himself.

"In the past year or two, we've been getting a lot of mail from viewers, especially young persons and church people, wondering when Hennesey and his girl friend are going to get married. They seem eager to have it happen.

"Besides which, in three years of their courtship, we had used just about every kind of line and situation that could be used with two people who were dating. It was time to get a new dimension.

"A lot of people are now worried that 'Hennesey' is going to be just another family show. It isn't. The only difference will be that instead of going home to the bachelor office quarters, he'll be going to a house of his own."

* * * *

IT IS SAFE to predict that Jackie won't allow "Hennesey" to sink into the wall-to-wall rut of the domestic comedies. So far the show has managed to avoid all stereotypes for television series, while still building a steadily growing audience.

Young Dr. Hennesey is a Navy doctor—"We were on the air two years before Ben Casey and Dr. Kildare started practicing."

But it is not a medical show. "We have had a cigarette and a food sponsor, and they weren't eager for us to get clinical," Cooper explained. "I did remove a child's appendix in a mountain cabin once, but most of my practice has been off-screen."

* * * *

THE DUAL sponsorship also has contributed to "Hennesey's" split personality: "The food sponsor wanted us to play for comedy, while the cigarette people were willing to have some dramas. So we usually do a comedy when the food sponsor had two of the three commercials, and a drama—with some light lines—on the alternate week."

The sponsors were consulted about the forthcoming marriage. It will be the last show of the season (10 p.m. this Monday, channel 2). "But we didn't have to get their permission," Jackie added. "They've been very good about not interfering."

* * * *

WHAT COMES next for Hennesey?

First he has a fight for survival. Despite generally good ratings, the show has been bumped out of its time slot and is looking for another. It may be on CBS again, perhaps elsewhere. But Jackie is confident "Hennesey" will survive.

"We have a ready audience, and the show is a good buy for a sponsor," he said. "I would like to do one more season—two at the most.

"I expect this to be my last engagement as a performer; I've been at it 36 years and I've got a lot of other things I want to do. Next year I'd like the Henneseys to have a baby and get their futures settled. Then I can leave them."

AFTER THREE YEARS of courtship, Dr. Chick Hennesey (Jackie Cooper) weds nurse Martha Hale (Abby Dalton) at 10 p. m. Monday, channel 2.

Vince Edwards 'Happy Hero'

than 1,000 letters a week.

With a half-grin, one that would make Mona Lisa look like Martha Raye in the midst of a guffaw, Edwards added his own analysis of the romantic appeal.

"I guess they like my bedside manner," he said.

HAPPY to at last be a hero, Edwards is still happier that the ABC-TV Monday night medical series, in his opinion, has succeeded on another front other than its romantic appeal to middle-aged women.

"Children now have another kind of image to admire besides the gangster or western type," he said.

It's an image to which he's dedicated.

"I feel I have the character down to where I believe it," he said.

That his viewers believe it is evident from the series' success as one of the nation's top 10 television shows, according to Nielsen ratings.

That the series' producers are sure it is a success is evident with reports that Edwards will get a considerable raise in salary for his second-season appearance as the neuro-surgeon.

The personal financial success is one vastly appreciated by an actor who, not too long ago, "was renewing acquaintances at the unemployment office."

EDWARDS CREDITS a great deal of the success of the series to its excellent scripts.

"The basic element is 'survival,'" he said. "The stories are very real."

He doesn't think there is any point in comparing another TV medic, intern "Dr. Kildare," with resident "Ben Casey."

"That," said Edwards, "is like comparing Dobie Gillis with Eliot Ness."

TV's medical Eliot Ness is not as complete a success with the medical profession as he is with middle-aged women.

While not singling out the "Ben Casey" program in particular, the "Medical Tribune" in a Feb. 26 editorial comments as follows regarding video medicine drama:

"Medically the stories are apt to hinge on a diagnostic problem of staggering simplicity, which the principals solve in the strongest of ways—like hollering and screaming, though not, as yet, by drawing six-guns and shooting each other."

And further on in the same editorial:

"At the close of the program there is loud and clear 'gratitude' to the AMA (American Medical Assn.), and we wonder if our patients understand it refers only to the way the actors held their hemostats."

TV screen credits for "Ben Casey," incidentally, list the AMA.

IN THE APRIL 9 issue of the same medical publication's "Letters" department, a Philadelphia physician, Dr. Herman Miller, refers to "Ben Casey" as a "horror" story. Penned Dr. Miller:

"It is my strong opinion, and that of many other physicians, that this characterization of a 'medical knight on a white charger' is so unreal and downright insulting that the lasting impression left with the viewer is that medicine has acquired another black eye."

If there is antagonism among some doctors against "Ben Casey," that feeling apparently is not shared by an affiliate medical group.

On a recent visit to St. Joseph's Hospital in Phoenix, Ariz., Edwards was mobbed by nurses.

NEXT FALL television will have 11 series about medics. Their spawning is due, for the most part, to the success of Edwards as a "medical knight on a white charger."

The "knight" was born 31 years ago in Brooklyn, N. Y. A twin and the youngest of seven children, he was christened Vincent Edward Zoine.

He recently was signed by "Coral Records" to make a number of singing records.

He's a bachelor.

What kind of a girl is he looking for?

"Female," replied Edwards.

It is a category that does not exclude middle-aged women.

Q. Please do not print my name, but is Rosemary Clooney looking for another husband?—V. L. C., Washington, D. C.
A. Not at this point.

Q. When Tennessee Williams was a little boy, his father used to call him "Miss Nancy." I'd like to know why.—J. T. McDaniel, Oakland, Calif.
A. He felt his son was "sissified."

Q. Does anyone know how many Italians Mussolini sent to Hitler as slave-labor in Word War II?—Donald O., St. Louis, Mo.
A. One estimate is 700,000 of which number 30,000 died.

Q. What common stocks are owned by President Kennedy?—Nera Gregory, Los Angeles, Calif.
A. None. The President owns federal, state and municipal bonds.

Q. Mexico in this century has had three great painters: Diego Rivera, Jose Orozco and David Siqueiros. Can you tell me why Mexico has jailed so great an artist as Siqueiros?—Roger Jeffries, Phoenix, Ariz.
A. As secretary general of the Communist Party of Mexico, Siqueiros, in violation of the law, "engaged in public disorders on behalf of a foreign power." He was sentenced to 10 years in jail, two of which he has already served.

Q. Do you know how much Jack Paar will be paid on his new hour-long TV show this fall?—Mrs. Ada Remick, Charleston, W. Va.
A. Approximately $15,000 a week.

Q. The late Dr. George Papanicolaou, discoverer of the Pap smear test for diagnosing uterine cancer—is it true that for 20 years his discovery was disregarded by the medical profession?—R. Douglas, Chicago, Ill.
A. Roughly, yes. Dr. Papanicolaou published a paper on his discovery in 1928. Scant attention was paid to it until 1940 when Dr. Joseph Hinsey, dean of Cornell Medical College, was so impressed that he persuaded the doctor to devote all his time to cancer diagnosis research. In 1948 Dr. Papanicolaou began to be recognized by the medico-scientific world as a doctor of renown and great accomplishment.

Q. To what religious faith does Chief Justice Earl Warren belong?—C. Halloran, Wash., D.C.
A. The Chief Justice is a Baptist.

Q. Is it true that Senator Hubert Humphrey is a pharmacist?—L. Collins, Minneapolis, Minn.
A. Before beginning his political career, Senator Humphrey was a student at the Denver College of Pharmacy and worked in a pharmacy in Huron, S. D.

Q. I read recently that Warren Beatty is one of the most foul-mouthed young actors ever to hit Hollywood. Is this true?—P. Metzger, Newark, N.J.
A. Unfortunately, yes.

Q. Has anyone learned what the late Alton Jones, head of Cities Service Oil, was doing with $61,000 in cash and traveler's checks when he was killed in that plane crash enroute to visit Eisenhower in Palm Desert?—E. R. E., Los Angeles, Calif.
A. Best guess—he was planning to contribute the money to the Republican party campaign headquarters in California.

Q. What's happened to Syngman Rhee, former President of the Republic of Korea?—Maribell Lewis, Baton Rouge, La.
A. Rhee, 87, was recently confined in the Tripler General Hospital, Honolulu, later entered a rest home.

Q. Please tell us why Rocky Rockwell and Larry Dean are not still with Lawrence Welk's Music Makers and what they are doing now.—Helen Rose, Hollywood, Fla.
A. Rockwell and Dean both resigned, according to Welk's spokesman, who adds, "We have no exact knowledge as to what they are doing now."

Q. Can you tell me if Dinah Shore adopted a colored infant some twenty-two years ago?—T. R., Knoxville, Tenn.
A. She did not. She has two children: Melissa, 14½, her natural daughter; and John David, 7½, adopted.

Q. Now that Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh have separated, will Tony marry Christine Kaufmann?—Marie Lang, Los Angeles, Calif.
A. Curtis, still married, regards Miss Kaufmann as "a good friend." The two recently completed filming Taras Bulba.

you look better in an Arrow shirt

Quiet color, bold pattern, remarkable fabric...the Arrow Decton sport shirt
This handsome shirt is remarkable in more ways than one. In fabric—because Decton (the Arrow blend of 65% Dacron polyester, 35% cotton) is so lightweight and cool, it "breathes" with you! Yet Arrow Decton is so long-wearing, it will actually outwear any all-cotton shirt!

The Decton is remarkable in pattern and color, too. Its combination of print designs and solids is unique, striking and handsome.

Wash-and-wear, of course. Looks great without ironing, perfect with just a touch-up. Contour tailored for perfect fit. "Sanforized" labeled for lasting fit. In blue and olive, above, and 18 other distinctive color combinations, 5.00. Matching Lady Arrow, 5.00.

Swim for your life

MIAMI, FLA.

With more square miles of water than any other U.S. city, Miami has a water-safety problem second to none—and a solution to match.

It all began on a sun-specked weekend in March 1959, when three children toppled into the water in different parts of Miami and drowned. The triple tragedy came as a shock to all Miamians. For the city's mothers, it was also a call to action.

Overnight, 750 of them banded together as the Aquatic Mothers, set out determined to teach every child in Miami to swim. Dubbing their program "Swim for Your Life," the mothers themselves took swimming lessons from the Red Cross, then trained their own and neighbors' kids. After that they moved into neighborhood pools with full-scale clinics.

Miami mother demonstrates forced breathing with doll as Red Cross expert watches.

Soon other groups joined the fight. The Miami Herald launched clinics where Red Cross experts held "Teach Johnny to Swim" classes for 50,000 non-swimmers. University of Miami students put up skull-and-crossbones "Do Not Swim" signs at dangerous rockpits and canals. Citizens with backyard pools turned them into impromptu swim schools.

Results were dramatic. Within a year, Miami's death rate from drowning was halved. Today the 750 original instructor-mothers have grown to 2,500, and 90,000 people—mostly children—have been taught to swim. Comments one Red Cross official: "Without question, it's the biggest and best water-safety campaign in the U.S."

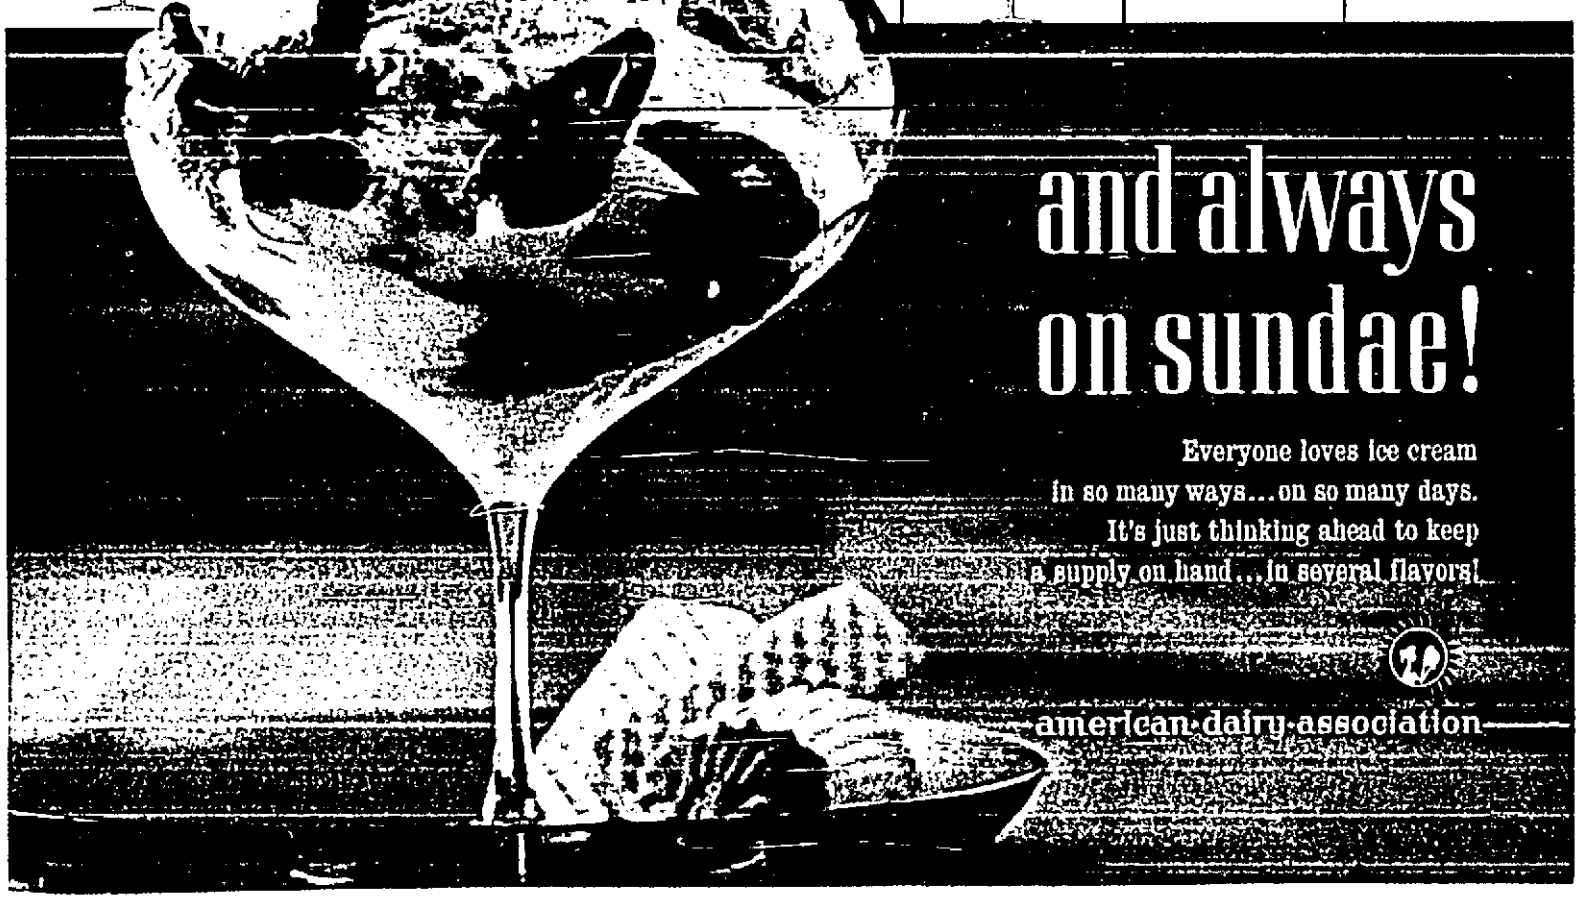

How can other cities do what Miami has done? Pioneers of the project say local PTA mothers and the Red Cross are the ones to start the program, with the Red Cross training the mothers as swimming instructors. Once things are under way, newspapers, pool owners, schools and other groups can be encouraged to join. —PAT MURPHY.

THE SPY WAR

WHO'S WINNING

BY LLOYD SHEARER

"RUSSIAN SPIES SOMEWHERE IN EUROPE are better than American spies."

"Soviet Russia has the best-trained, most accomplished spies in the world today."

"In the past 25 years Soviet intelligence agents have achieved sensational success in the field of espionage."

"By comparison they have made American and British agents look like a group of bumbling, schoolboy amateurs."

Here, in this traditional hotspot of intrigue and informers, in this marketplace of conspirators and double agents which must be kept nameless, the above declarations are presented as facts.

If you deny their validity, as I did to a former Red agent, you are viewed with a smiling, sophisticated tolerance and presented orally with a box-score of Soviet espionage achievements. You are asked to assess the Soviet spy record since World War II and to compare it with the American record.

Here is a partial list of Russian spy achievements from 1939 to 1962:

1. The Soviets have established extensive and rewarding spy networks in the U.S., Canada, Great Britain, and Australia. Their spies have obtained and transmitted vital data on everything from the atom bomb to decoding devices to the sex lives of Allied diplomats.

2. An extensive Soviet spy network still operates in the U.S. It consists of some Russian delegates to the United Nations, many of the approximately 700 Soviet diplomats and dependents in Washington, Tass correspondents, visiting culture groups, Soviet bloc diplomats and, of course, veteran Soviet intelligence agents ordered here by the Soviet Committee of State Security (NKGB—Narodnyi Komisariat Gosudartsvennoi Bezopasnosti).

The FBI has ruined the Communist Party in America as a Russian spy-auxiliary. J. Edgar Hoover and his men have penetrated the domestic Communist Party in such depth that it is now practically useless for espionage purposes. The FBI has exposed the Party for what it is—an agency of a foreign power. But the Soviets continue sending in home-grown spies.

One of the leading Soviet agents conducting a spy network in New York as late as February 1961, was Yursi Osipovich Karakov, 45, a graduate of the Marx-Engels Academy in Moscow and the super-secret Soviet school for spies at Gaczyna, an espionage-training center 100 miles southeast of Kuibyshev. Osipovich conducted espionage in the U.S. under the cover name, William Arthur Mortimer, and recruited a number of civilian and military Americans through bribery and blackmail. A secret Soviet file lists his spy registration number as S-430901/112-G. He was ordered back to Moscow last year.

3. In Canada, the Soviet espionage network recruited into their apparatus the notorious spy-scientist, Dr. Alan Nunn-May.

Dr. Nunn-May, now teaching in Ghana, stole samples of Uranium 233 and 235, passed them to Lieut. Angelov, another Soviet spy in Ottawa, who had the samples flown to Moscow. The Canadian spy network also obtained details of "Asdic" sets, sonar devices for the detection of submarines, information on new electron shells, and plans of the entire Canadian defense strategy.

One of the most efficient Russian agents recently operating in Canada was a woman, Tanya Markovina Radyonska, 38, another Gaczyna-trained spy, number B-480822/039 G. She used a British name in Ottawa from 1959-1961, seduced a top Canadian police official who became her lover without ever determining her true identity or background.

4. The Soviet spy network in England not only obtained the most vital atomic bomb secrets from Dr. Klaus Fuchs, the German refugee physicist now working for the Communists in East Germany, but later under Dr. Geoffrey Noble (real name—Mark Borisovich Zagorsky) and Gordon Lonsdale (real name—Colon Molody) it obtained vital radar information in which field the British are expert. It then penetrated the Portland naval base last year where the British atomic submarine Dreadnought was being equipped with an American atomic reactor. Using British informers, the Russians obtained information on such secret detection devices as "sniffers" and "ice eyes" which can smell and hear approaching submarines. It is also believed they obtained designs of an analog computer which records minute changes in the gravitational field, one of the best anti-submarine measures yet developed.

Worse yet for the British and Americans, the Soviets convinced George Blake, one of the top agents in MI6, the British Intelligence Service, to defect and become a double agent. Blake, of Dutch-Egyptian extraction (real name—Albert Behar), gave them the names of some 40 British spies operating behind the Iron Curtain. These 40 spies have since disappeared and according to my informant have all been shot. Behar was convicted of espionage in a closed trial last year. On May 3, 1961, he was sentenced in London to 42 years in jail, the longest sentence the British have meted out to anyone in this century.

5. In Australia, the Soviet spy network has managed to penetrate the rocket site at Woomera, to obtain valuable information of a military nature, to recruit into its apparatus Australian newspapermen and other knowledgeable personnel.

Several years ago, Vladimir Petrov, a top Soviet agent whose real name is Shorokhov, defected. He informed Australian security officers of the extensive Russian espionage network established in their country. The Australians paid him £5,000 for his help, granted asylum to him and his wife.

In 1955 after Petrov had exposed the Russian network, the Soviet NKGB attempted a new spy network in Australia. An attractive dancer named Rita Elliott was transported to Adelaide, ordered to recruit spies, obtain military and political information. Rita Elliott's real name is Esfir Yuryna. She is now 39. She was also trained at Gaczyna. Her intelligence number is A-450110/215-G. She is the daughter of the well-known aerialist of the Moscow State Circus, Gregoryi Yuryn. In her service as a spy, Rita Elliott enticed several important Australian officials to her apartment, drugged and extracted from them in their stupefied states top-secret information.

In January 1961, when Australian counter-intelligence agents became suspicious of her activities in Melbourne and placed her under 24-hour surveillance, the Soviet escape apparatus moved Rita out of the country. Today she is probably back at Gaczyna, along with Colonel Rudolf Abel and other crack Soviet spies, teaching the new crop of Russian agents how to operate in English-speaking countries.

So much for this fragmentized record of Soviet espionage achivements which have helped the U.S.S.R. to its present position of importance in the world.

What does the U.S. espionage record offer in competition? How have we done, and how are we doing?

These are certainly two of the most difficult questions to answer today, especially since the American agencies charged with obtaining foreign intelligence—the CIA and NSA, Central Intelligence Agency and National Security Agency—are not about to divulge very much on either their successes or failures.

The truth of the matter, however, is that in the omnipresent, secret war of spies, we Americans are doing well—particularly when you realize that we are Johnnies-come-lately to this game.

The U.S. had no coordinated intelligence setup in its government until the National Security Act was passed in 1947, authorizing the organization of the National Security and Central Intelligence Agencies.

A woman about the National Security Agency of which, oddly enough, relatively few Americans have ever heard. It is possibly the greatest modern intelligence-gathering setup in existence. Its headquarters are at Fort Meade, Md. It employs more than 12,000 people, in addition uses 6,000 members of the armed forces to man overseas monitoring equipment.

It is larger than the better-known CIA. Its major function lies in the field of communications intelligence. Its personnel intercept and break foreign codes. The NSA has radio and radar stations scattered throughout the globe, some on ships, others on planes, monitoring all radio communications. It intercepts and decodes messages of the Soviet armed forces, thus learns where the Russian forces are stationed, what they're doing, where they are maneuvering. Should the Soviet Army suddenly be mobilized or a certain number of divisions massed on a particular border, NSA would monitor the logistics messages,

—WE OR THE RUSSIANS?

immediately notify Washington, thus prevent us from being victimized by a surprise attack as we were at Pearl Harbor.

Another NSA mission is to locate through electronic devices all Soviet and Soviet-bloc radio and radar stations, record their emissions on tapes which are then translated, later flown to Ft. Meade for analysis and storage.

At Ft. Meade, heavily guarded by machine-gun-carrying personnel, NSA is equipped with the best digital computers and translating machines the inventive American mind has been capable of developing. One source in Europe told me, "Your NSA people have broken every single foreign code, both friendly and enemy, worth breaking, and that includes the Red Chinese code as well. The only way any army can escape NSA detection is to send its command messages by carrier pigeon."

While this evaluation may be too optimistic, there is no doubt NSA knows better than any other intelligence agency exactly how many successes and failures the Soviets have experienced to date in missile launchings, earth orbitings and manned space flights.

During the Korean War, it was an NSA monitor which first picked up the voices of Russian pilots in North Korea, notified Washington that Russian pilots were in the war against us. It was also NSA personnel stationed in Turkey who monitored the U-2 flight of Francis Gary Powers over Russia, learned that he had been downed near Sverdlovsk.

To date, the most revealing information concerning NSA activities has come from two former NSA employees, William Martin and Bernon Mitchell, young, homosexual mathematicians, who defected to the Russians in August 1960. Helped to flee the U.S. by the Transport Division of the Soviet Intelligence Service which had a Russian trawler waiting for them in Havana harbor, Mitchell and Martin were later paraded before the foreign press in Moscow. There they revealed details of the NSA setup which not even members of the U.S. Congress have been privy to.

THEY DISCLOSED that NSA gives lie detector tests to all its top personnel to determine their honesty and integrity, that the organization is divided into four departments: one to intercept, decode and analyze foreign messages; another to produce unbreakable American codes; a third to specialize in research and development of cryptanalysis and associated fields; and a fourth to recruit proper personnel.

NSA is currently headed by a former chief of U.S. Naval Intelligence, Admiral Laurence Frost. Compared to Allen Dulles, former chief of the CIA, Admiral Frost is almost a complete unknown to his countrymen. Yet his job and mission are most vital to the nation's welfare.

As to the achievements of the CIA vis-à-vis the accomplishments of the Soviet Intelligence Service, it must be known that the CIA did not really get under way until 1950 when Allen Dulles came in and began to staff its top echelon with so many Ivy Leaguers, some bright, and some, as subsequent events have shown, un-bright.

The CIA in the past 12 years has developed into a top-flight espionage organization, employing every spy trick and espionage device the Russians ever dreamed of and some they haven't. Despite the European contention, "You are babes in the woods compared to the Soviet spy apparatus," the record shows that the CIA is more than holding its own, even though it badly botched the Cuban invasion.

The CIA employs upwards of 10,000 persons. Its chief function is the gathering and evaluation of foreign intelligence. On many occasions, it has extended this function by overthrowing foreign regimes, financing revolutionaries, directing military invasions and making foreign policy. It did this during the Eisenhower administration, but under President Kennedy and its new director John McCone, an ace production engineer with practically no experience in the field of intelligence, CIA will probably be reduced to its original mission of espionage.

The CIA has its agents distributed in American embassies throughout the world, under legal cover, of course, and its "illegal" spy personnel operating in all critical areas of American interest. Its most difficult job is to penetrate Soviet Russia.

The espionage term for this sort of penetration is "magic," which is why you hear so frequently in Europe, "You Americans have no 'magic' inside Russia."

THIS DOESN'T HAPPEN to be true. Soviet Russia is a police state where people can be tracked from cradle to grave. An American agent, no matter how well he speaks Russian, no matter how well-equipped with forged documents, could not operate in Moscow or Kiev or Odessa for more than a few months without detection. The Soviet people have been warned over and over again to watch for espionage agents. As a result, they are the most spy-conscious people in the world.

This is the one dominating advantage Soviet Russia enjoys in the war of spies. A Russian agent such as Rudolf Abel can land in New York and despite any strange accent, garb, or behavior-pattern, remain there undetected for a lifetime. But no American agent can possibly get away with this in Moscow.

The CIA, however, does penetrate the Soviet Union regularly. It uses—and these are the words of one intelligence officer—"any reliable Russian-speaking agent with a mouth full of steel teeth." It also employs Russian émigrés as informers. Some of these émigrés, Russian by birth and Communist-haters or victims by experience, are members of the NTS (Narodno Troudoyov Soyouz—National Alliance for Russian Solidarity). This anti-Soviet organization, headed by Georgi Okolovich, whom the Soviets have tried to assassinate at least eight times, is located in Frankfurt, Germany.

The CIA recruits agents, trains them in espionage at secret camps near Bad Wiessee, Kauflbeuren, Landsberg, and other West German towns. It equips them with all the necessary Russian identification papers: Komsomol cards, army service records, worker's cards, a vial of poison should they be caught—this is usually hydrocyanic acid or a derivative of curare—and frequently with a radio transmitter. These agents are then parachuted or slipped into Russia along the unguarded Polish, Czechoslovakian or Iranian borders from which they make their way inland to perform certain designated missions or to remain in Russia as "sleepers."

Every intelligence outfit employs "sleepers." These are agents who penetrate a country and do nothing but observe. When one of their spy networks is uncovered, the "sleeper" is surfaced to become an active operator.

Soviet Intelligence claims our émigré agents are ineffective. But our agents must be meeting with some success, because in 1960 the Soviets amended their criminal code to read: "A citizen of the U.S.S.R., enlisted by a foreign intelligence service to conduct hostile activities against the U.S.S.R., shall not be liable to criminal prosecution . . ." providing he gives himself up to Soviet authorities before he does any damage.

Several émigrés have defected to the Soviets, which is how Soviet Intelligence came to compile a pamphlet entitled Caught in the Act. It lists the names and stories of more than 20 supposed CIA spies caught in the last 10 years in the attempt to infiltrate. But many others are inside Russia today, loyal to the CIA. Perhaps the CIA spy apparatus in Russia is not as good as the Soviet spy apparatus penetrating the U.S.—but that's to be expected. In a free democratic society there is easy access to all sorts of information. There is no restriction on freedom of movement. In Russia 30 per cent of the land is off-limits to the citizenry. Railroad timetables and simple telephone books are considered spy paraphernalia. Ask anyone who's been to Russia how difficult it is to find a telephone book.

In the United States, the speeches of President Kennedy are available to anyone. In Russia, only the speeches Mr. K. wants published are read. For example, one of the CIA's most brilliant achievements concerns the secret speech Khrushchev made in 1956, denouncing the terrorist regime of Josef Stalin. The speech was made at the 20th Communist Party Congress and was smuggled out through Poland by a CIA agent. When later the New York Times published the speech, Mr. K. was reportedly fit to be tied.

Another top CIA accomplishment was the Berlin tunnel which its agents built in 1955. This tunnel led to the main Soviet telephone cables in East Berlin and for almost a year we had a tap on 62 Soviet telephone lines, monitoring every message of the Soviet military forces.

Perhaps the best CIA achievement to date, certainly the most rewarding one, involves the use of the U-2 spy planes. True, we got caught. But the U-2s are still good for reconnaissance work over China, Cuba, and other unfriendly countries. And in four years, from 1956 to 1960, we secured enough photos of Soviet factories, airports, missile and industrial sites, new cities in the Urals, new dams, storage facilities, submarine pens, atomic production sites, to provide the bombers of our Strategic Air Command and our missile experts with excellent target maps.

Many of our allies in Europe contend, however, that the manner in which the U.S. handled the Gary Powers U-2 incident was regrettable and inexcusably naive. They fault Allen Dulles and the CIA for that one, claiming that if Powers had been briefed not to divulge any information upon capture, had we not acknowledged him as a representative of any U.S. agency, then we might still be sending U-2s over Russia, because there is much evidence to support the belief that the Soviets do not have the necessary sophisticated guidance equipment to down that type of high-flying jet-powered glider-plane. If they had, they would have shot down all other previous U-2s penetrating the Soviet Union. Certainly they knew and vociferously complained of these as far back as 1957.

Incidentally, a popular theory in Europe concerning Gary Powers and the U-2 denouement is that he fell victim to enemy espionage. The story is that our 10/10 detachment at the Incirlik U-2 base in Turkey was penetrated by Bulgarian agents. Bulgaria is right next to Turkey, and the Bulgars are reputedly the best bomb technicians in the world. Supposedly one of them got to the U-2 and managed to plant an electronic device in the fuselage. The Soviets homed in on this sonic device when Powers was flying over Sverdlovsk, site of a new Soviet missile base about which former Vice-President Nixon reputedly tipped off the CIA after his 1959 trip to Russia.

One department of espionage in which the CIA has proven effective, successful, and relatively beyond adverse criticism, is defection. To date not one American working for the CIA has defected to the Russians, which speaks well for the CIA security setup.

There have been dozens of Russians, however, top intelligence agents, who have defected to us. The CIA has handled these defectors brilliantly.

Generally, Russians do not defect for money or women. They come over to our side because they have got in trouble with their fellow Communists or are fearful of being caught in the meat-grinder of the Soviet's periodic political purges.

CIA makes maximum use of these defectors by first extracting from them, if they are intelligence agents, the names of the Americans who have been supplying the Reds with information. For example, Lieut. Guenther Maennel, in charge of the American division of the East German espionage apparatus, defected to us last December. Since then he has fingered the various members of the U.S. military who supplied the East Germans with data while they were serving our armed forces in West Germany.

Another example: When Lavrenti Beria, head of the Soviet secret police and one of Stalin's henchmen, was murdered in 1953 by the Khrushchev group, many of his intelligence favorites planted in various Russian embassies quickly defected. They were afraid of being purged. Foremost of these defectors were Vladimir Petrov and his wife in Australia, Nikolai Kholklov in Berlin, Yuri Rastorov in Tokyo, Peter Deriabin in Vienna, plus several others the CIA has probably not yet surfaced.

CIA uses these men to identify the various Soviet agents who accompany Russian cultural and athletic groups participating in events outside of Russia. There were Soviet intelligence agents with the Russian athletes who participated in the 1960 Winter Olympic Games held at Squaw Valley, Calif. When the Moiseyev Dancers played New York, the CIA had Peter Deriabin in the audience opening night. He identified one of the dancers as Col. Alexander Kudryavstev, a leading intelligence officer in the NKGB, who was immediately placed under surveillance by the FBI.

Every Russian group which leaves Moscow is accompanied by a least one secret service man who has a two-fold job: the gathering of intelligence and the prevention of defection. And yet the CIA and its associates have been surprisingly successful in attracting defectors. They have been helped a good deal in this activity by refugees from the Russian satellite countries whom they employ to penetrate Soviet cultural and tourist groups coming out of Russia for a breath of fresh Western air in Copenhagen, Amsterdam or Paris.

From the evidence I have been able to gather, I conclude the following about the war between Russian and American spies:

1. The Russians have the larger spy network, an estimated 250,000 agents throughout the world.

2. The Americans have an intelligence personnel of possibly 50,000.

3. Russian spies are thoroughly trained. They are indoctrinated first at the Marx-Engels School, Gorky, after being recommended by local party chiefs. They are taught radio, micro-photography, coding and decoding at the Lenin Technical School, Verkhonoye. Then if they are scheduled to operate in English-speaking countries, they are sent to fabulous Gaczyna where typical American and British cities have been constructed to provide student spies with the exact atmosphere of the countries in which they will work. In Gaczyna their instructors are American and British defectors or veteran Soviet spies with previous experience overseas. Before being sent abroad, a Soviet spy receives from 10 to 15 years of training.

4. The CIA has embarked on a program of training junior agents. It recruits the best of the college crop for this purpose. The Army Language School in Monterey, Calif., is training cadres of military men in the Russian language, and conceivably many of them will be used in espionage and intelligence.

5. The Russian spy network met with its greatest success in the U.S. and Canada from 1940 to 1946 when we had no CIA, no NSA, and were completely dependent for security upon the FBI, one of the finest counter-intelligence agencies in existence.

Since 1950 we have held more than our own against the Russians. Of late, we have taken the espionage offensive, and for the first time the Soviets are on the defensive, yelling bloody murder. They have no organization to match the brilliant technical achievements of NSA. And when it comes to brain power, we have proved that Americans are as good as any—even with a late start—in so admittedly dirty and disreputable an activity as espionage. ■

How your life insurance can help you guarantee funds for college costs

Thousands of parents facing future college costs are using one or more of their life insurance policies to guarantee money for their children's education. They know they can count on the cash values in these policies to help pay college costs if the policyholder lives. Or if he doesn't, the entire amount will be available to carry out college plans.

No other way of "saving ahead" for college offers such a guarantee. It is one of the unique advantages of life insurance.

5 ways that the unique advantages of life insurance bring peace of mind at the stroke of a pen

1. Guarantees immediate family protection. Only life insurance enables you to provide full protection for your family right from the start.

2. Guarantees a family can keep its home. With life insurance, a man can guarantee there will be money to pay off the mortgage if he doesn't live to complete the payments.

3. Guarantees money for emergencies. The guaranteed cash values in your policy can help you meet big unexpected expenses.

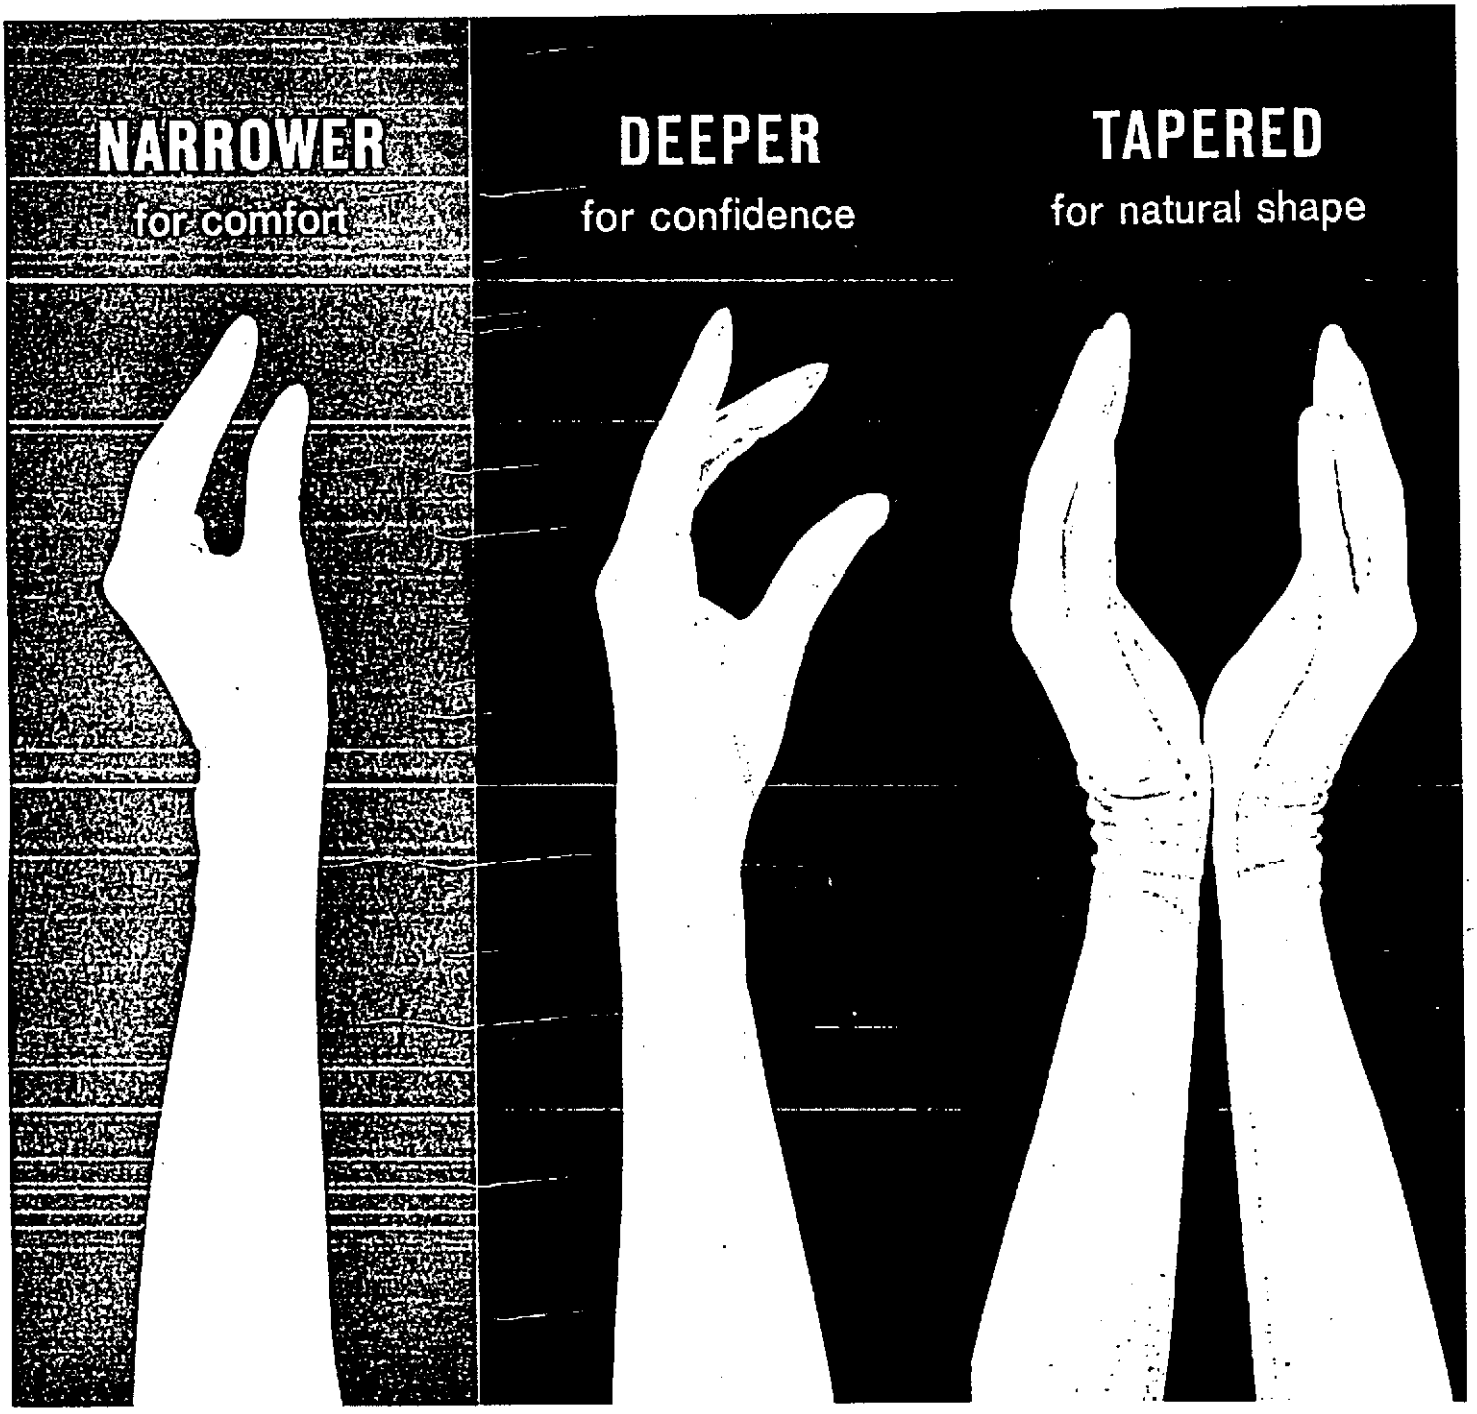

4. Guarantees a lifetime income at retirement. Life insurance can furnish additional income for the policyholder and his wife at retirement that's guaranteed as long as either lives.

5. Guarantees funds for children's education. By having a life insurance policy for college expenses, you can guarantee your boy or girl will have this opportunity, whether you live or not.

To make sure you get the most from your life insurance, take full advantage of the continuing service your life insurance agent offers. Review your program with him regularly—at least every two years—to keep it in line with your changing circumstances. This service, which costs you nothing, may make your life insurance even more valuable when you or your family need it.

VALERIE GEARON

An actress who doesn't want to become a star

LONDON.

RIGHT NOW the name Valerie Gearon means nothing to you. But six months from now, you'll see, it will.

Valerie is a dark Welsh beauty of 23, with soulful brown eyes and a smouldering sex quality who plays the female lead in the movie version of Nine Hours to Rama, the story of Mahatma Gandhi's assassination.

In this film, a spectacular photographed in India which has been kept under wraps by producer-director Mark Robson, Valerie plays the rich Indian lover of the militant Hindu fanatic who in 1948 emptied his gun into Gandhi's fast-wracked body.

It is her first motion picture role, and she was chosen for it because she can act, which is a most un-Hollywood-like reason. After all, Jayne Mansfield, Marilyn Monroe, and even Elizabeth Taylor are not given parts because they are great actresses. According to the Hollywood concept, audiences don't pay to see an actress; they pay to see a sexy, pleasing, provocative, photogenic personality.

Valerie Gearon modestly claims that she offers none of these traits. "I'm not cheesecake," she declares. "I'm not chocolate box. I'm not sexy. [She is, of course, with an attractive figure which measures 5 feet 2, 110 lbs., 34-24-33.] I'm none of the things Hollywood values.

"As a matter of fact," she continues, "I don't even know why I took this part. People keep telling me it's the first step on the road to becoming a great big film star. Well, I'm not keen to become any such thing. All I want is to become a fine stage actress and earn maybe two or three thousand pounds a year [$5,600 or $8,400] and have people say, 'What a marvelous performance Valerie Gearon is giving at the So-and-So Theatre. You simply must catch it.'

Theatre Is All

"Theatre is the most important thing in life to me. When I tell that to my American friends, they look at me as if I'm balmy. They can't seem to understand my lack of interest in money, especially when they find out how poor I've been all my life."

Valerie Gearon was born in Newport, South Wales, on September 27, 1939, the third of five children. She has four brothers. "My grandfather was a miner," she says, "and I really don't know what my father did. I've been told he was a commercial artist, a rolling stone who never held a job very long. He and my mother were killed in a car accident when I was four. No one has ever told me the details."

As a child Valerie was farmed out to a succession of aunts and uncles, some of whom she describes as "not very kind. The result is that I spent my youth, first, under bombing attacks from the Germans. They bombed all the ports in Wales. Then I wandered from place to place, having no definite home. Naturally, I felt unwanted, unloved, unhappy. I escaped into dream worlds of my own making, which I daresay is why I came to like acting."

When Valerie was 16, one of her teachers suggested she go to Bristol, Cary Grant's home town, and audition for the Old Vic, one of Britain's famed repertory theatres. She was accepted as an apprentice, was paid one pound ($2.80) a week for walk-on parts, then was raised to five pounds a week ($14.40) and, finally, after three and a half years, was earning as much as $50 a week.

Valerie Gearon is with J. S. Casshyap as Gandhi and director-producer Mark Robson who discovered her.

"I learned my trade," she explains, "playing every possible sort of role in the Old Vic. Then I came down to London for a year and half of television for bread and butter, and I hated it. Last summer I was playing in the London company of The Tenth Man, when Mark Robson phoned.

Hurry Up and Wait

"He asked if I'd like to test for the part of Rani in his film, Nine Hours to Rama. I'd never done any film work before. It was a challenge, so I said yes. Mark signed me for the part, and I've been sitting around ever since. I mean working on films is rather boring. You hurry up and wait. You shoot out of context, the middle or the end first. You do one scene, then they say, 'Come back next week for another.' It's a strange way of working, and up to now I don't like it. Film work has a way of corrupting one into laziness."

Valerie Gearon is under contract to both Mark Robson and 20th Century-Fox. Robson says, "This girl is painfully honest and blessed with a shining integrity. But more important to me, she can act. She tingles with talent. She generates emotion in subtle shades. She's well grounded in repertory, and what she brings to a part is power and depth and understanding. She is a young, sexy Bette Davis, a member of the new acting breed springing up all over the world today—youngsters who act not for money or fame but because of a driving compulsion. Valerie Gearon is one actress whom success will not corrupt. If it does, then I'm no judge of character, and you can do to me what they did to Gandhi."

Nine Hours to Rama is scheduled for release in the fall. Until then the jury is out in the discovery of Valerie Gearon. But in your memory, mark her name. ■

PARADE'S SPECIAL
INTELLIGENCE REPORT

AMERICANIZATION OF JAPAN. The Japanese are beginning to look like Americans. Not only are they rounding their eyes via plastic surgery, but they are growing fatter and taller.

One of the first moves General MacArthur made during our occupation of Japan was to start a school-lunch program. For the next decade every schoolchild in Japan got at least one good meal a day and learned to eat bread and drink milk. An entire generation of Japanese has been influenced by this change in diet. The school lunches are now a fixture of life in Japan, and that country has become the leading customer in the world of the American farmer.

What's happened to the Japanese physique with the new diet? Boys of 15 are on the average three inches taller than their grandfathers were at the same age; girls are three inches taller than their grandmothers, and their bust-lines are one inch larger, to say nothing of their feet and legs. Tokyo school authorities also report that today's kids are too big for the desks their parents used as school children. Japan is rapidly becoming almost completely Westernized.

Bread is new diet staple of Japanese children.

JUDGING WOMEN. According to Dr. Edmund Volkart, Stanford University sociologist, American men, compared to others throughout the world, have a strange taste in women. In a land of abundance, we like our women thin. But other men, in lands of scarcity, like their women fat and go to great trouble to fatten them up. This is particularly true in Arabic and African countries where the fatter a woman is, the more desirable she becomes.

BOWLING SIDELINE. Bowling is good for show business. Bowling alleys are doing so well nowadays that many owners are bringing in top entertainment personalities to perform in adjoining lounges. For example, the Anaheim Bowl and Santa Barbara's Copa Room, both in California, have booked such talent as Mel Torme, the Ink Spots, Dorothy Shay, Linda Darnell. Once people are out and away from TV, the idea is to keep them out.

FLEEING SCIENTISTS. Britain is losing top scientists to the U.S. where salaries are higher, working conditions better. In recent years 71 British physicists have emigrated. The British don't know what to do about it.

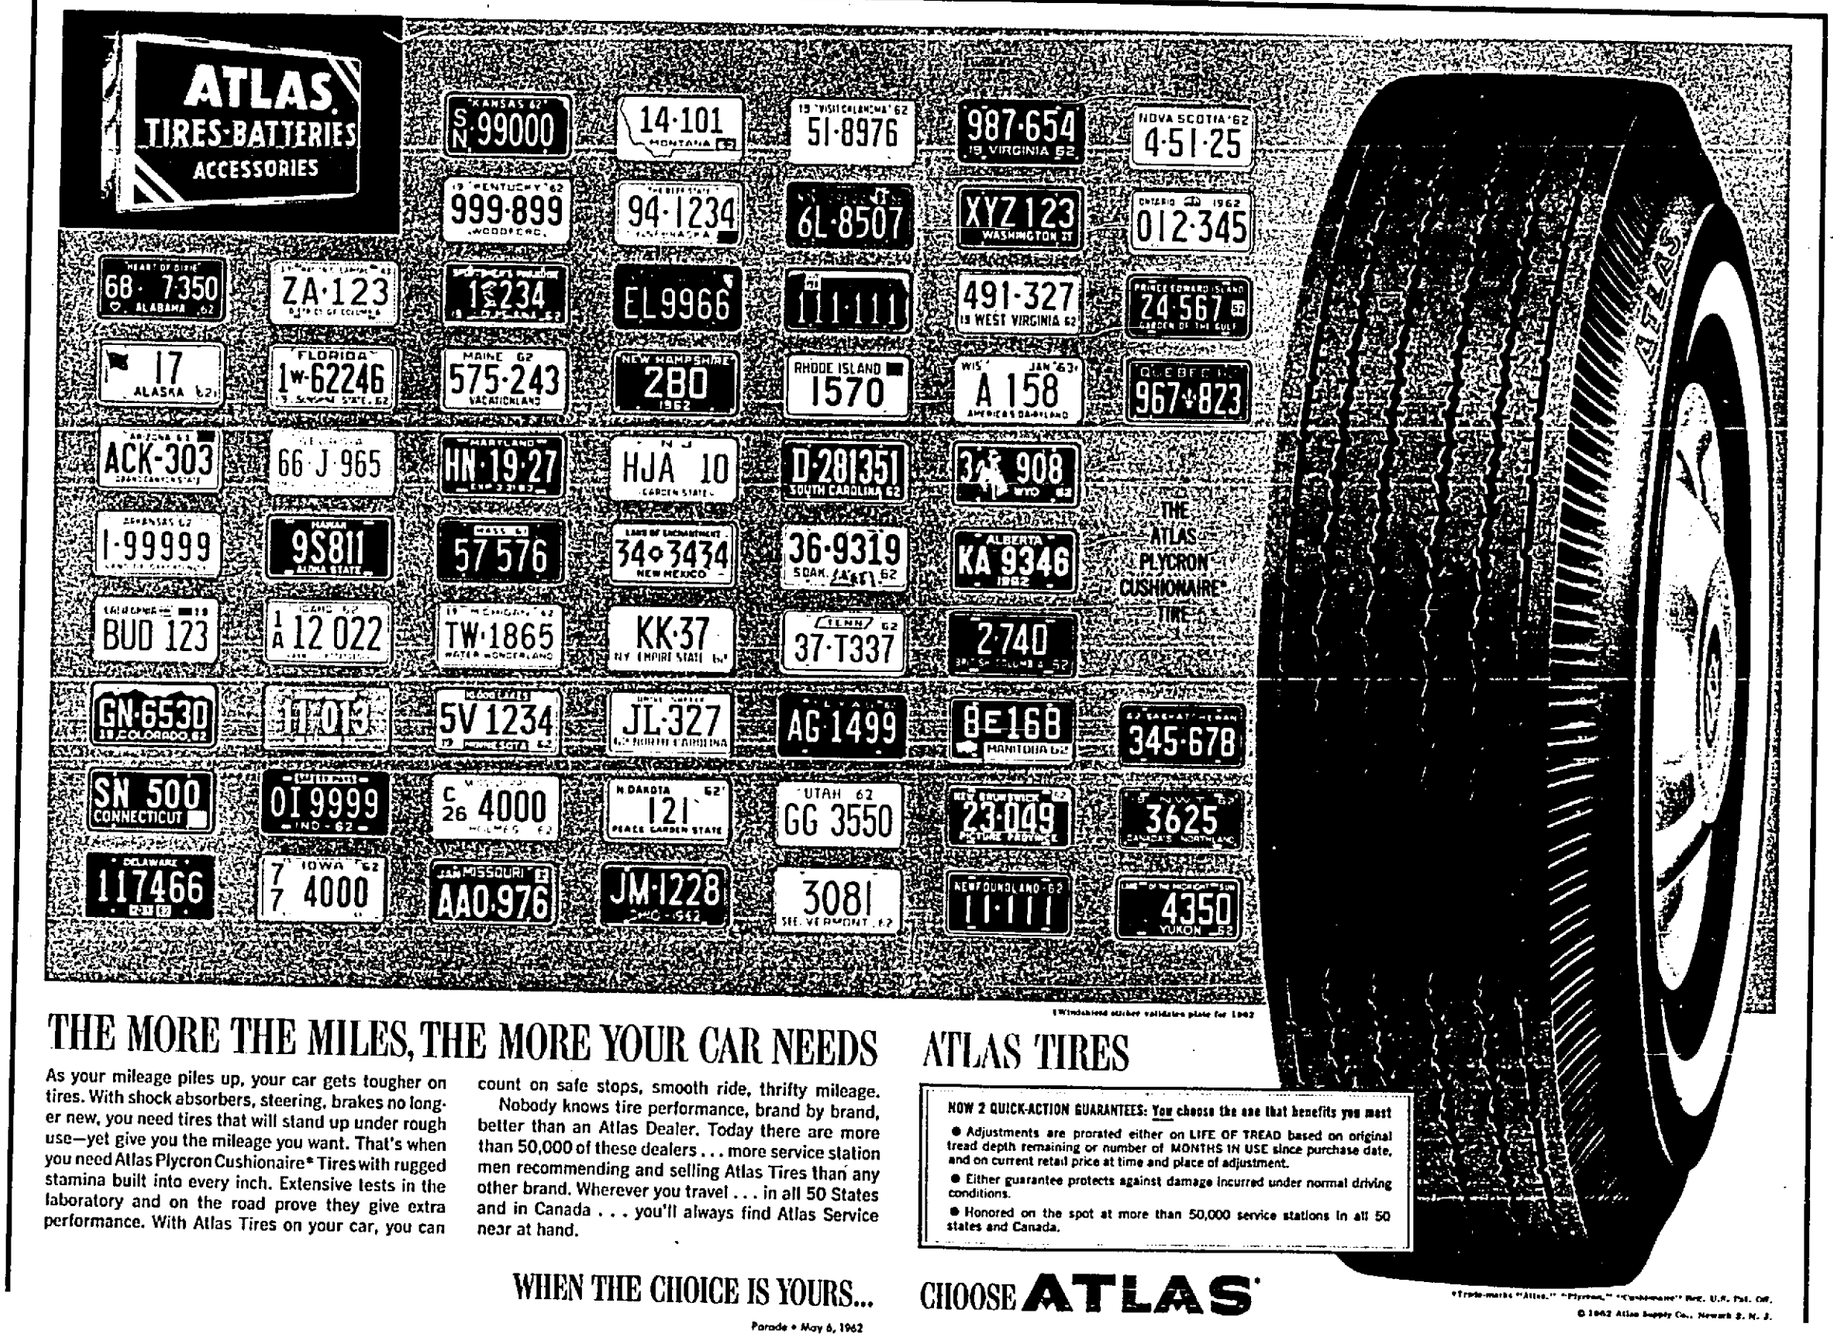

Prince Rainier wants premiere in Monte Carlo.

MONACO PREMIERE. Prince Rainier hopes the studio which eventually releases Marnie, his wife's comeback film, will hold the premiere in Monte Carlo. Princess Grace last year was offered the role of The Virgin Mary in King of Kings. "I'm glad she didn't take it," Rainier says. "The film was badly received, and I do not think it would have been right for her to accept that part."

PERON PALS. Twelve Argentine trade union leaders have been conferring with Juan Peron in Madrid, discussing with the exiled dictator the possible chances of his return to Buenos Aires where he has a tremendous following among the "descamisados," the so-called "shirtless ones." The workers and Communists want Peron back, are willing to forgive his corruption and misgovernment, but the military and clergy are dead set against him. In the Argentine a president's popularity depends on his personality, not his policy. Ex-President Frondizi lost out because of his non-winning personality.

NERVE GAS. Both the U.S. and Russia have developed a nerve gas which can incapacitate entire populations for several hours without doing them permanent damage. Biochemists are now busy preparing an antidote so that an advancing army would not be affected by the same gas sprayed upon the enemy.

YVES WINS. Yves Saint-Laurent, one-time boy-wonder designer for the Paris fashion house of Dior, has won his suit against his former employers. Saint-Laurent sued for $120,000 on the grounds that Dior failed to give him his old job back after army service. The designer was drafted in 1960, two weeks later suffered a nervous breakdown and was discharged. Court award: $24,000. But Dior plans to appeal. Saint-Laurent is now in business for himself.

A Mother's Day treat

FUDGE IS FUN

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

Children who would honor mother with a sweet token of love and affection on Mother's Day can present her with a gift of this homemade fudge, modeled into attractive shapes. The ingredients, well within the limitations of piggy-bank fortunes, make up into an easy fudge. Even the youngest, with mud-pie training, can manage the modeling. These sweets are a lovely treat for Mother —and for all the family.

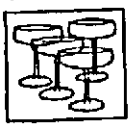

FUN FUDGE

½ cup each, miniature marshmallows and broken walnuts
2¼ cups sugar
¾ cup evaporated milk
⅓ cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 large package (12 oz.) or 2 small packages (6 oz. each) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 teaspoon vanilla
Walnut halves, chopped walnuts, flaked coconut

Line an 8-inch square pan with aluminum foil. Cover bottom of pan with marshmallows and walnuts. Combine sugar, evaporated milk, corn syrup and butter in 3-quart saucepan. Bring to full, all-over boil, stirring constantly. Continue to boil 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add semi-sweet chocolate pieces and vanilla; stir until smooth. Pour ½ chocolate mixture into prepared pan. Turn remaining mixture onto greased cookie sheet, let stand until cool enough to handle. Grease hands and work additional butter or margarine (about 1 tablespoon) into fudge until smooth and pliable. Divide mixture into 4 parts and shape as follows: (1) Shape into 1½-inch patties and press walnut half on each patty. (2) Shape into cornucopias and press wide ends into chopped walnuts. (3) Shape into logs and roll in chopped nuts. (4) Work in ¾ cup chopped walnuts and shape into 1-inch balls; roll in flaked coconut or chopped walnuts. Makes approximately 2½ pounds. OF SPECIAL INTEREST to your baby

Suggestions from Mrs. Dan Gerber

New baby on the way? If you and your doctor decide that your baby is to be bottle-fed, you may want to ask him about Modilac . . . the Gerber Baby Formula. This special milk formula, which really looks and tastes like milk, provides nourishment comparable to that received by breast-fed infants.

Modilac is a complete formula so it's easy to follow your doctor's instructions for feeding. All you do is dilute with sterile water according to his instructions.

Comforting thoughts. When it comes to baby clothes it's a good idea to remember that wee ones like their clothes soft, easy to get into and loose enough for wiggle room. Comfort's the cue, with baby pants, too. Gerber Baby Pants are made of soft, soft polyvinyl film that's waterproof, leakproof, acid-proof. Amply cut for free 'n easy movement; bound in dainty nylon edging for soft contact with baby's legs and waist.

Important: Gerber Baby Pants are machine washable; will stay soft through many, many washings. Medium, large, extra-large, in pull-on or snap-on styles.

Nourishing baby specialty. Doctors recommend egg yolks in the infant diet for the iron and other important nutrients they supply. Gerber Strained Egg Yolks are high in iron and vitamin A and a good source of body-building protein. And, they're specially processed to make them delightfully palatable for babies. The happy result? A creamy, custard-like texture, a delicate fresh-egg flavor. Gerber® Baby Foods, Fremont, Michigan.

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

Jacqueline Kennedy was discussing music with a White House visitor who inquired politely about the President's musical tastes. "What," asked the visitor, "is the President's favorite music?"

The First Lady, a mischievous twinkle in her eye, replied: "Oh, he likes Hail to the Chief" (the Presidential anthem). ■

Bringing Up Baby®
Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber, Mother of 5

a personality in the making

At about 3 to 4 months, a baby "comes of age" as a personality and responds more to the world around him. Now baby recognizes you. Eyes light up at the sight of you; ears rejoice at the sound of your voice. Offer a smile and you'll probably get a smile back. Look and you'll see little fingers dare to play, to touch, to reach. Listen and you'll hear new coos and gurgles in his self-styled vocabulary.

Now's the time to help baby up the ladder of learning by encouraging his efforts, stimulating his imagination. Then watch that wonderful personality blossom!

The growth picture. Your baby grows faster the first year than the next few put together. That's why he needs plenty of protein . . . the most important "growing tool" in his diet. Gerber Strained Meats, made from selected Armour cuts, are high in quality protein, offer significant amounts of B-vitamins and minerals. Additional benefits:

- Gerber Strained Meats are easy to digest because most of the fat is removed.
- All 9 varieties are pure meat with just enough broth for a smooth, moist texture.

Helping hand dept. "Will too much attention spoil a baby?" asks many a mother. Well, experts today say that, in general, babies whose emotional needs are satisfied at an early age make fewer demands later on. After all, when you cuddle your baby for comfort or croon away his loneliness, you're giving him a sense of security and helping him to develop into a happy, well-adjusted personality.

Nutrition notation. Specially prepared baby cereals play an important role in your baby's diet because of the special nutrients they supply. Gerber Cereals are enriched with the iron babies need shortly after birth. (Milk does not provide enough for babies' needs.) In addition they contain important B-vitamins for appetite and growth, calcium for sturdy bones. As for eating enjoyment . . . flavors are pleasantly bland, the texture ever so nice on the tongue.

Menu magic. Nothing quite like Gerber Strained Fruits to make a small-fry menu sing. For they have a natural talent for true-fruit flavors and eye-appealing colors. Have you treated your baby to Gerber Apricots lately? M-mmm, good.

Important: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—cereals, strained and junior—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say: "Babies are our business . . . our only business!"

Plants and animals come alive

Houston students Greg Boudreaux, Joan Edwards learn antibiotic-producing techniques.

A big change puts zip in high-school biology

HOUSTON, TEX.

DO YOU REMEMBER when you studied high-school biology? It seemed a dull, meaningless subject. You memorized great lists of Latin names and disconnected facts, watched while the teacher conducted "experiments," once in a great while were allowed to experiment yourself.

For your sons and daughters, however, biology can be exciting, challenging and different. Walk into Mrs. Helen Barnes' class at Stephen F. Austin High here, for instance, and you might find the students doing any of a hundred things your teacher never dreamed of. They might be raising colonies of fruit flies, cultivating their own antibiotics, testing milk for contamination, or even taking samples of their own blood.

For there is a revolution in the study of life and living things. The nation's biologists themselves have brought it about. Alarmed by the way their favorite subject was being neglected, they have formulated a whole new approach to it. This year, it is being tested on 52,000 students in 400 schools. And early results show that students are learning more and retaining it longer than any biology students have ever done in the past.

"It really makes biology come alive!" enthuses Connie Cruce, 15, one of 90 of Mrs. Barnes' students taking part in the test.

"My sister is in the other [standard] class," says Frank Villagomez, another student. "I read her textbook, and it's not nearly so exciting as ours." And Mrs. Barnes herself declares, "For the first time high-school biology really adds up to something."

The big change in biology parallels similar revolutions in physics, chemistry and math —all a result of Sputnik. It began in 1959 when the National Science Foundation granted $2 million to the American Institute of Biological Sciences to look at the high-school biology curriculum, which had been little changed in a generation. The institute called together the nation's top biologists and biology teachers to a summer-long conference at the University of Colorado. The result was a stack of textbooks two feet high with the stress on concepts, not isolated facts.

Out the window went several of the old complaints about biology. For instance, students no longer learn jawbreaking technical terms unless they are used more than once.

National leaders, Dr. Arnold Grobman and wife Hulda direct new biology curriculum. Course will be ready for wide use in 1963.

("Why," says Dr. Arnold Grobman, director of the new curriculum, "you used to learn more foreign words in biology than in French or Spanish.") Instead of monotonously learning to identify plants and animals, or taking up one by one the various organs and tissues, they delve into the very chemistry of life itself. And instead of simply plowing through books, they now learn mostly in the laboratory.

"You'll find my students bent over their microscopes far more than they used to be," declared Mrs. Barnes, a veteran of 12 years of biology teaching. "They don't just sit there and listen to me. They try for themselves."

In old classes, students merely reproduced "cookbook" experiments, carefully following each step to attain a predictable result. Now they're encouraged to strike out on their own, learning from the process and the investigation rather than the answer. Their investigations also go much deeper. They used to watch a teacher extract chlorophyll from leaves. They now not only extract it themselves, but also break it down chemically into its component parts.

An End to Taboos

The new curriculum also tackles head-on some long-taboo subjects. For instance, high-school biology used to tiptoe carefully around such subjects as reproduction, elimination and evolution. Teachers discussed it embarrassedly and discouraged students from asking questions. Now the way life perpetuates itself, from the lowliest species to man, is treated fully, frankly, and scientifically. Evolution, given an entire section in the experimental texts, becomes the heart and soul of the new curriculum.

The youngsters eat it up. One girl here, for instance, has started her own after-school project in yeast culture. Librarians say biology reference materials have never been so popular.

The students concede they must work hard. Since the course is intended for the average student, they were chosen for it at random, but given permission to transfer after a semester. Only a few have. "It's very hard in some ways," says Patsy Boone. "But it's more interesting and much clearer."

Teachers echo the praise. Those participating meet each week and report back to Dr. Grobman in Boulder, Colo., on how things are going. "This is the greatest thing that's happened to biology in 150 years," says one teacher. Added another: "Now I have something to stimulate me."

And this may be only the beginning of the biological revolution. The biologists are talking now about revamping the college curriculum, and are even trying out a second high-school course in biology. They also believe more and better biology should be taught in grade school.

"Biology has been neglected too long," says Dr. Grobman. "Most students will never take any other science. Yet science becomes more important every day and some of the world's most crucial issues—radiation, conservation, the population explosion—are based on biology. If we are to have an enlightened citizenry, the proper teaching of biology is crucial." ■

"Crash" site in Clinocopter test was this intersection.

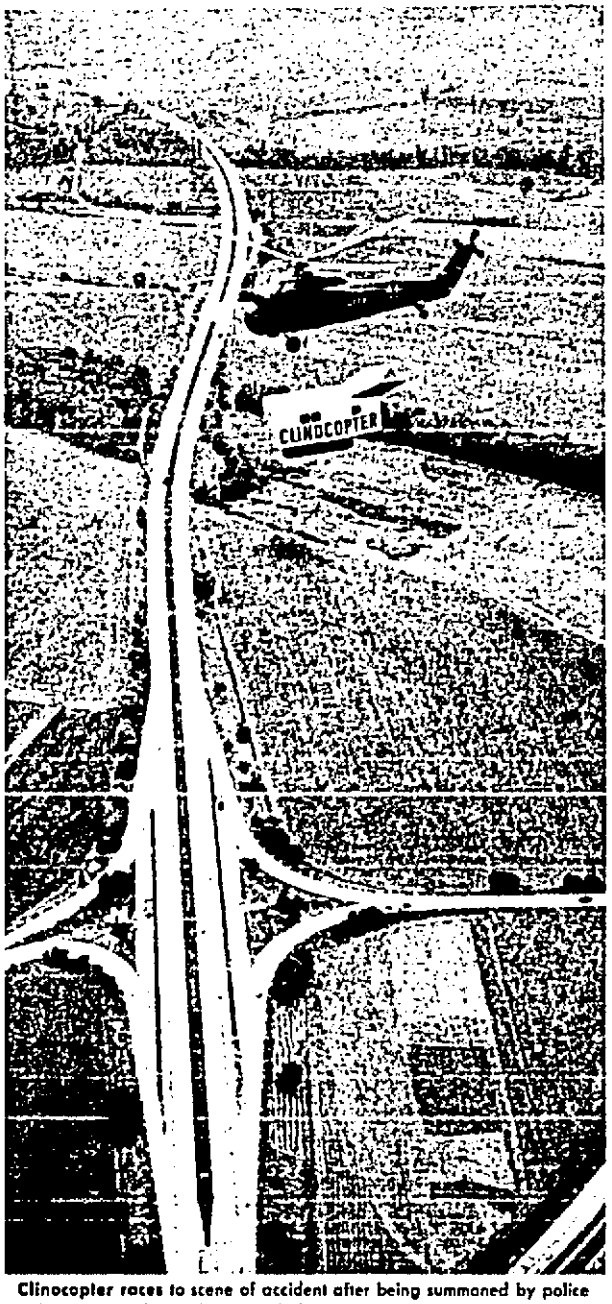

This hospital comes to the patient

HANOVER, W. GERMANY.

A STARTLING IDEA—a hospital that flies through the air to the scene of an accident—is being tried out here. Called the Clinocopter (see photos), it is being watched by American traffic authorities for possible introduction into the U.S.

The Clinocopter's purpose is to save lives that are lost in traffic accidents because the ambulance arrives too late. The flying hospital carries a surgeon, assistant and nurse, with all the equipment needed for an emergency operation, even a complete X-ray machine. Yet the Clinocopter is light enough to hang from a small helicopter, soar above crowded streets and jammed intersections to plop down at the scene of a crash within minutes of being called.

Tested recently in this busy West German commercial center, the Clinocopter may well be one answer to the U.S. problem of cutting traffic deaths.

Clinocopter races to scene of accident after being summoned by police radio. It arrived in a fraction of the time an ambulance would take.

Landing. Clinocopter is set down gently by helicopter and uncoupled. Stabilizing fins at stern keep it steady in flight, protect valuable medical equipment from damage.

Test ends successfully as surgeon treats victim 10 minutes after "crash." 'Copter may be good for U.S.

CARS on PARADE

by KEN W. PURDY

Rise up, girls. The World Health Organization recently announced that a world-wide study has produced no evidence whatever that women are more likely to have automobile accidents than men. This survey was the most nearly exhaustive ever made, and it should settle the argument for the next 10 years at least.

Commonest trouble spots. If you will keep an eye on the electrical system of your car—or have someone do it for you—and on the fuel-pumps, filters and carburetors, you'll much reduce the likelihood of trouble on the road. Electrical trouble stops more than a third of the cars that quit on the highway, fuel-feed bothers almost as many. Tire trouble comes next.

Which side, Jack? People who drive right-hand steering cars on the right-hand side of the road (a British car in the United States) and left-hand steering cars on the left-hand side of the road (an American car in Britain) often report a sense of unusual comfort and confidence apparently deriving from ability to judge accurately how close the car is to the edge of the road. Some drivers believe the benefits outweigh the disadvantage, which is difficulty in seeing around a big truck in order to pass safely. An organization of Swiss is now actively pressing to make driver-beside-the-road-edge the world standard. As one who has driven many right-hand steering cars in America and left-hand steering cars in Great Britain and Sweden I'm inclined to wish them success.

But no windshield cleaning. Coin-operated vending machines dispense milk, coffee, sandwiches, cigarettes and ice-cubes along the road and now the Germans have made a sensible addition: Benzin, or gasoline. The stranded driver (see right) can poke coins into the slot and take out a handled can holding 20 or 30 miles' worth of fuel.

How to stay awake. Much safety research work has been done by the Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, which has come up now with an elaborate device to make it hard for sleepy drivers to have an accident. It works like this: A light flashes on the dashboard. If the driver does not respond to it within five seconds by tapping the horn-ring on the steering wheel, the horn will sound. If within three seconds after the horn sounds the driver does not respond by tapping the ring, the vehicle will begin to jerk as the ignition is automatically turned off and on. If the driver does not respond to this, the ignition will be turned off and the vehicle will come to a halt. (Better he should have stayed in bed!)

German motorist takes can of gas from vending machine.

New Yorkers Were SHOCKED By The Recent EXPOSE of PATENT MEDICINE PRACTICES Now You Too Can Learn How To SAVE ...STOP PAYING HIGH PRICES FOR

VITAMINS

A recent public service study of Patent Medicines in one of New York's leading evening newspapers, devoted one entire installment to VITAMINS and disclosed many interesting highlights about the sale of Vitamins and Vitamin-Mineral combinations.

One of the startling revelations in this frank article was the wide variance of Vitamin prices.

The following three paragraphs taken from the series, as it appeared, are of particular concern to every family buying Vitamins.

"Any particular vitamin bottled under one label is, for all practical and therapeutic purposes, the same as if it is bottled under another label. The fact is, most of the Vitamin concentrates consumed in America are produced by only a few companies.

"The list of ingredients in a Vitamin compound is one thing the consumer can almost always depend on to be correct. Any company which fails to label the bottle with the exact formula and amount (or unit strength) of each ingredient risks a seizure by the U. S. Government.

"Bearing that in mind, it is interesting to pick up a few Vitamin catalogs and compare the prices charged by different companies for the same Vitamin compounds."

Following publication of the installment we received hundreds of phone calls requesting copies of the Hudson Vitamin Catalog. This interest prompted us to tell the entire nation our story.

Hudson Vitamin Products has been serving doctors and nurses for over 25 years and now you, too, can purchase your Vitamins DIRECT from Hudson at savings up to 50% and more. Page after page in the Free Hudson Catalog shows tremendous dollar savings on Vitamins, Vitamin-Mineral combinations and Food Supplements.

Here is one example from the Hudson Vitamin Catalog: A very popular multiple vitamin that is taken once-a-day, regularly sells for about $3.10 per 100 . . . the Hudson formula sells for only $1.50 per 100.

Here is another — a well-known high potency B complex formula with Vitamin C and minerals (similar to a brand nationally advertised at $4.40 per 100) . . . only $2.10 per 100 DIRECT from the Hudson Vitamin Catalog.

These are only two examples that you will find in our 48 page catalog that is simple, easy to read and has been a Vitamin buying guide for millions from coast-to-coast.

Write for the Catalog and show it to your doctor if you like—but, by all means, discover for yourself why Hudson has become a DIRECT MONEY-SAVING source for vitamins throughout the nation. All Hudson vitamin products are sold with a money back guarantee.

TV stars make every minute count

HOLLYWOOD.

DR. WALTER ALVAREZ, 77, one of America's truly great physicians, claims the major lesson he's learned from a long life is "to use my scraps of time. Most people," the good doctor contends, "fritter away 10 or 15 minutes in every hour, hesitating, postponing, trying to make up their minds, inevitably doing nothing. What a colossal waste of time in the course of one's life."

On this page you see photos of four top television stars who've learned to utilize their time-scraps while in makeup.

Dinah Shore makes the most of time by dictating fan mail replies to secretary Barbara Memison. Comedian Bob Newhart dictates new comedy routines into a tape recorder which he later plays back. Raymond Burr likes to have assistant director Gordon Webb beside him so that he can ask script questions. Donna Reed in makeup always rehearses her scenes with leading man Carl Betz as director Earl Bellamy (left in photo) listens and offers suggestions.

The truth about TV performers is that they can't afford to waste time. Most half-hour programs are shot in two days, and producers hate like heck to pay overtime.

MY FAVORITE JOKES

by MORTY GUNTY

EDITOR'S NOTE: One of the brightest young comedians in show business today is Morty Gunty of Brooklyn, N.Y., who received a Master's degree in education from Brooklyn College in 1953. After teaching in the New York school system for a few years, Gunty realized he wasn't earning enough money, so on weekends he began playing the saxophone and clarinet in Ned Harvey's band. A natural comedian, he was given the opportunity while playing club dates with Harvey to perform as a comedian. He did so well as a funny man that he dropped teaching and music, gradually worked his way up as a TV and supper-club comedian of note. Here are some of his favorite funnies.

Youngsters are running the world today. No doubt about it. Just look at the singers we have: Elvis Presley, Fabian, Brenda Lee, Ricky Nelson, Frankie Avalon . . . each of them earns a million dollars a year. And they're only working after school!

There's no reason why I shouldn't own a sports car. I've certainly got the closet space for it.

A girl friend of mine teaches kindergarten. One rainy day a few weeks ago her students came to school dressed in their rain clothes. When classes finished, my friend busied herself helping the kids get their clothes on.

She was helping one little boy with his rubber boots, tugging and grunting and struggling, and finally she managed to get them to fit. Whereupon the little kid looked up and blithely said, "But teacher, these boots aren't mine."

The teacher tugged and yanked and pulled them off. When they were on the floor, the little boy shook his head and continued: "They belong to my sister, but my mom let me wear them today."

There was this young hitchhiker thumbing a ride from Dallas to Fort Worth. A big limousine stopped, and the youngster hopped in. As the car raced along, the hitchhiker noticed a pair of spectacles with very thick lenses lying on the seat next to the driver.

This Texas driver was going pretty fast, and the kid was scared. So he leaned over and said politely, "I'm sorry, sir, but I think you forgot to put on your glasses. They're right here."

"Forget it, son," said the Texan. "Forget it. You see this here windshield?" He nodded towards the glass. "It's ground to my prescription."

I've been married a short time. But I've learned a lot about women. For example, I've learned that a woman doesn't marry you for what you are but for what she expects to make of you. As soon as a man mutters, "I do," his wife makes him into an unfurnished apartment, and she becomes an interior decorator.

We have real wild furniture in our apartment. Right square in the middle of our living room we have a lazy susan . . . it's my sister-in-law.

A housewife I know visited her doctor. After a consultation he advised her to take a milk bath. He didn't tell her how much milk to use, so when she was leaving the order for the milkman she decided that 72 quarts should be the right amount.

When the milkman came and saw the order for 72 quarts of milk he couldn't believe his eyes. He rang the doorbell. As the housewife answered, he said, "Mrs. Schmaltz, do you really want me to leave 72 quarts of milk?"

"Yes, I do," Mrs. Schmaltz said. "My doctor wants me to take a milk bath and I measured my bathtub, and 72 quarts will fill it."

"Pasteurized?" asked the milkman.

"Oh, no," replied Mrs. Schmaltz, "just up to my neck." ■

SARAKA SOLVES THE PROBLEM OF "AFTER 45" IRREGULARITY

Doctor-approved bulk stimulant helps keep you comfortably on schedule as no ordinary laxative can!

As we grow older, our systems may often need outside aid to help maintain a normal regularity pattern. Continued use of strong drug laxatives can be irritating, even dangerous. That's why many doctors recommend SARAKA, the pure, all-vegetable bulk stimulant laxative for middle age and over. SARAKA supplies the moist, bland bulk that is so essential to healthy bowel function. And only SARAKA has a gentle stimulant action to help ease this bulk through your system plus Vitamin B₁.

Special note to weight watchers: Lack of sufficient bulk in 900 calorie liquids can lead to constipation. If this occurs, supplement your daily diet with all-vegetable SARAKA.

KENTILE VINYL FLOORS

Main rulers in the house are Fred and his four-year-old son Raymond (above). Fred (right) patiently waits while his wife and girls measure off new drape materials.

He's the ruler of the house

1 FRED = 2 RAYMONDS

MADISON, WIS.

WHENEVER MOTHER needs a "Fred" everybody in the Bachmann household knows exactly what she's talking about. A "Fred" is six-foot-tall Fred Bachmann, official tape measure for his family.

Whenever Fred, a traveling salesman, isn't home, his son Raymond, 4, exactly half his height, acts as a 36-inch stand-in.

The Bachmanns, Fred and Veronica, have been using the system of Freds for measuring ever since 1949. You know how it is with some families. Someone is always misplacing the fuse, the flashlight, the dog's leash—and the tape measure.

Fred became a living, breathing tape measure when the Bachmanns—there were four then, eight now—moved into an old-fashioned house with an elongated kitchen window. Mrs. B. couldn't figure out how much material she needed for the curtains and she couldn't find the tape measure. Her eye fell on Fred.

"I asked Fred to stand on the window sill, so I could see how much over six feet the window was. Then I went into the other room and forgot about Fred. When I returned to the kitchen he was still standing on the window sill, and we both got a big laugh out of it," Mrs. Bachmann recalls. "I guess that's when it started."

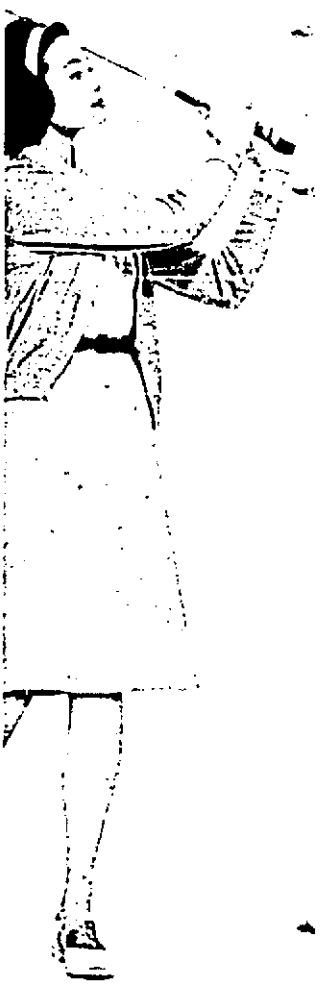

Since then, the Bachmanns have never bothered about a tape measure. Now practically everything in the house, drapes, the laundry chute, couch covers, has been measured off by "one Fred" or "two Freds" or "three Raymonds."

Playing ruler is only a sideline with Fred. As a registered pharmacist, his regular job is selling pharmaceuticals all over Wisconsin. As an avocation, when he's not doubling for a yardstick, he writes humorous essays and articles. (You have to have a sense of humor to be a human measuring rod.)

Since the Bachmanns come in assorted sizes and shapes, Mrs. B. need never worry that her standards of measurement will outgrow their usefulness. More youngsters may come and grow, but Fred, 72 inches tall, will remain the undisputed standard unit of measure in the house. —ROSALIND MASSOW.

Every inch a happy family is the Bachmann clan. With an obliging 6-foot father around, nobody bothers to keep track of tape measures.
